
Gneeral Buckner, Last Confederate General, Has Answered Roll-Call—

In the log cabin, where he was born 90 years ago in Southern Kentucky, Simon Bolivar Buckner, died on January 9. In 1896, the year in which W. J. Bryan came to the front as candidate for President on the free silver platform, Buckner again became an international figure, being chosen as candidate for Vice-President by the Gold Democrats. His colleague as candidate for President was General John M. Palmer, who had been a Union general in the Civil War. At the notification meeting in Louisville, Palmer and Buckner, who had been generals on opposite sides, stood arm in arm on the platform, while delegates from North and South went wild with enthusiasm.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT TO CONVENE.

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, Jan. 14.—Members of the Dominion Parliament from the western and lower Provinces, as well as those from Ontario and Quebec, are nearly all in the Capital, in anticipation of the opening of the session, to-morrow. The opening will be accompanied by the customary military display and the galleries of both houses will probably be filled with the usual large throngs of spectators.

Generally speaking a very interesting session is looked for. The programme, as forecasted, calls for legislation dealing with the railways, insurance, corporations and shipping, with amendments to the criminal code and civil service act. Aside from the regular Government programme, it is considered likely there will be considerable tariff discussion.

Alderman Johnston's references to coasting in the city are directed only to those hills which are crossed by railways. There are one or two in the north end which are dangerous in this respect. The North Ward alderman does not wish to deprive the "little codgers" of the pleasure of coasting on hills in the city which do not present this element of danger.

At any rate Alderman Langford was on the right side of the bridge question even if he was a lone Horatius.

Judging by the voice of the citizens on the unfortunate by-law there are not many aldermen who can congratulate themselves with having had their fingers on the pulse of public opinion.

Intemperate consideration should be the last weakness of an alderman. The free rink proposal was cordially received on its first appearance. It was left with a committee which did not get together, and then apparently the matter was subjected to careful thought and no action was decided upon.

Alderman Green had no sooner taken hold of the Fire Department than the men proceeded to get busy. Two runs on Monday and three on Tuesday was the welcome to the new chairman.

There is no denying the fact that there was a feeling of incompleteness to the Council on Monday night. The pictures on the wall were trying to figure out why W. H. Bradburn and G. A. Gillespie were absent.

Again it may be asked, where is there any corporation of consequence outside the average city or town Council that trains men for a number of years and then whimsically discards them.

How will the ex-Mayor and Alderman Gillespie exist without the White Rocks' eggs which a ratepayer asserted are provided the Council by Chief Howard. And it looks like a hard winter too.

That motor driven chemical engine would have licked up the distance to the Bobcaygeon fishing grounds. Eh, what!

There is a street railway conductor who surmises that the midnight "shoo-shoo" refers to two prominent cops.

It is learned that Messrs. Grant and Thorpe, electricians, of No. 430 George Street, have received the order for supplying the entire outfit of electric lamps and modern lighting fixtures for the new steel built Turnbull departmental store. The equipment, it is understood, calls for the most up-to-date lighting system on the latest scientific principles.

The De Laval Company have been engaged in the laborious work of million dollar inventory during the past two weeks. The department heads and assistants may be found any day with pad and pencil in hand minutely dissecting the various sections with the eyes of skilled mathematicians, and collaborating the details far into the night. The work is very systematic, and is invested with the greatest care and accuracy, as may be assumed from the thoroughness with which all De Laval undertakings are associated.

The premises on George Street, formerly occupied by Mr. Browett, optician, in the market block, has been leased for a new cafe, and is now being fitted up for an up-to-date restaurant by a local man whose business abilities and enterprise has been well spoken of by citizens who know him.

Mr. M. Fine, proprietor of the ladies' and gentlemen's ready-to-wear store in the Taylor block, 309 George Street, completed his sixth year in business this week. He reports that last year's trade was by far the most satisfactory in his experience in Peterborough, and is very much encouraged with the result of his stock-taking at the close of last year. Mr. Fine has established himself in the minds of close-buying shoppers by his strict attention to business and straightforward dealings. He aims to carry a superior stock of goods, and has kept on enlarging and adding to its extent and variety every year.

It is a pleasure to be able to refer to the business abilities and energy displayed by women at times when they are unexpectedly called upon to assume the larger responsibilities of a good-going business. The ill health which caused the temporary withdrawal of Mr. Porter S. White from the overnight of his grocery business on George Street, threw the care and management of the store on his sister-in-law, Miss Barnard, who had been his active assistant and adviser. For nearly a year she has shown excellent business abilities, as well as capacity, for laborious work, and has succeeded in keeping and maintaining the splendid trade which this store has enjoyed for years.

WAGNER STILL ON

When Wagner woke a new spirit in the musical world and gave music a new form of expression though his methods were railed at as loud and noisy and a brief reign predicted, yet Wagner stands in the ranks of the immortals, in a niche alongside the old masters, in the pantheon of imperishable musical composers. On Jan. 1st, 1914, Wagner's celebrated opera "Parsiful," was given for the first time in the Royal Opera House, Berlin, Germany. Madame Cosima Wagner had made an agreement, one condition of which that the Opera of Parsiful should be performed for thirty years after the death of the composer only in the Beyreuth Opera House specially built for memory of Wagnerian opera.

After the lapse of thirty years Wagner has grown into new popularity and the public interest in the presentation of Parsiful, outside of Beyreuth is shown by the great demand for places at the theatre of their production. Mrs. Kilmaster, sister of Mrs. A. F. Hoover, Peterborough, who lives near Berlin, writes to her sister that to secure seats for Parsifal one must speak for them a fortnight in advance. Other operas of Wagner have been performed in different cities of the world, but till now Parsiful has only been heard at Beyreuth, and the waits for its presentation in other cities seems to have sharpened the public appetite.

LACK OF FRESH AIR

Causes Rundown Condition. How to Keep Strong.

Statistics prove that the death rate is very much greater in the winter months than in summer, and that the lack of fresh air is largely responsible for this condition.

If the system becomes rundown, blood thin and watery, circulation poor, no appetite, don't dose with drugs, but take our delicious cod liver and iron tonic Vinol, not a patent medicine, as everything in it is named on every package and if it does not give you a hearty appetite, enrich the blood and create strength, we will refund your money; that shows our faith in Vinol.

A case has just come to our attention from Knoxville, Tenn. Miss Carrie King says: "For three years I was all run-down, weak, had no appetite and after all that time I am glad to say Vinol has brought back my health and Strength."

Try a bottle of Vinol, on our guarantee.

A PLEA FOR THE YOUNGSTERS

Should Be Given Chance to Coast Says "North End Sport"

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In last night's Examiner I noticed that Alderman Johnston did not approve of the young bloods coasting on city hills. Now coasting has been a common practice for centuries, and I don't see any reason why it should be stopped. Our fathers and grandfathers can tell us about happy winter evenings which they spent coasting when they were young.

I think it would be a good thing to stop coasting on the sidewalks, but they should be allowed to coast on the roads.

Now if Alderman Johnston still wishes to stop this healthy and inocent fun, it is up to him to provide a public slide on which the "little codgers," may coast all they like.

Hoping that this will be given as prominent a place as "Coasting on city hills to be stopped," was given in last night's paper.

Thanking you for your valuable space.

North End Sport.

WILL BE DAZZLING EVENT.

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—The imagination falters when it attempts to foretell the grandeur and magnificence of gold lace and bubbling spirits which will be seen at the Old Guard ball in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. The interior of the big building will be transformed into an immense military tent, brilliantly illuminated for the occasion. Delegations representing the veteran military organizations of Boston, Philadelphia, Hartford and other cities will be among the guests. The spectacular feature of the ball, as in previous years, will be the grand military march at midnight, when, to the stirring music of the Old Guard Band, a thousand or more officers in full uniform of their respective commands will pass in review before State and City officials and the great throng assembled to greet them.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS IN SESSION.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 14.—Several hundred members were present this morning at the opening of the twenty-second annual convention of the National League of Commission Merchants. Governor Trammell and Mayor Swearingen delivered addresses of welcome and Chester Franzell of Pittsburgh responded for the visitors. Following the exchange of greetings the Association listened to the address of the president and the annual reports of other officers and standing committees. Much of the time of the convention, which will continue in session three days, will b devoted to the discussion of improved methods in packing, shipping and distributing fruits, vegetables and other food products.

BRITISH GOLD FOR CANADIAN FARMERS

Sir George Paish, the eminent British financier and economist, has some interesting comment on Canadia development in the current issue of his paper, the London Statist, Sir George has just returned to his own country after a trip across Canada in the course of which, it is evident, he kept his eyes open and drew his own conclusion from what he saw.

He does not indulge in any of the somewhat pessimistic "notes of warning," which we have learned to expect from men of his class. On the contrary he sees in Canada an immense field for profitable British investment. He does believe however, that the form these investments should take in the future should be different from that which they have in the past. Wheat we should devote our attention to now is production rather than further expansion, he thinks. His opinion is that the "machinery created to take care of the production of the country is sufficient to deal with at least twice if not three times the existing output." In other words our railway building and the creation of means of taking care of what we produce has far outstripped production. Into these railways and similar works the great bulk of foreign capital has flowed; what Sir George would like to see now is a change in the direction of this flow. He wants the British investor's money under Canadian direction, to go toward building barns and stocking farms, clearing land and building fences, in a word, toward agricultural development.

It will be generally admitted in Canada that Sir George sums up the situation pretty accurately. That agricultural production is not keeping anything like pace with industrial and transportation development, more, that it is actually falling behind in the older parts of Canada, has become amply evident in the last few years. Evidence recently taken by the commission of enquiry into the enhanced cost of living has already shown to what an extent production of some staple lines of agricultural products has fallen off of late. Demand has outstripped supply and demand is likely to grow greater and greater with each succeeding year. There should be a profitable field for an almost unlimited amount of foreign capital in building up and maintaining the staple industry of this country.—Montreal Herald.

"THIS IS MY 42ND BIRTHDAY"

Earl of Kerry.

The Earl of Kerry, whose full name is Henry William Edmund Petty-Fitzmaurice, was born January 14, 1872. By an interesting coincidence his birthday anniversary falls on the same date as that of his father, who is the Marquis of Lansdown, the famous statesman. After graduating from Oxford University the Earl of Kerry adopted the army as a profession. He began his military career with the Grenadier Guards and subsequently became majorof the Irish Guards. For gallantry in action during the last South African war he was mentioned in despatches and subsequently decorated with the Distinguished Service Order. As oldest son of the Marquis of Lansdowne the Earl will some day succeed to the title now borne by his distinguished father.

HAND WOULD CRACK WITH SALT RHEUM

Pained and Burned. Hard and Sore Lumps. Couldn't Rest or Sleep. Finger Swollen. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Lagore Corner, N. B.—"I had salt rheum on my hand for a good many years. Every winter my hand would crack and part of the time I had to wear a glove to do my work, for when I washed in hot water with it unwrapped it used to irritate so much that I didn't know what to do. I had to take a rough towel and rub it until the blood would come sometimes. Many a night I had to get up in bed and rub them as sometimes that didn't satisfy. I had to scratch with my fingers and the next morning I would find a big piece of skin which I had taken off. This winter I had sores on one of my hands. I thought they were ulcers. They pained and bothered. They started just like a little lump and would be hard and sore and after that there would be a big bunch of pus and when that would be out it would leave an opening almost as big as half a five-cent piece. I couldn't rest or sleep with the pain and the burning sensation. The ulcer I had on my finger this winter was still sprore. There was more inflammation for my finger was swollen almost twice its natural size and was just as red as a piece of flannel.

"I took the Cuticura Soap and made a suds with it and washed the hand with a piece of cotton and after it was washed I used to take the Cuticura Ointment and spread it on a piece of cotton and wrap the hand with it. I was cured in a little over a week." (Signed) Mrs. Charle Suretta, June 5, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. For a liberal free sample of each, with 32-p. book, send post-card to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A.

Can Council Refuse License?

Manager of Local Moving Picture Theatre Makes Application to Lindsay Council for License

A LIVELY DISCUSSION

LINDSAY, JAN. 14.—Can the Town Council refuse to issue a license to a moving picture house?

This is the problem which confronts Lindsay Town Council and which evoked considerabel discussion at the Council meeting on Monday night.

It appears that Messrs. Pappas and Clayton of Peterborough are negotiating for the purchase of a site, which will be converted into a theatorium. Mr. W. Boenigk feels that two picture houses are sufficient for Lindsay, and if a third was allowed to come in, it would kill the business

Dep. Reeve Warren said that Mr. W. H. Boenigk had spoken to him in reference to a picture house which it was proposed to start in Lindsay. Mr. Warren said that the Town had enough moving picture houses. Both Mr. Boenigk and Mr. Edwards were able to make things go, but another house would go to the wall. Personally he was opposed to granting a license.

Was Opposed.

His Worship Mayor Beal said the Council could not withhold the license and it would be unfair to do so. If a man wanted to sell his property would we say no, you cannot sell, or if another dry goods store wished to open up, could we stop it? The more amusement for the people the better.

Ald. Irvine — You are drawing a wrong conclusion. We are deriving a certain revenue from the local men, and we should protect them.

Dep. Reeve Warren—"If you are going to turn places on Kent Street into amusement centres, you will put those in business to the wall. If we license another pool room or barroom you would start quite a row.

The Council's Pleasure.

Ald. Chambers said he felt the Council had authority to do as it pleased regarding issuing licenses. They could refuse a circus a license and felt that they could do likewise with any other request. In regard to the purchase of the Gough corner for a picture show, Ald. Chambers said it would be much better for the Town to have Mr. Gough's store than a picture house. A by-law had been framed with a view to keeping children off the streets. A moving picture show would have a tendency to draw the children out. It would be much better to have a reputable business house on the corner than an amusement house. The former brought money into the Town and the latter took it out.

Ald. Sims.—"The motion is all right. The question to consider is the regulation. Get your by-law in order and then you can see how far we can go."

The following resolution was adopted:

Moved by Ald. Smale and McWatters that a committee consisting of Messrs. Clarke, Irvine and Warren confer with the Town Solicitor and bring in a by-law re local amusement houses within seven days and that no further licenses be issued pending the report of committee.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Howard Charles Payne, who died on Wednesday, January 15th, 1913, aged 10 months.

When we see the precious blossom,
That we tended with such care,
Rudely taken from our bosom,
How our hearts almost despair!

Round the little grave we linger,
Till the setting sun is low,
Feeling all our hopes have perished,
With the flower we cherished so.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE DR. BECK

Took Place From St. John's Church to Little Lake Cemetery This Afternoon

The funeral of the late Dr. Geoffrey Stange Beck, late of Port Arthur, took place from St. John's Church, Peterborough, this afternoon. The Rev. F. J. Sawers conducted the service. Interment took place in Little Lake Cemetery.

The late Dr. Beck, who passed away in Toronto on Monday after a two months' illness, was born in Cobourg on the 6th of June, 1869. He was the son of the late Rev. Canon Beck, of Peterborough. His early education was obtained at Peterborough. After matriculation, he took the degree of M.D. at the University of Toronto and Trinity College, in addition to the degree of F.R.C.S. at London.

He went on the medical staff of the Canadian Pacific Railway during the construction work at Port Arthur, continuing as one of their medical officers until the time of his death. Of late years he has been in poor health, and has been in the habit of spending his winters in Morovia, California, continuing his practice in Port Arthur during the summer months.

A telegram was received by Dr. Beck's brother from a prominent Port Arthur citizen, saying: "Every citizen of Port Arthur regrets the death of her greatest physician, and expresses admiration for his strenuous fight for life, and sympathy for his family."

Dr. Beck, who was a Conservative in politics, and an Anglican in religion, is survived by a widow, two daughters, living at home; three brothers, H.T., of Toronto, Hon. Justice Beck, and C. B. Beck, of Edmonton, and two half-sisters, Mrs. A. Stevenson, of Peterborough, and Mrs. R. M. Dennistone of Winnipeg.

BUTCHER EXPECTS CHOICE CUTS TO RISE TO 30 CENTS

"I wish the people would stop eating beef for the next three months," said a butcher to-day. "It would mean more money and less worry for me."

Since October the price per carcass has advanced at least one cent a month, and the local wholesale price is now four cents above the October price and the Toronto abattoirs are quoting two cents higher. For every wholesale advance of one cent per lb. the retail prices on the finer cuts goes up two cents. This is to make up for necks, shanks and waste.

The present prospects are for 30-cent sirloins before many weeks pass.

Suet Up to 18 Cents.

An indication of the high price of meat is found in the fact that suet is retailing at 18 cents a pound. It is not so long ago that butchers were forced to sell a large prt of this article for soap grease, and it was never regarded as being dear. Now, the supply is hardly sufficient to meet the demand. Hence the soaring to 18 cents.

And as for sausages, everyone recalls when they were but 10 cents a lb. Now the general price is 14 cents.

Taking it all down the list, prices show considerable advances. One result of the heavy exports has been a drain on the supplies in the country. One-quarter of the meat consumed in Peterborough is brought from Toronto and it is expected that before long the out-of-town purchases will be larger. Look out for dearer steaks.

Prospects Were Never Better For Dairymen

Examiner Special:

STRATFORD, Jan. 14.—Speaking to-day to the convention of the Dairymen of Western Ontario, President Facey said the prospects for dairying industry in all parts of Ontario were never so good. There were great openings in the markets of the world for Ontario dairy products, and the prices to dairymen should increase.

ACID STOMACHS ARE DANGEROUS

Nine-tenths of All Stomach Trouble Said to Be Due to Acidity

A Physician's Advice on Cause and Cure.

A famous physician whose successful researches into the cause and cure of stomach and intestinal diseases have earned for him an international reputation, said in the course of a recent lecture that nearly all intestinal troubles, as well as many diseases of the vital organs, were directly traceable to a deranged condition of the stomach which in turn was due nine times out of ten to excessive acidity, commonly termed sour stomach or heartburn, which not only irritated and inflamed the delicate lining of the stomach, but also set up gastritis and stomach ulcers. It is interesting to note that he condemns the use of patent medicines as well as of medical treatment for the stomach, stating that he and his colleagues have secured remarkable results by the use of ordinary bisurated magnesia, which, by neutralizing the acidity of the food, removes the source of the trouble. He contends that it is as foolish to treat the stomach itself as it would be for a man who stepped on a tack to rub liniment on the foot without first removing the tack. Remove the tack and the foot will heal itself—neutralize the acid and stomach troubles will disappear. Irritating medicines and medical treatments are useless, so long as the contents of the stomach remain acid; remove the acidity, and there will be no need for medicine—the inflamed lining of the stomach will then heal itself. Sufferers from acidity, sour stomach or heartburn should get a small bottle of bisurated magnesia from their druggist, and take a teaspoonful in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after meals, repeating in fifteen minutes, if necessary, this being the dose which the doctor has found most effectives in all cases.

ANOTHER HUMAN DOCUMENT

By RUTH CAMERON

I am sure no one who has difficulty in keeping expenses down can fail to be interested in the following letter. Anyone who has never had such trouble will please read some other part of the paper. But somehow I don't feel I shall lose many readers by that injunction:

"Ten years ago," writes my letter friend, "I was a young girl of 18 helping my father farm it. He was a poor man with eleven children and my two grandparents to take care of. I was next to the oldest. I met a young farmer who was also real poor and 32 years old, and we were engaged and not a dollar between us. I had just 13 cents and he borrowed one dollar from a neighbour and we came to S——, where I had a married sister living. We took up board there and he got a job at 13 cents an hour. We boarded there for four weeks and then we were married. We had a little wedding even, costing about $6 — ice cream, cake, etc. Then we went to housekeeping next morning. We borrowed $10 and paid down on $100 for furniture and got a stove at $1 down and $1 a week. We paid $6 rent a month and I received 6 plates and 6 cups and saucers and a pair of pillows for wedding presents.

"I had five dollars out of my husband's wages with which I went to a 5 and 10 cent store and bought me the necessary tins nd dishes and knives and forks. We were very happy. After a year or so, of course, a baby came, and we had a chance to buy a house at $10 down and $10 a month, so we bought the house and lived there two years, when another baby came. Then we had a chance to sell the house, getting $200 more than we paid, so we thought ourselves rich as we had over $300 in the bank and everything we needed in a labourer's house.

"We wanted to try farming on our own hook, so we spent this money on horses and tools, etc., and ran in debt for nearly $600. Well, at the end of three years' farming we had nothing only our household good and four babies. So we came back to S—— to live. Now I am a young woman of 28 and have four children, the oldest 8 and the youngest 1 and am sending two to school. We have bought a house again and are keeping up payments, taxes and repairs. We are getting $12 a week now. I do all my own papering, painting, sewing, washing, mending, etc. We have always enough to eat and are happy, never having one cross word between us. Now why can't people who want to marry get along as we did at first. If you will kindly publish part of this letter I shall be glad to see it as every word is true."

MONAGHAN COUNCIL TO PROVIDE FOR WORTHY CHARITY REQUESTS

The North Monaghan Council held a very lengthy session on Monday afternoon in the Town Hall. It was the first meeting after the election, and the following are the gentlemen who compose the Council for the year 1914: Reeve, Wm. G. Howden; Councillors, Messrs. Thomas G. Young, Wm. Robson J. H. Forster and Robert A. Dobbin. Each member signed the necessary declaration of office and also the declaration of qualification after which the council then proceeded with the regular business.

Mr. E. A. Dickson on behalf of the owners came before the Council with a plan of the west part of the John Holmes' property, which they recently purchased, and being composed of Park Lot No. 8 and parts of Park Lots 9 and 10, Township Lot No. 14, Concession 11, North Monaghan. The plan of this sub-division showed all streets to be the full 66 feet wide, according to law, and there being no objection made to such streets, the following resolution was passed by the Council: Moved by Mr. Forster, seconded by Mr. Young, "That the above mentioned plan be accepted by this Council and the Reeve and Clerk are hereby authorized to attach their names and also the corporate seal of the township thereto."

Mr. Thomas M. Hunter came before the Council and asked them with Mr. Dobbin's consent, to have the Road Commissioner for that division take down the rail fence along Lot 6, Concession 11, and that the same be put up again in the spring by the Road Commissioner at the expense of the township. This was to enable persons driving along the road to overcome the bad drift of snow which predominates at this section every winter. The Council granted the request.

Investigate Charity Cases.

A communication was received from Mr. J. H. Haw, clerk of the Park Street Baptist Church, in regard to aid from the township for a family living in the Brownton district. Reeve Howden also called the Council's attention to the necessity of aid from the township for a family living on Braidwood avenue. The particulars of this case had been brought to the notice of the Reeve by the Rev. Mr. Price, of St. George's Church. Moved by Mr. Forster, seconded by Mr. Robson, that the charity cases above referred to be left in the hands of Reeve Howden to investigate and to provide for the same according to his judgment.

Council Auditor.

The question of appointing a Council Auditor was the next question dealt with by the Council. After some discussion the following resolutino was unanimously carried. Moved by Mr. Dobbin, seconded by Mr. Young, that H. C. Robinson be appointed auditor in Mr. B. Sanderson's place, he being the assessor. Mr. J. F. Clark was re-appointed to that position, he also being one of last year's auditors. The salaries of each auditor shall be increased from $5 to $7 each.

Board of Health.

Moved by Mr. Forster and seconded by Mr. Robson, that Mr. John Harper be re-appointed member of the local Board of Health for the year 1914. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Forster, seconded by Mr. Young, that the Peterborough Review do the township printing for 1914. Carried.

Township Assessor.

The only application for the position of assessor was that of Mr. Bart Sanderson, who was assessor last year. In his application he asked for a salary of $100, and after considerable discussion on the appointment of an assessor, Mr. Sanderson agreed with the Council to accept the position for 1914 for the sum of $90. This amount will also cover postage. On motion of Messrs. Young and Forster, Mr. Sanderson was appointed assessor for 1914. —Carried.

The next question dealt with was the borrowing of money from the Bank of Ottawa to meet the current exenditure of the coming year. By-law No. 678 was then regularly read and moved by Mr. Dobbin, seconded by Mr. Robson, that By-law No. 678 to borrow $3,300 from the Bank of Ottawa to meet current expenditure be hereby read and finally passed, and the Reeve and Clerk be authorized to attach their names and the corporate seal of the township thereto.

Cutting Trees.

Mr. Young brought the matter of allowing Mr. Patton permission to cut pine trees on the border line in front of his property. A petition was also received signed by H. M. Dobbin, Jos. Gadouma and T. O. Arnott, asking that the Council take action in the matter of John Kelleher, who cut and removed two trees from the public highway in front of his property on Park Street. Moved by Mr. Young, seconded by Mr. Dobbin, that this petition be left over until the next meeting to be dealt with.—Carried.

The Only Way

Sandy and Donald were discussing the domestic infelicities of a mutual friend.

"Ay, ay," said Sandy, "Jamie Thompbas a sair time wi' that wife o' his. They say they're aye quorrelling."

"What else can ye expect?" was Donald's scornful retort. "The puir freckled creature marit after coortin' for only seven year. Man, he had no chance to ken the woman in sich a short time. When I was coortin', I courted for twenty years!"

This little dialogue took place on a railway journey; and in the further corner of the compartment sat an Englishman, listening and much amused.

"And may I ask," he inquired, "if connubial bliss followed this long courtship?"

Donald looked at him reproachfully.

"I tell ye I coorted for twenty year," he said, "and in that time I kent what woman was, and so I didna marry."

UNFAILING PROTECTION

Just before our clouded vision,
Host of angels hovering low,
Wait to give a joyful message
From the One who loves us so.
He who bore our sin and sorrow
As He to the cross was led,
Still in patience bids us welcome
To the feast before us spread.

He who of His love have tasted
Do we seem to walk alone?
Have we felt that His past blessings
For the present doth atone?
Then remember that His mercies
So abundantly bestowed
Will not come to us unbidden,
In His Word He tells us so.

In the silence of the midnight
Bitter memories you recall,
How the tempter lured you onward
When you felt you could not fall.
Then 'gainst sin your hearts revolted
When you felt the tempter twine
Round your soul its deadly meshes,
When your Lord you left behind.

Oh, my brother, Oh, my sister,
Sin in subtle sin is strong,
And we cannot win a victory
If our Christ is not along.
He who never lost a battle
By our side will always stand
If you recognize our weakness
And to Him stretch forth our hands.

Burdens may at times seem heavy
As we separate the dross,
But for this God made provision
By Christ's death upon the cross,
Showing us that joys unmeasured
From Life's Fountain freely flows
Which is daily, all sufficient
As we in His graces grow.

But consider there are others
All around us day by day.
Will our words and actions win them?
Over to the Narrow Way.
Oh, consider souls are daily
Hungry for the Bread of Life,
We alone can bring the message
That will bring them Home to Christ.

Daily prayer and consecration
With the reading of His Word
Gives us peace amidst the tumult
And a chart, He thus affords
Guiding us amidst temptations,
And with Christ amidst the shoals
We may always trust His wisdom
While the billows round us roll.

—Jos. E. Wood.

PETERBOROUGH BEAT OSHAWA 4 TO 2
ANOTHER AWAY-FROM-HOME VICTORY

James' Great Goal Keeping Held Oshawa Out Until Petes Get a Chance to Get Working Right, Then It Was All Over.

OSHAWA LED AT HALF

The Peterborough intermediate O.H.A. team took another step towards annexing the group honours last night when they handed Oshawa a 4 to 2 beating in the Lakeshore town after a fast and hard, but cleanly fought game. Peterborough's win can be credited to one man alone, and that man was Bert Janes, the little goal keeper, who came through with another sensational performance in the nets. In the first half, with the Peterborough team disorganized by a badly placed line-up, Oshawa outplayed the Petes, had five shots to one, and with ordinary goal keeping in that period, the Oshawa gang would have annexed enough counters to give them the game. The Cavan boy, however, is no ordinary goalkeeper, and he proved it emphatically last night. He held Oshawa at bay all through the first half, their only counter being a lucky scoop shot that was blocked from Janes' view by his defence men. They might easily have had a dozen, but the little goaler was blocking them with his hands, stick and pads in phenomenal style, clearing with men on top of him and spoiling attack after attack.

This great defensive work gave the Petes a chance to pull themselves together, and shifting their line-up in the second half, they went out and scored four goals in a row, and won the engagement. Oshawa did not give up without a game fight, but the Petes were going in better style in the second period, and with Janes as brilliant as ever they did not have a chance.

The Petes started out with the same line-up as in the game here on Friday night, but shifted at half time. The initial line-up hal Denison at rover and Giroux at right wing, a decidedly unsatisfactory arrangement, as both were badly out of place and lost fifty per cent of their effectiveness.

In the second half, Denison went back to the defence, Giroux shifted over to rover, and Bradshaw moved up to right wing, and the improvement was easily noticeable. The new arrangement took the kinks out of the forward line and gave Denison a far better opportunity to use his speed. The game proved conclusively that Denison's place is on the defence and Giroux's at rover, and the mistake should not be made again of starting out with two or three men out of place. It would have beaten Peterborough last night if Janes hadn't came to the rescue with his beautiful work in the nets.

The Petes' forward line was off in the first half, but they came through in the second period and finished strong. They bunched in the opening stages, and did not check back, but improved in both respects as the game wore on. Park was, as usual, prominent in the attack, netting three goals. His first counter was a brainy piece of work, when he scooped the puck in off Denison's stick after Dennie had been skated into the corner. Park had another peculiar goal to his credit when a shot from him double caromed into the nets after first hitting the wire netting at the end of the rink and then the goalkeeper's back. Kelly was going stronger all the time and he finished like a whirlwind, coming down the boards in great style. Giroux did some grand checking and he was much more effective in the second period. Denison found it hard to get started on the forward line, but when he was moved back he cut loose with some pretty rushes. Bond played his usual game on the defence, and Bradshaw was good both on the defence and on the forward line in the second half.

For Oshawa R. Fair played a fine game in the nets, and Freeman and Quinn were a clever defence, the latter's work being classy all the way. Williams, the junior star, looked good in the first half, but faded badly on end. Walter Fair, last year's junior captain, looked the best of the forwards.

"Bill" Hancock officiated and had little complaint from either team. A big crowd turned out in spite of the twenty below zero weather, and saw a well contested game. The ice, of course, was hard and glassy. A handful of Peterborough supporters accompanied the team.

The teams lined up as follows:

The play was fast and furious from the start and the Oshawa team opened up at a great clip. They hammered the Petes back on the defence, and Janes was called on early and often to head off the shots that were heaved at him from all angles. The Petes forward line were not working well together and although they tore off some rushes that were decidedly dangerous the balance of play in the opening stages was in Oshawa's favour and only Janes' great work kept the Lake Shore crew from counting. Half a dozen times he waded out and spoiled promising attacks. Down at the other end of the rink Fair was also giving a good account of himself, stopping half a dozen dead-on drives. Bond drew the first penalty of the game for tripping, and almost immediately Leo Quinn was sent away for the same offence. Denison got away for a nice rush and scored, but the play was called back for an alleged off-side. Shortly after Denison was benched for dumping Walter Fair, and while he was off, Oshawa scored the first goal of the game, Fair scooping one from a scrimmage at the side, which Janes never saw, his defence crowding in on him. The goal was made just twenty minutes after the first face-off.

Peterborough came back hard and Fair had two or three hard ones to handle, while on several occasions the Petes missed the nets by inches when close in. Bond drew a second penalty for tripping before the half ended, but there was no damage done while he was off.

As in the game at Peterborough, the Petes sailed into the Oshawa crew at the opening of the second half with a vim and dash that drove the Braddeyites back on the defensive. It just took them two minutes to tie the score. Denison and Park came down together and although Quinn skated Dennie to the side Park followed him like a flash and scooped the puck off Denison's stick into the nets, evening the count.

Oshawa came back and Janes stopped a hot shot from the side and cleared quickly. Fair followed in for the rebound and chopped the goal keeper and drew a penalty. Smith, the Ottawa centre man, got a rap on the nose and there was a delay when play was resumed. Giroux was benched for hooking. The Petes were coming strong at this stage and they soon took the lead. Freeman started a rush but Kelly took the rubber away from him and scooped one past Fair, putting Capt. Giroux's warriors in the lead.—Peterborough 2, Oshawa 1.

Half a minute later the Petes clapped a hammerlock on the game when Park hammered in a rebound afir a rush down the wing by Bradshaw.—Peterborough 3, Oshawa 1.

Oshawa had a kick left in them, and they rallied and made things hum around the Peterborough nets, only to have Janes block everything It was the Petes that finally scored again and a decidedly fluky counter at that. Park made a back-hand shot from well out, the puck striking the wire netting at the end of the rink and bounding into the nets off the goal-keeper's back.—Peterborough 4, Oshawa 1.

Oshawa came back and pressed hard, Janes making several brilliant saves at close range. Finally after he had blocked a shot from Fair, Smith batted in a rebound. There was nothing more doing in the scoring line, the Petes holding their lead safely until the final whistle. The summary:

1. Oshawa, W. Fair, 20 mins.
2. Peterborough, Park, 2 mins.
3. Peterborough, Kelly, 8 mins.
4. Peterborough, Park, 30 secs.
5. Peterborough, Park, 8 mins.
6. Oshawa, Smith, 5 mins.

Penalties.—Peterborough, Bond 2, Denison, Giroux. Total, 4.

Oshawa—W. Fair, Quinn. Total 2.

Excitement High Over To-morrow Night's Game With Belleville Team

Belleville, the only undefeated team in this group, will invade Peterborough to-morrow night and the game will be worth going miles to see. The Petes, by their win at Oshawa last night, greatly improved their chances for the group honours, but they will have to beat Belleville here to-morrow night to stay in the running. The Bay of Quinte team are confident of their ability to beat the locals and will be here with a trainload of leather-lunged supporters to cheer their braves on. The Belleville team have gained a lot of fame by their defeat of the Whitby bunch and they will give the Petes an awful battle for the honours here to-morrow night. It will be a real old time game and a real old time crowd, as the fans are enthused over the showing of the Petes in their last games, and will be out in a bunch. The 57th Band has volunteered its services and will play before the game and at half time. The game is called for 8.30 o'clock and by that hour there will be a few vacant places in the rink

Y. M. C. A. vs. Wanderers.
Alerts vs. Exploits.

These are the Junior City League games at the Brock Street Rink to-night, the first beginning at 8:10 and the second an hour later.

Both games should bring out some fast hockey and the second one in particular should provide a trim little contest. By winning, the Alerts will Boston seven are determined that be tied with the Exploits, and the they maintain their position as claimants for the top of the league. The ice is fast and will be favourable to the lighter players. The League makes its appeal to those who would encourage the youngsters, on the ground of interesting hockey. A big attendance is expected in view of the low prices and fast play.

CURLING

Talk not to Angus MacIntosh of deep zero weather and its ice-making possibilities. Some of his friends have saluted him during the past few days with "That's great ice weather, Angus." The average citizen may be excused for his lack of knowledge of the art of making a velvet-topped ice, and to him it may be remarked that 25 degrees below zero weather freezes the hot water almost as soon as it leaves the pin-holes of the sprinkling can. The windows in the rink have to be kept closed these days, and even with that provision the ice would be "pimply" as the result of the water freezing as soon as it touches the surface.

"This weather should be fine for flooding a skating rink," said Angus, "but it is too keen for the making of good curling ice."

The sheet at the Charlotte Street ring is in fine condition, but owing to the absence of some of the rinks the scheduled games have been called off this week.

The personnel of the rinks that went to Lindsay is as follows: A. Archibald, R. Best, H. F. Foote, J. E. A., Fitzgerald (skip).

John Brightman, Jas. Skinner, S. T. Medd, R. M. Waddell (skip).

F. Hughes, A. Kay, A. Moore, W. M. M. Lang (skip).

P. Fitzgerald, H. Evans, R. Hicks, T. F. Matthews, (skip).

R. P. Gollop, C. Nixon, E. L. Bowes, R. G. Sturgeon (skip).

Going to Toronto.

Four of the local rinks leave for Toronto on Friday morning, where they will play friendly games with the Granites. The composition of the rinks has not yet been decided upon.

BASEBALL

Charlie Herzog is a full-fledged manager now. He has signed "King" Lear, the Princeton pitcher for his Cincinnatti Red Birds.

Joe Cantillon will pitch his training camp for the Minneapolis Millers at St. Joseph, this spring, and not at Hickman, Ky., as in former years.

Charlie Brickley, the celebrated Harvard football Captain, is expected to be a candidate for cacher on the Crimson baseball nine this Spring.

The Northern League season will open May 6, several weeks later than in 1913. Fargo, Winona, Superior, Duluth, Grand Forks, Winnipeg, Virginia and Fort William form the new circuit.

"Whoa Bill" Phillips, manager of the Indianapolis Feds, has offered Pitcher Earl Yingling a fancy salary to sign with the Hoosiers. Brooklyn traded Yingling to Cincinnati recently.

"Jes supposin'" if the Federal League was not signing up big League players, would the Major Leagues have so readily agreed to the demands of the Baseball Players' Fraternity? Take your time.

Manager Bill Carrigan, of the Red Sox, is trying to put his home Town of Lewiston, Me., on the map. The Brockton team of the New England League is on the market and Bill is urging his fellow townsman to buy the outfit.

Boston fans are arranging a benefit for the veteran Charley Ganzel, one of the most famous catchers of his day. Ganzel is suffering from cancer and his physician says the old player's days are numbered.

Good-bye Feds! Out the window you must go. Evangelist Billy Sunday has slapped the rinky-rink on the new League and that goes as you find it. he former Cub gardener says the outlaws have as much chance as a sealskin coat on the Panama Canal in July.

Ty Cobb's batting record shows a grand average of .371 for the nine years he has been playing in the major leagues.

"Big Ed" Konetchy, the Pittsburg first-sacker, says he has two brothers who could "beat him all hollow" as ball players, only they fight shy of city life.

Luther H. ("Dummy") Taylor, the former Giant flinger, wants to be an umpire in the Central League. He says that he can conduct a game with signs so that players and spectators will understand.

Manager Bill Carrigan, of the Red Sox, will consent to no trade that involves Harold Janvrin. Bill believes Janvrin will show regular league stuff next season.

Manager Miller Huggins is keen to land Pitcher "Lefty" Tyler of the Braves. With Sallee, Robinson and Tyler, the Cardinals would have a trio of Southpaws capable of holding the big stickers.

In the few years that Dan Howley has been in baseball he has played with Indianapolis, Grand Rapids, Utica, Cleveland, Portland, Ore., Philadelphia and Montreal. Next season he goes to Oakland, Cal.

It is reported in Chicago that President Murphy, of the Cubs, has placed Outfielder Frank Schulte on the market. Two years ago Schulte was presented with an automobile for being the most valuable player in the National League.

Guess those kids in the little red school house in Euclid Township didn't enjoy themselves Christmas. Acting as their Santa Claus was none other than the great Napoleon Lajoie, and the ever graceful Larry was some Kris Kingle, too.

BOXING

Champion Johnny Coulon is to meet Young Sinnet, the Rock Island bantam, in Milwaukee this month.

Battling Levinsky and "Porky" Flynn will clash at Tom O'Rourke's club in New York on January 13.

During the past year the State of New York received $45,000 as its 5 per cent. share of the receipts of the fight clubs.

Manager Jimmy Dime contemplates a trip to France, where he will try to match George Chip against Georges Carpentier.

Eddie Johnson, of Denver, who has been boxing as a lightweight, has outgrown the division and joined the welterweights.

The four-flush stuff recently staged in Paris by the two Johnsons, Jack and Jim, came very near putting the boxing game on the fritz in the gay capital.

Where is Joe Eagan, the New England lightweight? Joe's disappearance right after his defeat at the hands of Gilbert Gallant has caused his friends some anxiety.

It is said that Jim Driscoll, the former featherweight champion of England, cleaned up about $30,000 on the English race tracks during the past summer.

"Kid" McCoy is in Nice, France, where he hopes to arrange a clash with Georges Carpentier. McCoy was a wonder in his day, but it's a fat chance he has at the age of 41 to defeat the French champ.

Joe Rivers is to get $4,000 for boxing Ad Wolgast in Milwaukee this month.

Bob Thompson, who defeated Jack Johnson in Galveston soon after Johnson entered the boxing game, is now a street cleaner in Los Angeles.

Jack Britton has decided to give Mike Glover a return bout. The New York promoter who offers the best inducements will get the match.

"Snowy" Baker, the Australian fight promoter, has signed George Carpentier, the French champion, to appear in a 20-round bout in Sydney during Easter week.

What, you here again! Battling Nelson says he will enter the ring once more and tackle Young Togo in Evansville, Ind., on Washington's birthday.

Tommy Tracy who has been an instructor at one of the Portland, Ore., clubs, has joined the bunch of old timers who figure on doing a "comeback" Old Home Week in B flat.

Willie Ritchie wants only a paltry $10,000 for his end of a match with Ad Wolgast. Evidently the champion has not forgotten the old German gentleman and his hard wallops.

Leo Houck believes he can take George Chip's measure and George, bing an accommodating cuss, says that when the date and place are named he will be there with a tailor's tape.

All men are born to make mistakes both in private and public affairs and there is no law which can prevent it.

COAL PRICES TAKE A DROP

One of the principal features of local business duri , the week has been the timely break in the price of coal. While there has been some insisting that Peterborough has been paying too dear for coal, a semi-official estimate published by one of our local dealers would seem to prove otherwise, and that our coal men have been handling their coal on as reasonable a basis as elsewhere. It would seem, however, that improved methods of handling has enabled another local dealer to make some concessions in prices which have proved very acceptable to the public. Who will be the next to help reduce the cost of living? If some one would discover a method of reducing the price of eggs and butter, it would be an additional boon to the public.

MR. LAWRENCE BROUGH

Who Will be Seen at the Grand To-night in "The Little Damozel"

OBITUARY

WM. M. BATTEN.

The death occurred at his home, 359 McDonnel Street, this morning, of Wm. M. Batten, son of Mr. Joseph Batten of this City. He has been ill for several months.

The late Mr. Batten was 42 years of age and was born in this City, where he lived practically all of his life. He was engaged in the blacksmith business with his father up to the time of his illness. He was a member of St. Andrew's Church, of the Canadian Order of Foresters, of the Blacksmiths' Union, and of the 24th Field Battery. In all of these he was a popular worker and all who came in touch with him in any way will be sorry to learn of his death.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Batten, two sisters, Mrs. R. Cottrell and Mrs. R. N. Jones, of this City, as well as a sorrowing wife and three children—Hazel, Joe and Fred, survive him.

The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock, to the Little Lake cemetery, the Rev. Jas. Rollins officiating. Service at the house will be held at 2 o'clock.

MRS. MICHAEL GUERIN.

Ann Culliton, wife of Mr. Michael Guerin, East City, passed away at 11.30 o'clock last night at her home, 850 Rogers street, after a very short illness. The late Mrs. Guerin was 62 years of age, and was born in Otonabee. For the past 19 years she has resided in this City, with her husband, and during that time she has come to be highly respected by a very large number of people in this City. A great many friends in her native country will also be distressed to learn of her death. She was a faithful member of St. Peter's Church.

Two daughters, Mrs. Rossner of Portland, O., and Mamie, at Home, as well as three sons, John of Rochester, Frank and Martin at home, survive her. Four sisters also survive her. They are Mrs. Michael O'Brien of Douro, Mrs. John O'Leary of Otonabee, Mrs. Wm. O'Leary of Smith, and Mrs. James O'Connor of Otonabee.

The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

BOARD OF TRADE NEEDS MANY MEN

Berlin's Board of Trade is a flourishing body with a large and active membership. At the annual meeting, L. J. Breithaupt, the President, reviewed the year's work and in conclusion asked for the co-operation and support of the citizens. His following remarks are generally applicable:

Busy men should be more willing to give a portion of their time to public business as well as to their private interests. This is a duty of higher citizenship. No one stands on a higher plane as a good citizen than he who is ready and willing to give of his time, talents and energy to his fellow citizens in the work and activities of the Board of Trade, or in that of the Board of Trade, or in that of the other public bodies of this City. It may be asked: Of what value is the Board of Trade to be? In reply it can be said that the Board of Trade is a prominent asset of the city, in which every citizen should share. The Board has an enviable record to look upon, but cannot travel far on its past achievements, nor on its reputation only. Aggressive work and application as well as the sympathy and active support of its members are absolutely required. If the Board does not always attain the full measure of its great field of usefulness the fault can readily be found, in short such fault lies with ourselves. It is an organization that is always ready for action, when such is needed, and herein lies considerable of its strength and usefulness. The young business men and mechanics of the city should be encouraged, in fact urged to join our membership. It would give them a very desirable training for greater usefulness in many directions. The loyalty of the local press in the interests of the Board is much to be commended, and no doubt will be shown in the future as it has been in the past. With the financial cloud clearing away, with the general resolution and optimism of business men I venture to predict a business and prosperous 1914 for this enterprising community and its Board of Trade.

Love that asketh love again
Finds the barter naught but pain;
Love that giveth in full store
Aye receiveth as much, and more.

Love expecting nothing back,
Never knoweth any lack;
Love, compelling love to pay,
Sees him bankrupt every day.

MAINE MAN HAS GIFT OF TONGUES.

Converses Fluently in Ten Different Languages—English is Hardest.

To be able to take up a new language and speak it in a comparatively short time is a gift which some people seem to have to a remarkable degree, while others seem never able to learn any but their mother tongue, so as to be able to make themselves understood in it even after years of study.

A young man who seems to possess this "gift of tongues" to a remarkable degree is Nathan Lewis, of Lewiston, Me. Mr. Lewis is a native of Poland-Germany, and spent his childhood days in this country.

He is able to speak some ten or a dozen languages with sufficient fluency to make himself easily understood in all, and he is frequently called upon to act as interpreter in court in cases in which natives of the countries of southern Europe, who are unable to speak our language, are interested.

Mr. Lewis speaks English, French, German, Livonian, Russian, Lettish, Slavonic, Polish, and several Polish dialects. Just how he is able to speak so many languages he is himself unable to say.

In his business as a clothier he has many customers from these different races and he manages to talk with them all. He says: "On Saturdays they keep me guessing and that is when I get my practice. Sometimes when trade is brisk and I have to change from one language to another all in a moment, I get my dates a little mixed, but the words come along all right, when I get going. How do I do it? Oh, you know just as well as I do!"

Mr. Lewis' parents, who are both living in Nashua, N.H., were German Jews. He went to school for a time in Poland-Germany, and there as a child he picked up the different Polish dialects. In his school he had six different teachers, and all spoke a different dialect, so that when the pupils went from one room to another they were forced to speak in the particular dialect of the teacher of that room.

When he came to this country and settled with his parents in Nashua the family spoke German entirely at his home. He went through the grammar school in Nashua, and of course perfected himself in English there. His French he learned in Lewiston, where nearly half of the population speaks that language as their native tongue. The other tongues he has picked up chiefly by his natural gift of tongue.

Mr. Lewis says that English is the hardest language he has to do with. "For a man of my race," he says, "the h's and the w's and the b's are almost as hard to pronounce as they are to write." Incidentally, it may be said that Mr. Lewis writes all the languages that he speaks.

One of Mr. Lewis' feats of interpretation was in the Supreme Court at Auburn a few years ago. A case was on trial in which Polish, German, and Livonian witnesses were called, and not one of them could speak or understand a word of English.

Mr. Lewis was telephoned for and for several hours stood by the side of the different witnesses and translated the questions of the attorneys into German, Polih, or Livonian, with half a dozen different dialects of each tongue, and put their answers into English in a manner to win the highest praise from all who heard him.

Some years ago Mr. Lewis used to be called to the Lewiston Municipal Court very frequently to act as interpreter for various nationalities who had got into difficulties with the American laws, but of late he has not done so much of this work.

iWth the increasing number of the Slavic races represented in the population of the city, and the longer time that they have been there, more and more of them are coming to have a sufficient understanding of English to understand and make themselves understood and even to act as interpreters themselves.

The fee of an interpreter in the Municipal Court is decidedly small, so that it is at some sacrifice that a man of Mr. Lewis' standing puts in a day or even a half day there. For this reason Mr. Lewis has been getting out of this work as much as possible in the last year or two.

Still, however, when a really difficult case turns up and all other interpreters fail, Mr. Lewis is quite sure to be sent for, and he seldom refuses his aid where it is necessary.

During his residence in Lewiston thus far Mr. Lewis has been employed as a clerk in clothing stores, working for others, but he is about to start in business for himself, and his linguistic ability will undoubtedly prove to be one of his best assets.

Mr. Lewis is a member of the Oriel Club, of the Rahboni Lodge of Masons and of several of the higher Masonic bodies, and is in every way an esteemed and popular young man.

FASHION NOTES.

Shell pink continueh is a favourite colour for young girls' dancing frocks.

The new draped skirts are nothing short of bewildering with their flounces and curious draperies.

A new collar is the Byron—made of linen and rolling open against a fur collar on the coat or wrap.

Flat combs of old wrought silver, set with pale blue enamel and baroque pearls, are among the prettiest.

Flowered taffetas are said to be gaining in favour, especially for draped evening gowns in dancing length.

There is a distinct tendency to show the forehead this season, but it is not a style that suits everybody.

The most fascinating watches of the period are the tiny pendants made of platinum and set with diamonds.

The petticoat for the light evening gown is a very clinging affair, frequently of lace or crepe de chene.

Corsages for evning gowns are usually blouses with crossover lines edged with fur or with fichu effects.

Some of the loveliest handkerchiefs possible are simply of handspun linen, edged with real valenciennes.

Many women are wearing the sheathlike dresses with mermaid trains, all a glittering mass of spangles and bead work.

What Is Your Birthday?

Among the innumerable superstitions about babies is the old saw anent the day of birth:

Monday's child is fair of face.
Tuesdays child is full of grace,
Wednesday's child is sour and sad,
Thursday's child is merry and glad,
Friday's child is loving and giving,
Saturday's child must work for a living,
But the child that is born on the Sabbath Day
Is blithe and bonny and good and gay.

Strikers Besieged

South African Unionists Have Barricaded Hall

SUPPLIES ARE CUT OFF

JOHANNESBURG, Jan. 15.—The siege of the Trades Hall, where Secretary Bain of the Federation of Trades and a band of his supporters are defying the police from behind barricades, constituted the main feature of the strike drama yesterday. After the hall had been raided by police and detectives yesterday morning without avail, great crowds gathered and the police were compelled to make several bayonet charges owing to the aggressive attitude of the people, many of whom were slightly injured. With the final bayonet charge, the police cleared the entire neighborhood and a cordon of police with fixed bayonets, was thrown around the park. The situation of Bain and his friends is serious, as they are cut off from water and supplies.

The police commander explained that he had no intention of again attempting an assault on the hall, for he considered that the 300 men are as good as in jail. The besieged have been able to get food supplies from nearby restaurants.

Eventually Bain and his followers were completely isolated, being cut off from all supplies. A correspondent, who passed the strikers' pickets by aid of a permit, found a remarkable scene inside the hall last night. The 300 inmates were all fully armed. They expressed themselves as determined to resist and attempt to storm their stronghold. The windows and doors were barricaded with boxes filled with bricks. Openings were left for rifle fire. Other boxes were filled with ammunition.

The defenders are subsisting chiefly on fruit, quantities of which are stored in the hall. They also have some stale bread. Many of the men were dressed only in trousers and boots. It is evident from their gaunt, hungry faces that they were already suffering hardships from the siege. They stoutly asserted, however, that the hall would not be taken until all their ammunition was exhausted, and not a bar or iron or a stick was left to wield.

A bomb explosion occurred yesterday at Benone, slightly injuring three mounted troopers and several strikers arrested by the police near the same place were rescued by their comrades, but were subsequently re-arrested by the troops.

The Transvaal Railway authorities are maintaining a partial service, and are attempting to secure supply of food and fuel. The bakers are determined not to strike for the present, but they refuse to bake for the police, troops or special constables. One firm, however, has decline to be bound by this agreement.

The miners continue to stop work as fast as their shifts end. The department of mines announces that it will keep the mines running, and has no intention of sending the natives home.

REPORTS ARE VAGUE.

Details of Japanese Volcano Horror Not Yet Available.

TOKIO, Jan. 15.—Official reports yesterday afternoon from Southern Japan, where volcanic eruptions and earthquakes have caused heavy loss of life, panic and great property damage, are that the eruption of the volcano at Sakura-Jima, which has caused the most devastation, is abating.

Just how heavy has been the loss of life cannot yet be estimated. Santura, where the greatest loss of life undoubtedly occurred, cannot be visited because the eruption of Sakura-Jima continues. So the story in this respect must wait. Troops and warships are now in the vicinity and a search of the island will be made at the first opportunity.

Kagoshima, the nearest big city to Sakura, while it suffered great damage from the earthquakes, does not appear to have sustained a severe loss of life. H. Ijuin, former Japanese Minister to China, who lives at Kagoshima, sent a despatch to the Foreign Office in which he said that ten persons have been killed and thirty injured there. He also stated that great confusion prevailed in the city.

Passengers Saved

All But Twelve on Cobequid Are Carried to Yarmouth

SHIP HIGH ON THE ROCKS

YARMOUTH, N.S., Jan. 15.—The hundred and six persons who were on board the steamer Cobequid are safe, and ninety-four of them are now in Yarmouth. The two rescue ships, the Westport and John L. Cann, arrived here last night shortly after eight o'clock, the former with seventy-two and the latter with twenty-two. There are twelve men, including Captain S. Bowesor, R.M.R., the ships' physician, W. H. Lester, the wireless operator, and nine others still on board the Cobequid, with the Dominion Government steamers Lansdowne and Lady Laurier standing by to make rescue at daybreak this morning.

The navigation officers of the ship refuse to talk, and the company officials, of whom there were three on board, Captain Hicks, the marine superintendent, and Messrs. J. Allsop and W. Charles Kenney, two of the directors, were too exhausted to give any statement last night, but will talk to-day.

From the junior officials and members of the crew it is learned that the ship struck during a dense storm at 6.15 Tuesday morning, and filled in a very few minutes. The wireless operator was able to get out one call for help before his aerials iced up, after which he was helpless. Her furnace fires were put out in a few minutes, and the passengers and crew were forced by the rapidly rising waters to the boat deck, where they took refuge in the captain's quarters.

For twenty-four hours, in the midst of one of the worst storms ever experienced on this coast, with the thermometer half hovering around zero, and with winter seas sweeping their vessel and breaking it up beneath them, these people had to huddle together. Yesterday morning one of the men succeeded in getting a metal bucket, in which some holes were punched to make a draft, and in which a small fire was started, where some warm drinks were prepared for the women and children.

The party arrived here with nothing but what they stood in, and ten of them, all men, had to be sent to the hospital with frost-bites and minor injuries. Two of the worst were S. Hawkins, a seaman, who was below when the ship struck, and rushed on deck with practically no clothing. Another man named Daniel Hurley, an oiler, had his right arm broken, and his right leg cut badly by being jammed in a door.

TO URGE CO-OPERATION.

International Board to Fix Ocean Rates Is Foster's Aim.

OTTAWA, Jan. 15.—To take steps if possible towards bringing about international co-operation for the control of ocean freight rates is stated to be one of the chief purposes of Hon. Geo. E. Foster's visit to England. He is at present in London attending the meetings of the Imperial Trade Commission and is Canada's representative on that board.

At his instance the commission will take up the question of the growing cost of ocean, especially transatlantic, freightage, and after hearing evidence will issue a report. On the publication of the report Mr. Foster will make representations to the British Board of Trade that international action is desirable. After his return to Canada in February it is understood that the Ottawa Government will take this matter up with the United States and urge joint action by Great Britain, France and Germany towards the establishment of a board to fix ocean rates.

BLAMING WILSON.

Holders of Mexican Bonds Want Him To Do Something.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Formal notice from the City of Mexico through the American charge d'affaires yesterday that the suspension of the payment of interest on the Mexican national debt covers a period of six months only, was not regarded here as conveying much encouragement to the holders of Mexican bonds. State Department officials do not doubt that if the revolution still is in progress at the end of six months there will be another default for the same reason that brought about the present suspension of payment.

Mutterings of discontent among European bondholders, it was suggested yesterday forebode a renewal of pressure from the European Governments upon the United States to take some decided action to safeguard the interests of their subjects in Mexico. At one of the embassies it was stated that it was quite out of the question for any of the European powers, either individually or collectively, to intervene in Mexico now that they have practically, if not formally, confided to the United States the protection of those interests, but that it was assumed that the United States would take notice of the patent distress of these European interests.

Some administration officials are disposed to believe that Gen. Huerta has deliberately held up these interest payments with the purpose of forcing intervention if possible. In their view, the Provisional President, alarmed at the success of the constitutionalists, prefers to yield to the United States Government as an intervener and thereby martyrise himself in the eyes of the Mexican people rather than surrender the reins of power to the men who have sworn to feed his carcases to the sharks of Vera Cruz Bay.

New Elections In Bulgaria.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Jan. 15. — The Bulgarian Parliament was dissolved yesterday by the Premier, Dr. V. Radoslavoff, because the opposition refused to pass a provisional appropriation on account.

The sitting had lasted nine hours, and when the contrary vote was cast the Premier immediately rose and read a ukase signed by the King declaring that the Parliament had shown its incapacity for work.

The new chamber must be elected within two months, according to the constitution and the elections are based on general manhood suffrage.

Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.
Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.
Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.
A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months.

Stove Exploded Gas.

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 15.—Mrs. Arthur Weston and her three children are seriously injured and are in the hospital, as a result of an explosion of natural gas that took place yesterday as the four were sitting about a self-feeder stove in their dining-room.

Without any warning the four were hurled across the room, the chair upon which one of them was sitting crashing through the window to the street.

TWO MEN ARE DEAD

Foreman Went in Vain to Aid of Foreign Laborer

PLUNGED INTO A FURNACE

PORT COLBORNE, Ont., Jan. 15.—One hero, Lester Brooks, lost his life, and two others, Jack McCracken and Charles Guidette narrowly missed death when trying to rescue the former, who had jumped into the bell of a heated blasting furnace at the Canadian Furnace Co.'s plant here Tuesday night, in an effort to rescue an Hungarian laborer named Joseph Postico, who had slipped into the furnace while caulking ore. The story of their heroism is almost without precedent in the annals of Canadian industrial development.

The crude ore had become frozen at the summit of the furnace, and Lester Brooks, who had charge of the night gang, told Postico to go aloft and force it into the upper bell.

By some means or other, which may never be explained, the Hungarian missed his footing and slipped down into the heated chamber. Hearing his piercing cry, Brooks rushed to one of the dampers, 12 feet below the roof of the dome, and jumped into the awful chamber, with a vain hope of saving Postico's life, but he, like the Hungarian, went to instant death. The men were burned and asphyxiated.

Following their chief, the remainder of the night gang working nearby, rushed to the door through which Brooks had disappeared, but the fumes threw them back. Brooks and Postico lay prostrate on the ore, but out of reach of willing hands. McCracken and Guidette, knowing full well what it meant to enter the chamber, volunteered to go in and bring out the two men, whom they thought were alive, but unconscious. Their first attempt was abortive, then they secured ropes, and leaving one end in the hands of workers who stood at a safe distance, they filled their lungs with fresh air, entered the door, and groped their way towards the bodies, fastened a loop around the waists of the prostrate men, and rushed back to safety in the nick of time. They soon revived when taken out into the fresh air. Brooks and Postico were dead when pulled out, and in their case death was instantaneous.

Little is known of Postico. Brooks was a married man about 45 years of age. He is survived by a widow only, as he lost his only child, a son, a short time ago. He was a trusted employe of the Canadian Furnace Co., for whom he had worked a number of years.

IT'S ALL POLLUTED.

No Great Lake Cities Has Good Water Says Doctor.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15. — Pollution of the waters of the Great Lakes and the rivers and streams on the Canadian boundary, along which live more than 6,000,000 people, was revealed yesterday in a report to the International Joint Commission by Dr. Allan J. McLaughlin of the Public Health Service. The report showed extensive pollution in the waters adjacent to many of the large cities, and declared that owing to the present position of intakes there is not a single city on the lakes which can be said to possess water that is safe without treatment.

The remedy, Dr. McLaughlin said, should be sought by the best sanitarians in the world.

The commission under treaty has no power to remedy conditions, but it will suggest the employment of world-known sanitarians and authorities on public health.

Sink Hole Baffles Engineers.

KINGSTON, Jan. 15.—The sink holye at Sucker Lake, which is causing so much trouble and holding up the opening of the new lake shore line of the C.P.R., is a mystery to engineers. It is only about 200 feet across the shallow end of a small lake. A forest of timber and a mountain of stone and gravel have been used in an endeavor to fill the hole. On a number of occasions this hole has been filled in, but to the disappointment of the engineers, the engineers, the material continues to disappear.

Seven Die From Cold.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—From five below zero at 2 a.m. the lowest temperature recorded here in 15 years, the mercury climbed slowly upward in New York and vicinity yesterday, reaching six above at noon. The backbone of the cold spell appeared to be snapped.

The death list in the greater city due to the cold was estimated at seven.

Wilson Served Punch With "Kick."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Roping off the East Room into a series of pens, serving of punch that had a "kick" to it, and a crowd of three thousand, were features of President Wilson's first state function, the reception held Tuesday night at the White House. The Wilsons maintained the Taft custom of serving a buffet luncheon.

Miners Drop to Death.

MULBERRY, Kan., Jan. 15.—A cage carrying six miners to their work in mine No. 7 of the Spencer-Newlins Coal Co. here, was dropped a hundred feet to the bottom of the shaft by the breaking of a cable yesterday and three of the miners were killed. The other three men were injured probably fatally.

SIR JAMES WEAKENED.

Yesterday Showed Marked Loss In Premier's Condition.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Sir James Whitney's condition showed no material change last night, though he was gradually growing weaker. The splendid vitality which he has always manifested, however, stood by him, and while his friends said yesterday they feared for the ultimate outcome of the first real illness of his life, they were satisfied that unless something unexpected occurred he would hold out for some time and even be able to return to Toronto.

The long rest which he obtained by sleeping from 11 o'clock Tuesday night to 10 o'clock Wednesday morning produced a good effect. His failure to take nourishment as heretofore, however, offset the advantage thus gained to some extent, and the night bulletin, issued somewhat later than usual, read as follows:

"10 p.m.—Sir James Whitney has taken little food and grows slightly weaker, but has considerable reserve strength.

DAIRYMAN OPTIMISTIC.

President Facey of Western Ontario Association Predicts Good Times.

STRATFORD, Jan. 15.—"The outlook is bright for those engaged in the dairy business, said President Facey of the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association at its 47th annual convention here yesterday. The increased markets for cattle and dairy products have produced a demand for cattle in Ontario, and these have advanced in price at least 25 per cent. in the past year. The quantity of milk and cream required in our cities has made a good market for these products."

The report of the directors for the year 1913 dealt with a variety of subjects relevant to the dairying industry. The report noted the stimulus given to live stock raising by the U. S. low tariff, and predicted that during the next few years stock-raising should be a very profitable pursuit in Ontario. The directors did not anticipate a great expansion of the export trade in milk and cream owing to the insatiable home demand.

A FREE COURSE IN AGRICULTURE IS OFFERED

Four Weeks Course to be Given for the Advantage of Young Men in Peterborough County.

SOME INFORMATION

As in previous years, and as is the general custom throughout the Province, the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Norwood, is preparing to give a four weeks' short course in general agriculture. The office rooms of the Department are now being prepared to receive the third annual class. The rooms are spacious and cheerful and every effort is being made to provide for the comfort of the students. This course begins February the 2nd and continues to March 1st, and it is anticipated by the Department that the class this year will be large.

The requirements for entering upon this course of study are such that no young man may be debarred. Any farmer's son may enter, the only conditions being regular attendance at classes and strict attention to work There will be no entrance examinations; no tuition fee, and no text books to buy. Board and railway fare will be the only expense for those who come from a distance. Good board and room can be obtained in Norwood for four dollars per week, hence, the expense of the course to th student need not exceed sixteen or twenty dollars.

Th work will be given mostly in lecture form, supplemented by practical work in the various departments. The subjects to be taught are "Live Stock and Principles of Breeding; Feeds and Feeding; Field Husbandry; Dairying; Poultry; Veterinary Science; Soil Physics; Surveying; Horticulture; Agricultural Botany; and Farm Arithmetic. Special lectures will be given from time to time by outside men. Many of the regular lectures will be illustrated by the use of lantern slides. In all the Department work will be made as practical as is possible to make it.

The Advantages of the Course.

It is not assumed by the Department that in a course extending only over a period of four weeks that they can teach you how to farm. But it is hoped that by a few weeks' study of some of the many problems relating to practical farming to enliven an interest which will result in a more active observation and a greater inquisitiveness into the "Why" as well as the "How" and "When" of successful agriculture.

In order that a person may make a success of any profession, it is necessary that he be properly trained for the work. This is as true in agriculture as in any other line of work, and those who intend following agriculture as a profession should be possessed of a thorough understanding of the principles underlying the various practices of farming.

It is true now that we have entered an age where efficiency is perhaps the greatest of those determining factors which lead to success. The probabilities of success are all in favour of the man who knows how. This applies with as great force to farming as to any other industry or calling. The department aims to conduct the course in such a way that attention will be directed to the many opportunities for better things in the business of farming; to stimulate an interest in the problems of the farmer and to add to the amount of knowledge which may be brought into service in solving those problems.

This is an age when education is needed as it never was before. The keen competition and the increasing difficult problems of the farm almost demands the energies of a thoroughly efficient man. This is an age when education pays as it never did before. Listen to what G. Horace Lorimer says: Does education pay? Does it pay to feed in pork trimming at five cents a pound at the hopper and draw out nice, cunning little "country" sausages at twenty cents a pound at the other end? Does it pay to take a steer that has been running loose on the range and living on cactus and petrified wood till he's just a bunch of barb-wire and sole-leather and feed him corn until he is just a solid hunk of porter-house steak and eleo-oil?

You bet it pays. Anything that teaches a boy to think and to think quick, pays; anything that teaches a boy to get the answer before the other fellow gets through biting his pencil, pays. Take advantage of the short course for education pays, and set your mind upon a decision that you will acquire some knowledge that will aid you along the rough paths in farming.

The Department is offering special inducements to young men who may attend. The student who stands first in the indentification of weeds and weed seeds will receive the book "Farm Weeds," price $1. The student who stands first in the judging of live stock will receive the book, "Judging of Live Stock," (Cragg), price $1.25; and to the student who stands highest in general proficiency will be awarded a gold medal.

Free Stock and Seed Judging at Guelph.

Aside from these inducements above mentioned, the Ontario Department of Agriculture has decided to conduct a competition among those pupils who take advantage of the four weeks' course in agriculture at Norwood.

The object of this competition is to demonstrate the possibilities of an acre of land, and to encourage the young men of the County to take an active part in some special line of practical farming, which will stimulate their interest in agriculture. To the young men in Peterborough County showing the largest net return from an acre of land, the Department will provide transportation and living expenses to attend the two weeks' course in Live Stock and Seed Judging at Guelph in January 1915.

Full particulars of this competition and of the short course may be obtained by writing the Department of Agriculture, Norwood, Ontario.

NERVES ARE SORE AND PAINFUL

Neuritis, or inflammation of the nerves, is the most painful of nervous ailments. You may feel the soreness or tenderness throughout the body, or it may be confined to certain nerves. In the head it is called neuralgia; in the hips and legs, sciatica; in the face, tic doloreux, and in the chest, intercostal neuralgia.

The application of dry heat affords relief from the lance-like pains, but the essential thing is to build up the exhausted nervous system by the persistent use of such a restorative as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. You will have other symptoms to warn you of the depleted condition of the nervous system, and this is your opportunity to restore to the body the energy and vigour of health.

While this great food cure is instilling new vitality into the starved nerve cells it is also forming new, firm flesh and tissue, and, by noting your increase in weight, you can prove beyond doubt the benefit being obtained by its use. This is Nature's way of curing diseases of the nerves, and it is the only way to obtain lasting benefit.

OLD WARSHIP DISCOVERED

Hull of Vessel said to be of 16th Century

Seymour Lucas, R.A., inspected the hull of the old timbered ship, with a beam of forty feet, which was discovered at Woolwich in 1912, and was convinced that the remains are those of an early sixteenth century warship. He said:

"I was shown two wheels, evidently those of a gun carriage of the time of Henry VIII., or of the early years of Elizabeth, some stone cannon balls and some pieces of Elizabethan pottery, all of which had been taken out of the hull

"The hull may be that of the Great Harry, for Mr. Vincent, president of the Woolwich Antiquarian Society, writes that there was a dock in 1512-13 and in 1521 at Woolwich, and that 'in this dock the Great Harry may have been lying when destroyed; and the dock in which our old wreck lies, if it is a dock, may be the same dock.'

"I may add that in the reign of Charles II. the Pelican, renamed the Golden Hind, 'was long preserved at Deptford as a monument of the voyage and served far into the next century as a holiday resort,' a Mecca whither the people, proud of their country's history, journeyed, paying their pennies to see the great Drake's ship."

PARALYZED LIMBS

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Hamburger, 18 Moore Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using ten boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work, and now feel better than I did for 20 years."

A PERILOUS JOURNEY

Missionaries Make a Dangerous Trip In Northern Canada

Bishop Stringer of the Yukon once had quite a perilous journey from the mouth of the Mackenzie River to Dawson City. He was accompanied by another missionary and an Indian guide, who fell sick. Eventually they were obliged to bring the Indian back to the camp of his people, and set out alone.

Winter came on two weeks earlier than usual that year, and the two missionaries were frozen in some distance to the west of the divide. They decided to go across the mountains by a pass and proceed overland to the Peel River, so they set out with four days' provisions, a pair of light blankets, and some spare moose skin moccasins, after first hanging up their canoe out of the damp. A fog enveloped the Rockies, and they missed the pass. Consequently they had four distinct ranges to climb in the wind and fog, with the thermometer at times down to zero and below.

They traveled by compass, corrected by the North Star, the variation being the enormous difference of 45 degrees. Often they were forced to camp above the tree line on the slopes in the fog, cold, and wind, without fire and with but a light pair of blankets.

They eked out their food supplies by ptarmigan and rabbits supplied by the shotgun. The snow became so deep they were forced to stop and make snowshoes. They cut spruce saplings down into wands and steamed them into shape in their kettle. For webbing they filled them with an old fishnet, strings cut out from the uppers of their worn out moose moccasins and strips of blanket.

Twenty-eight days they were on that awful journey. Before they finished they had boiled and eaten their Eskimo sealskin boots. They struck the Peel River, fell in with a camp of Indians, and were saved. Bishop Stringer had lost fifty pounds on that trip. He rested at the fort for a little while, and then started home across country by dog-sled with an Indian. This time there were no mishaps.

Girl barbers are growing in popularity in London and there is an increasing demand for them.

Teachers in Ontario receive a subsidy of $30 per year if they maintain a school garden.

Nerves Were So Bad

THOUGHT SHE WOULD GO OUT OF HER MIND.

Diseases of the nervous system are very common. All the organs of the body may be sound while the nerve centres may be affected.

Many women become run down and worn out by household cares and duties never ending, and sooner or later find themselves with the nerves shattered, and the heart action weakened.

On the first sign of any weakness of either the heart or nerves, flagging energy, or physical breakdown, do not wait until your case becomes hopeless.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will at once quieten the nerves, strengthen the heart and build up the entire system.

Mrs. Archie Goodine, Tilley, N.B., writes:—"When I was troubled with my heart two years ago, I was very bad. My nerves were so unstrung that sometimes I would almost go out of my mind. I doctored myself with everything I could get, until at last I got four boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and they have cured me. I cannot speak too highly of this wonderful remedy, and will recommend it to all sufferers."

Price, 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

HOUSEHOLD SPICE

A stitch in time beats two in the side.

Look out for the worry germ; it causes a lot of pain and heart-sickness.

It's as easy to buy experience as it is difficult to sell it.

Of course love is sweet; its principal ingredient is "taffy."

Though sin brought on the deluge, the deluge did not wash sin away.

Children have wide ears and long tongues. Be careful what you say before them.

Many persons buy nothing with their money but repentance.

Blessedness is near unto those who keep their months shut.

Some folks can't attract attention any other way, so they slam a door.

It takes a woman with real courage to refrain from wearing a beauty veil, if she has a poor complexion.

A lazy man will shut his eyes when looking for work and bark his shins on it.

Of course women will make good jurors. It won't take them half as long as it takes men to disagree.

We have fine new dances: the baby one-step, the horse trott, the fly hesitation, the gungle tango, the eagle dip and "dippy" people to dance them.

Before a man's married he loves to listen to her voice for hours, and after he's married he has to.

Women command a modest man, and like him not.

Women who wear slit skirts are in danger; the constitution only gives the right to bear arms.

The Happy One

"Baron Dollesberg's horse won the race and with it thirty thousand dollars."

"Well, who is that man up on the roof of the grandstand acting as if he were mad?"

"Probably one of the Baron's creditors."

GREAT HAPPINESS.

The talk turned to golf and its glories the other afternoon, and this one was smilingly recalled by Congressman Samuel A. Witherspoon, of Mississippi:

"A certain esteemed citizen removed to the suburbs and, of course, joined the country club, decided to run out one day and take his first turn over the golf course.

"Arriving there he called up a caddy and asked him what he would carry his clubs for. The caddy, thinking he had something soft and easy, boosted the price a few coppers. The new member declined, saying he would carry the clubs himself, and started off.

"'Say, mister,' said the caddy, going up to the new member after a minute's play. 'I've changed my mind. I'll carry your clubs for you, an' I'll carry them for nothin'

"'Carry them for nothing!' wonderingly returned the golfer. 'You can't really mean it!'

"'I do, though,' was the smiling rejoinder of the boy. 'It's worth it to see you play.'"

A bite of this and a taste of that, all day long, dulls the appetite and weakens the digestion.

A Story from Real Life

FISHING A FORTUNE OUT OF THE HUDSON RIVER

Death of Mr. Charles E. Appleby Reveals Vast Wealth Acquired by Sale of Land Under Surface of Water Which He Bought for a Mere Song.

New York Man, Disciple of Simple and Unostentatious Living, Amassed $50,000,000 and Was Practically Unknown in the World of Finance.

(From Our New York Correspondent.)

ONCE in a while a quiet, retiring individual of whom no one outside of a very limited circle of relatives and friends has ever heard dies and the world suddenly learns that the unostentatious person was the modest possessor of fifty million dollars' worth of property, or thereabouts, in spite of which he insisted upon living the simple life so consistently that no one ever found out that he was even particularly well to do, although, if we believe certain persons, everybody in America is keenly alive to the joy of discovering a man of wealth and is always looking around for such a happy find.

Some years ago the death of Mr. John M. Burke brought to the attention of the public for the first time the fact that he was a man of many millions, and quite recently in the death of Mr. Charles E. Appleby in New York city a similar case was discovered by the public.

Mr. Appleby's estate is said to amount to $50,000,000, but his life was much quieter and more simple than that of the usual man with a weekly wage.

Mr. Appleby's method of acquiring his wealth was as devoid of blazonry as his method of living. In a way he may be said to have fished his fortune out of the Hudson River, for much of the later increase of his fortune came from the reclaiming of land that had been covered by the Hudson. Like all fishermen Mr. Appleby was patient, silent but dogged. Before anybody realized what was happening he had acquired parcel after parcel of property on the Hudson. No one noticed what he was doing, because in those days it took a man with a very long sight indeed to see so far into the future that that property would seem valuable. Gradually in this quiet, persistent way Mr. Appleby became the owner of a great deal of the upland along the Hudson extending from Thirty-fourth to Fifty-ninth street.

It was then that the silent fisherman began to come into his own, although nobody recognized that either in those short sighted times. The city of New York in 1837 decided upon a reconstruction of the water front to accommodate the shipping interests as they then existed. A number of years later, however, they decided to sell their water front and those who were permitted to be the purchasers were the owners of the adjacent upland. The commissioners of the sinking fund adopted resolutions that the owners of the upland could buy all the land that was not needed for navigation, all the land, that is, which adjoined their property. As Mr. Appleby was the owner of most of this land he was given permission to buy most of the land under water, for which he paid what was then considered a fair value. The line was very irregular. At some places it ran from Eleventh avenue clear out to Thirteenth avenue, while in other places it ran for only the block from Twelfth avenue to Thirteenth avenue. Some of the underwater land sold for a little less than $5,000 a block, the rate being $25 a running foot.

Having thus acquired a long stretch of perfectly good fishing grounds Mr. Appleby exercised the virtue of patience and simply waited a while. Presently a number of persons, who for one reason or another were engaged in excavation work on the island of Manhattan, came to look upon the Appleby underwater tract as a particularly convenient place in which to dump the dirt they had excavated. Every time anybody cut through a street or dug a cellar the dirt went into the Appleby part of the river. Sometimes Mr. Appleby permitted the dirt to be dumped there merely as a neighbor's kindness, but at other times he charged a little for the privilege. It was a privilege worth paying for. To-day if anybody has dirt to dump they must pay a scow for taking it away. In a lesser degree the opportunity to get rid of undesired soil was regarded as worth money in those days.

And so little by little the blocks along the river were filled in. Mr. Appleby didn't put into operation any artificial ground making apparatus as other less patient men might have done. Instead he simply permitted the filling in process to go on in quiet, unobtrusive orderly fashion. Block after block was filled in and sold. The plot where the stock yards are now located is one of these. The plot sold to the Consolidated Gas Company is another, as is the block where the car stables are situated, the block in which the Interborough power station is placed and the taxicab station on Fifty-seventh street. All of these lands which had been reclaimed from the water brought in very good receipts to the Appleby coffers and here and there new intimate acquaintances became aware that the Appleby fortunes were beginning to pile up very high indeed. The world at large was entirely ignorant of this practical cornering of the market in river front property by a staid business man of the old school, one of the few who had no tolerance for the quick rise and fall of modern fortunes.

It was characteristic of the manner in which Mr. Appleby's fortune was amassed that he was proud of having had in his possession a piece of real estate for a longer time than any man who was the founder of his own fortunes. Men may have inherited property and kept it in their own names for a longer time than he kept any one piece, perhaps, but no one, he would sometimes say to a favored associate, has ever kept a piece of property bought with the money he had himself earned any longer or as long as had he.

"And no man ever will," he would say, "because that isn't the way things are done in this generation."

The piece of property in which the old financier so delighted is situated at Thirty-fourth street and Second avenue. He bought this piece of land in 1845, when he was only twenty-two years old, with some of the first of his savings, and it remained continuously in his possession until his death. A nearby piece of land which he owned had almost as long a record among his possessions. This was situated at Thirty-sixth street and Second avenue and was taken as a part of St. Gabriel's Park.

CHARLES E. APPLEBY

Mr. Appleby's early history is as remarkable in the evidence that it bears to his possession of an unusually strong, self-controlled and purposeful nature as was his later life. He was born in Middlesex county, New Jersey, a poor farmer's son, and came to New York when he was a boy of fourteen to make his way in the world on the slender capital of $2. He first obtained employment in a fish market, and he immediately began to devote his evenings to studying law. He was admitted to the Bar by some special arrangement, which permitted his practising before he was twenty-one. It was a matter of pride with him all his life that before he had reached the legal age for a member of the profession of law he had drawn up the answer in the famous case of Kip and Kip, which involved the property rights to all the land from Thirtieth street to Forty-fifth street and from Lexington avenue to the East River. He relinquished the practice of the law after ten years, at an age when most men are just beginning, because he found it injurious to his health. He then entered the real estate field. On the increase of real estate values, on land rent and mortgages he depended for his increased fortunes. Stocks and bonds he always avoided, and when he happened to acquire any he was anxious to be rid of them speedily. He didn't like to own what he couldn't see, and he always wanted to be in absolute control of his property. He bought small parcels of land all over the city, but he did not care to improve them: instead he leased to other persons who wished to build. He rented his land to restaurants, theatres and innumerable other interests, but he refused to have anything to do with tenement house property. He considered it very troublesome, and he did not care to collect rent from poor persons. All his life his tenants came to him in his office to pay their rent: he never went to them or sent another person to get the rent. He rented his properties cheaply and the tenants were very glad to come to his office promptly to pay.

Mr. Appleby was ninety years old when he died, but during his seventy years in business he never employed a bookkeeper, an office assistant or even an office boy. He took entire charge of everything himself. He never even had a telephone in his office or in his home. He was as little inclined to adopt other common necessities of modern life as he was the telephone, and he refused absolutely to purchase an automobile.

He occupied three offices during his business career, moving out of one into another only when circumstances were compelling. His first office was at 110 Broadway, which building was torn down to make way for the Equitable building, which was later destroyed by fire. He then moved to 55 Liberty street, which was later torn down to make room for the Liberty tower. His last office, which he occupied up to the time of his death, was at 11 John street. There his huge old desk was heaped with papers which had been accumulating for more than fifty years. There was only a little place in the very middle of the desk which was free for use.

The foundation of Mr. Appleby's fortune was laid, not so much in a great financial genius, as in his taste for a modest, temperate life. He had no desire for entertainment and what is generally regarded as pleasure. He was very fond of reading and of walking, and these continued to provide all the necessary pleasures of his existence. He never went to the theatre, never smoked and never took a drink, until he was more than eighty-five years old. After that he took a small amount of liquor before each meal. He never expressed any desire for change such as extensive travel might afford, nor did indulgence in sports appeal to him. Once when a friend offered him some tickets for the world's baseball series, then regarded by the average man as the most princely gift within human power to bestow, the old gentleman threw the tickets passionately in the waste paper basket, and demanding how any sensible man could dare to think of wasting a perfectly good business day so foolishly. Unwilling to see these glorious pasteboards vent their sweetness on the desert air, the bearer of the rejected gift was forced to recover them from the waste basket covertly lest the financier discover his folly and ever afterward hold him in contempt.

Panics which send shivers to the stoutest hearts of the world of business had no terror for Mr. Appleby at any moment of his life, for he carried no mortgages and had nothing to dread from hard times. Indeed, these very depressed periods of business furnished him with an opportunity to buy to advantage from business men who had conducted their real estate transactions in more speculative fashion. The moderate expenditures of his daily life enabled him always to have cash on hand with which to weather any financial storm that came along without considering it as a crisis at all.

Shortly before his death Mr. Appleby won an action against the city in connection with taxes on his submerged lands at Thirty-ninth and Fortieth streets. If the decision of the lower court is sustained it may result in making void millions of dollars worth of tax liens. The city had placed a condemnation lien on this property and Mr. Appleby contended that the taxes should come out of the award. The award has never been made by the city, however, which has built new piers on the submerged property without waiting for the completion of the condemnation action. When Mr. Appleby persisted in not paying the taxes the city sold the taxes. No one else would bid, as the land was under condemnation, so the city bought them in.

"The present tax lien operates as a mortgage," said Mr. Ranton Moor, counsel for Mr. Appleby, "so the city started to foreclose the mortgage. They would have gotten for $100,000 taxes land for which they would have to pay millions by award. All but one of the twenty-odd defenses which we set up were sustained. This decision, so far as it goes, affects not only Mr. Appleby's lands, but all the liens made by the city since 1906, about $10,000,000 worth of property."

The city, of course, will appeal the case and it remains to be seen whether in the end Father Knickerbocker will be able to take back unto himself some of the land which the quiet Mr. Appleby fished out of the Hudson.

MARINERS ESCAPE SHIPWRECK ONLY TO FALL PREY TO WILES OF EASTER ISLAND BELLES

THEY shall eat of the lotus, they shall dream strange dreams, they shall drink of the waters of forgetfulness.

The East shall hold them in her languorous grasp. The dusky peoples will teach them their mysteries. Never again will the call of the bright West summon them, bring them back to the toils, battle with their kind.

Eight men there are on Easter Island who wouldn't come back. Eleven mariners were cast away there when the schooner Eldorado foundered on June 13 last. Three cared enough about civilization and their friends at home to brave the sea again, and risked their lives a thousand times in the hope of making a passing steamship.

But the others had tasted of the joys of the island life. The island maidens were not fair in one sense of the word, but they were not lacking in womanly allurements. The mariners had come from the land of woman's rights, of hard work and endless obligations.

It was a new experience to lie all day on the warm earth, beneath the tropical shade, waited upon by willing handmaidens—kind, devoted creatures who never questioned the right of men to rule the earth: sweet tempered, natural beings, who cherished no ambitions to fret the temper and make the lot of man sharp; content, happy, simple women, who wanted only to serve these glorious white men from another world.

Do men like the old type of woman better than the new? Do they care more for the intelligent, instructed person, who is the equal of her lord, or for the obedient creature, who lives by his word and to whom his very nod is heaven or earth?

That is a question often naked, to which the Easter Island episode contributes some evidence. Eight men stayed and three returned. Advocates of the new womanhood take notice.

The story of the casting away of the captain and crew of the Eldorado is one of those wonderful tales of the sea which in spite of all modern innovations, prove that, with sail canvas still ready to play adversary, the days of thrilling adventure for the man who follows the sea are by no means over. The Eldorado, a four-masted schooner, with a crew of eleven men and a cargo of 1,000,000 feet of lumber, sailed from Astoria bound for Antofagasta. The first part of the voyage was uneventful, and life went with peculiar smoothness for all on board. But the sea had not forgotten the game it loves so well to play, and before the schooner had gotten very far into tropical waters a series of gales overtook it. On June 13 the storm increased to a hurricane, sweeping everything before it.

It tossed the little lumber schooner about like a chip in a whirlpool. Sails and rigging went overboard. The schooner lurched and tossed about in the heart of the storm. It withstood the onslaught stoutly for a time, but finally the seams opened and the raging sea poured into the hold.

The sea rushed over the decks with a gigantic onsweep that carried everything before it save one of the lifeboats. The other boats, which had not been torn loose by the great combers, were smashed to splinters by the lashing of the water.

With only one boat left and the hull already level with the water it was evident that the time had come to take the one last chance. The supplies were by this time submerged, and all that remained to constitute the larder of the little boat were thirty cans of soup and condensed milk and a box of soda crackers. These supplies had been placed by Captain Nels Benson in a locker on the bridge of the Eldorado. By this fortunate accident it was possible for the men to start out on their perilous voyage with some slight barrier between themselves and starvation.

A terrific sea was running when the men started to launch the boat. The only way the sailors found it possible to get into the craft was to drop in from a boom. Five of the men fell into the sea while making this attempt, but after great difficulty they were rescued and pulled into the boat by the other men.

Captain Benson had taken his bearings and all knew that the chance of their rescue was a very slight one. The tiny craft was fully nine hundred miles from the nearest land, and that land only a small and unimportant island hundreds of miles off the beaten track of ocean travel. The coast of Chili was the nearest mainland, and that was two thousand miles away.

Bravely facing the situation in spite of the admission of Captain Benson that the possibility of their being able to reach the little island was very small, the men rejoiced in the fact that the gale decreased considerably after they had been a short time in the open boat, and they began to make such speed as they could across the troubled waters. For nine days they battled with the sea, suffering hideously from deprivation of food and water, but managing, in spite of their dreadful situation, to keep all hands alive. On the ninth day the strain was too much for one of the men, and to add to their difficulties Carl Carlsen, one of the crew, became temporarily crazed and tried to jump overboard. But Captain Benson kept a strong hand on the man and the shipmates of the maddened man managed to restrain him. At the very moment when the men were in this frightful position and when even the most courageous had almost given up hope, late on the ninth day after leaving the schooner the plucky little band came in sight of the longed for Easter Island.

But again the fates were against them. Even as the welcome sight met their straining eyes the gale increased, they were swept out of their course again, and it was two days more before the exhausted men were able to make a landing.

It was about midday on the eleventh day that they at last set foot on the longed-for shore. When they again felt the solid earth beneath their feet they dropped to the ground, unable to move. The action of the salt water had swollen their hands and feet so that they were unable to put their weight upon them. Nine of the men lay prostrate for some time, but the first and second mates, whose feet were not in so bad a condition as those of the others, were able after a little rest to go upon an exploring expedition.

That night these two men prowled around the strange island, which had come to seem to them so like an earthly paradise a long time before they dared to make their presence known to any of the natives. They discovered a number of the inhabitants of the island near one of the settlements, but at first they were afraid to make themselves known, as they thought they might have fallen into the hands of ferocious savages, but presently, after observing the dusky creatures for some time, they decided to approach them in friendly fashion. To their great joy the natives seemed glad to see them, and were exceedingly kind and harmless. They showed great interest in all of the party, and the rest of the men, who were still unable to walk, were helped to the native village by the inhabitants.

There were about two hundred natives on the island, and from the moment that the suffering white men appeared the entire population concentrated their efforts on making them well and happy again. Never did ill men, even in the home circle, receive such tender nursing, such unceasing care. The shipwrecked men were fed on delicate broths, cooked by the native belles, and dosed with herb tea of such excellent medicinal qualities that they very soon recovered their normal state of health.

Over their swollen feet the women poured soothing oils, extracted from some of the native nuts and berries. These they rubbed gently into the suffering members. Soft couches were made for them of dried, heaped up grasses in the native fashion, and they were urged by glance and gesture and every other means of communication which may take the place of speech to rest and be comfortable and to suffer others to serve them and gratify their every wish.

When the men had recuperated sufficiently Captain Benson reminded them that there was very little possibility that they would ever be picked up on the island and that the time had come to make another sally on the great waters. To make a port where they would be picked up more quickly it was necessary to sail 2,500 miles to Tahiti in the small boat in which they had arrived at the island. "Steve" Drinkwater, boatswain, and Edward Simoneau, seaman, promptly acceded to the captain's suggestion, but the rest of the men hesitated.

Back home, of course, there were other things. They thought of their friends, their old haunts, the more varied existence that was possible to them if they should join Captain Benson's party and try for the mainland.

But dusky arms were around them: soft, alluring voices that had learned to stumble through a few familiar words were in their ears.

"We'll stay," they told Captain Benson.

So they married native wives and with Captain Benson and his two men sail away for Tahiti calmly and contentedly.

After 101 days on the island Captain Benson stocked his boat with all needful provisions, including dried meats, sweet potatoes, other vegetables and plenty of water, and the voyage began. From Maga-Reev the little craft was favored by good weather, and it made Papaete November 5. At Papaete the stranded mariners took passage on the Moana for San Francisco, where the story of their adventure was first told.

The Call of the Air

EVER since the days when a weary man first watched an eagle soar easily over a mountain that he had to surmount laboriously on foot there has been an extraordinary attraction to people of imagination in the idea of flying. Even in the days of the ancient Greeks people fancy invented a winged Mercury as the messenger of the gods, and who does not know the wonderful story of Perseus standing on the cliffs and looking out over the sea, faced by an insuperable obstacle, until the silvery wings were strapped on his feet by the stranger from the skies and he leaped fearlessly into the air and skimmed swifter than the swallow over sea and land?

It is worth while to have lived, to know the rapturous moment when you hold the lever and for the first time realize to your astonishment that you can really control the motion through the air of that frail structure of wood and linen which we call an aeroplane, and that what you had previously thought would require almost godlike skill is no more difficult than rowing a boat or riding a bicycle. The feeling of exultation that you experience when you dimly realize that you can do it after all is only a presage of the joys that are to come. To be the only one to at the finish after forty minutes of the best, to ride your first winner, to bring down a royal, or land your first "fish," give perhaps something of the same thrill of triumph with which your first conquest of the air imbues you.

All the same, it is only gradually that the full joys of the heavens are unfolded to you, while each fresh experience is more fascinating than the last.

When you rise off the ground so smoothly that you hardly know that you have left it and soar gently higher and higher, turn, wheel and circle as you will, you have realized the dreams of centuries; then you can swoop down in dives or circles and glide back slowly to earth.

You can fly close to the ground with your engine full out, then suddenly jump up in one great bound into the air and go on climbing steeply until you are high above the clouds and can see the glorious pageant of the colored cloud world below you, framed by the cloud fleeced sky; then shut off your engine and glide silently down through the great floor of the sky, leaving the beautiful sea of clouds above for the lovely colored landscape below.

When your skill is sufficient to enable you to do these things any day of the week, then you have really begun to taste some of the delights of flying, which we have so long envied the birds.

It is always an adventure to go above the clouds and an adventure filled with beauty, for there are few clouds more enchanting than the sun shining on tempestuous waves of different colored clouds.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A RESIDENT OF THE TOWN

Pretty little Clyde sat by the ancient fireplace—1637 said the date on the stone shelf above her—listening to the crackling of the log, which kept off the spring chill, and meditating what she would like to do with the old farm. While it had sustained the old folks in their time, they had never been able to accumulate anything toward its improvement, so it was in a discouraging worn out condition.

Of course she could go to the city and get work like Bessie Walton, but her two brothers, Ed and Fred, could not be left alone. Whatever could they do without her, with their ignorance of housework and limited interests in life. She was only their adopted sister, but they had all been so kind to her, the old parents now gone, too, that she clung to the affection of the middle-aged brothers as a precious legacy. And all three had an equal share in the farm.

If she only had the means to buy their shares, keep the place still as their home, but be free to do as her neighbour, Mrs. Chase, up the road, did, take summer boarders. For that energetic woman told her only that morning how she had in the past three years paid off the mortgage on the new barn, sent Jason to a business college, and bought a new range.

It was strange that "the boys" were so set against the summer people. She had heard them joke about the city folks up at Chase's, and declare they would not have them round their place, so she hesitated to tell them she longed to fill the old house full and prove her business ability. She could spare the three upstairs rooms besides the two in the ell, and if only one person used each room, that would be $35 a week. And if she should be lucky enough to have two guests in each of the large rooms—

But here the sound of a team driving into the yard interrupted the castle building, and she was half way to the door when a knock came.

"Well, well, Clyde, it ain't a letter this time," said the hearty voice of George Blaisdell, the rural letter carrier. "Mrs. Chase asked me to bring this gentleman down to see if you could put him up as a favour, as she's going over to her daughter's for a month or so. He's out there in the carriage. Seems he's got to live out doors a spell. He's willing to pay well."

Clyde looked out and saw the man in the carriage looking somewhat eagerly toward the door. He was young! He looked interesting; he was ill. She pondered a minute.

"I'll blow the horn for the boys," she said, "and ask them." And when the boys appeared in response to the case before them, to her surprise they consented, "providing no women folks came fussing round too."

The new boarder certainly made no trouble. Not even a room had to be upset for him. The overwork at his city office, which had undermined his strength, had left him uneasy at confinement within doors, so the boys willingly made the new corn barn into a little shack for his sleeping quarters, through which the clear dry air of spring could blow.

Clyde was surprised at his swift improvement, and equally surprised was Robert Bragdon at his own interest in the farm and its work. And she, confessing their lack of ready money, told how she desired to fill the old house with summer people, and put the farm on a paying basis.

"But the work," said he, "surely it is too much for you to do."

"There's Betty Card, down the road; she is ready to come any time I need her," returned Clyde. "Only the boys wouldn't agree."

"They might if they had no bother; let me ask them for you," he suggested, wondering a little at his own desire to see the farm improved. And to whatever it was due, certain that he got the brothers' consent to the using of the three rooms upstairs and the ell rooms below, to the hiring of Betty Card, and all, provided they were not called on for unwelcome exertion themselves. Mr. Bragdon was as enthusiastic as his boarding mistress over the new venture, and with inspiring energy constructed an attractive advertisement for summer boarders for the city papers, and gave the comfortable old carriage two coats of paint so that the possible guests might be handsomely transported from the station three miles away.

And soon brisk currents of life inundated the old farm, and Clyde found herself in the full tide of a successful summer. Ed and Fred remained in the background, but their interest in the new order was none the less intense. As for the little sister, she revelled in her financial freedom. Day by day her plans for the home crystalized into expression. A veranda swung out its cool width along the shady lawn: a neat little gravelled walk led up to the ancient door stone; frilly little curtains rustled welcome at the windows; and within the hall a telephone brought the city within hearing distance. Ah! it was a glorious summer!

She was sitting at her antique writing desk, happy over her accomplishments and only faintly regretful that the pleasant guests had flitted with the coming of the late frosts, when Robert Bragdon appeared, and the smile that Clyde had always met so freely brought unaccountable roses to her cheeks to-day, till she had to pick an imaginary thread from a speckless floor to hide them. Possibly it was the eager light in his eyes that confused her so, for he had no reason to think Miss Clyde ever gave him a thought, despite the fact that she was forever the first in his.

"Read this," he said, passing her a letter from the office, and as she read she knew why she had been so happy that summer. No other summer would be like it if he went away, and "the boss" wished to know when he might expect him. He had fully regained his health, there was no doubt of that. She passed the letter back, and he took it and the hand that held it.

"Could you live in an apartment, a little city flat, Clyde?"

Dismay widened Clyde's eyes. "But I'm going to have these rooms made ready for next year, and I have to live here, you know!" She stopped, overcome by confusion. He had not asked her if she would come! What would he think of her as supposing he had meant that the apartment should be his too!

But his grasp tightened on her hand, as she tried to withdraw it. He laughed gaily at her confusion.

"Then I'll have to stay, too," he declared, "and help renovate them. Yes, I mean it," as she looked her surprise and happiness, "for I have to live where you want to, hereafter, and I'm so glad you chose the farm. Now when will you let me name myself a permanent resident of this town?"

And happy little Clyde assented to the suggestion that Christmas was not a bit too soon.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We Eat Too Much Meat Which Clogs Kidneys. Then the Back Hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have headache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming trouble while it is only trouble.

London Street Cries

Old Londoners are fond of recalling the ancient street cries of London, now no more to be heard, says a writer in London Mail. The reason this ancient feature of London life has disappeared is that in the clangor the street cries are no longer audible. The other day I saw in the road a real old-time Mitcham lavender wench—basket, white apron, and apple cheeks all complete. As she walked along her mouth was opening and shutting, and I knew from old knowledge that she was chanting "Who will buy my sweet lavender?" But no sound reached my ears. The plaintive cry was swallowed up in the din of the pavement. The street cries of London belonged to a period when the quiet of the streets was preserved by ill-paving. Who ever hears now a muffin bell or a German band in a wood-paved street? I do not lament the fact, but the cause of their disappearance. They have gone because they find it impossible to make themselves heard.

WITHIN AN ANT HILL

Tiny Insects Have Their Homes Carefully Planned

When you step on an ant hill you crush ruthlessly a complicated architectural structure far more wonderful in its way, than a modern skyscraper. Entering the hill at the hole in the top an invader instantly encounters a soldier ant, always on guard. The first floor is the guardroom. Floor 2, counting downwards, is the summer sleeping room for the workers. In the third floor the workers live and dine. No. 4 is storage room, while the fifth floor provides the barracks for the ants' standing army.

They form the guard for the queen, who lives and lays her eggs on the floor below. Next—floor 7—come the storage rooms of fodder and grain for the milch-cows—the aphids, who suck up "milk" from blades of grass with their feet, so that the ant milkmaids can afterwards "milk" them by stroking their legs until a drop of "milk" falls. Other little insects collect honey, and are "milked" in the same way.

The stables, where they are kept, are shown on floor 8. Then, below the earth we come to the ninth floor, the nurseries, where the milk and honey which the milkmaids have secured is handed over to the baby ants, just hatched as larvæ, from eggs. Below—floors 10 and 11—are other nurseries, where the baby ants are cared for in various stages of their growth.

Next we find the winter quarters of the ant kingdom, and on the same floor is the graveyard; for the ant city in a hill is complete even to a cemetery. Last of all is the queen's winter apartment.

SAFETY IN THE STREETS

Don't cross an intersection at an angle; cross squarely. It takes a few seconds longer, but it is safer.

Don't stop in the centre of the pavement.

Don't hesitate when crossing a street. Keep going.

Don't attempt to read a newspaper when crossing a street.

Don't step abruptly off the curb, look for passing cars.

Don't step from a moving car. Wait until it stops and the motorist will stop.

Don't dodge to and fro if in danger. Stand still and the man in the auto will know which side to take.

Don't allow your children to run wild on the street. A little restraint exercised with children will avoid accidents.

CHARITY OR REFORM

General Booth Explains the Function of the Salvation Army

While talking to an interviewer in London, England, General Bramwell Booth remarked upon the frequency with which the requests of the Salvation Army for money were met by this statement, "Well, I don't believe in charity."

"Neither do we, you see!" said General Booth. "Charity perpetuates the very miseries it would cure! We believe that poverty and crime need not—must not—be perpetuated as evil growths in the social organism. We want to eradicate them, and that's why we get down to the very root of society, whence it draws nourishment—in personal character! We go far below the superficial work of political and social reformers. We reform men!

"Religion is the only instrument which will serve this purpose. We often define religion simply by that one word—'character.' It is character so pure and steadfast that it is exemplified in every act of a man's life—in his work and his play, his eating and drinking, his myriad relations with other men. Such is the religious convictions which we carry to the poor, the outcast and the fallen."

THE MAPLE

This Tree is Very Important in Ontario's Industries

Maple is the most important hardwood used by Ontario's industries, over three-quarters of a billion (750,000,000) feet being used every year. The wood is divided into two classes by manufacturers: hard maple and soft maple.

Maple is a hard, stiff material, and its value depends chiefly on these two qualities. It is difficult to season and shrinks considerably and checks badly; it is also quite perishable, but it does not warp nor twist after being properly seasoned. The soft maple is slightly tougher but softer and lighter than hard maple, and is not used in very large quantities.

Accidental forms, with the grain curled and contorted, known as curly maple and bird's-eye maple, are common and are highly prized for decorative work.

Maple does not grow in any quantity north of the 49th parallel in Ontario, and is practically confined to the basin of the Great Lakes. It seldom grows in pure stands like pine or spruce, and the quantity still standing would be difficult even to estimate. The material is used by twenty-eight industries, heading the list in six of them. The greatest quantities are used for hardwood flooring, wood distillation and furniture. For these purposes and for all others where strength and stiffness are not of paramount importance, birch could be substituted in many cases, and is being substituted more and more each year, as the supply of maple decreases.

Volcano Growing Smaller

Professor Ricco states that the crest of Mt. Etna has lowered sixty-five feet on the south since 1865, and almost twice as much on the north. It is supposed that the top has been slowly blown away by the wind.

SEEING THINGS

The bartender had reached that state where he was staggering visibly under the blows and jars of too much rum to the brain. He was seeing double.

The dignified gentleman who entered the bar every evening at a certain hour, with his hat on a certain angle and with his heels striking the floor with a certain velocity, walked up slowly and asked for his customary glass of beer. The bartender, with elaborate care, prepared two glasses, and set them down in front of the sober and unshaken customer.

"I ordered only one glass of beer," said the patron in a smooth manner; "why in the name of suffering heaven give me two?"

"Well," said the bartender, lurching forward to emphasize his curiosity, "ain't your friend goin' to have one?"

His Own Privilege.

It was during the rush hours and the car was crowded to its full capacity and then some.

A rather gaudily dressed young man was standing next to a German, each holding on to the overhanging strap. The car gave a sudden lurch, which resulted in the young man's stepping on the German's toes. This irritated the German, who addressed the other angrily:

"Mine vriendt," he said, "I know mine feet vas meant to be walked on, but dot privilege belongs to me."

Two Doctors Said He Had Consumption.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP CURED HIM.

Mrs. John Elliff, St. John's West, Ont., writes:—"My little boy was very bad with whooping cough and severe cold. I went to two doctors with him, and they said he had Consumption. I could get no relief for him, he would cough all night long, with a dry hacking cough.

I was persuaded to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and was surprised to see the first bottle did him good. I have had five bottles, and they cured him, he rests well at night now, and is well and hearty. If he gets a cold we always give him Pine Syrup and he is soon better. I did not think I could raise him, but I am thankful to say Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup saved him from being a consumptive."

Too much stress cannot be laid upon the admonition to all persons affected by the earlier stages of throat and lung trouble, as failure to take hold at once will cause many years of suffering, and in the end that terrible scourge "Consumption."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is without an equal for all affections of the Throat and Lungs.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Jam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue "from below" is Pam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissues thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier Avenue, Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Co. and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Slayer to Die on Gallows.

TIFTON, Ga., Jan. 15.—The sheriff of Tift county has made arrangements for the execution to-morrow of I. B. Hall, a white man, who is under sentence of death for the murder of Dennis W. Hall. The killing occurred in the early part of last year and was the result of a neighbourhood quarrel. According to the testimony of an eleven-year-old boy, who was the only eye witness to the tragedy, the slain man had a young child in his arms when he was shot down. Although of the same name and living in the same house at the time of the tragedy, the slayer and his victim were not related.

GOT RID OF BRONCHITIS

The worst feature of bronchitis is the tendency to return year after year until the system is worn out and gives way to consumption, or other disease.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine owes much of its great popularity to the fact that it positively cures bronchitis, and this is about as severe a test as can be made of a medicine of this kind.

Mr. W. H. Walker, Calmar, Alta., writes: "I am pleased to say that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has done much good to myself, wife and children. My eldest girl, seven years, had bronchitis, and the doctor who attended her did not seem to do much good. We got Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linsed and Turpentine for her, and she soon got well. We always keep this medicine in the house now ready for use, and find that it soon cures coughs and colds."

In fighting diseases of the throat and lungs half the battle is in having Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine at hand to be used promptly. This is why many people prefer to buy the large family size bottle.

Cutting Out a Meal.

Physicians are commonly advising patients whose troubles arise from overeating—and these are legion—to cut out one meal, preferably breakfast. The London Lancet remarks that the reason for this is that "after a night's sleep the bodily strength, nervous and muscular, is at its highest, and work can be carried on without food. The machine is running strongly and no fuel is required for the time being." Men engaged in literary or intellectual work can often do their very best in the early morning before breakfast.

The Lancet deprecates the heavy breakfast and advocates the "coffee and rolls," which are all that is eaten for breakfast on the continent of Europe, especially for men whose work is of the brain rather than of the muscles. These men, it says, should "relegate anything approaching a hearty meal to the period of relaxation, the evening."

ADMIRAL ITO DEAD.

One of the Heroes of Russo-Japanese War Passes Away.

TOKIO, Jan. 15.—Count Yukyo Ito, fleet admiral of the Japanese navy, died yesterday morning in his seventy-first year.

Count Ito had more to do with the development of the Japanese navy than any other man. He entered the service in 1868. In the war between China and Japan in 1894 he took a very prominent part, commanding the combined squadrons of the Japanese fleet which fought the battle of the Yellow Sea, afterward blockading the port of Wei-Hai-Wei and destroying the Chinese fleet. He was then appointed chief of the naval general staff, and many honors were conferred on him for his services in the war.

During the Russo-Japanese war he acted as chief of the naval general staff and contributed greatly by his strategy to the retention of the command of the seas by the Japanese fleet.

Fireman Killed In Blaze.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 15. — One fireman was killed, two men were seriously injured and damage estimated at $150,000 was caused by a spectacular fire which early yesterday destroyed the Bacon department store at 2,175 Washington street, and a building adjoining. While the wind blew a gale and the thermometer registered ten below, seventy-five families were rushed into the streets in their night clothes, when the sparks were carried nearly a mile and caused forty roof fires.

Cherif Pasha's son-in-law, Salil Bey, hearing the detonation then ran into the corridor, where he shot and killed the assassin.

THOMAS CROSBY DIES.

He Was Missionary to West Coast Indians For Half Century.

VANCOUVER, Jan. 15.—Rev. Dr. Thomas Crosby, a pioneer Methodist missionary, who left his home in Woodstock, Ont., over fifty years ago to labor among the Indians on the northern coast of British Columbia, and continued in that work until about four years ago, died Tuesday night, aged 73. His headquarters for more than a quarter of a century was at Port Simpson, near Prince Rupert, where he established the Crosby Home for Indian girls.

Dr. Crosby was one of the aggressive and tireless missionaries of the Methodist Church, the lodest and most famous of those in the home fields. He early engaged in Y.M.C.A. activities and felt strongly called to enter the Chinese mission field, but later found his life work.

An account of his deeply interesting experiences is given in his book, "Among the Ankomenums of the Pacific Coast," published in 1907.

Any electric current of sufficient volume to be used commercially is capable of causing death under very favorable circumstances, according to recent conclusions.

This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair, growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty soft hair, and lots of it, surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.

"Farm and Dairy" Live Stock, Produce and Grain Market Report

Toronto Monday, Jan. 12.—As time goes on we come to realise more clearly just what a tremendous influence the new United States tariff is exerting on Canadian markets. For many years Buffalo prices for live stock were higher than ours. Now Toronto prices range on a par or slightly above Buffalo. This would not have been possible had we not free access to the Buffalo markets. On the dairy industry the results have been little less remarkable. In Eastern Ontario 40 cheese factories have stopped making cheese, and are shipping all of their milk across the border. Similar conditions prevail in Quebec province and at many points in Western Ontario. This new market will call for much study from Canadian business men in the next year.

There have been few changes in produce markets. Hill feeds, hay and straw and eggs and poultry are all quoted by wholesale dealers on last week's levels. Beans remain unchanged, and the only difference in potatoes is that Ontario potatoes are now quoted 10c a bag less than the quotations given last week for New Brunswick potatoes. Butter and cheese are steady at old rates.

WHEAT

The tendency of the wheat market is toward higher levels. Interest at the present time centres in Russian exports, and in Canada more particularly in the action that the government will take in connection with free wheat. No. 1 Northern is now quoted at 92c; No. 2, 89½c; Ontario No. 2, 85c to 86c outside; 85c to 86c here.

COARSE GRAINS

Mild weather is having its effect on the demand for coarse grains, and while enquiries have not been reduced the tendency seems to be toward lower levels. Wholesale quotations here are: Oats, C.W. No. 2, 43c; No. 3, 37½c; all-rail quotations, 2c higher; Ontario oats, 36c to 38c outside; 37½c to 38c on track; corn, 70c to 72c; rye, 65c to 66c; barley, malting, 48c to 50c; feed, 41 to 42c; buckwheat, 65c to 70c.

Montreal dealers quote as follows: Oats, C.W. No. 2, 41½c to 42c; No. 3, 40½c to 40½c; barley, malting, 48c; feed, 43c; corn, 70c to 72c; buckwheat, 65c; peas, $1.35 to $1.38; rye, 70c to 72c.

LIVE STOCK

Never in the history of the Toronto live stock trade have prices been as high as they are at the present time. During the past week supply has not kept pace with demand. Some packers went to Montreal looking for stock, but others came back empty. Quotations average as follows: Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.60 to $7; common to good, $6 to $6.50; bulls, $6.30 to $6.35; choice cows, $6.60 to $7.25; com. to med., $4.50 to $6.50; butcher bulls, $4.25 to $7.60; feeders, $6 to $7; stockers, $4.50 to $6.25; canners and cutters, $3.75 to $4.75. Millers are in good demand for lean lamb and outside potatoes. Choice, $40 to $110; com. to med., $20 to $35; springers, $40 to $100. Veal, calves bring $3 to $12; inferior, $5 to $7.50.

Mutton quotations are: Weather lambs, $8.75 to $9.25; buck lambs, $6 to $6.50; ewes, $5 to $6.50; bucks and culls, $3.50 to $5.

Hogs showed a tendency to weaken toward the close of the week. Packers now quote $9.65 to $9.85 f.o.b.

MONTREAL BUTTER AND CHEESE MARKETS

Montreal, Saturday, Jan. 10.—The market for cheese this week has been very quiet, only one or two sales having been recorded as made over the cable, and shipments have been very light indeed; two or three carloads representing the total for the week. This is likely to be the state of affairs from now until the opening of the new season, as the stock of cheese in Montreal does not amount to more than 25,000 or 30,000 boxes, and most of this is owned in England and is being held here awaiting shipping instructions. Holders are very firm and are asking big prices for what there is left unsold, and are confident of obtaining these prices, owing to the small stocks in existence on both sides of the water.

The market for butter is firm and fairly active, finest September creamery being quoted at 27½c to 28c, and finest makes all the way down to 26c, according to quality. Receipts of fresh butter are practically all, and the demand is almost entirely for June, which sells to go at 27½c to 28c.

MONTREAL HOG MARKET.

Montreal, Thursday, Jan. 15.—Although prices for live hogs in the Toronto market were 25c a cwt. higher at $9.75 a cwt., weighed off cars, there was no actual change in the condition of the local market today, but the feeling was very firm and the prospects are that prices will rule higher next week as supplies coming forward are small. It is said there is a good demand from packers, and sales of selected lots were made at $9.60 and straight lots at $9.50 a cwt., weighed off cars. There was an improved demand for dressed hogs, and a more active trade was done at firm prices. Abattoir fresh killed stock sold at $13.50 to $14, and country dressed light weights at $12 to $12.50, with heavy at $10 to $12.50 a cwt.

PAVEMENTS IN MARCH

Superintendent Davis, of Paving Company, in the City To-day —Met New Mayor

INSPECTS THE PLANT

Superintendent Davis of the Foley & Gleason Company, was in the City to-day looking after the street paving plant that is hibernating at the corner of Bethune and McDonnel streets. He met Mayor Buller, Ald. Duncan and City Engineer Parsons, and discussed the recommendations of the street paving work. Mr. Davis stated that he expected to begin operations about the third week in March.

Regarding any new contracts Mayor Buller said the question had been mentioned but it is much too early yet to make any definite prediction of what will be done. Much depends upon the financial market and local conditions, and the matter will be discussed at the proper time.

SUSTAINED A BROKEN ARM

Mr. E. Hickey Met With Painful Accident at the Corner of George and Murray Streets

Mr. E. J. Hickey, of 765 Bethune Street, sustained a broken arm while out walking yesterday afternoon. The accident occurred at the corner of Murray and George Streets. Dr. Morgan was summoned, and the injured member set, after which the patient was removed to his home.

A lady who was passing at the time of the accident lent valuable assistance.

Released On Paying Costs

Young Man is Reprimanded by the Magistrate

Henry Waters came before the Magistrate this morning, charged with being drunk. Waters makes a periodical appearance in the Police Court and each time he expresses his willingness to increase the population of the county gaol. He is a good cook and his services there are acceptable.

"Do you want to go up on the hill?" asked the Magistrate.

"Yes, Sir."

"He told me he only wanted to go up for three months, so he could get a job in the Spring," said Chief Thompson.

So Waters will have the shelter of the County Jail until the new millinery makes its appearance on George Street, and the robins begin to sing.

Young Man Released.

Herbert Kirby, who was promised suspended sentence yesterday if he paid the costs of the court, came through with the cash this morning, and was allowed to go. His uncle gave a bond of $200 for his good behaviour during the next year. Kirby was charged with stealing a $100 diamond ring.

"I don't see that your act was anything but a cold, deliberate theft," said Magistrate Dumble. "But I prefer to give you a chance to change your ideas of honesty. You are young and there is no record against you. But you must report to the Chief of Police here every month nuring the next year, either by letter or personally, telling him where you are and what you are doing. You must find out as many other older people have, that a dishonest life doesn't pay—if you don't look at it from any higher motive than that.

The costs of the case amounted to about $26.

MANY LOADS OF WOOD ON MARKET

The farmers are bringing in considerable quantities of wood these days. It seems that there are more loads than buyers. Green maple has been selling around $5.50 and dry maple at from $6 to $6.50. The farmers report the best of sleighing, making it easy to reach the city.

THE WEATHER

Much milder weather accompanied with a light snowfall followed our late severe weather, and the change is quite agreeable to the majority of people. The lowest the thermometer reached last night was just zero, and at daybreak it was up to 21 above, and has been gradualy rising all day. Much milder conditions now prevail everywhere throughout Canada.—W.P.

NOTRE DAME CATHEDRAL OF MONTREAL, MOST FAMOUS ROMAN CATHOLIC CATHEDRAL IN CANADA.—Which was attacked by the fire fiend on the 13th of this month, shortly after Montreal's water supply was fixed up. If it had occurred during the water famine a few days previous the chances for saving the famous cathedral would have been small. As it was, the firemen were able to stop the flames and the building was only slightly scorched.

CAPTAIN OF THE COBEQUID IS RESCUED

Just After Dawn This Morning the Remaining Members of Crew Were Taken off Steamer

NO CHANCE FOR SHIP

Special Wire to The Examiner:

YARMOUTH, N.S., Jan. 15.—Just after dawn this morning the government steamers rescued Captain Howson and eleven members of the crew remaining on the storm-battered and ice-coated steamer Cobequid, ashore on Trinity Ledges. Thus was completed one of the most stirring rescues in the history of the sea. Yesterday, with the women and children first, without regard to nationality or class, seventy-two passengers and crew were lowered over the side, and are to-day comfortably housed in hotels and the homes of fishermen in Yarmouth. The captain and volunteers remained with the ship till to-day in the hope of refloating her, but the weather was against them, and she may fall to pieces.

DISTRESS AMONG THE UNEMPLOYED

Was Accentuated by the Recent Cold Spell

Reports are sifting in regard to the number of men who are out of work at the present time. Their distress was accentuated by the recent cold spell. Many of them who lack proper winter clothing rummaged among cast-off raiment, and by putting one set of clothing above the other, managed to ward off the cold. The women and children suffered the most, for many of the shacks in which they live, are not constructed to withstand such severe weather.

To a considerable extent the small army of unemployed stayed in camp during the cold spell. Only the hungry and desperate were afoot. Fewer than usual waited at the local factories.

FIRST SEWER WORK AROUND HARVEY ST.

Ald. Duncan Says Accommodation Will Be Provided for Dickson Lots

The first sewer work to be undertaken by the Board of Works will be in the neighborhood of Harvey and Waterford streets. Ald. Duncan told the Examiner this afternoon that City Engineer Parsons is engaged on the plans, and it remains to select from several alternative designs the least expensive route. It is likely that the sewer will have to be carried to Aylmer street in order to secure sufficient depth in the Dickson area to drain cellars.

This is work that could be done at any time and will be commenced shortly in order to provide employment for some of those who are out of work.

MUCH MONEY PAID OUT UNDER THE NEW ACT

Thirteen Million Pounds in Benefits Have Been Expended Under Insurance Bill

A YEAR'S OPERATIONS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., Jan. 15, (Special Cable.) — To-day is the anniversary of the inauguration of the Insurance Act, and in view of the statement in the Times editorial yesterday to the effect that the promised benefits had not resulted from the measure and that many fraternal societies are face to face with insolvency as a result, it is interesting to note that the opposition of the doctors and the chemists to the measure has ceased. The government has paid out during the year thirteen million pounds under this act, including five million seven hundred thousand for sick benefits, and four million four hundred thousand for doctors' fees, one million on drugs and appliances and one and a half million for maternity benefits, and a quarter of a million for the treatment of consumptives. One revision sure to be made is that respecting the sick benefits for single women, which will be decreased. It is understood that there are now accumulated funds to the extent of ten million pounds.

THE VERSATILES IN MUSICAL COMEDY

Take Advantage of Their Return to the City and Go and See Them Saturday

Did you see "The Versatiles" at The Grand on New Year's Day? If not, you will do well to take advantage of the only opportunity you will have of seeing this remarkably clever company at The Grand next Saturday. For the matinee the company will present "The Canadian Express" and for the evening performance "Up the River," an entirely new musical bill which is brimful of catchy songs. Both performances will be preceded by the Old Country Pierotts, which made such a decided hit before two big New Year's Day audiences here. This act, which runs for about thirty minutes, is on the high-class vaudeville order, and is indeed extremely amusing and clever. Specially attractive prices have been arranged for the matinee performance in order to give every one an opportunity of attending. The entire lower floor will be 35c and 50c, and the balcony 25c, 35c and 50c, children 15c any seat. The evening prices range from 25c to $1.00. The seats are now on sale at the box office.

Earthquake In Italy

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LEGHORN, Italy, Jan. 15.—Six violent earthquakes, beginning early this morning, sent the entire population into the streets in panic. There has been some destruction of life and property in the interior.

NEW SENATORS FOR WEST

Seven New Members Intimated in Address From the Throne at the Opening of Parliament To-day

NOTHING ABOUT NAVY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Jan. 15.—Parliament reopened this afternoon after a recess lasting nearly seven months, in the face of snow flurries, with the weather somewhat milder, but still unusually cold. His Royal Highness and staff, escorted by the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards' heads bowed against the wind and lance pennants whipping in the breese, swept up Parliament Hill and stopped before the main door. His Royal Highness stepped down from his motor, the band played two bars of the National Anthem, and from Nepean Point guns roared out the Royal salute. Meantime, in the Senate, crowded galleries and packed assemblage on the main floor had waited long for the coming of the Governor-General.

Never has there been a more distinguished gathering at any opening As prophesied yesterday and this morning, the speech from the Throne, read by the Governor General, contained no reference to the naval bill nor the highways bill nor tariff conditions. It referred briefly to the illness of the Duchess of Connaught, and expressed great gratitude for the sympathy and support of Canadian people. The expansion of Canada's trade, the bountiful crops and the long series of prosperity were referred to as matters of congratulations.

Regarding the present stringency, His Royal Highness read: "Although at the present time business is slightly restricted by reason of a financial stringency which prevails throughout the world, I feel convinced that this condition is merely temporary, and that the boundless resources of this Dominion give us the fullest assurance of continued material prosperity and progress."

Intimation was given in the speech from the Throne of a bill to increase the representations of the western provinces in the Senate. This will mean seven new senators from Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia, and it will materially strengthen the government in the Upper House. His Royal Highness was accompanied by Princess Patricia and suite. The Duchess of Connaught was not present.

This afternoon it was stated that the debate on the address will in all probability not be proceeded with until Monday. This means that the House will meet for a few minutes only on Friday when there will be an adjournment until Monday at three o'clock. The debate will probably take all of next week. E. N. Lewis, Conservative member for West Huron, proposes to again introduce his daylight savings bill, the object of which is to have the hands of all the clocks turned back one hour during the long summer days. Mr. Lewis championed the bill for one session when the late government was in power, but did not succeed in getting support of a majority of the members of the House.

PETERBORO' GIRL WEDS FORT WM. MILLIONAIRE

Miss Marcelle G. Finn, who was married yesterday to A. A. Vickers, Fort William's millionaire, with whom she had been employed as stenographer, has many friends in this City.

She attended the Peterborough Business College, where she secured her stenographic training. Miss Finn resided on Hunter Street with her sister, in the terrace on the north side between Stewart and Bethune Streets. She is remembered by her friends as a very pretty and charming girl, and enjoyed wide popularity at local social affairs.

She left Peterborough to take a position in Fort William, and this morning's papers give the following reference to her marriage:

Port Arthur, Jan. 14.—A. A. Vickers, Fort William's millionaire, sprung a big surprise on his friends in the two cities by being married here at noon to-day to Miss Marcelle G. Finn, his stenographer, whose home was here. Mr. Vickers has been prominent in Fort William business and social circles for many years.

SCHOOL OF MUSKETRY

The School of Musketry will commence to-night at the Armouries, and a large attendance is looked for. It is expected that most of the officers will take at least the short course. The instruction will be most profitable in view of the new rifle ranges.

WHEN THE KNIGHT OF LABOUR ATTACKED THE KNIGHT OF THE BATH.—James Simpson, formerly Vice-President of the Dominion Trades and Labour Congress, and member of the Dominion Technical School Commission, and recently elected controller in Toronto, at his first meeting of the City Council lost no time in "getting after" the capitalistic class. He is shown in the picture making an attack on Sir Henry Pellatt, who is assessed only to the extent of $1 50,000 on his castle and estate in Toronto, said to be worth one million. Sir Henry gets his reduced assessment by virtue of a "fixed assessment" agreement. Both "Jimmy" Simpson and Sir Henry Pellatt are well known from coast to coast.

THE PRESENT LEGISLATION IS SUFFICIENT

It Remains for the Health Association and Organizations to see That the Act is Enforced and Notify

THE AUTHORITIES

At a recent meeting of the Peterborough Health Association it was suggested that special legislation be secured to enforce compulsory fumigation of premises wherein tubercular patients are confined. According to Dr. McPherson, Medical Health Officer, and Sanitary Inspector Spence, the present regulations are sufficient to meet with the requirements of the Association, providing they are enforced.

The regulations, as contained in the supplement to the Provincial Health Act, and referred to as the "regulations for the control of tuberculosis," are as follows:

Can Order Patient's Removal.

6.—The local Board of Health or Medical Officer of Health shall maintain whatever supervision they may deem necessary over the case, and if in their opinion the health of others dwelling in the same house or in personal contact with the patient, is threatened, they shall order the removal of the patient to a hospital or sanitorium.

10.—In the case of death, removal or recovery of a person suffering from tuberculosis it shall be the duty of the Medical Health Officer to provide that the residence of such patient shall be thoroughly and efficiently disinfected and renovated at the cost of the owner before any person is allowed to occupy such residence.

11.—The Medical Officer of Health may when he deems necessary, require that any premises occupied by a person suffering from tuberculosis shall be cleansed and disinfected to his satisfaction at the expense of the municipality.

Should Notify Authorities.

To ensure the enforcement of the above rules it is necessary for the particular organization dealing with the case to notify the proper authorities. The proper authorities in this case would be the Medical Health Officer or the Sanitary Inspector. The outlay for the work is to be provided by the owner of the building or the municipality, according to the discretion of the health authorities, which discretion is partly, if not wholly dependent upon the owners ability to pay the cost. At the meeting referred to, Rev. James Bollins drew attention to the dangerous practice of tenants entering a building that had been formerly occupied by a tubercular patient, until it has been thoroughly fumigated. Sections 6, 10, and 11 of the regulations, as given above, evidently cover the matter referred to by Rev. Mr. Bollins.

MARLBOROUGH DANCE.

Bi-monthly Function in Their Club Rooms Last Night Was an Enjoyable One.

The bi-monthly dance of the Marlborough Club, held in their rooms last night was an enjoyable affair. Like all the club functions it had been well arranged, and was deservedly successful.

SIR JAMES IS MAKING A GAME FIGHT

Clings to the Slender Thread of Life When Men of Less Resolute Spirit Would Have Succumbed

IS GROWING WEAKER

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.— With bull dog pertinacity, Sir James Whitney is clinging to the slender thread of life. Weak and delirious, he still hangs on where men of weaker physique and less resolute spirit would long ago have succumbed. The possibility is not altogether gone, though now there is very slight hope of a turn for the better. He is growing weaker by almost imperceptible degrees, but the fund of reserve vitality is not yet exhausted.

THE WORK OF DR. GRENFELL

Stripped the Skin Off His Own Arm to Heal a Man Who Had Shot Himself Accidentally

A STRIKING TRIBUTE

The following letter concerning the work of Dr. Grenfell, which is so deservedly popular, and in behalf of which a special appeal is now being made in our daily press, speaks for itself:—

"In the spring I was the victim of a terrible accident. While in the act of drawing a load from my gun it went off, and the contents passed through my right hand. It is needless to say that its effect on me was very disastrous. Having a large family, I was nearly distracted at the thought of the future. It was then that Dr. Grenfell showed both his skill and kindness. After taking me to his hospital, he then took tiny strips of flesh from the arms of his assistant and also from his own arm, which he grafted in my hand. . . . The benefits resulting from Dr. Grenfell's work on the Labrador coast are too numerous to mention."

In addition to this, the hungry are fed, the naked clothed, the simple taught, and the sick healed, and to the poor and needy the Gospel is preached. Surely such noble self-sacrificing work ought to appeal to every citizen of Peterborough, and ought to command their prayers, sympathy and financial support for the fisher folk of Labrador.

What we do, whether great or small, let us do quickly.

"A BETTER FATHER"

An Exceedingly Good Picture at the Grand To-night

To-night will be the last evening this week that pictures will be shown at The Grand. An extremely good bill is being offered with "A Better Father" in two reels as the feature. In addition to this four other reels of pictures are being shown, including some good comedy films. All next week, with the exception of Saturday, January 24th, motion pictures will be shown each evening. The special feature for children will be Uncle Tom's Cabin, which will be shown in three reels on Tuesday and Wednesday evening. The "Universal" films are being shown exclusively at "The Grand," and so far the public have strongly manifested their approval of high-class pictures being shown at this popular playhouse by their splendid patronage. This the management appreciates and will endeavour to merit same by offering as good a service as it is possible to obtain.

Old Landmark To Be Torn Down

Dr. C. N. Amys has purchased the property on the west side of Stewart street, from 371 to 379. The doctor is advertising for sale the two houses, namely, 377 and 379 Stewart street. These houses and not the property on which they are built, are for sale. The purchaser is expected to have them torn down by the first of April, and Dr. Amys will at once proceed to build a handsome residence in their place, in which he intends to reside. The tearing down of these houses means the passing of very old landmarks. They were built nearly half a century ago and have stood the wear and tear of time exceedingly well.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

THURSDAY, JAN 15, 1914

THE GRENFELL FUND.

"Lest we forget," the public is reminded of the claims of the Grenfell Deep Sea Mission, now being presented through the daily appeals of the Ministerial Association. This cold weather should warm our hearts, for it is sweet summer weather compared with the conditions of cold that smite the deep sea fishers of the Labrador coasts. To these Dr. Grenfell is heroically ministering, and he can do much more if financial aid is liberally extended. The local fund is doing well, but with more general cooperation it can do much better, to the end of aiding a most worthy cause, and enhancing Peterborough's reputation for practical charity.

REDISTRIBUTION.

It is stated that the Redistribution Bill to be dealt with at the coming sittings of Parliament will be one of the most contentious measures of the session. It need not be so, and should not be so. The last Redistribution Bill, was taken out of contentious politics by the actions of the government of the day, which referred the matter to a committee of members of parliament selected from both sides of the house. And though, of course, the government had a majority on this committee, the spirit of fair play and harmony was so developed that the resulting measure gave general satisfaction and was generally fair. If this precedent is not adopted in the coming redistribution it will be the fault of the present government, if the bill to be dealt with is unduly contentious. Another element of difficulty will arise from the action or, rather inaction, of the government. Redistribution is based on the ensus of 1911, and here we are in the year 1914. In the interval of nearly three years, there has been a shifting of population, largely negativing the census figures as a fair basis of redistribution of the constituencies.

FALL PLOWING AND FINANCE.

The connection between fall plowing and high finance is not obtrusively evident, but Sir Edmund Walker, president of the Bank of Commerce, neatly ties them together. In his comprehensive address at the annual meeting of the bank, he points out that the mild weather of the latter part of the past year has permitted farmers to do an unusual amount of fall ploughing. This naturally suggests a larger area under crop, put in under more favourable conditions. It is admitted that, as a rule, earlier seeding produces better crops. The farmer who has his land turned by the plow, if he has attended to surface draining, will be able to get upon his land perhaps a fortnight earlier, and have time to give better attention to his seeding, with promise of proportionately better results. The importance of the farm in the national economy is emphasized by the dependence financiers place upon the crop returns, as a measure of financial, commercial and industrial prosperity. The farm is the axis around which the great activities of the world revolve and good crops are the centrifugal force that puts the whole world in effective action.

APPLIED CHRISTIANITY.

Rev. J. D. Morrow of Toronto, is noted for several things he does, and more for what he wants. There is reason in his desire for a roof on his church, since he proposes to put it to some good use after it is roofed. The average church is a one-day church, open and in use only one day in the week, if we except the presence of a little handful of the faithful at midweek services. Rev. Mr. Morrow suggests that instead of sheltering men in search of shelter and warmth in frowsy police stations, warm church basements should be opened to them. This would bring about a wider distribution of comfort to the cold, the shivering and the homeless. Many a man with not where to lay his head on a cold night, has some remnant of pride, some natural repulsion to accepting charity, especially if it is associated with the idea of degradation implied in being sheltered, and herded with criminals and debauchees in a police station. If Mr. Morrow's idea were carried out, relief and comfort could be provided in the warm basements of churches, without giving too much trouble to the church authorities. If the churches in turn — one each night—should be given over to shelter the homeless and cold, much would be accomplished, with a minimum of trouble to the several church authorities. In this way churches would be fulfilling the spirit of Him in whose name they are built. He that had not where to lay his head, could sympathise with the use of his churches to shelter and comfort those to whom his mission was especially directed. His first care was for the bodies of the people, and through the healing of their diseases, and the feeding of their hunger he reached their souls. It does not seem to be enough that the churches should preach the "be ye warmed and filled" doctrine. Thy might well lend themselves to a little practical warming and filling.

While Rev. Mr. Morrow's idea is a good one, and all the better for being easily practicable, it suggests some sort of enterprise more direct and permanent. Why would it not be possible to open one or more club rooms in various parts of the city, where men without homes or home privileges, like those out of employment could meet at night in cold weather and spend the evening, and night if need be, in a comfortable, rational way. A room, or rooms, like these need not be expensive—only plain and comfortable, and above all, warm. The only places now with these conditions are the barrooms of the hotels and the pool and billiard rooms; and, as is natural, it is expected that the warmth and comfort will be paid for by patronage of the bar, with results that lead to the police cells, built and maintained for offenders against the law, not for honest unfortunates. Theoretical Christianity and theoretical Christian charity are beatuiful things in the abstract, but are only a mockery unless they lead up to applied Christianity and applied Christian charity.

Considerations like this should come home to us appealingly during the intense cold of the winter, such as we had yesterday, and may have again tomorrow. When we in comfortable homes—that is comfortable appearing, such as the modern house "built to sell"—have to keep furnace, grate and range going to keep from freezing, what must be the condition of those without fuel, without adequate bed or body clothing, or those without a shelter of any kind? When we lie down at night in warm, comfortable beds, we must know that throughout the city there are many in actual suffering from lack of the simple comforts we enjoy, but do not, in comparison with the lack of others, fully enough appreciate.

SEPARATIST ARMY AND NAVY.

A well-known Boer writer, in reference to the outcome of the Boer war, says:

"Had it not ben for the Canadian and other 'Colonial' troops they (the British) would never have beaten us."

Accepting this as a correct statement, its significance consists in the fact that these troops were troops maintained by the Dominions, troops under their own control, and placed freely at the disposal of the Empire. According to the contentions of the naval "emergency" loyalists they were separatist troops, and in theory made for the disruption of the Empire. But only in theory; in fact, they held the Empire together. A Canadian navy, built by, owned by, maintained by, and freely at the disposal of the British Admiralty, in time of stress, would do the same as our own soldiers did. The real separatist naval policy is that which separates Canadians from their 'coin' to build ships to be manned by British taxpayers.

IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN.

We must commiserate with our tax-worshipping contemporaries on the loss of a grand opportunity to say "I told you so."

The Toronto News told us two years ago that reciprocity would check prosperity in Canada, would throw men out of employment, and cause depression. It pointed to Montreal, Winnipeg, Fort William, Port Arthur, and Toronto, as cities throbbing with industry and commerce. Why not "let well alone"? Why not keep the factories and shops running full time? Vote for prosperity. Vote against Laurier. These were among the popular campaign cries of 1911.

Now suppose this warning had been unheeded. Suppose the reciprocity agreement had been accepted, and the Laurier Government returned to power. Suppose the industrial and commercial conditions in the early part of 1914 wre exactly what they are to-day. Just try to imagine the howl of blue ruin that would have arisen from the opponents of the Laurier Government and of reciprocity. "W told you so. We told you reciprocity would check prosperity and throw men out of employment. And just look what has happened. Thousands of men out of employment in Toronto. Riots in Regina, caused by unemployment. W are sorry for the unemployed. But why, oh why, did they not take our advice and vote against Laurier and reciprocity, and for Borden and prosperity?"

But it did not turn out that way. Reciprocity was defeated. The Laurier Government was defeated. We were sorry, but still we were consoled by the assurances given by the News and its friends that these harsh measures would ensure the continued progress and prosperity of Canada. After all, the prosperity and progress of Canada are more important than the success of a party, or the vindication of our opinions.

We have absolute faith in Canada, and we have not the slightest fear that the present check is any more than temporary. We shall enjoy again, and enjoy soon, a period of expansion such as we had under Laurier and Fielding between 1896 and 1911. For party reasons, we might prefer to see that period recorded in history as the golden age of Canada. But we do not desire that. We want to see the progress of 1896-1911 not only continued but exceeded by the progress of 1914-1929. As to the policies and the men that they will select for the purpose of ensuring prosperity and hastening progress, Canadians must judge for themselves. Government and legislation cannot do everything. But it does seem something more than a coincidence that there was stagnation and depression before 1896 and that a change of Government was so speedily followed by prosperity and progress such as Canada had never before enjoyed.—Toronto Star.

RECORD CROWD IS EXPECTED FOR TO-NIGHT'S GAME WITH BELLEVILLE

Lightning Fast Ice Ready---57th Band Will Entertain the Crowd Before the Game---Belleville Coming With a Strong Team and the Game Will be One of the Features of the Season.

To-night's game at Brock Street rink between the Belleville and Peterborough intermediates looks like the best fixture of the season, and judging from the way the contest is being discussed round town a record crowd will see the two teams battle for the honours. The win for the locals will put them out in front of the group, and once there the Petes say they will give them all a chase for the group title. Belleville are running an excursion, and the presence of a big crowd of Belleville fans in the rink will add to the excitement. The ice is hard and fast. The 57th Band will be in attendance and will play before the game.

English Cupholders In Danger Exeter No Mean Opponents

London Given a Hard Task--Blackburn and Sunderland Get Off Easy---Notts County Protest--Old Country Football Results

Glancing at the draw for English Cup, second round, we recognise some interesting struggles in prospect. Should Tottenham win the replay with Leicester Fosse, you may expect to hear of a great draw between them and Manchester City with the issue in doubt. We look for Barnsley beating Liverpool in this week's replay and the winner should have an easy thing in Gillingham at home. Birmingham v. Huddersfield should produce a stiff fight, with the odds slightly in favour of "Brum." Blackburn should be able to dispose of either Hull or Bury and Sunderland should have little difficulty with Plymouth.

Some Posers.

One of the best battles of the list promises to be that between Bolton Wanderers and Swindon. The Southern League leaders have every credit by disposing of Manchester United on Saturday, but I would not like to say they will be able to gobble up the rovers. Other exciting contests promised are Burnley v. Derby County, Wolverhampton v. Sheffield Wednesday (provided Notts fail in their protest against the Blades), West Ham v. Crystal Palace, Millwall or Chelsea v. Bradford City and Leeds v. West Bromwich.

Cupholders in Danger.

Aston Villa in their so-so form cannot look upon their visit to Exeter as a pinch, neither can Preston North End view that trip to Glossop optimistically, especially when they bear in mind that Everton fell there in the first round. One would naturally take Sheffield United as a safe thing at Bradford after that great victory of the "Cutters" over Newcastle but in this game speculators should be cautious. Bradford are now a strong force to be reckoned with.

Football Results.

London, Jan. 14—Cup replay scores are as follows:

Millwall 1, Chelsea 0.
Clapton 1, Notts Forest 0.
Bury 2, Hull City 1.
Queen's Park 2, Bristol 0.
Brighton 1, Oldham 0.

Exploits And Y. M. C. A. City League Winners

Great Improvement in Quality of Hockey and Losers in Each Case Provided an Awful Argument

TWO GOOD GAMES

The expected, as far as results go, happened in last night's Junior City League games at Brock Street Rink, the Y.M.C.A. beating the Wanderers and the Exploits taking the Alerts into camp. What was not expected, however, was the closeness of the games, the winners in each case having to go the limit to get the verdict. The ice was keen and hard, and the quality of hockey showed a noticeable improvement over the opening fixtures.

The Y.M.C.A. won the first game by 4 to 2, annexing the victory by a strong finish, which netted them three goals in the last ten minutes. The "Y" were without Stevenson, while the Wanderers trotted out a much stronger team than on their first appearance. They had Pat Walker in the nets, and the auburn-haired boy was a tower of strength, gulling off some spectacular shots. Primeau was at right wing, where he did good work, and the forward line was shifted with good results. The team looked fifty per cent. better all round, and the Wanderers will give any team in the League a grand battle from now on.

The first half was an even up battle. The Wanderers were the first to find the nets, Darling knocking the puck in in trying to clear after stopping a long shot, but the Y.M.C.A. quickly equalised, and the figures remained at 1-1 at the breathing spell. The second half was even faster, with a series of up and down rushes, with both forward lines checking back beautifully. The "Y's" condition began to assert itself after fifteen minutes, and they came on with a series of neat passing rushes that carried them into shooting range, and Walker had his work cut out for him. He handled a half dozen hard ones, but finally the "Y" shoved one through in a scrimmage. They came right back with two more in jig time, putting the game on ice, although the Wanderers nicked another goal before the final whistle.

For the winners all worked hard, and there were no particular stars. The work of Walker in the nets, and Brotherson at rover, featured for the Wanderers. The teams were:

EXPLOITS BEAT ALERTS.

The Exploits beat the Alerts 5 to 2, but it was a tight fit in spite of the three goal margin. The Alerts gave an excellent account of themselves, and battled the Exploits all the way. Had they shot better and shown a little system around the nets, the result might have been reversed, as the losers were all over the Exploits in the last half. The Exploits led at the half by 4 to 0, thanks to the great work of Capt. Butcher, whose quickness around the nets was responsible for most of the goals. The Alerts had a lot of the play, but lacked the punch and could not find the nets. In the second half the Alerts came back with a vengeance, and galloped down the ice at a clip that soon had the Exploits back on the defence. They hammered a goal through in a scrimmage, and then scored another past Latimer. The play was all the Alerts, and only poor shooting and Latimer's good work kept them out. The Exploits were pretty well bottled up, and had the losers had some one in on top of the nets they might have taken the lead. As it was, they made things interesting, and it was not until the Exploits finally broke away and scored their fifth goal that the issue was decided.

Butcher was by long odds the best man on the Exploit line-up, doing some grand work around the nets. Graham was watched closely, and never got away. Latimer did some good work in the nets. For the Alerts "Walsh" was the star, doing some fine rushing. The line up:

Den Dobson was a satisfactory official in both games.

Gillies of Brampton defeated Bochon's (Winnipeg) rink by 10 to 9. One of the best games up to the present was played by Edwards of Colborne, a comparatively new rink, in which he defeated G. A. Little with a beautiful "T" draw on his last stone. The game was nip and tuck all the way, and the score was a tie at the beginning of the last end. Finally Little was lying with two shots, perfectly guarded. Edwards, with only one stone left to play, and his only chance was to draw to the tee, an almost impossible play, owing to the layout of the stones in the ring. He accomplished it, however, making the score 11 to 10 in his favour.

The initial success of the local rinks in the Lindsay Bonspiel has been welcome news at teh Charlotte Street Rink. There were seven scratch games on the McIntosh sheet last night, several of them being decidedly interesting. Mr. G. H. Ferguson returned from Lindsay.

CORRECTED STATEMENT!

THROUGH A MISINTERPRETATION of my instructions before leaving the city on Monday, my advertisement on January 13th, stated there would be "No fluctuation, deviation or advance on present prices until spring." THIS STATEMENT WAS INCORRECT as all coal is purchased from the mines at their current monthly price, which is subject to heavy fluctuations, therefore; IT WOULD BE IMPOSSIBLE FOR ME TO SET A FIXED PRICE FOR THE BALANCE OF THE SEASON.

Prospects Are For Busy Session

Some of the Things That May Come Up Before Parliament

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 15.—The third session of Canada's twelfth Parliament was formally opened to-day by the Governor-General, the Duke of Connaught. The occasion was marked with the customary ceremonies and military display. In the red chamber there was an unusually brilliant attendance of society when His Royal Highness delivered the speech from the throne.

The prospect is for a busy and interesting session, with the promise that some of the subjects to be brought before the law-makers will bring forth spirited debates. Among the important measures included in the Government programme is the Redistribution Bill based upon the last census, an amendment to the Insurance Act, a bill respecting the incorporation of trust and loan companies, the revision of the Merchants' Shipping Act, the consolidation of the Railway Act, and various important amendments to the criminal code and the civil service act.

It is among the possibilities that the naval policy will again be a leading subject of discussion at this session. Since the Naval Aid Bill was defeated by the senate the Government has not disclosed its further intentions in regards to naval legislation, but it is generally believed that the question of Canada's share in the naval defence of the empire is certain to be brought up again, probably at an early stage of the session.

The free food policy enunciated by Sir Wilfrid Laurier is likely to be a subject of lively discussion. In exactly what form the subject will be brought forward has apparently not been determined as yet and this will probably depend upon developments. The members from the West have brought with them a strong demand from that section that some of the barriers to trade in all kinds of grain and farm produce with the United States shall be removed. The demand will be opposed by many of the rural members, who urge that while protection remains on manufacturers the farmer is entitled to it in respect of his products.

These conflicting views have led to the suggestion from some quarters for a general downward revision of the tariff, and an increase in British preference. While there is believed to be little likelihood that Premier Borden will turn his back on the policy which led him to victory in the general elections two years ago, it is considered possible, and even probable, that he will be willing to grant some concessions on the tariff question. Some of those who profess to have an inkling of the views that the Premier entertains on the subject go so far as to declare that he would agree to have wheat and wheat products placed on other grains, so that Canada may derive as much advantage as possible from the Underwood tariff law. A reduction of the duties on agricultural implements might be offered to placate the farmers. All of this, however, is little better than mere conjecture, for the Government has not made known what tariff reductions, if any, it would be willing to make. But it is certain that the question, whatever form it takes, will loom large in the session.

Couldn't Blame Him

One very cold day, Tommy, in his first trousers, was walking out with his overcoat turned back to its utmost limit.

"Tom," said his father, "button your coat. Look at mine."

"Yes, but everybody knows you wear trousers," replied Tom.

CONGREGATION OF ST. PAUL'S CHURCH MAY ERECT SPLENDID NEW $20,000 SUNDAY SCHOOL

Proposition to That Effect Favourably Received at Annual Congregational Meeting Last Night

REPORTS PRESENTED

At the annual meeting of the congregation of St. Paul's Church, held in the Sunday School of the church last night, a deputation consisting of Messrs. S. Keyes, Wm. Madill and D. H. Moore waited upon those present, to urge that a new Sunday School building be provided.

Mr. Madill, who was the first member to address the meeting, explained that there were twenty-five classes that met every Sunday in the present room. They were so crowded that it was a very difficult matter for the teachers to give their pupils any adequate conception of the lessons. He pointed out that in all modern Sunday schools, class rooms were provided adjacent to the main room, and separated from it by sliding doors, so that if the doors are left open during the opening and closing exercises they constitute all one room. But the doors are closed during the lesson and thus separate class rooms are provided. In this respect the present school room was not well constructed, and some better equipment was necessary for carrying on the Sunday School work.

Mr. Keyes said that it was a serious matter for the parents and congregation to consider. The young people being active and full of life it was difficult to keep their attention when the classes were so crowded together. Then too, no adequate provision could be made for the young men, who liked to associate with those of more years than themselves, rather than with younger boys. They dropped out of the Sunday School one by one now, and the teachers of their classes were put to an unfair handicap in trying to retain the older members of their classes.

A new Sunday School could be erected for $20,000. As to fixing up the old one by putting glass doors in the alcoves, Mr. Keyes thought it would be a waste of money.

Mr. Moore, in advocating that a new Sunday School be erected, said that he could readily understand the surprise of the congregation at being asked for a new Sunday School. But to any connected with the Sunday School it was very evident that the school had entirely outgrown the size of the present room. If he had not been working in the school as a teacher he would say "Why this fine room ought to be large enough for all purposes." But from experience he had found out that that was not the case.

Mr. J. C. Shook also spoke in favour of the project. He was satisfied that the present school was inconvenient. There was an utter lack of what were required to carry on the work, and he thought that some move ought to be made to better present conditions.

On the motion of Messrs. Hall and Moore, a committee of Messrs. Wm. Madill, S. Keyes and J. Crane, was appointed to investigate the cost of a modern Sunday School, such as is needed, and to make a recommendation as to the size and equipment of the proposed school.

Messrs. A. P. McLean and Wm. Madill were re-elected auditors for the coming year.

Messrs. W. A. Logan and H. B. Cowan were re-elected to represent the St. Paul's Church in the Laymen's Missionary Movement.

Messrs. J. Connal, W. G. Ferguson, T. A. S. Hay, S. Keyes, Johnson and Patterson were elected to he Board of ...gers for 1914.

Messrs. Wm. Madill and W. H. Hill were elected to represent the church on the Nicholls Hospital Board.

The Rev. Mr. Pogue and Mr. H. Patterson were appointed a committee (with power to add to their numbers) to attend to the publication of the annual report, including a directory of the names and addresses of all members of the church.

At the opening of last night's meeting Mr. Jas. Connal was elected chairman. He took the chair immediately after the vote, and presided over the meeting.

Mr. Crane read the minutes of the last meeting, and on the motion of Messrs. McLean and Keyes they were adopted as read.

The report of the Financial Secretary showed an increase in church membership during 1913. The report also stated that the result of the Every Member Canvass, in which 50 took part, was very satisfactory. The Sunday School has shown encouraging activity, due to the efforts of Superintendent Keyes, and the loyalties of his teachers and officers. Particularly Mr. Cowan's young men's class, and Dr. Morris' young ladies' class, and the work of teaching the Chinamen, under Mrs. Sharp, had increased to a surprising extent. The choir too come in for a tribute for its excellent work.

Next year the members of St. Paul's Church, according to the report, must co-operate to work for moral and social uplift. There had been recently a deterioration in the standard of morals. The revival of family worship was recommended as a solution to that problem.

The Board of Managers' report was encouraging.

The Sunday School report recorded the fact that the past year had been a very active and successful one for the Sunday School. The year 1913 saw a big reorganization. The Sunday School had been divided into four departments, the Primary, Intermediate, Bible Department, and Chinese. The work in all of these had been a gratifying success, although the teachers had been hampered by lack of room.

The average attendance during last year was 394. A number of books, too, had been added to the library. The school gave nearly $500 to missions.

The Missionary Report showed that over $5,000 was subscribed for last year. Owing to the Every Member Canvass the amount this year would be increased by $1,300.

Reports from the Ladies' Aid Society, the Women's Foreign Missionary Society, the Young men's Guild, the Mission Band, and choir were presented, showing all these departments to have rendered splendid service during the past twelve months, and to be in a flourishing condition.

There were about forty-five present at last night's meeting. The devotional exercises were conducted by the Rev. Robt. Pogue, while Mr. John Allan officiated at the piano.

HAS NEVER HEARD THE OLD MILL STREAM

Local Conductor a Real Highbrow—Talks of Puccini, Bizet, Gounod, and Admits Victor Herbert Into His Tastes.

One of Mr. W. H. Munro's blue-coated bearers of the inevitable fare-box admits that he has never heard of the song "Down by the Old Mill St-ream." He sings contemporaneous ditties with significant emphasis upon that midnight toot-toot in the execution of which he opens the loud pedal on "that rusty-haired conductor man," and "I've got my fare."

However, his knowledge of the rag songs is decidedly limited and his preferences prevail in the loftier plane. He has a weakness for "My Rosary," and would rather hear "When other lips and other hearts," than hold down the pay clerk's job. Some highbrow is he not? His greatest delights, however, is realized from the grand operas which he attends every night in the week in his back parlour with the disc cabinet at his hand.

CALGARY LEADS IN EDUCATIONAL EXPERIMENTATION

The opening of the school year has seen the beginning of a new epoch in education in Calgary through the inauguration of the pre-vocational school system which has commenced work with an enrolment of eighty five pupils, of whom thirty-nine are boys and forty-six girls. This is the first pre-vocational school to be opened in any Canadian city.

The openig of this pre-vocational school is largely in the nature of an experiment, but it is hoped and expected that its establishment will be marked by great results, principal among which will be the lengthening of the educational period for all children and the consequent turning out of better boys and girls and a reduction of the present large number of children who are turned loose in the world after completing their elementary education without a knowledge of any calling or trade. Early in the autumn of 1913 a circular was sent to the parents of all children in Grades 6 and 7 of the Calgary Public Schools inquiring, among other things, as to the child's likes and dislikes in the way of studies, any apparent tendencies towards callings or avocations and the parents' intentions as to the child's future. Particular attention was also paid to the question of whether or not it was the parents' desire to have the child proceed to the high school or university.

These circulars were carefully analyzed when returned and it was found that a large proportion of the pupils would leave school at the end of the elementary period and go to work. It was also found that a large number indicating their desire to enter offices and many girls suggesting household arts. As in other cities, it was found that the actual number going forward to higher education was very small compared to the total.

Armed with these facts the special officer of the Calgary School Board detailed to make inquiries presented a scheme for a course of work which would provide a different form of education for these children who proposed to leave school at the earliest legal age. A school centrally located was chosen and a new wing which had been recently added was allotted for the experiment which has just begun. The scheme involved the arrangements whereby half of each day would be spent in academic work and the other half in some form if industrial activity.

For the girls the industrial activities take the form of cooking, sewing, laundry work and general housewifery; for the boys advanced types of manual training in woodwork, simple metal work and a printshop is provided. A third side of the work is that leading to office occupations. To that end shorthand will be introduced and much of the work in arithmetic and other subjects will have a bias towards commercial and other pursuits. Drawing will be emphasized throughout the course as it is a means of education which is more and more being recognized as having enormous value as a measure of training and development.

Throughout the whole scheme of pre-vocational education, as devised by the Calgary School Board one important fact is kept in mind, and that is that no bar will be placed in the way of a child who may wish to proceed to a higher school. In point of fact although the Calgary scheme has been designed largely for those who intend to leave school at the earliest possible age, yet it is expected to materially lengthen the school life of the children. It is anticipated that the more attractive nature of the work will keep them at school longer and so develop their capabilities by means of the industrial and manual side of the courses as to encourage them to go on into the higher schools.

Another interesting feature is that the Calgary school authorities are definitely committed to provide a large technical high school offering broad and generous courses in technical and general education. The pre-vocational schools, of which one is now under way are eventually expected to prove large and valuable feeders for the technical high school.

MEMORIAL SERVICE WAS IMPRESSIVE

Women's Missionary Society Mourn the Loss of Branch President Mrs Platt

At the regular meeting of the W. M. S. of the George Street Methodist Church, on Tuesday a very impressive memorial service was held for the late Mrs. Platt of Picton, formerly President of the Bay of Quinte Branch. The programme was as follows:

Hymn—"Calling Us Away."
Prayer—Mrs. Kendry.
Lesson—I. Cor., 15th Chapter.

Mrs. Campbell and Miss Munroe spoke of their personal acquaintance with Mrs. Platt.

A solo was given by Mrs. Mather and Mrs. S. R. Armstrong read the following resolution:

Resolved, that we desire at this, the first meeting of our Auxiliary since our dearly beloved President, Mrs. Platt, was called up higher, to place on record our deep grief at her loss, knowing well that our loss is her gain. May her lovely life inspire us to follow her as she followed that of Christ; and that a copy of this little tribute be sent to her deeply bereaved husband and daughters.

Mrs. J. C. Wood then read Mrs. Platt's last message to the societies, who, on account of her husband's illness, had to resign her position as President. Following is the message:

Dear Fellow Workers,—I have had a glad surprise. In the mail this morning I noticed a large envelope which did not interest me particularly until I noticed the handwriting of our treasurer, and then I was all attention. A grand total of $18,388.61, and an increase of $1,519.22 in our branch receipts; surely this is an occasion for gladness and thanksgiving. For the last few hours I have been rejoicing over the increase and regretting the decrease in Auxiliary givings, especially those of my own district. I need not tell you that I am sorry not to share in the privileges and labours of this branch meeting; you know me too well to believe that I would accept a responsible position and then desert you in the hour of need if it were not necessary. I made every arrangement to be present and until to-day hoped to be with you, if only for one day, but at the last moment find it impossible to leave home. For twenty years and more my husband has encouraged me to continue my work in the Society and has borne cheerfully any inconvenience that was occasioned by my absence from home, but now he is suffering and needs me and my duty is to him. I am sure you will all help to make this the best branch meeting in our history. Any disappointment you may feel because of my absence will be more than counterbalancen by the presence of our beloved Board President Mrs. Ross. This alone will make this meeting and this year memorable. I have been wishing more ernestly I believe than anything I have ever wished for our work, that we could, in some way, commemorate this anniversary, the completion of our twenty years of happy fellowship. If I could have my wish, this is what it would be: A pledge from each delegate that she will for this year at least give more time to study of the needs and results of the W. M. S. work, and will do what she can to awaken interest in others. Perhaps some one asks do you consider study of greater interest than prayer and systematic giving? Not more important than prayer, but it is first in order, because without knowledge there can not be intelligent, earnest prayer. and there will not be cheerful, large-hearten surrender of our means. In the Master's command, this is the order: "Lift up your eyes and look upon the fields, and then "pray ye the Lord of the arvest." Can we not have a missionary study class and a missionary study secretary in each auxiliary and circle? The author of our text book says very truly: "We can never give to others an outlook wider than our own." We can never interest others in a work with which we are vaguely or imperfectly familiar. She says further: As members of women's clubs we have spent a year on an intensive study of one author, of one phase of history, perhaps one play of Shakespeare. Many of us have to plead guilty to a deeper interest in almost any other class of literature than in mission study. Undoubtedly the lack of study has been our weakness in the past. It accounts for the inefficiency of auxiliary workers and their ineffective efforts to win and hold new members. We need to strengthen our forces from without and within, and I believe it is really more important to train our present membership to greater efficiency than to seek for new members. More earnest workers, as well as new members, should be our aim. Our new text book "he King's Business" is a mine of wealth, perhaps the most helpful of any text book that has been published. You cannot afford to leave it unread, and you should try to have it as widely used as possible in your Auxiliary and Circle. You will also find many valuable new leaflets on the Literature table. No matter what your particular need may be there will be something to help you. Let me mention a few of the best: "The Gift of Self," "The White Gift," "The Gift Without the Giver," "A Model Auxiliary Officer," "How Long Must I Wait," "A Piazza Circle," "Living, from a Girl's Stanpoint," "The Third Prayer," "Young Women in the Programme of Christ," doubtless there are many more equally good which I have not read. Then there is the free leaflet prepared by Mrs. Ross, giving the present status of our work in brief, and last, but not least, our official organ, "The Missionary Outlook," with the monthly reports from the fields which we must circulate as widely as possible. This is my last official message for you must not elect me to any office, nor as delegate to the Board of Managers, but if ever I can help any one by a letter, please let me know. If I could not keep in touch with you in some way, I would feel that something very sweet and precious had gone out of my life.

Always your friend,
H. L. Platt.

BUILDING SITES AND THEIR RELATION TO HEALTH

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—As many of our citizens are no doubt contemplating the purchase of land for the building of homes, a word or two on the selection of a building site and its relation to the health of the people may prove useful as well as interesting to many of your readers.

The site of a house is often selected without due regard to its suitability from a health point of view. Speculative builders naturally take no interest in the question, land owners are only too anxious to avail themselves of the extra price offered for building sites, and, as a rule, the public either under-estimate or are ignorant of the important influence that locality and soil have on health.

The important considerations in selecting a site are: Dryness, warmth, light and air, and, as a rule, dryness and warmth go together, as do light and air.

The dryness of a site is mainly dependent upon the facility with which rain can pass off or through the soil, and the distance from the surface of the sub-soil water. It follows, therefore, that flat and non-porous land, or land which, though porous, has an impervious stratum immediately underneath, is not desirable as a building site. A gravelly soil, of considerable depth, and on a slight slope, is probably the best site that can be selected from this point of view, for not only does it afford facilities for natural drainage, but, by reason of its depth, the sub-soil water is a long way from the surface. On the other hand, although the surface be of sand or gravel, if within a few feet there is a bed of clay, the previous upper layer simply acts as a sponge, and absorbs the water which lies on the impervious bed immediately underneath; such a site, therefore, is not a favourable one, although it may be much improved by sub-soil drainage.

Impervous rocks, as regards dryness, are healthy, as the water readily runs off them, but in country districts the difficulty of obtaining water in many cases militates against such sites.

Chalk soil is dry and healthy, so is sandstone, provided (for the reason given in the case of gravel) it is of considerable depth and uninterrupted by clay.

Clay and marl, but especially the former, are damp, and unless thoroughly drained are not desirable for building sites.

Peat land, and all soils which contain vegetable or animal matter, are unhealthy. Muck soils ought to be shunned, owing to the amount of organic matter they are likely to contain, which will exist in a state of putrefaction for years, and render the air surrounding the house impure.

The connection between damp surroundings and consumption and typhoid fever is proved conclusively in the ninth report of the Medical Officer of the Privy Council, 1866.

The ground air—that is, the air which is intermixed with the soil from the surface down to the level of the sub-soil or ground water—is continually being discharged into the atmosphere, owing, among other causes, to its displacement by the rainfall. This is the reason why it is important that the soil on which houses are built should, as far as possible, be free from vegetable and animal matter. To the presence of such decaying matter certain diseases are largely attributed. Most authorities are now agreed that typhoid fever, infantile diarrhoea and diphtheria are intimately connected with ground effluvia from soils which have been polluted owing to faulty drainage, cesspools, etc.; hence the importance of guarding against any such risks of pollution of the ground surrounding houses as well as their actual sites. Indeed, Pettenkofer has wittily, but truly said, that "change of air" generally means "change of soil." The warmth of a site, other things being equal, is influenced by the nature of the soil and the degree of moisture it contains. The evaporation from the surface is greater the damper it is, and as loss of heat results from evaporation, consequently a damp site is colder than a dry one.

It follows from what has been said that, in selecting a site for a house, preference should be given to one which is dry, and if there is no alternative to building on a damp site, it is imperative that it should first be drained. The measures to be adopted against damp as regards the building itself cannot be considered under this head.

The two important requirements, light and air, are to be secured, as regards the first, by selecting a southerly or south-westerly aspect, and as regards the second, a site well removed from other buildings, and not closely surrounded by trees. It is not always possible in towns to obtain the advantages in this respect afforded by the country, but the more breathing space that can be provided, the better, and to ensure attention to this, all urban authorities should adopt by-laws defining the limits beyond which buildings shall not extend.

Thanking you for your valuable space.

Express Rate Reduction Will Be Made On February 1st

Shipments Carried On by Two or More Companies Subjected to Graduated Charges---Explain New Express Rates ---Order Refers to Three--Will Apply in Peterborough

TORONTO, Jan. 15.—Mr. N. H. Plant, general auditor of the Dominion Express Company, sends the following statement regarding the recent change in rates:

"There has been misunderstanding in connection with the reduction of express charges to be made on Feb. 1st. This has been due to examples of reductions having been given with out having shown to what traffic the reductions refer. So there may be no confusion, and that the public may understand exactly, the following explanation is given.

The Order Reads.

"On and after February 1st, shipments of express freight subject to the table of graduated charges for shipments weighing less than 100 lbs., incorporated in the express classification for Canada, approved by the Board, the carriage of which between points in Canada involves the service of two or more express companies, subject to the jurisdiction of the Board, should be charged the appropriate graduate under the lowest through or aggregate rate per 100 lbs.

"Section C of rule 9 of the conditions of carriage of the said express classification imposing (subject to qualification) a minimum through charge of 60c when the through or aggregate rate per 100 lbs. is less than $2, should be abolished on and after the said date."

The Order Refers.

1st—To shipments carried by two or more companies.

2nd. Between points in Canada.

3rd. To shipments subject to graduated charges.

Qualification referred to in the second paragraph of the order indicated that when the graduate charge under rate of $2 per 100 lbs. was less than 60c such graduate charge would apply instead of the minimum.

Therefore the result is, after February 1st, Section "C" of rule 9 will be discontinued and when carried by two or more companies there will then be a single graduate on the through rate, without this minimum.

Reductions are as Follows.

Weight	Rate 90c	$1	$1.25	$1.50	$1.75
1 lb.	Nil.	Nil.	Nil.	Nil.	Nil
2 lbs.	5c	5c	5c	5c	5c

CALGARY PLANS FOR AN ICE-COLD WATER SUPPLY

CALGARY, Alta., Jan. 15. — A waterworks scheme involving an expenditure of in the neighbourhood of $2,000,000 will eventually be entered into by the City of Calgary as a result of a report made the City Council by A. W. Fawkes, municipal water engineer. Mr. Fawkes recommends the establishment of great storage dams on the Elbow river which brings ice cold water from the Rocky Mountains right to the city. It is proposed to construct these dams at sites to be selected, varying in distance from Calgary of 32 to 39 miles. The water would then be conveyed to Calgary by gravity pipe-lines, saving the necessity of doing any pumping at all, and largely reducing he cost of operation.

SINGLE TAXERS IN CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 15. — Disciples of the late Henry George gathered at the Raleigh Hotel in this city to-day for a general conference on the single tax, with particular reference to the Joseph Fels Fund of American commission. This commission, devoted to propaganda for single tax reform, was created several years ago by Joseph Fels of Philadelphia, who has agreed to duplicate every dollar subscribed to aid in the movement in America. The founder has established similar funds in Canada, England, Denmark and Australia.

A number of single tax advocates of national prominence are to address the conference, the sessions of which will continue until Saturday. Among them are Daniel Kiefer of Cincinnati, A. B. Du Pont of Cleveland, Jackson H. Ralston of Washington, Charles H. Ralston of Washington, Charles H. Ingersoll, watch manufacturer; Lincoln Steens, the magazine writer, and George A. Knapp of Pueblo, Colo., who led the recent campaign in that City that put the single tax system in operation there. The speakers will also include Mr. Fels, who is devoting a large share of his immense fortune to the spread of the single tax doctrine.

Try This Treatment For Superfluous Hair

(The Modern Beauty)

Beauty specialists are greatly interested in the new treatment for removing objectionable hairs and the success of this treatment (which is positively assured) means the abandoning of the painful and time-consuming electric needle treatment. A paste sufficient to cover the hairs not wanted is made with powdered delatone and water and applied; after 2 or 3 minutes remove and with it comes every trace of hair. Washing the skin to remove the remaining delatone leaves it clear and firm. Be sure you get delatone.

THE FORD AS A FIRE FIGHTER

FORD, Ont., Jan. 15. — A Ford roadster with a built on wooden rear seat and flanged wheels is doing excellent service in the Sierra National Forest in California, U.S.A. It is used on the San Joaquin and Eastern R. R. to transport fire-fighters and fire-fighting equipment as well as supplies from one part of the forest to another. It is used also in patrol service, particularly to follow trains which traverse the National Forest in order that the ranger who mans it at all, and largely reducing the cost of have been started along the right of way by sparks from the locomotives. There is a peculiar need of such a speeder in the forest because of the difficulty of transporting fire-fighting apparatus by road and trail. The success of the Ford in this unique service has been pronounced from the day of its installation.

CONDUCT OF PEOPLE ON THE STREETS

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly allow me space in your valuable paper regarding the people of Peterborough on a Saturday. I might say I have been in a large portion of Canada, and I am really compelled to say that nowhere in Canada do people push and shove, and tread on other people's heels like what is done in Peterborough. I think they are really very ill bred. The only place to equal it. I must say, was Peter Marsburgh, South Africa, before British control. The women with go-carts on the sidewalks push right over your toes on push you down, if possible. Men are just as bad, showing what they have been doing.

Yours truly,
A Subscriber.

PETERBOROUGH BOYS SLATED TO BE IN THE WORLD'S GAZE

Two little boys, Peterborough in origin and association, will be prominent figures at the San Francisco Exposition. They are Wrighton and Donald, Brooks, children of Mr. Burton H. Brooks, of Columbus, Ohio. The father is a son of the late Thomas Brooks of Peterborough, and the mother is Miss Eva Wrighton, his wife, daughter of the late N. H. Wrighton of this city. These two boys, described by the Columbus Journal, which prints their pictures, as "two of Columbus' brightest boys," will appear in the "Temple of Childhood" at the Panama Exposition in San Francisco, which will naturally be one of the most interesting and attractive features of it.

Committee of the Whole Council Will Meet This Evening to Deal With Matters of a Legislative Character

MAY AMEND ACT

A meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council will be held this evening, when matters of a legislative character will be dealt with. The Council may consider the potential of formulating a private bill for submission at the coming session of the Ontario Legislature.

It has been rumoured that the Council will take steps to have the act respecting the City and the Peterborough Light and Power Company so amended as to facilitate the expropriation proceedings as instituted by the City against the power company.

ONLY WANT A PART

The present act, as interpreted by the company's solicitor, Mr. A. B. Colville, would assess the City with the responsibility of purchasing the properties of the Peterborough Light and Power Company in its entirety, the value of which is placed at six hundred thousand dollars. The City is desirous of purchasing only a portion of the plant comprising the distribution system, which constitutes property to the approximate value of one hundred thousand dollars.

Mr. G. N. Gordon is in Toronto to-day on business. He will return this evening.

An Event Of Importance

Is the Visit of Miss Florence Hinkle To-morrow Night

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir—The visit of Florence Hinkle to Peterborough on Friday night next is an event of more than ordinary importance in the musical life of our City. "A soprano of rare distinction and a most satisfying singer," is the opinion of Dr. A. S. Vogt, Conductor of Canada's Premiere Chorus—The Mendelssohn Choir. Miss Hinkle has been engaged by the Choir to assist at its cycle of concert in February, for the fourth consecutive season, and this fact alone should demonstrate her position in the view of competent critics. In bringing her to Peterborough, Mr. Gliddon is deserving of great praise and I sincerely trust his efforts may be appreciated. With the assistance of a really clever 'cellist, Mr. Leo Smith, who won many friends on his last visit to Peterborough, and our own Conservatory Orchestra, which by the way is a local student organization, and by dint of hard and conscientious work has been brought to wonderful efficiency, Friday night's concert should be an evening of musical enjoyment.

Yours truly,

JOHN CRANE.

Horse Was At Large For Hours

Animal of Mr. J. W. Edwards Ran Away at 6 O'clock and Was Not Caught Till 10 p.m.

About six o'clock last evening the delivery horse belonging to Mr. J. W. Edwards, the butcher, took fright when a farmer's outfit nearly collided with it yesterday, and ran away. The driver was thrown out when the sleigh collided with a tree at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer Streets, and the harness broke, giving the horse its liberty. It dashed northward, and disappeared into Smith. About ten o'clock it was rounded up, and brought back to its stable. The sleigh was demolished completely, and will serve only as fuel.

Dr. Galvin's horse was standing in front of his residence when the runaway outfit connected with the tree, and took fright. It too started to run away, and upset the cutter to which it was attached. It was caught in time, however.

It is said too that the farmer's team that started the excitement was also running away at the time.

Feet Heavier When Asleep

Head is Lighter and Feet Much Heavier on Awakening

You often hear a person complain of his head feeling "heavy" after a long sleep. As a matter of fact, his head is considerably lighter and his legs and feet just that much heavier when he gets up than when he went to bed.

Experiments have shown that if a man goes to sleep on a bed suspended exactly at middle point of his weight his head begins to tip slowly up and his feet go down. This is due to the fact that when we sleep the blood in the brain goes off to the other parts of the body. The moment the brain wakes to life again it draws the blood back.

It seems hard or impossible to decide what part of the brain really does sleep. Our sense of time, for instance is stronger when we sleep than when we are awake. Experiments conducted some years ago on a number of men and women between the ages of twenty and thirty showed that 60 per cent. of them were able to wake up in the morning at any time they had decided upon the night before. As some one has aptly expressed it, the resolve seems to wind up something in the subconscious brain, and when the hour has arrived this something gives in some mysterious way the alarm and the eyelids open. Another curious fact about sleep is that the further the part of the body is away from the brain the less soundly it sleeps. A touch of the toe will awaken one much more readily than a touch on the shoulder.

MUSCULAR CHRISTIANITY

Bishop Crean said the other day of a clergyman who advocated a standing army:

"Muscular Christianity is all very well in its way, no doubt; but whenever I see an exhibition of it, I thing of the revivalist.

"The revivalist on a street corner was a good deal annoyed by a group of rough young men. Glaring at those young men, he said:

"Let us now kneel in prayer, and if that young fellow with the bare hip interferes with me again while I'm praying I'll break his jaw, if I do seven years' work for it!"

THERE WAS A REASON

They were talking about a recent Christening the other evening when Senator Albert B. Fall, of New Mexico, said he recalled a conversation between Smith and Jones.

During the aforesaid conversation Smith remarked that a son had arrived at the home of Brown.

"You don't really mean it!" was the "It's this way," was the smiling reply surprised rejoinder of Jones. "What are they going to name him? When is the Christening?"

"I don't know when the Christening is to be," answered Smith, "but I understand they are going to name him Reginald Claude."

"Gee whiz!" exclaimed Jones. "That's some name all right! What are they trying to do, make a fighter of him?"

"Make a fighter of him?" returned the perplexed Smith. "I don't get you."

"It's this way," was the smiling reply of Jones. "You can bet to the limit that that 'Reginald Claude' congomen will start something every time he goes to school."

GOVERNMENT IS FIRM

Asquith Cabinet Unmoved by Demand for Navy Reduction

MINISTERS EXPRESS VIEWS

LONDON, Jan. 16.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—Two declarations of the most explicit kind were made last night by Lord Haldane and Postmaster-General Samuels, regarding the immediate policy of the Liberal Government on the navy. Speaking at Hoxton, the Lord Chancellor made one fact quite clear; namely, that the Liberal party does not propose to go back on the policy which has been declared publicly in Parliament, and have no intention of weakening the navy by departing from those standards.

Lord Haldane led up to this declaration by dealing with the proposals which have been made for a reduction of armaments. "I should be thankful," he said, "to see the time close at hand when all nations are going to agree to reduce their armaments and relieve us of the monstrous burden which we have to keep up for defence, but that can only be done co-operatively. Experience shows that if in a heroic moment one country lays down its armaments before others do, unrest follows, and there is reaction, and the bill it would have to pay would be much larger than if it had kept up to current standard."

The Liberal party, he went on to say, is against anything which will put the defences of this country in an unduly weak position. Far from having done that they have devoted during the last eight years more scientific study to the subject of defences than has been devoted to it for a very long time. "We have increased and strengthened the navy, and the reason of that is that other powers are building up and increasing their navies with great rapidity. We have reorganized the army, and as a result of prolonged enquiries we have the satisfaction of knowing that we have provided amply sufficient to secure the safety of this country, and we have laid down the standards from which there ought to be no rash departure," he added.

Herbert Samuel, replying to the cry that was being raised for reduction of armaments, declared the Liberal Government had always been and is to-day willing to come to an agreement to limit this lamentable expenditure, but hitherto declarations to that effect had met with no response. "It takes two to make an agreement, and failing such an agreement our policy is that we must maintain in battleships and armored cruisers superiority above the next strongest naval power of 60 per cent. In view of the world-wide responsibility which rests upon the Imperial Government, nothing less is adequate, and that margin of 60 per cent., it is held, gives us sufficient margin for our security. That standard has been endorsed by Parliament, it has been accepted by the spokesman of Germany as a not unreasonable one for us to maintain, and to that standing I for one adhere."

"BLOKIES" MUST GO.

Otherwise These Desperadoes Will Blow Up G.T.R. Offices.

MONTREAL, Jan. 16.—The general offices of the Grand Trunk on McGill street are to be blown up in thirty days, according to the terms of a notice served on the company. This notice was typewritten in French and signed by the "Anti-Blokie French-Canadian Association of Montreal."

It has been observed by this association for some time past that the Grand Trunk has been employing large numbers of "Blokies" to the exclusion of good French-Canadians, of whom there are large numbers available in the city without having to go outside for others. This it deemed an injury to the French-Canadians, who are on the spot. Therefore, if the Grand Trunk does not mend its ways, by getting rid of the "Blokies," both in the general offices and in the shops, the former are to be blown up in thirty days.

Strengthens Stews

EDWARDS' desiccated SOUPS strengthen weak stews, they impart the fine fresh flavour of Irish garden-grown vegetables to tasteless soups; they make the gravy much more savoury; they improve nearly all the recipes in the cookery book;—these handy "Jacks of all Dishes," these Edwards' desiccated Soups. The food bills will be smaller, the appetites larger, the cooking better, and the work easier, with Edwards' Soups to help you in the kitchen.

Important: Remember to let them boil for at least half-an-hour.

EDWARDS' DESICCATED SOUPS

But you MUST boil them for half-an-hour — worth it.

Edwards' Soup is good as a soup by itself, it is good as a strengthener of other soups; good as a thickener of gravies; good for hashes; good for stews — too good to be spoiled by insufficient boiling.

MUST PACK BETTER

Present Methods Hurt Cheese Marketing, Says R. Johnston

DAIRYMEN END SESSION

STRATFORD, Jan. 16. — Discussions at yesterday's sessions of the Dairymen's Convention hinged not upon the topics of former years, such as the manufacture of butter and cheese, but upon the marketing of these commodities, with the bearing of this phase upon the cost of living. As regards cheese, Mr. Robert Johnston reviewed the conditions under which it travels from producer to consumer, and scored the factory managers for the use of flimsy boxes which did not protect the cheese in transit. Next year, he said, he himself would refuse to accept any shipments in which the containing boxes were too small to enclose the cheese properly.

"We often find twenty-five broken cheese boxes in a hundred-box shipment," declared Mr. Johnston in his address on "Defects in Our Cheese, When it Goes Into Storage, and When it Comes Out." "The makers are far too careless in packing boxes too wide or too narrow for the cheese being used continually. What is wrong? Is it that the boxes nowadays are of poor stuff—green wood, loosely put together—or are our cheese-makers losing interest in their business?" Many cheese were received, he said, containing large rat-holes or similar defects, and the lower price entailed put the buyer to an undeserved loss. He mentioned light salting and the failure of factory managers to properly mature October and November cheese as factors conducive to a defective or deteriorated product.

That absence of uniformity in the flavor, texture and pack of butter was resulting in the loss of reputation by the makers of Western Ontario was the next charge, made with unusual frankness by Mr. I. W. Steinhoff. "Western Ontario seems content to allow other provinces to make better butter and to put it up in more stylish form," Mr. Steinhoff said. "The best lesson for you men is to go and take a look at the samples of stylishly packed New Zealand butter, of which so much is now coming to Canada."

Professor Dean of the O. A. C., Guelph, dealt with the conditions of marketing which caused "too great a difference between the price the farmer receives for his milk and that which the consumer pays for cheese."

A full house greeted Secretary Herns when he read at the morning session the report of instruction for 1913. In his report as Chief Instructor, Mr. Herns urged upon makers the absolute necessity for the adoption of some more efficient system of cooling cream at creameries and pointed out that greater care of milk and cream on the farms was an essential to the manufacture of good butter. The report showed that one hundred and twenty-four cheese factories were described as being in first-class sanitary condition, a number being termed "only fair."

The election of officers resulted in J. B. Muir, of Ingersoll, being selected to succeed S. G. Facey, of Harrietsville, as president. The other officers for the ensuing year are: First vice-president, Robert Ryrich, Springford; second vice-president, James Bristow, St. Thomas; third vice-president, A. W. Stratton, Guelph; secretary-treasurer, Frank Herns, London; auditors, J. A. Nelles, London, and J. C. Hegler, Ingersoll; representatives to the Western Fair, J. Brodie, of Mapleton, and F. Herns; representatives to the C.N.E. at Toronto, F. Herns and Robert Johnston, of Woodstock.

Moyer Is Indicted.

HOUGHTON, Mich., Jan. 16.—Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, was yesterday indicted for conspiracy, together with other officials of the federation, in connection with the strike of the copper miners.

The first count of the indictment charges conspiracy to prevent by force of arms the pursuit of their vocations by employes of the mining companies.

The charge of conspiracy constitutes a misdemeanor. Incidental to the indictment the jury found that the federation had 7,000 members in the strike district.

KAISER INTERVENES.

He Will Investigate Source of Real Trouble In Germany.

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—Emperor William yesterday again intervened in order to prevent another crisis in connection with the recent violent incidents between the military and civilians at Zabern, Alsace. He directed an investigation to be made to determine whether the decree of 1820, authorizing the military to ignore the civil officials, was still in force and had been rightfully included in the army service instruction which permitted the acquittal of Col. von Reuter and Lieut. Schad, of the 99th Infantry Regiment. Officials here declare it to be doubtful whether the decree should have been included.

The revocation of the ancient decree, it is stated, would remove the principal cause of the present Parliamentary and popular irritation over the affair, and would prevent a repetition of the arbitrary assumption of police powers by troops, without a request from the civil authorities.

Herr Von Heydebrand, leader of the ultra-Conservative, reactionary, pro-military party, known as "The Uncrowned King of Prussia," gave a diverting exhibition of "the Zabern spirit" animating his clans of Germans in yesterday's budget debate in the Reichstag. Attacking the Kaiser's Government for yielding to Radical-Socialist pressure with the tax provisions for army increase, Heydebrand said: "Why did not the Government stand firm? Why did not they simply tell Parliament to go to the devil?"

One of Heydebrand's staunch supporters is Von Oldenburg, who declared on a celebrated occasion that the Kaiser ought to have the right any time to send a lieutenant and ten men "to close up the Reichstag."

TANGO MUST GO.

Cardinal Pompili Puts Ban On It In Eternal City.

ROME, Jan. 16.—Cardinal Basili Pompili, vicar-general of Rome, representing the pontiff, has issued a pastoral letter denouncing the tango and also certain newspapers, theatrical performances and fashions, which he declares, are perverting souls. The cardinal says:

"The tango, which has already been condemned by illustrious bishops, and is prohibited even in Protestant countries, must be absolutely prohibited in the seat of the Roman pontiff, the centre of the Roman Catholic religion."

It asks the clergy to raise their voice in defending the sanctity of Christian usages against the dangers threatening and the overwhelming immorality of the new paganism.

It tells parents that if they do not protect their children from the tango they will be guilty of failure in the most sacred duties.

SESSION IS BEGUN

Speech From Throne Gives Little Forecast of Business

NAVAL BILL IS LEFT OUT

OTTAWA, Jan. 16.—The Houses of Parliament were opened with stately ceremonial yesterday, after a vacation of nearly seven months. His Royal Highness, the Governor-General, rode from Rideau Hall escorted by the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards, and amid a brilliant scene the third session of the twelfth Dominion Parliament was inaugurated.

To-day's sitting will probably last only a few minutes and the debate on the reply to the speech from the Throne will begin on Monday.

The first Government resolution of the session to appear on the order paper is Premier Borden's motion providing for the increase in the Senatorial representation from the West, in accordance with the announcement made in the speech from the Throne. The resolution provides for two additional members of the Senate each from the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and three additional members from the Province of British Columbia, a total addition of nine members to the upper Chamber. This will bring the total membership of the Senate up to 96, the divisions being 24 for the Maritime Provinces, 24 for Quebec, 24 for Ontario and 24 for Western Canada.

The speech from the Throne, following precedent of recent years, was very short and made no attempt to outline at any length the Government program for the session. The most interesting feature of it was the news that the naval bill and highways act would not be introduced this session.

His Royal Highness began by thanking Canadians for their sympathy during the illness of the Duchess of Connaught. He congratulated the nation upon the expansion of trade and the bountiful crops. Continuing, the speech referred to the financial stringency:

"I feel convinced that this condition will be merely temporary, and that the boundless resources of this Dominion, which are so fully and universally known and recognised, give us the fullest assurance of continued material prosperity and progress.

"As a result of the recent decennial census the representation of the different provinces must be readjusted," it proceeds, "as required by the British North America Act, and a bill will be introduced for the purpose.

"A bill consolidating the Railway Act and its various amendments as well as bills relating to the civil service and to trust and loan companies will be submitted for your consideration.

"Several other bills will be submitted, including measures providing for increased representation of the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, in the Senate."

A reference to the growing volume of immigration, announcement of satisfactory arrangements under the Agriculture Instruction Act, a report of progress on the National Transcontinental Railway, a reference to the proposed provision of adequate terminal facilities and one to the sea safety conference in London, Eng., complete the legislative section of the speech.

In the financial section it is stated that the revenue for the past year "has been ample to cover both ordinary and capital expenditure, and the estimates for the next fiscal year are promised at an early date.

At the conclusion of the ceremony in the Senate chamber the members retired, and again betook themselves to the Commons. There the time-honored procedure took place. The Prime Minister introduced a bill respecting the administration of oaths of office, which will never be heard of again. And he then gave notice of a motion to take up the speech from the throne. Then the new members were introduced, resounding cheers from their respective sides greeting the appearance of each.

The House then adjourned until to-day, when the business will commence.

It is stated that the debate on the address will in all probability not be proceeded with until Monday. This means that the House will meet for a few minutes only to-day, when there will be an adjournment until Monday at three o'clock. The debate will probably take all of next week.

Death of Old Glengarrian.

CORNWALL, Jan. 16. — Allan Munroe, one of the oldest residents of Glengarry, passed away at the residence of his son-in-law, Farquhar McLennan, at Summerstown Station at the advanced age of 92 years. The late Mr. Munroe in his long span of life saw many changes. He used to tell stories of the time when ox carts were used to go to market, and he lived to see the automobile. The funeral took place yesterday to Salem Church Cemetery, Summerstown.

Ancient Polish Crown Found.

VIENNA, Jan. 16.—Severe storms at Gracow, the Austrian fortress, and formerly capital of Poland, uprooted an ancient elm, revealing the hiding place of the crown worn by the former kings of Poland, dating back to the fourteenth century. The hidden crown has been lost since the middle of the eighteenth century. Some magnificent gems have fallen from the crown, but none are missing.

The Skin Troubles of Childhood

School Records Show Much Time Lost From Eczema.

Chafing and skin irritation, whether from changing temperature, rough winds, strong soap or the action of the clothing, naturally develop into eczema, spread over the body and defy ordinary treatments.

Most doctors do not give much attention to skin diseases, and, consequently, it is necessary for parents to select some treatment which has proven a cure for such ailments. If records of cures count for anything, then you can turn to Dr. Chase's Ointment with fullest assurance that in this you will have the means of controlling itching skin diseases.

By affording prompt relief from the terrible itching, Dr. Chase's Ointment puts an end to suffering, and removes the cause of scratching. As the fires of eczema die away the ointment sets up the process of healing, and brings about thorough and lasting cure. As a treatment for the skin troubles of children nothing has ever proved so satisfactory as Dr. Chase's Ointment.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

RAILROAD COMEDY

Methods of Operation in 1852 Seem Laughable Today.

QUAINT RIGHT OF WAY RULES.

On the Western and Atlantic When Trains Met Between Stations and a Dispute Arose the Conductors Decided Which Train Had to Back Down.

A most interesting exhibit of the early days of railroading in this country has been found by the Railroad Age Gazette. It is a schedule for passenger trains and rules for the conduct of enginemen and conductors on the Western and Atlantic, which was at the time and still is owned by the state of Georgia. The table is dated March 1, 1852, and was issued by William M. Wadley, superintendent, father of George D. Wadley, the latter for many years manager of the Central Railroad of Georgia.

The schedule shows a picture of an engine and cars at the top. Under it the numbers and names of the stations, the times for arrival, the times for departure and the time taken to run between stations as well as remarks about passing sidetracked freights are all carefully tabulated.

In the rules for enginemen and conductors are many which seem quaint in this age of colossal railroading. Of course the road had only one track, and rule 14 for passenger conductors shows that there must have been some dispute when trains met as to which train had the right to keep on its way uninterrupted. This rule says:

"As a general rule, when trains meet between stations the train nearest the turnout will run back. Any dispute as to which train is to retire is to be determined at once by the conductors without interference on the part of the enginemen. This rule is required to be varied in favor of the heaviest loaded engine or worst grades if they meet near the center."

Rule 7 gives the conductor directions for reporting on the number of passengers who are paying and the number of ministers of the gospel who were to be charged half price when on business connected with their calling. The same rule indicated that the governor of the state and the general superintendent of the road were the only individuals who had a right to give passes.

The conductor was ordered to inspect the running gear of his train at every station and in rule 13 was admonished never to leave Atlanta or Chattanooga without the mail or without first sending to the postoffice after it. Rule 17 says that a train stopping at any station at night must invariably be run on the turnout so as to leave the main track clear, and that strict watch had to be kept in all cases where a train stopped at night.

In the regulations for passenger engineers there are a number which seem almost humorous in this period of railroad management. For instance the engineman was instructed that if his train killed any stock and threw the cow or cows in such a position as to endanger the safety of the next train he was to stop his train and see that the track was cleared.

Passenger trains were not to exceed the speed of their schedule except when behind time, in which case the speed might be increased three miles an hour generally. In passing turnouts the turnout evidently was the switching tracks the speed had to be diminished to six miles an hour.

Rule 6 might be put in force today with good effect and to the delight of a much jolted traveling public. It reads:

"In connecting and in starting with his train the engineman will be exceedingly careful in the management of the throttle so that the cars may not be injured or the passengers annoyed by the sudden violence of the start."

This paragraph is found at the end of the regulations for enginemen:

"For any violation of the above rules, for running off at turnouts, for killing of stock by daylight and for all other irregularities the general superintendent will impose such fines as he deems just and called for by the nature of the offense."

The freight trains took two days to make the 137 miles between Atlanta and Chattanooga. The stops at the stations varied from ten to sixty minutes. One of the rules for freight conductors about keeping a certain distance from the trains ahead of him and behind him shows that there must have been a delightful uncertainty about the provisions for changing meeting points in case trains were delayed. It is evident that there was no telegraph communication along the line, although this was eight years after Morse had demonstrated that he could send messages over the wire from Washington to Baltimore. Several months before Charles Minot also had made use of the telegraph in ordering the operation of trains on the Erie.

CRAFT ON THE GRIDIRON.

When the Carlisle Indians Outwitted Harvard's Highbrows.

In football a full field run from kick off to touchdown is a rare play. Once it was made by a Carlisle Indian, who covered the long distance in a game against Harvard, Oct. 31, 1903, and did so by the craftiest, wiliest stratagem ever perpetrated by a redskin upon his pale faced brother.

The first half had closed with the Indians in the lead five points to none. Harvard opened the battle by sending a long kick to Johnson on Carlisle's five yard line. The Indians quickly ran back to meet Johnson and formed a compact mass around him. Within the recesses of this mass of players Johnson slipped the ball beneath the back of Dillon's jersey, which had been especially made to receive and hold the ball. Then, the ball thus secretly transferred and hidden, Johnson uttered a whoop such as Cambridge had not heard since the days of King Philip's war, and instantly the bunch of Indians scattered in all directions. Some ran to the right and some to the left, some obliquely and some straight up the center of the field, radiating in all directions like the spokes of a wheel.

The crimson players, now upon them, looked in vain for the ball, dumfounded, running from one opponent to another. Meanwhile Dillon was running straight down the field so as to give his opponents the least opportunity for a side or rear view and conspicuously swinging his arms to show that they did not hold the ball. Thus, without being detected, he passed through the entire Harvard team, excepting the captain, Carl B. Marshall, who was covering the deep backfield.

Obeying instructions, Dillon ran straight at Marshall. The latter, assuming that the Indian intended to block him, agilely sidestepped the Carlisle player, and as he did so he caught sight of the enormous and unwonted bulge on the back of Dillon. Instantly divining that here was the lost ball, Marshall turned and sprang at Dillon, but the latter was well on his way and quickly crossed the line for a touchdown.—Parke H. Davis in St. Nicholas.

Steinitz Was Defiant.

A story is told of an altercation between Wilhelm Steinitz and Gustave Epstein. The latter was one of the most influential and richest bankers in Vienna and was very fond of a game of chess. When Steinitz was a young man he used to play frequently at the Vienna Chess club and on one occasion engaged the famous banker. The game became very complicated, and Steinitz studied the board longer than usual. His opponent grew impatient and at last drawled out sarcastically, "Well?" Steinitz silently continued the game, and after a time it went in his favor. The banker then began to think deeply, taking considerable time before moving a piece. Steinitz could not resist the temptation to utter a long drawn out "Well?" "Sir, don't forget who you are and who I am!" roared Epstein angrily. Steinitz immediately retorted, "On the bourse you are Epstein and I am Steinitz; over the board I am Epstein and you are Steinitz!"

NATIONAL TASTES IN EGGS.

The Spaniard Boils His a Minute and Then Drinks Them Down.

How do you eat an egg?

To a stranger the manner in which you eat this part of your breakfast may indicate your nationality. Nearly every nationality has some especial way of cooking and serving eggs for breakfast, and, quite unconsciously, the average person's order of eggs will reveal his nationality.

Americans are said to prefer poached eggs. The foreigner when traveling who sees a man order a couple of eggs poached on toast almost immediately jumps to the conclusion that only an American could have given the order. Hard boiled eggs, served whole, are another American dish, and "deviled eggs," where the yolk is mixed with various condiments, is strictly American. Fried eggs, too, are more common in America than elsewhere.

Hard boiled eggs are eaten in Germany, too, but they are usually prepared in a glass, chopped with butter, salt and pepper. The German likes his soft boiled eggs very soft, indeed, and breaks the contents into a china cup, eating them from the cup. The "egg cup" is an invention of Germany, but the German cups are large enough to contain several eggs. "Sour eggs" are eaten in Germany too.

The average Englishman likes his egg boiled for three and a half minutes, no more and no less. He is particular about the time. He prefers a small egg cup that holds one egg, the shell of which is not removed. The Englishman then removes the top of the shell. Bread and butter, instead of the toast of the American, is eaten with the Englishman's eggs.

The Frenchman removes the top of his egg, too, but then he stirs the contents vigorously and adds bits of bread and butter to the egg. Sometimes squares of bread are dipped into the egg.

No Spaniard would dream of letting an egg boil three minutes—that is, if he prefers his eggs prepared strictly in the native fashion. The egg is allowed to boil only one minute and is then broken open and the contents poured into a glass, the real Spanish epicure drinking it off as if it were water.

In Italy eggs, to be perfectly prepared are started on their boiling by being put into cold water. When the water comes to a boil the egg is done. It is eaten on a large plate with bread.—Chicago Tribune.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS
CURED A BAD ATTACK OF ECZEMA.

All skin diseases such as Eczema, Salt Rheum, Tetter, Rash, Boils, Pimples, and Itching Skin Eruptions, are always caused from the blood being in a bad condition, and it is impossible to eradicate them from the system unless you put your blood into good shape. This you can very easily do without the slightest trouble by using Burdock Blood Bitters.

It drives out all the humor from the blood, and makes it pure and rich, and not only are the unsightly diseases removed, and a bright clean complexion produced, but the entire system is renovated and invigorated at the same time.

Mrs. G. A. Day, Somerville, N.B., writes:—"Last spring I had a bad attack of Eczema. I tried several patent medicines as well as the medicine of a physician, but they seemed to make the disease worse. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and I did so with the result that in two weeks time the sores began to disappear. I continued to take it until I had taken three bottles and they worked a complete cure."

Marriage Among the Santals.

Among the Santals, a tribe in India, marriage customs vary, but after an agreement has been reached between parents, who usually do the bargaining, the youth's friends after a short interval visit the girl and give her a piece of cloth as a sign of bethrothal. The money is then paid—this is called "the binding down of the thatch"—and a date for the wedding is fixed. The next step is for each party to tie a knot in a string for each day that is to intervene before the wedding day. Then the parties separate, day by day a knot is untied, and when the end of the string is reached the real knot is tied that makes the couple one.

NEW CONVENIENT TRAIN TO WINNIPEG.
CANADIAN PACIFIC

The popularity of Canadian Pacific service, and the excellence of that road's equipment, has been so greatly appreciated by the travelling public that it has been found necessary to put into service an entirely new Through Standard Express Train between Toronto and Winnipeg.

Commencing Sunday, October 26th, the "Gate City Express" will leave Toronto at 2.30 p.m., and will run daily thereafter, arriving Winnipeg at 8.25 a.m. second morning. The train will consist of the highest-class modern equipment; Observation Compartment Car, Standard Sleeping Cars, Tourist Sleeping Car, Dining Car, First-class Coach and Colonist Car. This will be found the most convenient and best train between Toronto and Winnipeg on account of the daylight departure from Toronto at an hour when the Union Station is not badly congested, and also on account of the early hour of arrival at Winnipeg.

The present "Vancouver Express" will continue to leave Toronto at 10.20 p.m. daily and will consist of the same equipment as the "Gate City Express." This train is the best to take for points west of Winnipeg, but for Winnipeg and east the "Gate City Express" is the right train to travel by.

IF You had a sore place, and had to choose between two remedies, one of which went to the sore spot direct, and the other by a round-about way, and might never get there at all, which would you prefer?

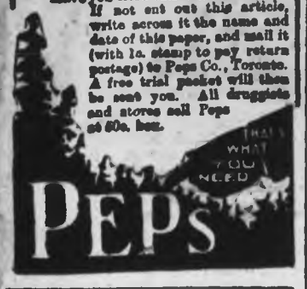
When you have a cold, asthma, a sore chest, catarrh, or any lung trouble, you can select between two remedies—Peps, which go to the sore spot direct, and any of the ordinary cough mixtures, cough drops, and doses, which go—not to the lungs and breathing passages, but to the stomach; which is not ailing at all.

Don't ruin your stomach in an attempt to heal your throat and lungs. Peps go direct to the throat and lungs. Peps are tiny tablets containing certain medicinal ingredients, which when placed upon the tongue immediately form into vapour, and are breathed down the air passages to the lungs. On their journey, they soothe the inflamed and irritated membranes of the bronchial tubes, the delicate walls of the air passages, and finally enter and carry relief and healing to the capillaries and tiny air cells in the lungs, thus ending asthma, catarrh, bronchitis, colds, etc.

In a word, while no liquid or solid can get to the lungs and air passages, these Peps fumes get there direct, and at once commence their work of healing.

Once you try them you will never use any other remedy but Peps for colds, coughs, sore throat, catarrh, tightness across the chest, "that night cough," and all breathing and lung troubles.

Have you tried this famous remedy? If not cut out this article, write across it the name and date of this paper, and mail it (with 1c. stamp to pay return postage) to Peps Co., Toronto. A free trial packet will then be sent you. All druggists and stores sell Peps at 50c. box.



LARGEST KNOWN ICE CAVE.

Wonders of the Frozen Grotto in the Dachstein Mountains.

A few years ago some members of the Austrian Speleological society discovered in the Dachstein mountains some caverns which are among the largest in Europe. One of these grottoes, the longitudinal axis of which is fully 6,500 feet long, moreover turned out to offer additional interest by its truly enormous ice masses and was found to be the largest known ice cave in the world.

Though a scorching sun may be burning outside on the bare mountain rock, there is always an icy wind blowing through this underworld, freezing everything within its reach. Only sometimes, when the outside temperature ranges between 32 and 41 degrees C. and a comparatively warm rain penetrates through the fissures of the rock, entering right into the cavern, will there be a temporary calm and distinct melting of the ice.

The Dachstein ice cave comprises several domes filled with ice, which communicate with one another through a number of frozen galleries. An ice crevice 89 feet deep and 116 feet in width traverses the floor of the cavern 165 feet from the entrance. Gigantic ice pillars were found to tower on both edges of this chasm, in the depth of which there unfolds a fairy-like ice scenery. Beyond the abyss the cavern widens out into a mighty dome (Tristan dome, as it is called), where a plain ice sheet reaches from one wall to the other, carrying ice stalagmites of the most fantastic shapes.—Scientific American.

A Hopeless Job.

Gordon Le Sueur in his book on South Africa tells an excellent story about Cecil Rhodes.

Rhodes was very careless in the matter of dress. On one occasion an old and favorite coat of his was sent to be cleaned and mended. Soon after it came back just as it had been sent, together with this note from the cleaners:

"Dear Sir—Herewith the Right Hon C. J. Rhodes' coat, uncleaned and unmended. We regret that all we can do with the garment is to make a new coat to match the buttons."

How Royalty Sleeps.

"Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown," says the poet. But the precautions that are taken to assure undisturbed rest to King George of England must at least bring quiet to his pillow. The outside of the royal palace is, of course, guarded by soldiers and detectives all night, and several night watchmen pace up and down the corridors through the hours of darkness, says the London correspondent of the New York Sun.

These men are shod in thick felt slippers so that their footsteps will not wake the royal sleeper, and one of them is always near the king's room until his majesty is called by his valet in the morning.

Every door and window in the palace is frequently examined, and it would be impossible for any intruder to get in without being discovered. The king is as well protected as the czar of Russia, who has a guard of armed Cossacks outside of his room, or the king of Spain, who is watched by a squad of specially picked soldiers, who keep the keys of all the doors of the palace during the night.

DIAMETER OF THE EARTH.

Points at Which It Is the Greatest and the Least.

What is the greatest diameter of the earth? The form of the earth is that of a flattened spheroid, greater in diameter at the equator than at the poles, but this is modified by the accidents of its surface, so that the diameter varies according to the point at which it is measured.

It might be expected that the diameter would be greatest if measured from the top of the highest mountain, which is Mount Everest, in the Himalayas, but unfortunately the point at which the diameter would emerge on the other side of the world is in the Pacific ocean, where this is more than 7,000 feet deep.

Professor L. Henkel of Schulpferda says the greatest diameter of the earth is that taken from the summit of Mount Chimborazo, in Ecuador, 20,136 feet above the sea level. This, he says, emerges at the antipodes on a high point on the north coast of Sumatra. This diameter is 7,929.3 miles.

As Chimborazo is almost on the equator, its summit is that point on the earth's surface which is most distant from the center. There weight is feeblest and centrifugal force greatest.

The earth's smallest radius is that from the center to the north pole, but it is not certain that the line through the poles is the smallest diameter, because the south pole is on a high plateau. It might be found that a line a little distant from the poles, which would emerge at sea level at each end, would be even shorter than the polar diameter. Such a line would be found from a point in the Arctic ocean between Spitzbergen and Greenland to a point just off the coast of the Antarctic continent in the big bay overlooked by Mount Erebus, in about 175 to 180 degrees east and 75 to 80 degrees south.—New York World.

Musical Tones in Architecture.

It has long been believed that each of the mammoth buildings of the world will vibrate in response to some special musical tone. Architects believe they have found the tones for such famous structures as the cathedral at Cologne, Notre Dame in Paris and St. Paul's in London. Certainly it is true that each of these buildings returns to the ear of the listener that one tone intensified and augmented to a surprising extent. The corollary statement that this keynote, if sounded long enough and with sufficient force, would bring disaster has never been proved.—Christian Herald.

The Secret of Good Digestion

In perfect health, with regular and healthful action of the liver and kidneys, you need not know there is such a thing as digestion or indigestion. Unfortunately, however, modern life is artificial, and, not many people avoid suffering more or less from troubles of this nature.

The great secret lies in keeping the liver and kidneys in health and vigour, for then the food is passed quickly along the alimentary canal, the nutritive portions being assimilated in the blood stream and the poisoned waste materials are passed out of the body.

When the liver and kidneys get wrong you will obtain relief most promptly and effectively by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. If chronic indigestion is to be cured it must be by enlivening the action of these filtering and excretory organs. To persons who have thought only of the stomach as being the offending organ this may seem strange, but any competent physician will tell you this is correct.

CHILDREN'S STYLES.

Picturesqueness and Simplicity the Keynote of Juvenile Fashions.

The hats for the kiddies of today are very different from the headgear of yesterday, when a ribbon tied around the crown of a felt shape made a hat. In those days an imported hat for a girl in her teens was an undreamed of extravagance. Yet today the head of an enterprising hat department will tell with pride of the hours she spent selecting the juvenile models from the leading Paris milliners who make a specialty of children's hats.

The hats for little and big girls should be simple—simple in outline and in trimming—but they may be, and the most successful ones are, delightfully picturesque. There is certainly a picturesque element in the rather large, floppy brimmed, low crowned hats of taffeta or velvet. The prettiest of these hats are trimmed simply with a large flat bow of ribbon, sometimes the plain taffeta ribbon and again the moire. A particularly becoming hat fashioned along these lines is of navy blue and cerise taffeta, the taffeta being shirred around the face and the huge sprawling bow of cerise moire ribbon covering the entire right side. The new velvets are so very soft that they can be treated in this way with great success. And is there any prettier headgear for the "beatest best hat" of a young blond girl than a large black velvet hat with a bow of a contrasting color?

Soft felt hats are worn very generally by the schoolgirl, especially in the fall. There is a very pretty red felt hat, a dull Harvard red, which has as its only bit of ornamentation a cut leather band, very narrow and embossed in the soft eastern colors. Drapes of the picot edge ribbon are often used, and the old gold picot ribbon is charming on a creamy white felt. The ribbon is carelessly twisted around the crown, with a soft loop at the back and one long streamer. On the more dressy hats these streamers are brought up under the chin and swathe the neck in a most becoming manner.

Very modish is this coat and hat designed for a girl of ten or twelve years. The mushroom shaped piece of millinery is of pale tan duvetyn trimmed with a brown velvet bow. The coat, a smart affair of brown wool ratine, has a chic little sash and collar and cuffs of civet cat fur.

Human Skin as a Polisher.

I had always supposed that the chamois possessed the skin best adapted for polishing purposes, but recently in a leading jeweler's shop I learned otherwise. Nothing, it seems, can impart such a luster to plate as the human skin, and all the best articles are polished, quite literally, by hand—rubbed gently by the lower arch of the hand at the base of the thumb. "We keep a girl to do nothing else," said my informant, and I reflected that I had discovered a new industry and a new definition of "palm oil."—London Opinion.

The Finding of Omar.

It was the late Mr. Bernard Quaritch's father who published FitzGerald's "Omar," and, finding that the thing didn't sell, he relegated it to the penny box. Its subsequent success was due to a fortunate accident. Two friends of Rossetti came across the poem and thought it worth reading. Rossetti read it and recommended it to Swinburne. What followed Swinburne has himself told. "Having read it," he writes, "Rossetti and I invested upward of sixpence apiece—or possibly threepence; I would not wish to exaggerate our extravagance—in copies at that not exorbitant price. Next day we thought we might get some more for presents among our friends, but the man at the stall asked twopence! Rossetti expostulated with him in terms of such humorously indignant remonstrance as none but he could ever have commanded. We took a few and left him. In a week or two, if I am not much mistaken, the remaining copies were sold at a guinea. I have since * * * seen copies offered for still more absurd prices. I kept my pennyworth (the tidiest of the lot) and have it still."—London Chronicle.

Twelfth Century Football.

In the twelfth century football in England was a game for the streets. The chronicler of that period tells how after dinner the city youths "addressed themselves to football," and how the scholars of each school and the apprentices of particular trades would each have their peculiar ball. There were spectators, too, in those days—enthusiastic spectators. Fathers would come to watch their sons and "become as youthful as the youngest, their natural heat seeming to be revived at the sight of so much ability."

In later years one recalls a famous ball game played in Hyde park. In 1654, then, "there was a hurling of a great ball by fifty Cornish gentlemen on one side and fifty on the other. One party played in red caps, the other in white." And—here the historical value of the content—Cromwell was a spectator and applauded the "great agility of body" displayed.

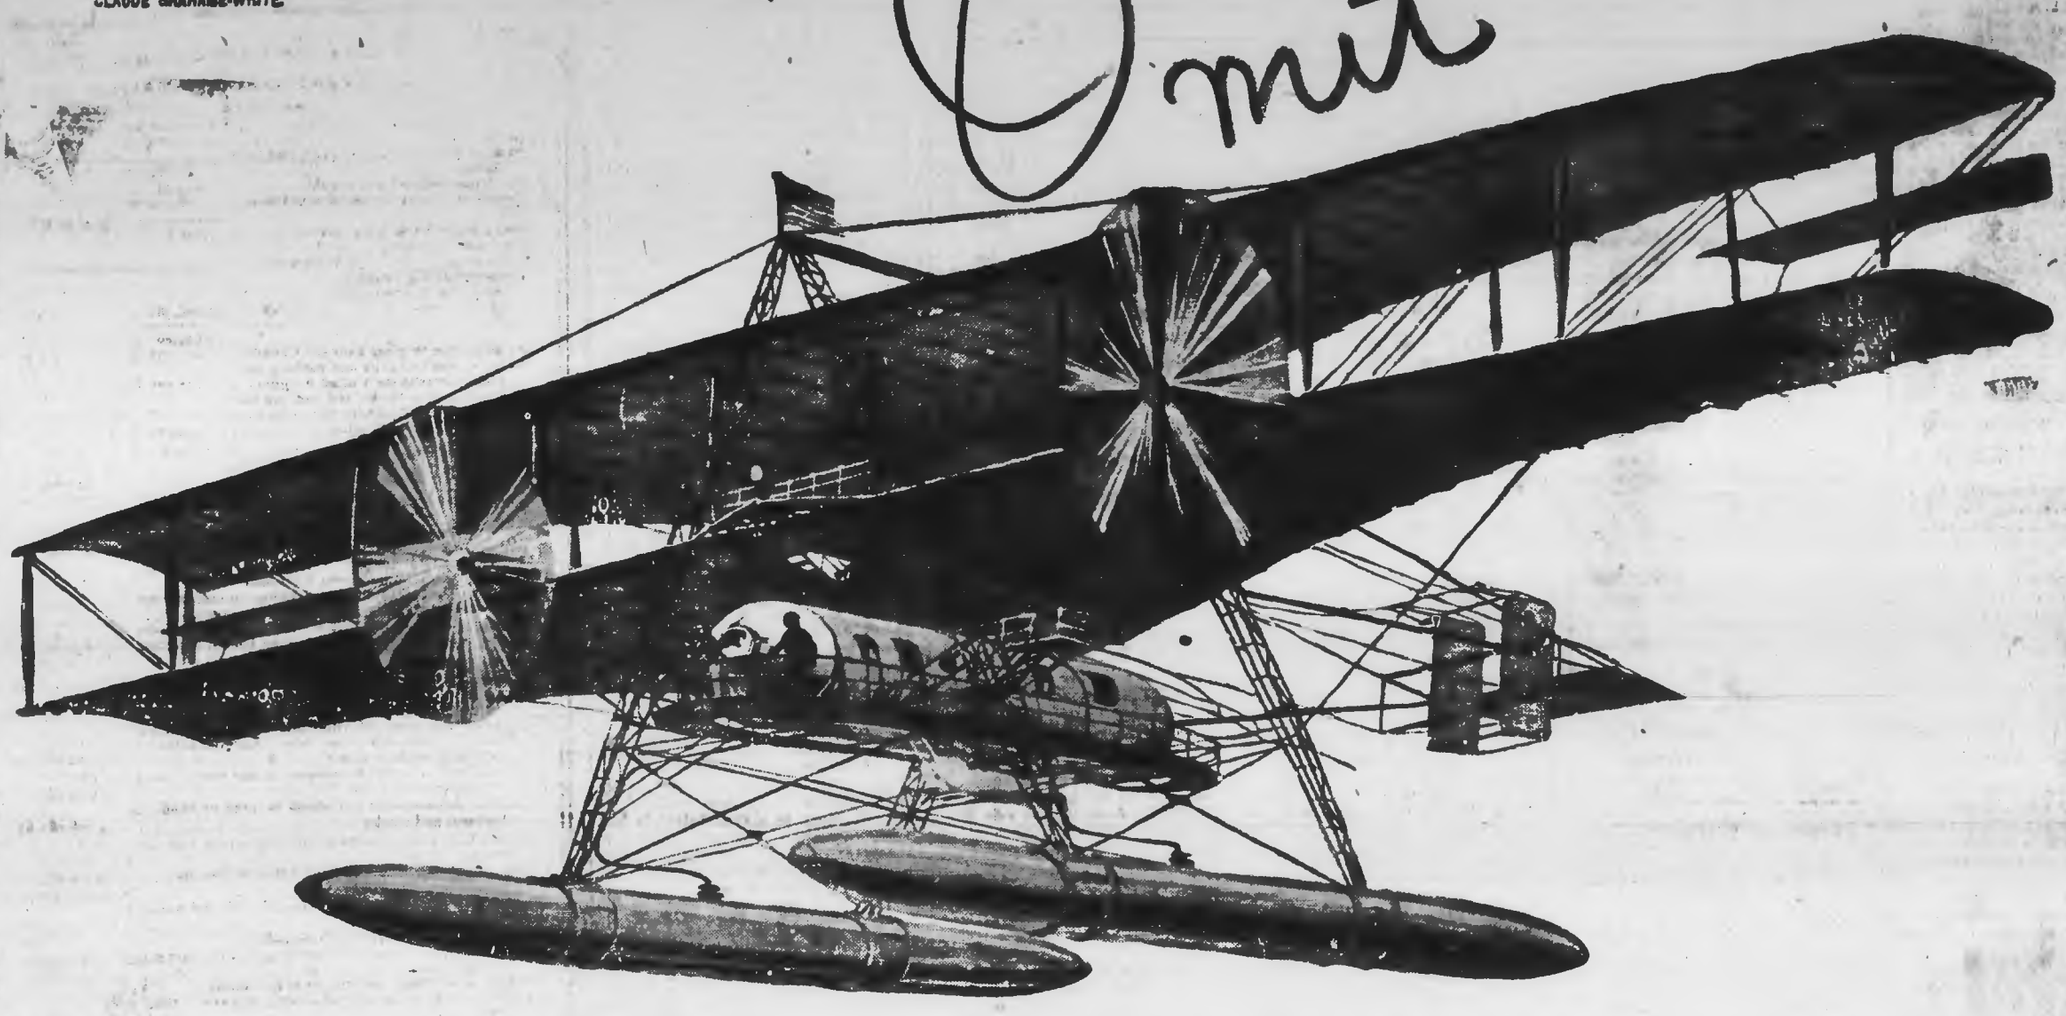
AVIATORS SURE THEY WILL FLY ACROSS THE ATLANTIC NEXT YEAR

CLAUDE GRAHAME-WHITE

ADOLPHE PEGOUD.



THAT the day when aircraft will cross the Atlantic is not far distant is the conviction of many prominent aviators. A regular service between New York and London, Paris and St. Petersburg is a very remote possibility, but air pilots declare it is a possibility. The aviators of at least three nations are earnestly at work preparing for an attempt to fly across the Atlantic Ocean, and those most interested are hard at work plotting the best courses and the safest routes.

IT seems certain that the next great event in aviation will be a flight across the Atlantic.

Almost every week brings forth fresh evidence of progress made in the evolution of machines and the education of pilots capable of attempting such an enterprise. Mr. Alan R. Hawley, president of the Aero Club of America, recently passed in review the elements of the problem and remarked that many of those interested in aircraft are firmly convinced that the Atlantic will be crossed by aeroplane within "their day and generation."

Perhaps that prediction is too conservative and guarded in form. The rapid development of flying machines, their constantly extending radius of flight, their increasing stability under the most difficult and varied atmospheric conditions, the technical mastery of present day airmen—everything encourages the belief that the moment is close at hand when the epoch-making flight will be attempted.

Broadly speaking, the difficulty is threefold, the machine, the man and the route being of equal importance to make the enterprise a success.

The aeroplane capable of crossing the Atlantic should be able to keep up a speed of 100 miles an hour under normal conditions. Such a long sustained flight will necessitate at least three engines and propellers, each capable of maintaining alone a speed that would insure the aeroplane remaining in the air, with a large margin of safety, even with the other two engines entirely out of action. For the aviator to be compelled to alight on the Atlantic, except in circumstances rarely found on that wide stretch of water, would mean disaster. But precisely on account of this one chance in a thousand—fairly smooth water, with little or no wind—the aeroplane should be capable of coming to rest on water as well as on land. In the long run it probably will be found expedient to start from and finish on water, as expanses of practically smooth water for starting and stopping purposes would be found more easily than flat stretches of ground.

Three men, if not four—two pilots and one assistant—probably would be necessary. The strain of a continuous flight of sixteen hours, even in the most favorable conditions, would be too great for one man. Then, besides steering the machine, there would be the necessity of finding the position by sun or star, or of getting it by wireless from liners in the vicinity. But by whatever method the position were found, the operation would have to be done by some one whose time and attention were not being taken up with steering. The assistant would have plenty to do in attending to the purely routine work of watching the oiling of the engines and in preparing warm food.

Which course will be adopted on the first transatlantic flight—from east to west or from west to east? This is still an open question. On general principles the flight from west to east appears to have the advantage on account the prevalence of westerly winds on the North Atlantic. Mr. Roland Garros when speaking of his desire to cross the Atlantic appeared to consider an east to west flight, passing from some point in the British Isles to Iceland and thence to Newfoundland. Claude Grahame-White and Adolphe Pegoud, two noted aviators, are sure the feat of crossing the Atlantic next year will be accomplished.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE HOUSE OF TWO MILLION ROOMS

"Swish-SH-SH-SH-SH-SH!" That is how it all began. A long, swift, silken, vapory rush the length of the black corridor, past the open door, then down the stairs, into a pool of silence at the bottom with a soundless plump: "Swish-sh-sh-sh-sh-sh-sh!"

Little Maryan, in her warm bed, drew her rosy limbs into herself and became a round ball; in the centre of that soft ball something thumped, thumped, thumped. She mustered all of her courage to dash across the hall into her mother's room.

But the Horrors were already in action. The door was shut. The door of her mother's room across the hall was shut. It was strange. A subtle change already had distorted the house. Before this the mother's door across the corridor could not be seen from the nursery; but always it had been open in wide invitation. Now it was quite visible from Maryan's bed; and it was closed!

The situation was terrible. Never would one be able to run across the hall and open that door before something happened. The soft round ball tightened; the thumping within it rose till Maryan could taste its electric reverberation upon her tongue. That is why she was so relieved and so glad when she saw the little man.

He was standing at the foot of the bed. He was a funny little man. In his hands he held a ladder. He planted it firmly on the bed, and immediately it lengthened till its top could not be seen. He took his hands off it, and it remained upright, standing all by itself. After a low elastic bow which brought his left hand over his heart, he started climbing the ladder.

When he had thus risen a while Maryan was able to see him better. He wore a green toque which shone like a jewel, and a coat with two tails; at times the tails of this coat rose as if on springs, and perked like the tail of a blue jay. But his feet were bird claws. Each struck its rung with a small hard sound of horn, against wood, curled around it, and left it with a sort of reluctance, raspingly. As he climbed he sighed and said in French: "Oh, but these steps are high! Oh, but these steps are high!"

The first time he said this Maryan laughed within herself. The second time she felt sorry. The third time she felt so sorry that in her nightdress she got out of bed and began climbing the ladder after him.

"Oh, but these steps are high! Oh, but these steps are high!" he sighed and cried, climbing.

And she, coming after him, consolingly: "But no, they are not high! But no, they are not high!"

She went up so easily, her hold upon each rung was so firm, that after a moment a great fear came to her which made it impossible to look at her feet. She felt that they must have become bird claws. By chance, though, she caught the flash of one in the foam of her swirling nightie. It was pink, it was all right; but a white toy wing was tied to its heel.

"Oh, but these steps are high! Oh, but these steps are high!"

"But no, they are not high! But no, they are not high!"

Thus they climbed and climbed and climbed, till at last they reached the trapdoor.

The trapdoor, of course, was cut into the bottom of the house which stood on top of the house where Maryan lived.

It was the House of Two Million Pink Rooms. It had two million tiny pink rooms, all of the same shape, like waxen cells of bees. The trap opened into one of these rooms. A little old woman was in it, with a long trailing skirt, a sharp nose, a monumental wig and a waspish waist. She sat before a mirror and polished her nails. She turned her head around, but was not at all surprised at the opening of the trap in the floor and the entrance of Maryan with the bird man.

The bird man, anyhow, immediately disappeared; so that if the lady had wished to be surprised at the entrance of the bird man she would not have been able to be, for the entrance ceased to be as soon as it was.

It was all alone, then, that Maryan went through the two million rooms of the House of Two Million Pink Rooms. Each was small as a thimble and shaped like a dice, and furnished in real Louis the Seventy-third. In each was a little old lady with a trailing skirt, a sharp nose, a big wig and a waspish waist. One sat at her mirror, turned her wig around and around on her head, and said: "It won't fit, it won't fit, it won't fit"; a third, before her mirror, placed in her diminutive ears pendants that reached the floor; another sat at her piano, her fingers went "do, re, me, fa," but the music went "fa, me, re, do"; one pinched a nutshell of a guitar and that made embroidery; one washed her silken lapdog—it said "Papa, Mamma," and laughed heartily when the soap went into its eyes; one sat in a rocker and fanned and fanned, and one stood up on a chair while a mouse that was no bigger than a flea slid around and around on a railroad track.

Later this was all which Maryan could tell; for to tell of two million rooms, allowing one room a minute, would take two million minutes; and Maryan has lived only three million one hundred and fifty-three thousand six hundred minutes plus this one; so that to tell, it would have been necessary to begin when she was only one million one hundred and fifty-three thousand six hundred and one minutes old; and that's long before it happened.

But each of these little old ladies, whatever she was doing, powdering her nose or standing on a chair while a mouse went around, each of them kept doing what she was doing as Maryan visited, and pretended not to see her, because each of them had in her keeping the secret of the House of Two Million Pink Rooms.

Maryan came upon this secret at last when she reached the basement, which was at the top of the house. There in the shiny, small kitchen a little scullion maid was making cakes she didn't know how to make.

She mixed the dough slap-dash; she rolled it with a broken hairpin, swiftly, swiftly; she stamped it into two million pea-sized cakes with the rubber end of a pencil; she shunted these into the purring little oven, clattering the tiny door shut upon them; she drew them out, tasted one—and broke into tears.

Maryan felt so sorry that she thought she also would have a taste. It took one hundred thousand cakes before she was sure. Then she knew the drear secret. "Ah-ah-ah!" she said. In the House of Two Million Pink Rooms there wasn't any salt!

Her mind, quickened by compassion, was working very fast. She pushed the scullion maidlet over the cakes so that her tears fell upon them. When the maidlet tasted the bewept cakes she laughed and laughed and laughed. "What can I do for you as reward?" she piped. "What can I do for you as reward?"

Now Maryan knew that her little heart had been big and sore, very secretly, ever since she had left the village in Brittany where she had passed the summer. "Oh," she cried, "I should so like to see Adrienne and Ives-Marie!"

She had played with them long, sweet days on the cliffs of Brittany.

"I will take you to them" — and the little scullion maid, straightway abandoning the cakes she now knew how to make, led up a spiral stairway in a tower to the garret of the House of Two Million Pink Rooms.

Adrienne and Ives-Marie were there. The place had been fitted up beautifully for them; with a bathtub, so that they would still think themselves by the sea. Adrienne had a new snow-white headdress with lacy wings, but Ives-Marie was just as he had been in the summer. He stood in his wooden shoes, his hands deep in the pockets of his long trousers—old green with blue patches at the seat—his bonnet down on his nose, and swayed from side to side like an old sailor, which he wasn't, being only the little son of one.

"We came in through the top trapdoor!" they shouted together as soon as they caught sight of Maryan.

"And I through the bottom one!"

"Do you know what one must do to catch lots of fish up in Iceland?" they then asked.

"No," admitted Maryan, though she had spent three summers with them and thought she knew all that they knew.

"One must pray. One prays, and then one catches thousands of cod."

Maryan kissed them tenderly. She knew that she had to go see her father. He was in the next room. He sat at his desk and worked.

"Father," she said, "do you know what one must do to catch lots of fish?"

"Catch lots of bait," said Father.

"Nope. One says prayers, and then one catches thousands of cod."

Father thought a while. "Suppost the cod say prayers too?" he asked.

Maryan went out.

Ives-Marie and Adrienne were standing on the edge of the bathtub, admiring the scenery. "How wild and barbarous it is!" they were saying.

"Father says," broke in Maryan, "Father says, 'suppose the cod say prayers too!'"

But Adrienne's answer came as swiftly as the spring of a shrimp when you try to catch it in a pool with your fingers. "They can't; they have no knees!"

"They can't; they have no knees," said Maryan, when she had returned to her father.

He had now changed his occupation. Stretched stomach down along the immense table, he was swimming his famous trudgeon stroke. He stopped, enormously worried. He sat up, crossed his legs beneath himself, and placed his index finger delicately on his forehead. To this gesture his head immediately became the globe. When he spoke Africa was rent asunder. "Suppose," he said subtly, "that they pray upon their tails."

"Suppose they pray upon their tails," said Maryan to Ives-Marie and Adrienne.

Adrienne's answer was as sudden as the swoop of a gull: "They couldn't. If they prayed upon their tails they would break in two like that." Her hands, as she spoke, were together palm to palm with fingers upward, representing a fish standing upon its tail to pray. As she said, "break in two like that," the two hands fell apart from fingertips down to the pliable wrists. It was exactly as if the small brass fasteners of a tin fish had broken, and the tin fish had fallen apart in two flat slices.

"Ah!" said Maryan.

But to her astonishment, as she said this, Ives-Marie fell apart before her in two slices made of tin; Adrienne followed suit from curl to toe; and then the whole House of Two Million Pink Rooms fell apart in great sine-sheet clatter—and Maryan was in her bed again, in the nursery, as she had been at the beginning, small palpitant kernel in a solemn, black hush. In her ear still dwelled the terrible mysterious "Swish-sh-sh" that had fled down the hall past her open door.

And another change subtly had taken place in the house. When she had awakened the first time the door of her mother's room across the hall had been so that she could see it from her bed, and it had been shut. Now it was again as always before it had been; it couldn't be seen from her bed; and yet it was open. She could not see it, yet she knew that it was open. So sure was she of this, that before she knew it she had wiggled out of her covers and had slid through the door and was pattering across the hall.

Of course it was open. Zip! She went through the thin film of darkness across the opening and was within.

It was dark in here, muffled, and gravely still, but permeating the darkness, a faint, familiar and exquisite fragrance floated, dispeller of fears, and in the centre of the darkness, like an altar, the bed glowed vaguely.

Maryan approached it, climbed, clambered, and wiggled herself in between the sheets; her small body slid down into a warm tenderness which immediately enveloped her. Mother's body arched itself protectingly; Maryan's cuddled within the curve; her cool nose, with the sure nudge of a little puppy dog's, found a soft place between two lacy ruffles; against her ear something beat in solemn assurance.

There were no more houses with two million pink rooms that night, no little ladies, no green-capped bird men with ladders, reaching up to nowhere, no perplexities and no terrors; instead an adorable peace like haze all about, and within it, like a lamp, the memor- returning always with a new start of joy, of a tenderness, very near.

When the sun, shining through the window, had heralded the new day, Maryan lay there long with wide-open eyes before she voiced her conclusion. "You know," she said at length, "there is one thing that is very evident to me."

"What is that, Maryan?"

"It's that little girls the night after Christmas should always sleep with their mammas."

Troubled With Weak Back and Kidneys For 10 Years.

Many people fail to understand the significance of a lame, weak, sore or aching back.

When the back aches or becomes weak it is a warning that the kidneys are affected in some way.

Take notice to the warning and cure the backache on the first sign, for if you don't do this, serious complications are sure to arise and perhaps develop into Dropsy, Diabetes or Bright's Disease, the three most deadly forms of kidney trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills will strengthen the weak back, and prevent any form of kidney trouble entering the system.

Mrs. Ed. Boyer, Nokomis, Sask., writes:—"I have been troubled with weak back and kidneys. I had terrible dizzy headaches, and could not sleep at night. In this way I suffered for ten years, until I read about Doan's Kidney Pills. I purchased two boxes, and as they helped me, I sent for two more; they put me on my feet, and I have been able to work ever since."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents a box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

AUDITORS' REPORT

We have investigated the affairs of The Bank of Nova Scotia, and certify that the above Eighty-second General Statement is in our opinion properly drawn so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the condition of the Bank as at the close of business on December 31, 1913.

Our investigation included an examination of the general books of the Bank as kept at the office of the General Manager in Toronto, and an investigation and compilation of figures from certified returns made by its various branches. We further verified by count and examination the cash on hand at the offices in Halifax and Toronto, King Street, and inspected all securities owned by the Bank excepting those held at St. John and Havana. In verification of the securities held at these two branches certified statements were forwarded to us.

Go Armed Against Stomach Trouble

A Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet Carried in Your Purse or Vest Pocket Will Enable You to Always Keep Your Stomach in Line.

Don't let all sorts of stomach troubles, dyspepsia, gastritis, mal-nutrition, dysentery and vertigo make life a constant torture and an ultimate failure. The man who is going to succeed to-day must have his body, as well as his mind, in perfect working order. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are a necessity to the man who would always have his body in subjection to his will.

"I Eat When I Will, What I Want, Because After Each Meal I take a Little Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets furnish just those elements—pepsin and other ingredients—that the normal stomach secretes for the digestion of food. One or two of these tablets will completely digest the heartiest meal without any aid from the stomach. At the same time they tone up and invigorate the enfeebled stomach so that it is soon in a healthy condition again.

Prudent men always have a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia ablets on hand. They make digestion certain no matter what or how much is eaten. Do not think because your stomach is usually all right that you don't need them. The policeman carries a revolver not because he needs it all the time, but because when he does need it, he needs it right then. When you want relief from indigestion, you want relief at once. Be armed against stomach troubles with a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, 50 cents at any drug store. Successful men everywhere endorse them, and rely upon them.

VALLEY IS FLOODED.

People Are Saved by Warning From Solitary Horseman.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 16.—Had not a horseman made a wild ride of twenty miles before daybreak yesterday morning through the Stony River valley to Schell, W.Va., warning the people that the great storage dam of the West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co. had cracked and its crumbling was inevitable, there would probably have been great loss of life.

The telephone leading to the dam was out of commission, and the Paul Revere-like ride was the only means of warning the people, who immediately took to the hills and camped by bonfires. A few persons had previously known of the impending danger and had sought safety on the mountain-tops. The great dam, which was completed only a few months ago at a cost of a quarter million dollars, is a total wreck. At three o'clock yesterday morning the break began at both ends, and about eleven o'clock the front of the dam went out. The first break early in the morning tended to minimize the force of the greater break just before noon, yet a wall of water thirty feet high stretching between the narrow defile swept down, carrying everything before it.

At Piedmont the telephone girl, when asked about the flood, said: "I don't know anything about the flood. Water all around us; everything closed and the people gone to the hills. What's to become of me?" It is understood the girl was later taken taken out of the building in a boat.

STRIKERS SURRENDER.

Defenders of Trades Hall Yield to Superior Force.

JOHANNESBURG, Jan. 16.—Mr. Bain, secretary of the South African Federation of Trades, and his band of 300 comrades, who had barricaded themselves in the Trades' Hall here since Tuesday, surrendered unconditionally to the police yesterday. Mr. Bain and ten of the ringleaders were arrested and lodged in jail.

Previous to this Mr. Bain yesterday morning requested an interview with Gen. Louis Botha, Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa. The Government regarded this as an offer to surrender and replied that the control officer of the region under the provisions of martial law, had orders to arrest everyone in the hall and to use the most drastic measures necessary if, after warning had been given them, the occupants did not surrender without violence.

TO CHECK A COLD

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep the cough loose, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. G. M. Moore, Shortreed, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

Stole Railway Passes.

EDMONTON, Jan. 16.—Two men were arrested here yesterday in connection with the theft of over 100 G. T. P. railway passes. These were stolen from the mechanical department of the railroad, and those responsible are believed to have secured nearly $5,000 through selling the passes at reduced rates. They had all been properly signed and were good from Edmonton to Fort William.

Killed by Falling Wall.

BANGOR, Me., Jan. 16.—Two firemen, John Leonard and Walter Merrill, were killed by a falling wall while fighting a fire that destroyed the Bangor Opera House yesterday. Four other firemen were hurt, but are expected to recover. The property loss exceeded $75,000

Migrating Birds.

During many of the nights in September the inhabitants of the island of Helgoland are astir with big lanterns and a kind of enormous butterfly net, the former to attract and dazzle the migrating birds when they come to earth to rest, and the latter to secure them. Mr. Seebohm, the great authority on bird migration, states that he has known as many as 15,000 skylarks to be caught on the island in a single night. The migrating birds are always interesting to the ships that ply across the North sea and the Baltic. In September they settle on yard arm or on deck, rather tired, and the seamen catch flies and collect them into receptacles for the benefit of the birds.

Trial by Jury.

The establishment of the trial by jury runs back even prior to the time of Alfred the Great. He is said to have organized juries of twelve men as now in practice, but even earlier six Welsh and six Anglo-Saxon freemen acted as a jury where there was a dispute between Welsh and Saxons.

CHILDREN HATE OIL CALOMEL AND PILLS

"California Syrup of Figs" best for tender stomach, liver, bowels, —Tastes delicious

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on — castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old from of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

OUTLOOK BETTER.

Sir James' Condition Was Much Improved Yesterday.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16. — More hopeful conditions prevailed last night regarding the chances for the life of Sir James Whitney. While during the day the reports were conservative, a distinctly hopeful spirit breathed through the night bulletin, issued at nine p.m., which read as follows:

"Sir James Whitney had a more comfortable day and seems slightly better."

Dr. Pyne's attitude was entirely different from that of the dark days, when the life of his friend was in the balance. Although he admitted that the condition of Sir James was still exceedingly serious, the doctor was hopeful. "He has slept at frequent periods during the day, and the restless feeling has almost entirely disappeared. He still has periods of delirium, but they are neither so prolonged nor so strenuous," he said.

Another hopeful feature was the fact that Sir James had taken nourishment well throughout the day.

The fire started near the elevator and spread rapidly to the other storeys.

The firemen fought the fire on all flats at the same time, and after about a half hour got it under control.

About 25 employes will be out of work for some time.

"Resolved, that the Canadian Government be requested to institute an embargo upon the importation into Canada of American potatoes to protect the Canadian growers, and that the Canadian Government be further memoralized to remove this embargo when the U. Japanese Sailors Take Off Terror-Stricken Volcano Victims.

KAGOSHIMA, Japan, Jan. 16.—A pathetic scene was witnessed yesterday on the island of Sakura, when a group of famished, terror-stricken people were rescued from amid steaming lava and heated boulders by a boat from a Japanese warship.

A cruiser squadron arrived here yesterday and launches were at once lowered, whose crews searched the island, the contour of which has been entirely altered since the bursting into eruption on Jan. 12 of the volcano of Sakura, Jima.

The sailors did not risk landing, but made a systematic scrutiny.

Oceanic's Rough Trip.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—With her bridge torn away by a giant sea and her decks deep in snow, the steamship Oceanic of the White Star Line came in yesterday from Southampton, Cherbourg and Queenstown, 28 hours' late. She brought 382 passengers, 50 first cabin.

Wealth of Detail.

Former Governor Proctor Knott of Kentucky used to tell a story of a native who appeared as a witness in a mountain murder trial where Knott was an attorney. The mountaineer took the stand, chewing tobacco, and gave his name, his age and his place of residence. Then one of the lawyers asked him to describe his first meeting with a certain person who figured in the case.

"Well," drawled the native, "he rid through our place a-straddle of a dun colored critter a-blowin' of a fox huntin' horn and a-wearin' of a bearskin overcoat, and bit was hot weather. I axed him if the critter he were a-ridin' were a geldin' or a 'riginal, which he 'lowed it were and driv on."—Saturday Evening Post.

Clear Inference.

"Jim told me a rip-roaring joke that was played on some member of your club last evening. Were you there?"

"Yes, I was there! It was an abominable, farfetched"—

"O-oh! Jinx did not tell me that you were the man it was on."—Houston Post.

Ladies! Look Young Darken Grey Hair

Use the Old-time Sage Tea and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know

Grey hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns grey and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay grey! Look younger! Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Remedy." Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully and removes dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the grey hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural colour is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

OUTRAGES ON FARM.

Valuable Horse Slain With an Axe Near Chatham.

CHATHAM, Jan. 16.—High Constable Peters is busy making an investigation into depredations and outrages committed late Sunday night in Chatham Township.

A valuable driving horse, the property of Sid Coatsworth of the second concession is dying from the effects of being struck on the head by some weapon, presumably an axe, in the hands of an unknown person. Fourteen chickens belonging to Wm. Long, a neighbor, were despatched by apparently the same instrument, while the interior of the residence was literally turned upside down in the absence of the owner and a number of household articles carried off.

No clues to the identity of the miscreant have as yet been found.

Five Years For Arson.

CORNWALL, Jan. 16.—At the winter assizes here yesterday, Ephraim Racine, of Crysler, was found guilty of arson and sentenced by Justice Leitch to five years in Kingston Penitentiary. Racine was charged with setting fire to buildings on the farm of one Benoit, near Crysler, on the night of Oct. 24 last, or with causing the fire to be set by hiring a 17-year-old boy named Henry Dubaime to do the deed.

Bull Fights In Maisonneuve.

MONTREAL, Jan. 16.—Although the City Council of Maisonneuve on Wednesday night agreed to permit bull fights there, at a tax of $100 a day, officials of the S.P.C.A. declared yesterday that they would move against any such exhibitions.

The promoters say the bull will not be put to death, and that some forty Spanish men and women will give an exhibition of singing and dancing.

French Sailors Best Rowers.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

A BOY'S MOMENT OF FAME.

When Young Walter Scott Was Praised by Robert Burns.

From the time he was six Walter Scott read ravenously, and it was through his wide reading that when only fifteen he became for a few moments the center of a group of learned men. It was when the poet Burns visited Edinburgh and had shown great interest in a picture of a soldier lying dead in the snow with a dog keeping patient watch beside him.

Beneath the picture were some beautiful lines, but neither Burns nor any of those learned men knew their author until young Walter Scott, who happened to be present, whispered that they were by Langhorne.

Then Burns turned to him, with glowing eyes, and said, "It is no common course of reading that has taught you this," adding to his friends, "This lad will be heard of yet."

How proud the lad felt! How wistfully joyful in the warmth of the great poet's praise and then how suddenly forgotten when only a few days later Robert Burns passed him in the street without a glance! Scott's moment of fame had vanished.—Ariadne Gilbert in St. Nicholas.

Boys and Bonfires.

The most fun a boy can have is at a barn fire.

The freckled boy says you call them barn fires because you build them near barns. Boys usually build them after elections in the fall, but any time when you feel bully is a good time. • • • Sticks of wood do not seem so heavy when you are carrying them to a bonfire as when you are bringing them in for the hired girl. Splinters don't hurt so much either. The freckled boy says the reason is because you are having fun. Why, he ran a long sliver under his nail one night at a bonfire and he never noticed it until school time the next morning. Then it hurt him terribly. He had to stay out of school all day, and he could not do his chores. Part of the day he carried his arm in a sling.—"Auburn and Freckles."

Flowers are the terrestrial stars that bring down heaven to earth and carry up our thoughts from earth to heaven. the poetry of the Creator written in beauty and fragrance.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a Glass of Salts to flush kidneys if bladder bothers you

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly, backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

UNCLE OF LOCAL MAN DIES AS PAUPER BUT LEAVES BEHIND ESTATE OF $203,963

Dudley Jardine, Whose Nephew Lives at 509 King Street, City, Lived for Years in the Direst Apparent Poverty.

$500 FOR LOCAL MAN

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 16.—Dudly Jardine, late uncle, in Peterborough, of Albert Dudley Jardine, of No. 500 King Street, of that Canadian City, who lived in the direst of apparent poverty,t at a lodging house at No. 81, Bowery, under the name of William Smith, and who, when he passed away in the Gouverneur Hospital, on February 9th, 1913, came pretty near being buried as a pauper in the Potter's Field, here, when by the breaking open of an old trunk by the authorities, his identity was established, left an estate of $203,963.13, according to an appraisal of his estate by one of the State Transfer Tax Appraisers, which report is to-day on file here in the office of the Clerk of the Surrogate Court.

Just why Mr. Jardine starved himself, went in old patched-up clothes, shoes, etc., and lived on an income of about $1.25 a week, which included his room rent, which money he earned by doing any kind of work, appears to be a mystery.

According to the papers on file here on his estate, the following were found in his trunk, when opened by the police authorities to see if they could establish his identity, so that a relative or friend could bury him and thus save the State the expense from removing his body from the morgue to Potter's Field.

A bank book, showing a deposit of $2,515.88 in the United States Mortgage and Trust Co.; 400 shares of Anaconda Mining Co., $14,900.00; 100 shares of Union Pacific, preferred, $8,975.00; 50 shares of Republic Iron and Steel, preferred, $4,387.50; 50 shares of Union Pacific, $8,000; 400 shares of American Smelting and Refining Co., common, $28,900; 500 shares of United States Steel, common, $32,125; 100 shares of Atchison Topeka and Sante Fe, common, $10,337.50; a Peoria and Eastern first-common bond, $2,625; a Reading Co. P. and R. Co., general gold bond $1,940; a Southern Pacific 4s Central Pacific collateral bond, $4,943.75, a Toledo, Peoria and Western 1s, 4, bond, $5,407.50 worth of jewellery, and the rest represents interest on the securities.

Along with the securities, bank books, jewelry, etc., was found a will, executed May 28, 1889, which directed his estate to be distributed among the following, who receive as follows, because of expenses of $89,202.18 charged up against the estate, making the net $114,760.95:

Cornelius B. Gold, a friend, $1,000.

Albert Dudley Jardine, a nephew, No. 509 King Street, Peterborough, Ont., $500.

Harriet Jardine, of Cincinnati, O., Ekl Jardine, of Norwood, O., and Emily Jardine, both of New Jersey, four nieces, each $125.

Annie J. DeVoe, a niece, of Elmhurst, L. I., $17,618.

The sum of $17,618.90 to George E. Hogg, a nephew, of No. 3900 Broadway here.

The sum of $11,276.10 each to the Prison Association; the Women's Branch of the Mission and Tract Society, the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, the Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church, and the New York P. E. Mission Society.

Richard Hamilton, a cashier of the Bowery Savings Bank, and Cornelius B. Gould, of No. 25 Broad street here, he named as the executors, with instructions that each receive, outside of the usual commissions for acting as the executors, the sum of $1,000.

As the will directed that his body be buried in Trinity Church here besides the body of his father, George Jardine, it was so done, and was given a funeral costing $250.

Mr. Jardine was the son of an organ manufacturer and inherited only a few hundred dollars from his father. It is said that he became estranged from his family over a woman, some 30 years ago. Whether he was ever married or not could not be learned.

CHARGE WAS DISMISSED IN POLICE COURT

John Burns Charged With Indecent Assault, Found "Not Guilty" by Magistrate

BLACKLISTERS FINED

In this morning's police court, John Burns came before Magistrate Dumble charged with indecent assault upon an East City girl. In the witness box this morning the girl, who was the Crown's chief witness, did not adhere to the story she gave to the police. She answered the Crown's questions reluctantly, and the Magistrate said in giving judgment, that he did not put any faith in the veracity of her testimony. However, as the Crown's case was built upon her testimony, and as she refused to incriminate Burns, the Magistrate dismissed the charge against him.

Mr. Joseph Wearing conducted the prosecution and Mr. G. N. Gordon the defence.

The girl herself was the only witness examined. She said that on the 31st of December, about 8 o'clock, she met Burns and another man on Hunter Street. She went with Burns to his home.

"Was there anybody else there?" asked Mr. Wearing.

"No."

"How long did you stay there?"

"A short time."

"Did he attempt to take any improper liberties with you there."

"That's my affair. I've answered all the questions I'm going to."

In spite of this emphatic announcement, the witness continued to respond to Mr. Wearing's questions. She said that one of the men went to hire a cutter.

"Did you know that he went to get a cutter?"

"Yes. I thought they were going to drive me home."

"Did you go straight home?"

"No. We went out into the country."

Witness said that there were two men in the cutter with her. They had some liquor and all three partook of it freely. The witness got out of the cutter and wanted to walk home. Prisoner got out too and helped her over a fence.

Witness denied that anything out of the way had occured.

"Did the prisoners take any liberties with you."

"No."

The witness answered a few more questions and then in a puzzled tone explained:

"What's that you are writing? I guess it's a book you're writing."

Her remark was caused by her observance of the Magistrate taking down the evidence.

Witness then told how she cried out because of the cold, and some other people came on the scene. She went out and got in the cutter, whereupon the horse started off at breakneck speed. It ran away, throwing her out, but in spite of her injuries, she managed to reach her home.

"Did Burns do anything to you to which you objected?" asked Mr. Gordon.

"No."

The Magistrate dismissed the case, remarking that no jury would make a conviction on the evidence.

Burns was then charged with being drunk while on the black list on the morning of January 1st. He pleaded 'guilty' and was assessed $20 and costs, amounting in all to $22.75.

Another local young man was charged with a like offence. He was fined $10 and costs, ($13.75.)

PRIVATE BILL MAY ALTER THE HYDRO MATTER

Council Discussed It Last Night —Turned Down Proposal Regarding Government by Commission

ALD. GORDON'S PROPOSITION

The second Council meeting of the week was held last night, when the City Fathers assembled in Committee of the Whole. Mayor Buller presided and Ald. Langford was the only absent member.

His Worship stated that the purpose of the meeting was to consider the City's legislation which is to be presented to the Private Bills Committee of the Ontario Legislature. It was proposed that one clause deal with the City's Hydro-Electric problem. Another would change the name Water Commission to Public Utilities Commission and the third aimed at making the Mayor a member of that Commission.

Ald. Duncan: "I would be in favour of having the Mayor on the Water Commission, but it might create a deadlock on a vote.

Ald. Anderson—"I'm opposed to having the Mayor on it. The Commissioners are elected by the people to take charge of that work and I don't think it would be wise to interfere with it in any way. If the number does not suit the people they can have it enlarged."

Ald. Gordon—"I am opposed to it also."

Ald. Green—"For another year it would be wise to let it remain just as it is. Regarding the taking over of the Peterborough Light and Power plant we should ask for as few changes as possible. We want to get whatever we go after. Let us get what we particularly need.

Ald. Johnston—"I'm in favour of having a conference with Hon. Adam Beck before we go on with the power matter."

Ald. Gordon—"He won't be back in time."

Mayor Buller—"Some people feel that so much money is handled by the Water Commission that the Council should have a representative on it.

Ald. Anderson—"As a Council we would not want our affairs interfered with."

It was decided to take no action in this matter for the present.

To Ask for New Name.

Moved by Ald. Johnston, seconded by Ald. Anderson, that a clause be included in the City's Bill, asking that the Water Commisaion be changed to the Peterborough Public Utilities Commission.

Some one remarked that the new name was rather unwieldy.

Ald. Johnston—"Listen to the tone it gives."

The press was requested not to publish the discussion of the clause pertaining to Hydro-Electric.

A NARROW ESCAPE

Frederick Curtis and family had a narow escape from asphixation by coal gas this morning. The family, who reside near Hurleyville, in the south end of the city, were awakened by the cries of an infant. Mrs. Curtis awoke to find the house full of coal gas and several members of the family in a semi-conscious condition. Dr Scott was summoned and restoratives were applied. The family consists of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis, two children and one brother.

HON. SENATOR GEO. A. COX

Who Died This Morning in Toronto

DEATH OF ONE OF CITY'S MOST FAMOUS SONS, THE HON. SENATOR COX

Hon. George Albertus Cox, senator, financier, capitalist, and public-spirited citizen, and man of affairs, died at his residence, 439 Sherbourne street, Toronto, this morning. It is known that for some time he has been in broken health, and the end was not unexpected. He has lived a long strenuous and busy life, and rest, was largely to him a mere word rather than an experience. The inevitable collapse came, and a busy and fruitful life is ended. Senator Cox has lived a long and active life. His activities were so multiplex and so widely distributed that a minute story of his life would require a volume. He is so well known in Peterborough, with whose substantial advancement he has been so intimately associated, that a mere sketch of the salient points of his life and activities will recall personal memories of a distinguished citizen of Peterborough.

Senator Cox, or "George A.," as he is familiarly known here, was of English descent, his family having come to the United States from England in 1810. In 1818 the family removed to Canada, first taking up land in Prince Edward and, later, in Northumberland County. He was the son of E. W. Cox, by his wife, Jane Tanner, and was born in Colborne, May 7, 1840, and if he had lived till next May, would have been 74 years of age. He received his elementary education in that village, and began his business life as an operator in the employ of the Montreal Telegraph Company in that place.

After two years in that capacity he came to Peterborough — in the month of May, 1858, at the age of eighteen years, and thus begun his thirty years' residence of Peterborough, to whose substantial growth and prosperity he so largely contributed, and during his life and after his removal he took an active interest in its prosperity and progress; and we have to thank Mr. Cox largely for the presence amongst of, notably, two of our most important industries. To his influence in the financial and business world, and to his personal interest and activity is largely due the establishment in Peterborough of the Canadian General Electric Company and the Quaker Oats Company. He was also largely interested in other local industries and institutions.

On his arrival and establishment in Peterborough over a half a century ago, he speedily demonstrated his forceful individuality and threw himself heartily into the activities of the commercial and municipal life of Peterborough. For no fewer than seven years he was mayor of the city. He won this position three times by contests, and was returned four times by acclamation.

In 1871 Mr. Cox entered the larger field of politics and contested the representation of the riding of West Peterborough, with the late W. H. Scott, for the Legislature. He won, but the election was set aside, and in the following year he was defeated by Mr. Scott by the narrow, if possible majority, of one. In the general election of 1887, he contested West Peterborough for the House of Commons, with the late James Stevenson, a warm personal friend, fellow church member, and business associate. He was unsuccessful, but by the slender margin of only 16. In 1896, during the vice-regency of Lord Aberdeen, he was made a senator, a position which he, of course, occupied at the time of his death.

Perhaps the most notable event in Mr. Cox's life in relation to Peterborough's material development and the improvement of the railway service of the Midland District, was his association with the revival of the moribund Midland Railway. Most of the older of our citizens remember the condition of paralysis the railway was in. But Mr. Cox took hold with both hands and speedily clothed the dry bones of the Midland with flesh. He became president of the railway and made Peterborough the head office for several years. During Mr. Cox's presidency a great amalgamation took place. The Grand Junction, the Whitby and Port Hope, and also the Toronto and Nipissing railways were consolidated, the system thus created being sold later to the Grand Trunk. In 1881 he was one of the Howland Syndicate that offered to build the Canadian Pacific Railway. By this time Mr. Cox had become a prominent figure in the financial world and world of affairs. In 1884 he organized and became the first president of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company, and later organized the Toronto Real Estate Investment Company, which still has its offices and is doing a profitable business in Peterborough. In 1885 he became a director of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, vice-president in 1888, and in 1890 became president of that institution, retiring from that important position a few years ago, but retaining his directorship to the time of his death. He has been prominently identified with the Canada Life Assurance Company since 1861, occupying the position of president for many years. He was also president of the Western Fire and Marine Insurance Company, and was one of the first directors of the Toronto Trusts Company, organized in 1884. He was also associated with a large number of financial and industrial enterprises.

He was one of he ablest Canadian financiers of the century, and his name was a synonym for all that was far seeing, sane and safe in the exploitation of financial and fiduciary enterprises.

His influence in helping Peterborough is remembered with gratitude. The possession of Hazel Brae Barnado Home in the north of the city—now known as the Margaret Cox Home for Girls, is due to Mr. Cox's generosity. In speaking of Mr. Cox's business relations one naturally associates his personal relations with those who served his interests. He was quick to note and recognize merit; and it stands to his credit that in his rise in the world he took with him those in his employ — some of the most prominent figures in the financial world of Canada at the present time, began their career as employees of Mr. Cox, or humble associates with him in business enterprises. He habitually and liberally remembered less fortunate family relatives, who were helped to share substantially his financial prosperity.

In politics Mr. Cox was a Liberal, and in religion a Methodist, and a most liberal supporter of its interests. While in Peterborough he was a member of the Charlotte Street Church, to the promotion of whose welfare he was loyal to the end, the project of buildingsa new church being made more feasible by Mr. Cox's substantial interest in the undertaking. He was also a good friend to the educational interests of the church of his choice. In conjunction with the late Dr. Potts he was for years bursar of Victoria University, in which institution he established a gold medal in Natural Science and a bursary in Theology. He was for a time president of the Ladies' College, Whitby. He was an earnest and active advocate of temperance. He was also a member of the council of the Toronto Branch of the Evangelical Alliance, one of the founders of the Dominion Sanitarium and a vice-president of the Ontario Prohibition Alliance, and in a thousand ways was associated with the progress of Moral Reform.

In 1862 Mr. Cox was united in marriage to Margaret Young, daughter of the late Daniel Hapkins, of Peterborough, who died on Jan. 22, 1905. To this union were born five children, Mrs. A. L. Davis, Fred W. Cox, deceased; E. W. Cox, president of the Canadian Life Company; Mrs. A. E. Ames, and Herbert C. Cox, all at present residing in Toronto.

In 1888 Mr. Cox removed to Toronto, after a residence of thirty years in Peterborough, occupying a fine residence on Sherbourne street. Mr. Cox took his his second wife, Miss Stirling, of Toronto, who survives him.

The date of the funeral has been fixed for Monday morning, January 19th.

A POWERFUL PETITION FOR A POLICE WOMAN

COUNCIL HANDS SKATING RINK TO "BIG BROTHERS"

Some of the Members Offer Personal Subscriptions Toward the Cost—City Fathers Decide to Pass Up the Rink Idea

MAY BE A RINK YET

Alderman Gordon—$10.

Alderman Green—Money and use of lot.

Alderman Duffus—$25.

"The Lord loveth a cheerful giver," said Alderman Johnston, when the first of these donations was volunteered for a public skating rink.

Alderman Duncan—I was at a place to-day where they had no fire and no wood. Grants to homes of that kind would be more useful I think.

Mayor Buller had read a letter from C. E. Jamieson, secretary-treasurer of the Big Brothers' Club, in which regret was expressed that the Council had decided not to open a free skating rink. The club offered $25 toward the expenses of a riuk. The Big Brothers have tried to get slides for children but unsuccessfully, and they desire to see something done in the way of a free rink.

Alderman Green—I have a suitable lot in the west ward that I will offer for a free rink and I will subscribe toward the expenses, but I will vote against the spending of one dollar of the public money for skating rink purposes.

Alderman Gordon said he would contribute $10 toward the cost of a rink. He suggested that the Big Brothers take the responsibility of the rink.

Alderman Duffus—I'm in favour of a free rink even if the city has to spend some money. I would like to see one or two rinks, and one at any rate which we could try as an experiment. I think there should be some provision made for the recreation of children many of whom may not be able to pay for skating just now. I would be willing to give $25 toward a free rink.

Mayor Buller—He's got you beat Alderman Gordon.

Alderman Duffus—I would like to see one somewhere near the boundary of the West and South Wards. There is no ice near that locality, whereas other sections of the city are fairly well provided.

Alderman Anderson said he considered that some provision should be made for sleigh-riding. The children have not much freedom on the hills in the city.

Alderman Duncan mentioned his visit to a fireless home, and touched upon a point weighttier than free skating.

Alderman Green—I think we should settle this. The people did not elect us to talk about rinks.

Aldrman Johnston moved, seconded by Alderman Anderson, that the offer of Lt.-Col. Clegg for the use of the parade grounds in Central Park be accepted, that the public rink be under the control of the Big Brothers' Club, and that it be maintained by the club and subscriptions. Carried.

STILL HOLDING OUT

Special Wire to The Examiner:

SUMMERDALE, N.Y., Jan. 16.—Edward Beardsley is still barricaded in his house with nine children starving with him, while one hundred deputy sheriffs are guarding approaches to the place. This morning he wounded three more deputies when they attempted to rush the place. One died as a result of yesterday's wounds.

Will Be Presented to the Police Commissioners by the Women's Council on Saturday Afternoon —Endorsed by Prominent Associations.

REQUEST LARGELY SIGNED

A delegation from the Moral Reform Committee of the Women's Council of Peterborough will wait upon the Police Commissioners on Saturday afternoon with a strong appeal for the appointment of a Police Woman in this City.

Their petition is strengthened by the endorsements of the clergy and teachers, nurses and doctors, and practically all the business men of Peterborough. It is signed by five-sixths of the local women voters, or by practically all who were approached. The other one-sixth represents those who were out of the City or not at home when calls were made by members of the committee.

When the ladies meet the Commissioners to-morrow they will bear with them the fruits of an educational campaign which they have conducted for months. Through their efforts prominent speakers have addressed public meetings and have emphasized the need of a police woman and the desirability of such an appointment in Peterborough. Apparently, no a stone has been left unturned in the preparation of a strong case for the consideration of the Commissioners. The following are a e few of the expressions of approval which strengthen the hands of the Women's Council:

From Ministerial Association.

To the Moral Reform Committee of the Women's Council of Peterborough.

Dear Madam,—The following resolution was passed unanimously at a meeting of the Ministerial Association, this morning:

"That in view of the present conditions of the City the police Commissioners are urged to increase the number of our police force and that the Women's Council be upheld in their desire to have a police woman as part of the permanent force."

J. N. Clarry, Secretary.

Peterborough, Dec. 19th, 1913.

From Medical Society.

To the Secretary of the Women's Council.

Dear Madam,—I have been requested by the members of the Peterborough Medical Society, to tell you that at their meetings held last night, a motion was put, and carried unanimously "that the Peterborough Medical Society heartily endorses the Women's Council in their efforts towards the appointment of a Woman Police Officer in this City."

G. B. Mann,

Secretary to Medical Society.

From Teachers' Club.

To the Convener of the Moral Reform Committee of the Local Council of Women.

The following resolution was passed by the Teachers' Club at their meeting held on January 14th, 1914:

Resolved that the Secretary of the Teachers' Club consisting of the male members of the staff of the Public Schools, Normal School, City, and County Inspectors, and Collegiate Institute write to the Convener of the Women's Council, stating that we, as a Club, are thoroughly in sympathy with the efforts of the Women's Council to secure, for reasons set forth in their petition to the Police Commissioners, to secure the services of a Police Woman for this City, also that in our opinion the Police force is not at all adequate in number to the needs of this City.

D. A. McKay,

Secretary to the Teachers' Club.

THE WORK OF DR. GRENFELL

The story of Dr. Grenfell's work is now pretty well known to our readers. The side of it that appeals to all is its heroisms, its splendid sacrifices for the relief of a people that before he though tof them, were practically neglected. Here is what he himself says of that life so full of hardships, hairbreadth escapes, and splendid battles against wrong: "It's really a splendid life. You know the feeling you had at school going for a run in a jersey and shorts well above the knee. That's the feeling I have in Labrador." Mr. Grenfell is a dynamic man, and he is in a world which badly wanted energy. He is always at it, and always happy in it. Try and make him still happier by your gift to his work. Send it in at once to the office of this paper.

WIRELESS IN CANADA.

A map of the Wireless Telegraph coast stations in the Dominion of Canada, with the report of the Department of the Naval Service, shows that there are forty-three wireless stations situated in the Dominion as follows: In British Columbia: Digby Island, Dead Tree Island, Ikeda Head, Triangle Island, Cape Lazo, Pacheno Point, Gouzales Hill and Port Grey—10. In Manitoba, Le Paz and Port Nelson—2. In Ontario—Port Arthur, Sault Ste. Marie, Tobermory, Midland, Toronto, Point Edward, Port Burwell, Kingston—8. In Quebec—Montreal, Three Rivers, Quebec, Grosse Isle, Father Point, Fame Point, Clark's City, Harrington, Point Amour and Belle Isle—10. In Anticosti, Heath Point—1. In New Brunswick, Partridge Island—1. In Nova Scotia, Cape Sable, Camperdown, Pictou, Cape Bear, North Sidney, Glace Bay, Sable Island and Grindstone Island—8. In Newfoundland there are wireless stations at Cape Race, Cape Ray and Port Rich—3. This makes a total of forty wireless stations in Canada, and counting Newfoundland, 43. The importance of these wireless stations cannot be gainsaid, nor the immeasurable life saving value of wireless generally. A present and notable instance of the value of wireless, in addition to the very many on record, is to be found in the experience of the steamer Cobequid, which struck by a storm, was rendered helpless. Her wireless sent out signals of distress, and help from more fortunate vessels went to her, and her crew and passengers of over 100 souls, who were doomed to certain and lingering death, were saved alive. Incidentally it might be remembered that Canada was the first country in the world to officially instal a wireless station, after Marconi's wonderful discovery was proved practicable.

PROSTITUTING THE SENATE.

In the meagre programme of legislation proposed in the Speech from the Throne the Borden Government includes the party prostitution of the Senate. It is proposed to give the Conservative party a majority in the Senate, by creating new senators from the West. To show how little the government cares for the representation of the West in Parliament, it needs only to be mentioned that redistribution which would give the West fifteen or twenty additional representatives in the popular body, the House of Commons, is delayed two years beyond the proper time. But to gain a party advantage the Senate which is not truly representati e in the popular sense, is to be redistributed, if not reformed.

It is argued that the Senate as at present constituted — with a Liberal majority—negatives legislation conceived by a Conservative Government and enacted by a Parliament with a large Conservative majority. The Senate was intended to be a check upon hasty and ill-considered legislation passed by the Commons. In taking an attitude towards certain bills like the "emergency" Naval Aid Bill, the Highways Aid Bill, and the Agricultural Aid Bill, the Senate sought to protect the interests of the people. No one can complain that the amendments the Senate insisted upon to justify its approval of these bills as passed by the Commons, contravened constitutional principles as did the bills themselves. The Senate did not condemn the principles of the bills, but only the unconstitutional and injurious means of giving them effect. Without sacrificing any principle the House of Commons could have concurred in the Senate amendments which were insisted upon as a protection of the interests of the country.

If some great principle were menaced; if the Senate were, which it is not, gratuitously obstructive, then the proposed action of the Borden Government would approximate the defensible. The action proposed would, however, constitute an evil precedent which, followed by a succeeding government, would create revolutionary conditions. The proposed action is not good politics either; the triunph of the moment, which it might bring to the party, would possibly be turned against it in the future. The present government will not always retain power, and the time will come when a Conservative partizan Senate may neutralize legislation passed by a Liberal Government. Then if a Liberal Governmnt should take advantage of the precedent established by the Borden Governmnt, more senators of the predominant brand would be created. Thus we should have created impossible conditions, and the desire for mere party triumph such as is involved in the present proposal, would have established conditions of mischievous confusion. If we are to have government of the pople we must have legislation so devised, sp palpably in the interests of the people, so clearly in line with constitutional requirements that no Senate can have any excuse for withholding sanction. If the Borden Government wants to have its Agricultural Aid Bill or its Highways Bill pass, it must provide that the funds distributed under it shall not be used as means of promoting party advantage and promoting party support. If it had done that in respect of the two bills in question, both would now have been laws. Nobody, not even the Senate, opposed the principles of the bills, only their evil application.

MR. AMES PREPARING — WHAT FOR?

Mr. Ames, M.P., in an address before the Canadian Club of St. John, said that Canada could not for many years—and then only at an enormously increased cost—build a "battleship" in the Dominion. All authorities, we believe, do not agree with Mr. Ames. A practical English builder not long ago declared that the construction of a battleship at Montreal was quite feasible. However, it is not necessary to argue that point. Nobody has seriously proposed to build battleships at once in Canada. What has been proposed is the construction of several large cruisers of a type approved by the British Admiralty—a type, by the way, which some of the highest naval authorities have regarded as of more value than "Dreadnoughts." That these ships can be built in Canada at a moderate advance on the cost of construction in British dockyards. Indeed Mr. Ames admits as much. He said:

> "There were lesser ships which Canada could be equipped to build, and if the Admiralty were prepared to place orders in Canada for some ships of the character which we could build we may hope to see ship-building established here in the not very distant future."

But why wait for the Admiralty to give orders for the building of such ships in Canada at the expense of the British ratepayer? That may be a good enough policy for a Canadian Government which has to fry to please its Nationalist members. But that was not the Laurier way. The Laurier Government took steps for the construction of such ships in Canadian shipyards at the cost of the Canadian people. Before the Laurier Government resigned they received the tenders of several first class British builders, who were prepared to build the vesels in Canada. These tenders were on file in the departments when the change of Government took place. If the Borden Government had not, under the dictation of th ir anti-naval Nationalist wing, rejec d the tenders, the ship would not be far advanced in construction. I- Mr. Ames' address intended to prepare the way now for the adoption of the much abused Laurier policy of naval shipbuilding?

Mr. Ames apparently discussed the ship question on lines which he thought were non-political. But he was, to say the least, on the danger line. The Canadian clubs throughout Canada are doing god work. They will, however, have to be careful that they do not allow themselves to become medium for the discussion, directly or indirectly, of the questions upon which party lines are formed in our country. The exclusion of such questions may sometimes deprive us of the privilege of hearing gentlemen who could discuss the questions in a very interesting and perhaps inoffensive manner. But these can easily find other opportunities for reaching the public without the risk of introducing elements of discord into the Canadian club.—Montreal Telegraph.

SAFETY FIRST ON THE G. T. R.

Safety Committee of the Grand Trunk holds a Meeting

The Safety Committee, which is the executive body in charge of the Safety First Movement on the Grand Trunk, held its first meeting in the Board of Directors' room, General Offices, Montreal, January 12th, at 10 a.m. The following members were present:

Mr. H. G. Kelley, Vice-President, Chairman.
Mr. U. E. Gillen, General Supt., Chicago.
Mr. H. E. Whittenberger, General Supt., Toronto.
Mr. C. G. Bowker, General Supt., Montreal.
Mr. W. D. Robb, Supt. of Motive Power, Montreal.
Mr. H. F. Safford, Chief Engineer, Montreal.
Mr. M. S. Blaiklock, Engineer, Maintenance of Way.
Mr. T. W. R. McRae, Claims Agent, Montreal.
Mr. Geo. Bradshaw, Safety Engineer, Secretary.

This is the first meeting of the committee since the organization of the Safety Movement. The report read by the secretary disclosed the fact that twenty-four Division, Shop and Technical Safety Committees have been organized on the System with a membership of about six hundred. During the month of December, the members of these committees actually corrected five hundred unsafe physical conditions which might perhaps have caused injury, and cautioned employees against unsafe methods, and practices in about four hundred and eighty cases. The General Safety Committee passed upon a number of important recommendations submitted by the local committees.

The report of the Secretary, which was read at this meeting, showed the interesting fact that since the inauguration of the Safety Movement on the Grand Trunk on August 15th, 1913, injuries to employees have been reduced to the extent of 11.5 p.c. and that during the same period fatal injuries to employees on duty have been decreased 50 p.c., as compared with the same period of 1912. Traffic was heavier in the latter period than in the former.

The officers and employees of the Grand Trunk are taking a keen personal interest in correcting unsafe conditions and practices, and to this interest is due the favourable record above cited, which is one of the most remarkable that has ever been achieved by the Safety Movement on any railway, and especially so in view of the short time in which the movement has been in force.

Some Useful Suggestions To Motorists As To Tyres

Two factors contribute to the life of a pneumatic automobile tyre: the first is a tyre well made and of good material: the second is the care necessary to get from this tyre the mileage which its maker has already done all he can to make maximum. The tyre is purchased. The care needn't be purchased: it is available to every motorist who cares to apply it. And it pays, according to F. A. Henderson, manager of the adjusting department of one of the large tyre companies.

"All-important is the air pressure carried," said he last week. "It is just as important as the tyre containing it. It preserves the body of the tyre—its fabric. Next in importance is the care of the tread—the tyre's protection. These two precautions prevent the more common cause of tyre trouble. Having observed them and made maximum mileage a possibility, the motorist will wish to go further and make it a certainty.

"The most damaging wear to which a tyre can be subject is what it receives when used on a wheel that is not running parallel to its mate, a condition known as 'wheels out of true.' An accident, improper adjustment of steering apparatus, or even hitting the kerbstone diagonally, may throw the wheels out of line so that they point inward or outward, as the case may be, instead of paralleling each other along the road. Tyres used on wheels in this condition instead of rolling over the ground with a minimum of friction as they should are compelled to slide over the ground diagonally, grinding off the rubber from the tread as effectively as would an emery wheel.

"The remedy for this trouble is obvious; straighten the wheels. Any garage man can do it. Before beginning a trip the motorist usually inspects the machine to see that everything is in good shape. Extending this inspection to the wheels will quickly detect any such condition. This can be tested approximately by adjusting one of the front wheels so that when you kneel down in front of it and sight back it just lines up with the rear wheel on the same side. The other front wheel then ought to line up with the corresponding rear wheel. If it doesn't the wheels aren't true. A more exact method is measuring with a tape line the distance from the inside of the rim on the wheel on one side to the inside of the rim on the wheel on the other side, using points at a distance from the ground equal to the height of the hub. The distance in front of the axle ought to equal the distance behind. A demountable rim put on crooked or the end of an axle bent causing the wheel to wobble will wear off the thread too rapidly.

"A peculiar property of rubber is that it can easily be ground or filed while if simply rolled over even a rough surface—the treatment a tyre ought to receive when in service—it will last almost indefinitely. For this reason suddenly locking the brakes and sliding or skidding the tyres will in a few feet wear them as much at one place as several hundred miles of service. It doesn't pay to lock the brakes, anyway, for they are most effective and stop the car most quickly when the wheels instead of sliding still grip the road. It is also well frequently to make sure that both brakes are binding equally, for if they aren't the wheel with the tighter band is bound to wear out its tyre too soon.

"There are two kinds of roads it pays especially to avoid. One is the road with deep ruts. The sides of the ruts chafe the tyre's side walls and lay bare the fabric. The other is the wet or muddy road over which the last night's frost has formed a thin crust of ice. The car breaks through the crust, and the sharp edges of the ice badly lacerate the side walls. Similarly, driving in car tracks or against kerbs centres the wear on the side of the tyre.

"Sometimes the fender becomes loose so that as the car passes over bumps it drops down and gouges into the tyre. This soon cuts the tyre. Make sure nothing touches the tyres as they revolve."

Many motor truck owners have the idea that there is no limit to the ability of a solid tyre to bear loads, and so pile their cars high with "cargo" without any regard for their tyres. Solid tyres, however, are as sensitive to overloading as pneumatics, and R. G. Harris, head of the motor tyre department of another large tyre company, sounds a warning against the ause.

"The immediate result of overloading a solid tyre," he said, "is the appearance of a bulge, called a 'traction wave,' just in front of the point of contact between tyre and street. This wave with the enormous weight at the back of it works through to the very base of the tyre. No tyres are made of pure rubber. The gum must be compounded with chemicals to give the desired wear resisting qualities. The traction wave lessens the cohesive power of the compound, and if not guarded against eventually will tear the tyre away from the steel rim. Not only does the wave ruin the tire, but it also affects the truck as though it were going up hill, involving a constant loss of power.

"Several methods of preventing the separation of the tyre from the channel have been devised. One is that of a hard rubber base vulcanised into the channel. The channel has a saw-tooth base, and the hard rubber filling these saw teeth, and vulcanised into them, becomes an integral part of the channel base. To this hard rubber in turn is vulcanised the tread. A second method involves the use of a metal sub-base to which is dovetailed and vulcanised a hard rubber base. To this hard base the tread is united. No channel is used on this type, but side abrasion is prevented by an intermediate band projecting out on each side. The side wire tyre is a third preventive of tread separation. Two endless retaining wires with flat sides are sprung over the edge of the rim, and engage the ends of the cross wires, which are flat on the upper side. Whether or not tread separtioan is prevented, however, overloading remains injurious to the tyre."

Scene of Frightful Volcanic Disaster at Sakurashima and Kagoshima in Japan—Reports from Japan indicate a tremendous loss of life when the Sakurashima volcano burst. The city of Kagoshima, with 64,000 population, was overwhelmed, and the loss of life may exceed 100,000. While the discharge from the volcano is abating, much damage has been done in the south of Japan, and the dreadful famine in Northern Japan makes the situation even more appalling.

St. Andrew's Sunday School Wants Improved Accommodation

The Conclusion of the Annual Meeting Will See the Appointment of a Committee Who Will be Charged With the Responsibility of Investigating the Need---Speech From the Choir Leader.

The first instalment of the annual meeting of St. Andrew's Church was held last evening. This year the annual meeting will be held in two sections in accordance with a resolution that was adopted at the annual meeting of last year. The last and most important half of the meeting will be held on Thursday evening next when the reports of the sessional and managerial boards will be received. The officers for the ensuing year will also be elected on that occasion and steps may be taken to secure legislation authorizing the sale of church property.

At last night's meeting, Rev. James Rollins was elected to the position of chairman and Mr. John McClelland as secretary. There was a fairly large attendance with a majority of ladies. The reception of reports and the disposal thereof comprised the business of the meeting.

The First Report.

The first report received was that of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society. Meetings were held every month except during the summer months, with an average attendance of twenty-seven members. The sessions were instructive and interesting. A bale of clothing valued at fifty dollars together with a sum of money, was sent to the western mission field. The treasurer's report concerning the society was satisfactory and showed a balance in favour of the organization.

A Substantial Balance.

The Young Women's Mission Band finished the year with a balance of over ninety dollars. A number of educative addresses featured the proceedings of the Band throughout the year.

The Willing Workers.

Twelve meetings were held by the Willing Workers Band during the year. The organization has a membership of thirty-five and the average attendance throughout the year was fifteen. The programmes were of a missionary character. A balance remains in the bank of fifteen dollars and twenty-five cents.

Missionary Society.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society held monthly meetings with an average attendance of fourteen. The member hip totals twenty-three. A substantial balance remains in the bank.

Accommodation Wanted.

Progressiveness has been the watchword of the Sunday school department of St. Andrew's Church. The report was presented by Mr. Richard Lees, superintendent of the Sunday school. Mr. Lees pointed out the need for improved accommodation. He suggested that a committee be appointed to look into the matter and report back to the congregation. The suggestion was acted upon later on in the meeting. The average attendance for the Sunday school is one hundred and sixty.

Ladies' Bible Class.

The Young Ladies' Bible class finished a very successful year and with a balance of nineteen dollars on hand.

An Athletic Committee.

Mr. Gillman who recently assumed charge of the Young Men's Bible class reported verbally for that organization. The class has been reorganized after a period of temporary suspension, due to the lack of a teacher to undertake the work.

An athletic committee has been formed and sports such as hockey, baseball, lawn tennis, war canoe and field sports will be inaugurated.

A debate will be held by the class on Tuesday next for the purpose of raising funds with which to finance the athletic scheme. One third of all the monies collected by the class are devoted to missions. A course of Bible study has been introduced to which all the men are invited. Mr. Gillman referred to the lack of adequate accommodation and the absence of such conveniences such as shower baths, etc.

I twas here that Mr. Andrew McFarlane arose and nominated Messrs. Lees, Gillman and Kerr as a Nominating committee to name a committee on Thursday night next to deal with the matter of improved Sunday school accommodation. Mr. McFarlane's name was added to the committee at the instance of Mr. Lees.

Mr. McFarlane strongly advocated improved Sunday school facilities.

A Flourishing Organization.

The report of the Young People's Society showed that organization to be in a very flourishing condition. The balance on hand was between seven and eight dollars.

"Under Obligation."

The report of the choir as furnished by Mr. Kerr drew forth eulogistic comment from several of those present including Rev. James Rollins, Mr. McFarlane, Mr. Lees and Mr. Gillman. A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr Herbert C. Treneer, organist and choir leader for the able and efficient manner in which he had guided the destinies of the choir throughout the year.

In reply Mr. Treneer attributed the success of the choir to the harmony and good will that prevailed among its members. "When a person joins a choir," said Mr. Treneer, "they voluntarily place themselves under an obligation to do their best, there is nothing like a sense of duty to bring people out," he added.

The Ladies' Aid.

The Ladies' Aid reported a balance on hand of three hundred and sixty-four dollars. During the year, alterations had been made to the manse and various other disbursements had been made.

The meeting then adjourned to meet next Thursday, when the remaining business will be disposed of.

The meeting was closed with devotional exercises.

A WONDER WORKER

"It heals like magic," is a favorite expression when Dr. Chase's Ointment is used. It works quickly, stops all itching at once, often heals in a single night. For eczema, salt rheum, barbers' itch, skin irritations or eruptions, it is a most satisfactory treatment. Being antiseptic it prevents blood poisoning.

Making Surgery Painless Now

Pressure on Neck Makes Hand Dead to All Pain—Robs Operations of Terror

In the presence of twenty-four prominent surgeons of Hartford, Conn., Dr. William H. Fitzgerald recently demonstrated a new anæsthesia at St. Francis Hospital. The unanimous opinion was expressed that the discovery probably would revolutionise present methods of surgery.

Dr. Fitzgerald operated upon several patients, and in no case did he use drugs, gas or cocaine. He applied a pressure to the nerves through the nose or throat, acting, as he explained, on the well-known fact that there are certain especially sensitive nerve zones, pressure upon which instantly will stop pain. In one case he anæsthetised the hand of a woman so that pins were thrust into the flesh without giving the slightest pain.

In another case a foot was anæsthetised, and fifteen incisions were made. Two teeth were painlessly extracted. In still another case, after producing an anæsthetised condition, the physician punctured an ear drum without any sensation of pain. The puncturing of an eardrum is regarded as one of the most painful of operations.

Eye Made Immune From Pain.

Another test was even more startling. The physician removed a foreign substance from a patient's eye and then drew a scalpel lightly across the eyeball, the patient never wincing.

This demonstration by Dr. Fitzgerald was a sequel to one he gave at the hospital in Hartford a short time before, in which he showed the preliminary steps to the use of the method. In the preliminary clinic the patients were shown to be able to trace the sensations of glow or a feeling of lightness. By pressures in the throat the physician produced sensations in various parts of the body, in the back, or in the extremities, for instance, and demonstrated that acute pain in any part of the body can be relieved quickly by mere pressure.

There are several advantages to be gained from use of reflex anæsthesia, as was demonstrated. In the first place, the use of dangerous anæsthetics like ether is avoided. In spite of the general use of ether its administration is still accompanied by grave danger except in the hands of an expert.

In the case of minor operations, such as the removal of splinters, the use of the local anæsthesia avoids the necessity for administering ether where it requires twenty minutes or more, though the actual operation can be performed in thirty seconds.

How Discovery Was Made.

Loss of sensation in a limb from prolonged pressure has been known to medical science for years. It is, however, sometimes followed by paralysis of a more or less permanent nature. The application of this pressure idea to local organs, such as the eye and ear, is a new departure.

The method of anæsthesia practised by Dr. Fitzgerald is based on the known fact that there are areas in the nose, throat and mouth that are highly sensitive and that contain delicate and intricate nerve sources. It was by study of the zones that Dr. Fitzgerald worked out his discovery, the method of applying which he demonstrated in so startling a way at the clinic.

"THE GLORY OF DOING WITHOUT"---A HELPFUL THOUGHT FROM DAN CRAWFORD

We learn from an exchange that Dan Crawford is writing a book, the sub-title of which will be "The Glory of Doing Without." It should be a book worth reading, for if anybody is an authority on the difficult art of "doing without," that person is Dan Crawford. He has done without for twenty-two years far away in the African jungle. He is a Scotsman (if a Peterborough citizen remembers aright, Greenock, Scotland, was his birthplace), traveller, missionary, discoverer, idealist, F.R.G.S., and a lot more. Here is what he says on the subject of doing without, after twenty-two years of exile in the African wilds:

"For twenty-two years I have been without a collar. For twenty-two years I have been eating without knife and fork. For twenty-two years I have been a thousand miles from a shop. Try to get my point of view. Practically all my life I have been cut off from all manner of things called supply. The nearest store was one thousand miles away. And I have had a good time."

The message in this is the phrase, "I have had a good time." It is not necessary to imitate Dan Crawford literally. It is not necessary to go without a collar, to eliminate collar studs, link sleeve-buttons, knives, forks, and spoons from the scheme of mundane things, but there are a thousand and one unessential things that we can eliminate from daily life with the greatest profit o ourselves. We pack too heavy a burden through this vale of laughter and tears. We pack a knapsack full of things we neither need nor want, of gewgaws that gather rust and dust, of knick-knacks that are of no value on earth, of kickshaws that give us dyspepsia and indigestion, of things that we could get along better without than with. We ride on street cars instead of walking; we yearn to own an automobile when our income only admits of street cars; we are not happy unless we have everything our neighbour has, and a little more; and thus we go through life collecting odds and ends from pianolas down to postage stamps. Much of the unrest of the day, much of the marital unhappiness, much of the failure of modern life is due to the fact that men and women think that they cannot "do without." It is to be hoped that Dan Crawford's book will have a large sale. For the sake of the message, "I have had a good time," we earnestly commend it.

These Young Couples

"No," said Mrs. Newly to the church ladies, "I can't help you with the supper because if I did it would mean leaving my husband for the evening, and I couldn't do that."

"Can't your husband spare you for just one evening?"

"No, indeed, nor I him. Life is so short that we both feel we must not waste one moment. It is no use to urge me, ladies; Edward has the first claim on my time."

ONTARIO MOTOR LEAGUE IS A GREAT SUCCESS

Practically Every Club of Importance is Now a Member of the Ontario Body.

LICENSES ARE ISSUED

Three events make last week, just closed, one of the most important in the annals of motoring in Ontario. The week was remarkable for the starting of the Canadian Automobile Federation on its career with a membership comprising all the leading Clubs of Canada, the beginning of the examination of all chauffeurs to prove their competence and fitness to drive, and the appearance of the "Canadian Motorist," the official organ published by the Ontario Motor League, as a monthly magazine.

Even the most sanguine promoters of the Federation have been pleasantly surprised by the success which has attended the efforts of the Ontario Motor League in bringing together into a common organization the automobile clubs of the Dominion. It was thought that for the first year at least the Federation would have to make its way with a few strong clubs, but the meeting just held received in membership practically every club of importance from Vancouver to Halifax, inclusive. The Automobile Club of Canada, the Montreal organization, which was for a time rather averse to the Federation, has joined the ranks with the others, and the Federation, in its turn, will assist the Montreal Club in its efforts to make a success of the first National Road Congress to be held in Canada, plans for assembling which in Montreal early in the present year are now being made.

Most encouraging was the presence in person of leading officers of clubs from the far West. The Calgary Automobile Club was presented by its enthusiastic Secretary, Miss V. H. Clerke, who has the distinction of being the only woman secretary of a Canadian Automobile Club. The Regina Automobile Club was represented by its enthusiastic President, Mr. E. C. Corbeau, who took a foremost part in the meeting, and the Winnipeg Club by its President, Mr. W. E. Wright.

The delegates were unanimous in approving of Toronto as the headquarters of the Federation for 1914, and in electing as executive officers: Mr. Oliver Hezzelwood, President; Mr. Frank Carrell, Quebec, and Mr. G. H. Cottrell, Vancouver, Vice-Presidents; and Mr. W. G. Robertson of Toronto, Secretary-Treasurer.

The scope of the Federation was demonstrated at the meeting, when questions of National import were discussed. The resolutions adopted in regard to national highways and legislation were indicative of the character of the Federation and the nature of the work which it is undoubtedly destined to perform in the interests of motoring in this country.

The first chauffeur to be examined under the new regulations was the driver of Sir James Whitney's car, Mr. W. H. Bickell. Mr. Bickell was examined by Mr. James E. Henry and was given a certificate as a first-class operator. In the examination a distance of approximately fifteen miles was covered. Sir James' chauffeur made a declaration that he had driven cars for about four years, covering a distance of approximately 35,000 miles.

The work of examining chauffeurs of whom there are some 1500 in Toronto, will be proceeded with apace during the present week.

Motorists of the entire province must welcome the appearance of the new automobile magazine, the Canadian Motorist, which is published by the Ontario Motor League. This magazine is the first of its kind in Canada, in that it is not a trade journal, but a paper published by motorists themselves, for motorists, and designed to advance the well-known policies of Ontario Motor League in respect to good roads, and automobile laws and regulations.

The Canadian Motorist displays originality and enterprise in its editorial departments and the advertising columns are patronized to an extent unusual for the first number of a magazine, and the character of the advertisements are such as to assure financial stability for the publication The cover design of the magazine is a striking one. It was prepared by one of the League Directors, Mr. F. McGillivray Knowles, the Toronto artist. The central feature is the badge of the League, with a pair of spread wings attached indicative of speed and strength. There are a number of original articles of very great interest to motorists.

Mr. W. G. Robertson, Secretary of the Motor League, is Editor-in-Chief, and Mr. Hartley Robinson is the Publication Manager.

Automobile licenses for 1914 are now being issued.

Mr. G. K. Rackham has authority to issue licenses for Peterborough.

FOR DELICATE CHILDREN

A Mother's Letter to Mothers.

Mrs. E. W. Cooper, of Bloomfield, N.J., says: "My child, seven years old, had a bad cold and was weak and quite run down in health. She had been in this condition for about six weeks when I began giving her Vinol. It was a wonderful help to the child, breaking up her cold quickly and building up her strength besides. I have also found Vinol a most excellent tonic for keeping up the children's strength during a siege of whooping cough."

Vinol is a wonderful combination of two world-famed tonics—the medicinal body building elements of cod liver oil and iron for the blood, therefore it is a perfectly safe medicine for children, because it is not a patent medicine, everything in it is printd on every package, so mothers may know what they are giving their little ones.

Therefore we ask every mother of a weak, sickly or ailing child in this vicinity to try Vinol on our guarantee.

No Canes For Actors

There is one profession that has always refrained from carrying a walking stick. The Actor knows well that on the stage he must walk without extraneous support, and he knows that the mere hint of a walking stick in his hand as he walks the streets is a temptation to lean this way or that. Actors, even when out of a job, never lean on a stick. They know that their balanced walk is their asset. If the whole of society recurs to walking sticks the actors will refrain.

THE MERITS OF THE RAILWAY COMMISSION

One of the best of the many good measures enacted under the Laurier Government was the one creating the body now known as the Railway Commission. Prior to the creation of the Commission, railway matters such as are now dealt with by that body came under the direction of a committee of the Cabinet known as the Railway Committee of the Privy Council. The members of that tribunal doubtless gave the best attention they could to the business that came before them, but the probability is that every man who ever had a seat on the committee realized the unfitness of the Board to discharge its duties. Busy Cabinet Ministers found it impossible, in the midst of their pressing duties in Department, Council and Parliament, to go as fully and as satisfactorily as they desired into the quegions coming before them in the Railway Committee of the Privy Council.

Perhaps a more serious reason against the old system was the fact that the Railway Committee sat at Ottawa and the expense of presenting before it matters that concerned people in distant parts of the country was as great as practically to shut out of court almost all who had not long purses.

The Railway Commission has brought about a much better state of affairs. The commission has been composed of good men, who have laboured zealously to settle the many difficult questions coming before them. The office of chairman of the board, one of special responsibility, has been filled from time to time by men of marked ability and industry. There is every reason to believe that the preant chairman, Mr. Drayton, will prove a worthy successor to the eminent men who preceded him.

Looked upon at first perhaps with doubt by both the public and the railway companies the commission has so handled its business as to win the confidence of all. The railway companies know that they will receive from the commission that fair play which ,happily, we in Canada may always confidently expect from our tribunals of justice. The public at large know that the commission, meeting from time to time in the different sections of the country and thus carrying the administration of justice close home to the people, will take up and carefully investigate the grievance of the poorest citizen against the greatest railway corporation. There is no public body in the Dominion to-day which enjoys in a larger degree than the Railway Commission the respect and confidence of the whole people.

When the measure for the creation of the commission was being prepared some fear was expressed that the proposed tribunal might be clothed with too much power. To guard against this, provision was made for an appeal to the Supreme Court on questions of law, and an appeal to the Governor-in-Council—that is the Cabinet—on questions of fact. A recent Ottawa telegram intimates that the Government will probably propose at the coming session to abolish the appeal to the Governor-in-Council. Such a change has much to commend it, and now that the commission is so firmly established in the confidence of the public there should be little, if any, objection to the suggested amendment. With the ever-increasing volume of public affairs to engage their attention, the members of the Cabinet, if they fully appreciate their responsibility, must be very busy men. Once in a while they may have to hear an appeal under circumstances that will enable them to give the matter the careful consideration it deserves. But too often the appeal, perhaps after long delay, will have to be taken up in brief periods snatched from the consideration of other matters, not perhaps more important, but at the moment apparently more urgent. If the case on which the appeal is taken happens to be one that has occupied the commission for a long time, practically speaking it is impossible for the Cabinet to act intelligently as a Court of Appeal.

An amendment of the Act to make the commission the final authority on questions of fact, while preserving the appeal to the Supreme Court on questions of law, would seem to be a measure that can now safely be adopted.—Montreal Telegraph.

Three Tramps Were Captured

In Vicinity of Asphodel—Were Released

For some time tramps have put up for a night or more in a railroad camp in the vicinity of Asphodel station and occasionally called at houses for a lunch in the day time, and at the hen house at night for fowl, and managed to evade being caught. On last Saturday night Constable Dickson and some immediate residents of the vicinity raided the camp and captured three, who gave their names as W. G. Owens, of Wales, Alex. Bartley and Neil McLaughlin of Scotland. They were brought before J. P.'s Brackenridge and McNulty for trial. Owing to their offence being trivial and Peterborough jail over-taxed they were given a chance, to move quickly with a warning which they remembered till they got out of the hall.

The First Great Event.

Most of the stories of Whistler are rather "waspish," but one recalls a story that shows him in the light rather of a graceful courtier.

It happened that the then Prince of Wales paid a visit to an exhibition of pictures that was held by an art society of which Whistler was the president. Whistler received the prince at the door, and as they entered the gallery His Royal Highness asked:

"What is the history of your society, Mr. Whistler?"

"Sir," replied the artist with a courtly bow, "its history begins today."

THE ULSTER SITUATION

Is the Subject of An Alarmist Speech

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., Jan. 16. (Special Cable.) — Commenting on Bonar Law's alarmist speech regarding the Ulster situation Lord Haldane points out that there is lots of time yet between now and the decisive hour in Ireland, for a measure of compromise that will be acceptable and more or less satisfactory to all parties. The Daily Chronicle compares Bonar Law's statements with that of a child shouting in the dark to keep his courage up. The Pall Mall Gazette has issued handbills with "Civil war Ahead!" in large letters, and comments editorially: "Rebellion ceases to be rebelion when the administration of public affairs becomes arbitrary." General independent opinion however is that Liberals will not be intimidated anyway by this threatened appeal to force. Sober judgment on both sides is in favor of the compromise and the leaders are working in that direction. Bonar Law, in spite of his platform talk, is attending the compromise meetings with Liberals

PLOT TO OVERTHROW BRITISH AUTHORITY IN SOUTH AFRICA

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 16.—(Special Cable)—The Government's unprecedented severity in dealing with the railway strikers in South Africa is construed here as lending colour to the reports of a syndicalist plot to overthrow British authority and establish a republic there again. Documents fully detailing the plan for such a revolution are now in Botha's possession. Four hundred Union officials and Syndicalist leaders are under arrest and will be placed on trial for conspiracy and sedition.

LIVE STOCK MARKET

Special Wire to The Examiner:

UNION STOCK YARDS, January 16. — Receipts were again light, only 61 cars, 465 cattle, 2,712 hogs, 364 sheep and lambs, 39 calves and 90 horses.

Cattle—Good and choice quality cattle are scarce and prices firmer. The commission firm of Rice and Whaley sold one choice load of steers at $9.10, the highest price paid thus far. Choice butcher's steers, $8.50 to $9.10; good do., $8 to $8.25; medium do., $7.50 to $7.75; common do., $6.25 to $6.75; choice butcher's heifers, $8 to $8.60; common do., $7 to $7.50; choice cows, $7 to $7.75; good cows, $6.25 to $6.75; canners, $3.75 to $4.75.

Feeders and Stockers—Demand greater than supply; farmers who neglected to buy last fall are wanting and cannot get them at any price just now. Choice steers, $7 to $7.25; medium steers, $6.50 to $6.75; stockers, 600 lbs., $6 to $6.50.

Milkers and Springers—Receipts light; prices firm at $80 to $95 each; bulk sold at $70 to $85 each.

Calves—Receipts not equal to demand. Choice veals, $10.50 to $12; common to good, $6 to $9.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts light; prices firmer. Sheep, $6.50 to $6.90 for ewes and rams, $6.25 to $6.50; culls, $2 to $4; lambs, choice ewes and wethers.

FIGHT FOR THE PREMIERSHIP

Special for The Examiner:

TORONTO, Jan. 16.—There are evidences of a lively war being carried [illegible] the supporters of the Hon. W. J. Hanna and those of the Hon. Adam Beck in their respective efforts to get the Premiership if Sir James Whitney is forced by the state of his health, to retire permanently. Echoes of the fight occasionally reach even the public ears.

The Toronto Telegram, Conservative, one of the "boosters" for Beck is making innuendoes against Hanna. It refers to the temperances of the Prohibition cause, it says, in a recent editorial, in reference to the Street Railway controversy in Toronto:

"Ill-health may affect the permanency of Sir James Whitney's premiership of Ontario. The consequence of Sir James Whitney's ill-health may drive Adam Beck out of the chairmanship of the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario.

"Adam Beck may be out of the chairmanship of the Hydro-Electric Commission and Sir William Mackenzie may be virtually Premier of Ontario before the agreement which "implements" the McCarthy-Hocken purchase policy is ready for submission to the Hydro-Electric Commission and the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council respectively."

Reference to Sir William Mackenzie as Premier of Ontario is significant and is plainly a "slap" at Hanna, whom the Telegram often pictures as a representative of corporation influence; for example, Standard Oil and the Mackenzie interests.

The proposal to hold a banquet in Toronto in honour of Beck is another sign of the Beck boom. Some keen observers also believe that the talk of Beck's succeeding Lord Strathcona is for the purpose of helping Beck's candidacy for the Premiership of Ontario. Meanwhile Hanna's friends are active also and something like confusion in the Conservative party is the result.

At a meeting of their lodge last week the senior men volunteerd to lay a trip each week during the slack season, thereby giving the spare firemen sufficient work to avoid laying any of them off. Freight traffic on the C. P. R. is very slack just now and the spare men are hardly making expenses.

CLAIMED TO BE A NURSE AND RAN UP $10 BOARD BILL

Cold Weather Forced Woman to Misrepresentation—Mrs. McElhiney to the Rescue

In this morning's Police Court Mrs. Orton, a local woman, was charged with getting her board under false pretences.

It seems that she went to a local woman, in the stress of hard times and the severe cold, and was given room and meals. She represented herself as an agent of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and as able to meet the obligations entailed through agreeing to pay for the rooms. But she ran a bill up to $10 and was forced at last to admit her penniless condition.

In Police Court, this morning, she admitted her guilt.

It appeared at first that the problem of dealing with the case was going to be a serious one for the Magistrate, but Mrs. McElhiney of the Salvation Army, presented a solution of the difficulty. She offered to secure for the accused woman a position, and to advance her the amount of the bill. Her offer was accepted by all parties and oil was thrown on the troubled waters.

MANUFACTURERS IN SESSION

Held a Private Caucus in the Council Chamber for the Purpose of Determining Their Position in Regard to the Workmen's Compensation Bill

A representative gathering of manufacturers of the City met in the Council Chamber at one o'clock to-day for the purpose of considering what action they would take in respect to the proposed Workman's Compensation Bill. The document will come before the Provincial Cabinet on Tuesday next, when argument on behalf of both the manufacturers and the working men will be heard.

Motion Adopted.

The discussion was heard in camera. It was self evident that the manufacturers had no desire to make public the stand they would take in regard to the measure. Mr. James Kendry, ex-M.P., viewed with alarm the presence of one lone representative of the press and hastened to move a resolution to exclude the medium by which publicity might be obtained. The motion to pull the veil of secrecy over the meeting was adopted.

It is understood that a number of the manufacturers are preparing to oppose certain passages which the bill is said to contain and in all probability a deputation from Peterborough will be on hand when the bill comes before the Legislative body.

BIRTH.

On January 15, to Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Robertson, 522 Roger street, a daughter.

HUNDREDS OF BARGAINS IN ALL LINES

Will Ask For Change Of Name To Public Utilities Commission

Ald. Gordon moved a resolution at last night's Council meeting to include a clause in the City's bill authorizing the establishment of a commission form of government in Peterborough.

No one seconded the motion and the matter was dropped.

Ald. Gordon said he had been thinking of this question for sime time. Mayor Buller had referred to it in his inaugural address and said he would take it up during the year.

Mayor Buller—My idea was to call a public meeting and discuss the matter.

Ald. Gordon's motion provided for a plebiscite on the commission form of government to consist of 3 or 5 members, elected for one, two or three years, the chairman to be known as Mayor.

Mayor Buller — We should discuss the different forms of civic government first. We should educate the people first.

Ald. Anderson—I am personally in favour of it. If the motion called for a Board of Control and Council I would be in favour of it.

Ald. Green—It is not sale at the present time to go to the Legislature with that. We would be asking for something when we don't know what we want.

Ald. Duncan — The Private Bills committee would tell us to get the voice of the people first.

Ald. Anderson—Let the people show that they want a change in the form of government, let them decide what they want and then we can go after the necessary legislation.

Ald. Gordon—Will you second that, Mr. Mayor?

Mayor Buller—No, I will not.

Ald. Johnston—We have loads of work without that just now.

Ald. Gordon—You promulgated it, Mr. Mayor.

Mayor Buller—You're been away today and you're a little excited yet.

PETERBOROUGH IN FRONT IN THE GROUP BY BEATING BELLEVILLE TEN TO FOUR

Visitors Failed to Show Their Expected Strength and the Homesters Did Not Have to Exert Themselves.

BIG CROWD SAW GAME

The Petes did not have to play the best hockey in the world to beat Belleville last night, the Bay of Quinte team going down to defeat by a score of 10 to 4, putting the local intermediates out in front of the group race. Belleville started out like whirlwinds, [illegible] goals in the first ninety seconds, but it was but a flash in the pan, and from then on the Petes had the game in hand, although it required a long time to tie up the score. It was 4 to 3 in favour of Peterborough at the half, and in the second period it was merely a question of how many Peterborough would get.

The biggest crowd of the season, some 1600 fans, saw the game, which was not as good an exhibition of hockey as was expected. Belleville's victory over Whitby led local fans to believe that they would give the blue and white team a battle royal, but they proved unexpectedly weak, and the Petes could easily have beaten them much more if they had exerted themselves. Brotherhood's good goal-keeping saved a bunch of counters and the Petes lost a number of others through erratic shooting when close in.

The homesters showed speed and condition and at times some pretty combination, although there is room fr improvement in the team work. A number of chances were thrown away because the man with the rubber failed to pass, while on the other hand, when they did combine, a goal almost invariably resulted. Janes in goal got little chance to show his nettle, although the Petes opened up in the last stages of the game to let the visitors in and give the little goaler an opportunity. He showed his class in this stage by going out and nailing a shot with three men inside. Denison was in the limelight, with his best game of the season. Kelly and Park worked nicely together, getting some fine combination rushes, while Park as usual was the big factor in the scoring line. Giroux showed some fine stick handling and rushing and Bradshaw rushed nicely and played a strong defence game when he went back to the defence in the second half.

For Belleville, Brotherhood in goal was the star, the youngster making some beautiful saves. Dunning, the captain and rover, was easily the pick of the forward line, doing some pretty stick-handling and rushing. Bradley, the left defence man, looked like a fine performer, but he had his shoulder badly hurt a few minutes after the start and was of little use after. He retired from the game at half time, the Petes dropping Bond.

The teams were:—

Belleville—

Goal, Brotherhood; right defence, T. Brant; left defence, Bradley; rover, Dunning; centre, Whalen; right wing, Symons; left wing, B. Brant.

Peterborough—

Peterborough rushed from the face-off, and Brotherhood made a magnificent stop of a hard shot from Park, Belleville retaliated with a rush, and a minute from the face off, Dunning slammed in a goal from a pass.

Thirty seconds after Bradley galloped up the centre in one of the nicest rushes of the night, and scored on a swift, high shot which Janes did not see in time to block.

Two goals in ninety seconds made the crowd gasp, but the Petes settled down to business and cut loose to even up. For a long period they found the task a difficult one, thanks to Brotherhood's fine work. Park got right inside only to have his shot blocked and a minute later Denison lost a similar opportunity. Denison came through again, but once more Brotherhood was in the way. Park broke a skate and there was a delay until he changed. Soon after he returned, he and Kelly broke away together, and Parks' shot beat Brotherhood for the first Peterborough counter. Denison drew a penalty, but the Petes pressed in spite of the odd man advantage. "Dennie" came back and scooped a goal through on a long shot from the side, but it was disallowed because Bradshaw was loafing offside. Bradshaw drew a penalty on the play. Shortly after Kelly and Whalen engaged in a wrestling match and were benched, the Peterborough boys' first penalty of the season. A little while after Denison was chased again. Bradley was hurt, but resumed play. Denison drew another sentence and B. Brant followed him to the side. Brotherhood saved a half dozen goals by splendid stops, but finally Denison fooled him by bringing the puck around from behind the nets and slamming it through.

The Petes continued to press, and Park put them into the lead when Kelly's shot bounded off a defence player over to him.

Belleville evened up shortly afterwards. Bond lost the puck in making a rush, and Whalen tore in all alone to beat Janes with the tying goal.

The Petes went out in front again, when Park banged in a rebound off Denison's shot. Just before the half Bradley was sent away for tripping.

When the second half opened it was found that Bradley was unable to continue, and Dunning served the balance of his penalty, after which the game went on six men aside.

The Petes opened up fast, and two minutes from the face-off, Park scored on a pass from Denison.

Kelly circled across the Belleville defence and fooled Brotherhood with a beautiful shot, doubling the score at 6 to 3.

Denison drew an exile for cross-checking, and while he was off T. Brant shoved Belleville's last counter past Janes after a mix-up around the nets.

Denison came back, and he and Park combined prettily for a goal by the latter.

A minute later Park nicked goal No. 8 on a pass from the corner by Bradshaw.

The play was all Peterborough at this stage. Giroux got away for a pretty rush, and a neat pass to Park resulted in the centre man finding the nets again. Giroux was penalized twice in succession, but Belleville failed to get any advantage out of the situation, in spite of the fact that the Petes were letting them walk in on Janes. Finally, to relieve the monotony, Park took the puck from a face-off and working in on Brotherhood, scored the last goal of the game.

Hockey--That's All

The Mercantile League will hold an important meeting this evening in the office of the "Review," for the purpose of discussing the advisability of postponing the games on Monday evening so as not to conflict with the O.H.A. hockey excursion to Port Hope. The meeting will commence at eight o'clock. It is requested that the Executive and a representative from each team will be present.

Tomato Seed Oil

An excellent burning oil has been extracted from tomato seeds. These, with the skins, are thoroughly dried in the sun. The seeds are then crushed in a hydraulic press and yield a thin yellow oil. This when burned in a lamp gives a bright, colourless light.

CONDITION IS UNIMPROVED

Sir James Whitney's Strength is Failing

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Jan. 16. — After a slight improvement which aroused faint hopes of recovery, a slow failing in the condition of Sir James Whitney began again this morning. Last night, however, the old restlessness returned, and Sir James got only broken snatches of sleep. To-day he is quite feeble. The usual treatment with stimulants is being kept up. "That's about all we can do," said Dr. Pyne, "in the way of giving medicines. Rest is really what is required."

BIG CROWD GOING TO COBOURG MONDAY NIGHT

A big crowd of fans will accompany the Peterborough intermediates to Cobourg on Monday night, when the blue and white team will play their next game. A special G.T.R. train will leave here at 7 o'clock sharp, returning after the game. The round trip fare will be $1.25. The Cobourg team has always given Peterborough a great battle and as the Petes will have to win Monday night to hold their position in the group race, a real old-time struggle between the two clubs may be looked for. The homesters have the fans thoroughly behind them now and will have a big following when they stack up against Cobourg.

PORT HOPE JUNIORS HERE ON TUESDAY NIGHT NEXT

The next local game will be staged on Tuesday night, when the Port Hope and Peterborough juniors will clash. The Petes are not out of the running in spite of their defeat by Kingston, and claim they are going to follow up the example of the intermediates, who also lost their first game, by going out after all the others. The youngsters say they can play better hockey than they did against Kingston and will try to prove it to the satisfaction of local fans on Tuesday night when they stack up against Port Hope. Junior games always give the crowd a battle, and Tuesday's will be no exception. The youngsters should be encouraged because from them must be developed the intermediates of the future, and a good crowd should turn out for the battle. The young Petes play in Port Hope to-night and a week from to-night will be put to the acid test when they engage Jim Sutherland's Frontenacs in Kingston.

CUP TIE RE-PLAY RESULTED IN DEFEAT FOR BARNSLEY

Five of the seven undecided English Cup ties carried over from Saturday were replayed Wednesday and brought to a definite issue. Millwall managed to beat Chelsea after a most punishing game and are now ready to entertain Bradford City. Clapton beat Notts Forest and will meet Brighton in the second round, the latter having been able to dispose of Oldham Bury disposed of Hull City at the second time of asking, and it is now up to them to meet the Rovers at Black burn. Queen's Park accounted for Bristol City, and are due to be the guest of Swansea on Jan. 31st. It is likely that Liverpool and Barnsley, also Leicester Fosse and Tottenham will replay to-day.

Cup Tie Form.

Wednesday's results again demonstrate how risky a job it is to anticipate the form of any club when cup tie business is on tap. Two first division clubs fell to Southern League opponents. The defeat of Hull's "Tigers" by Bury is also a surprise. In the second round we may look for more of these results, which show how fickle a thing is football.

Soccer.

London, Jan. 14.—Cup tie replays to-day resulted as follows:
Millwall 1, Chelsea 0.
Clapton 1, Notts Forest 0.
Bury 2, Hull City 1.
Queen's Park 2, Bristol 0.
Brighton 1, Oldham 0.

Old Country Football.

London, Jan. 15.—Cup tie replays to-day resulted:
Tottenham 2, Leicester 0.
Liverpool 1, Barnsley 0.

British Fixtures For Saturday.

The leading English clubs will revert to league football again this coming Saturday. So far as the first and second divisions of the English league are concerned, another very entertaining sample of fare will be provided. The clashing of Aston Villa and Sunderland at Villa Park, Birmingham, will be the tit-bit, as whenever these two old classics meet, football of a very high order can generally be relied on. In the lower order, the meeting of Bradford v. Leeds City and Hull City v. Woolwich will represent games of a very spicy nature, which will also have a direct bearing on the championship.

Facts Often Asked About.

Tottenham Hotspur and Queen's Park Rangers seceded from the Southern league in 1908, but the Rangers were re-elected, the league being extended to twenty-one clubs.

It was decided at the annual meeting of the league on June 8, 1909, that goalkeepers must play in distinctive colours, of scarlet, royal blue, or white, so as to assist the referee. Royal green was added on June 3, 1912.

A split occurred in Irish football on February 12, 1912, as the outcome of Linfield's refusal to lend their ground to the Irish Football association for the International match, with Scotland on March 16 unless they received 20 per cent. instead of 10 per cent. of the gross gate receipts. Linfield were supported by four other Belfast clubs, who had agreed among themselves to demand these terms. The Irish Football Association suspended several members of the Linfield committee and took similar action against those who participated in a subsequent meeting called to warn Linfield that if they let the ground no further matches would be played with the club. Subsequently, Linfield club trustees who held the power, decided to give the ground for the match, and also to remain loyal to the I.F.A. Their action was afterwards approved by the remaining members. A new association without Linfield, Belfast, Bohemians and St. James' (Dublin) senior clubs, and all the junior clubs was subsequently formed, but was not recognized by the international board, who recommended the English, Scottish and Welsh associations to give the Irish association financial support by playing all their international matches in Ireland in the season 1912-13.

Globe's Musical Critic Says She is a Great Artiste

That the concert under the auspices of the Conservatory of Music Orchestra in the Grand Opera House tonight, at which Miss Florence Hinkle will sing, is attracting outside attention, is evidenced by the fact that Mr. Hector Charlesworth, the well-known musical critic of the Toronto Saturday night, will be down to-night for the concert. In addition Mr. Gliddon has received a letter from Mr. E. R. Parkhurst, the Globe's famous critic, congratulating the local promoters upon securing the services of Miss Hinkle. The latter, Mr. Parkhurst states, has appeared at the Mendelssohn choir concerts for several years, and is one of the best singers before the public at the present time.

R. M. WADDELL STILL IN THE RUNNING

At the Rink to-day it was learned that R. M. Waddell's rink was the only Peterborough group remaining in the rophy events. T. F. Matthews lost to Scott of High Park by 8—16 for the Flavelle trophy, and Waddell went down before Toogood of Orillia by 11 to 5.

For the Gillies' rophy Lang lost to Haratone of Toronto Granites by 4 to 18, and Waddell trimmed Beck of Brampton by 14 to 7.

Sturgeon's rink defaulted to Hamilton of Fergus.

A SIMPLY SAD STORY

The following letter, written in a rather cramped, shaky hand, is printed as sent in, with punctuation, but errors in spelling omitted:

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Will you please print this in your paper for people to see what inhuman people there is in Peterborough. I went work to a lady's house last Tuesday, 33 below zero, and she put me in the summer shed to wash and shut the door on me and next day I was ill all day, in bed. I got a sick husband to look after, as not been able to work for a long time. I live in East City and had to go into King Street to work that cold weather and then that the treatment I got. I am 64 years old myself and my husband is 76 years old. Now this lady is a great Church worker and looked upon as a real relightness (sic) woman. No wonder we don't any any converts in our churches when we have such people in it.

Yours truly,
A Washer Woman.

WEDDING BELLS

VICKERS—FINN.

The Fort William Times-Journal gives the following account of the wedding of Miss Marcelle Finn to Mr. A. A. Vickers:

Completely surprising even their most intimate friends, Arthur Vickers, of this city, and Miss Marcelle Finn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Finn, of Port Arthur, were quietly married at 11 o'clock this forenoon in St. Andrew's rectory, Port Arthur. The wedding was solmenized by Rev. Father Donovan, in the presence of only the immediate relatives of the bride and A. C. Moffat, business partner of the bridegroom.

The bride who had resided with her parents on Foley Street, Port Arthur, is popular among the younger set of that city and Fort William. She has been stenographer in the offices of Murray, Vickers and Moffat for quite a number of years.

Mr. Vickers has been a resident of Fort William for about fifteen years coming here primarily to manage the large Vickers estate. Before coming to Fort William, Mr. Vickers was a member of the famous championship Argonaut rowing crew of Toronto. He belongs to clubs in Fort William, Port Arthur and Toronto.

For a number of years he has been a member of the firm of Murray, Vickers and Moffat, real estate brokers and financial agents.

Mr. and Mrs. Vickers left at noon on their honeymoon journey which will include a visit to New York. Upon their return, they will take up their residence at Mr. Vickers' home, corner of Ridgeway and Catherine Streets.

Stock Markets

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

The market to-day continued strong, and new high prices were made and the short interests which have made this advance possible by affording the big interests a dumping ground for their holdings. I think that the market will be on the top for some time, between next Monday and Friday, and will be able to tell you on Saturday when it will be safe to sell or take the short side. T.A.V. closed at 44 to-day to-day. We still think that it is a good purchase and that ultimately it will sell above par.

B.R.T. touched 90 and ought to go 4 or 5 points higher still.

I.Q. should prove a purchase around 61, and the common near 15.

U.S. steel rose above 68 as predicted Tuesday night and will probably go 2 points higher. Those who sell it every point up will cover with a good profit before long.

P.M. should be bought below 25 and should go near 30, possibly 35.

N.Y.C. sold above 91 to-day and if it goes to 93-4 would sell it with a stop at 94.

C.P.R. may be sold around 220 and should not catch a stop at 31.

There should be further rally in C.P.R., the Erie and the general list will probably go a point or so higher before a final turn comes.

Got her hand Read

One of the Selkirk ladies has been to an Edinburgh palmist to have her hand read, we are informed. After looking at the hand for a little the fortune-teller described the glowing future awaiting her client. "Nothing but success and happiness will be yours for years to come," she said. "Conquering all your rivals, you will marry the man of your choice, a tall, dark, handsome man of distinguished ancestry." "You don't really mean it?" exclaimed the young woman. "Will he be young?" "Yes, young and rich." "Very good," commented the young woman, "but how am I to get rid of my present husband?"

Slaughter of Game.

Windsor Record: Over two million people in Ontario are waiting to see what will be done at the coming session of the Legislature to save the fish and game supply. Ninety per cent. of the wild ducks killed during 1913 were purveyed by the high-priced hotels and cafes to their wealth patrons. The plain citizen who enjoys the marsh shores, where the birds are available, gets the fresh air, but no ducks. The ruthless market hunter feeds the wild ducks wheat and barley, goes out in his launch, rounds up the ducks and slaughters them with six and ten-shot pump guns. Is that what we call "sport"? There were 25,000 wild ducks killed by market hunters at Long Point in 1913. The slaughter at Port Royal for last year was 63,000. There were 17,500 wild ducks killed by market hunters at Mitchell Bay during the year. The number killed off at Rondeau was 19,000.

SUBMARINE IS SUNK

Crew of Eleven May Be Alive in Boat at Sea Bottom

ENGAGED IN MANOEUVRES

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Jan. 17.—Two officers and nine men, comprising the crew of the British submarine boat "A 7" were trapped last night in their craft beneath the water of Whitesand Bay, about five miles southwest of Plymouth. Whether the men are dead or alive has not been established, but many officials here expressed the opinion that all of them had perished.

The exact spot where the little vessel sank has not been definitely fixed.

The "A 7," in company with the "A 8" and "A 9" made a plunge about noon yesterday while engaged in manoeuvres. Her sister ships came to the surface at the end of the manoeuvres, but nothing has been seen of the "A 7" since she opened her valves and dived. At first it was believed by the men on the other submarines that the "A 7" was merely overstaying her allotted time beneath the water, but when the officers realized that their sister boat was in distress, they sent out signals for aid.

Rescue boats were immediately rushed to the vicinity where the "A 7" went down, and threw out grappling irons and dragged the bay all afternoon and until darkness set in. Their efforts were fruitless, however, for never once was there a tug at a chain to indicate that the iron sides of the plunger had been struck.

The grappling operation will begin again at daylight to-day, and, in the hope that the submarine will be found, a boat capable of lifting her to the top of the water has been ordered to Whitesand Bay. The "A 7" was in charge of Lieut. Gilbert M. Welman, who had as an aide another officer. A number of the seamen aboard were making their first trip in the submarine.

The cause of the accident is not known. Whether the submarine's machinery became disabled or whether she tore a hole in herself on some sunken object, is the merest speculation. Naval officers estimate that in case the vessel's hull has not been punctured, the men on board her might live at least 12 hours beneath the water.

This is the sixth submarine of class "A" which has come to grief, and the question is being raised here whether the Government ought not to abandon this type of boat in favor of the more modern vessels of the "C" and "D" classes. The "A 7" was built in 1904 and measured 150 feet in length. Her submerged displacement was 204 tons. Her engines developed 600 horse-power, which gave her a surface speed of 16 knots and a submerged speed of nine knots.

Of the class "A" submarines which have caused the British Government grievous losses in men through attacks were the "A 7" wrecked in 1904 and on board which twelve men were drowned; the "A 5" in 1905 with a loss of four lives; the "A 8" in 1906 when fifteen men perished and the "A 3" in 1912 when eleven officers and seamen went to their doom.

The "A" class submarines, however, do not rank alone in disasters, for the "C 6" was lost in 1907 with four men; "C 11" in 1909 with thirteen and the "B 2" the same year with fifteen.

Some confusion was caused when the accident occurred yesterday by the announcement that the "A 7" went down in Cawsand Bay, on the western shore of Plymouth Sound, and that the depot ship Onyx had succeeded in getting into communication with the submerged men. This confusion was dissipated last night by a report from the Admiralty that the accident had occurred in Whitesand Bay, which extended from Rame Head to Looe Island, off the coast of Cornwall.

POLICY IS ATTACKED

Transfer of Carden "Absolutely Calamitous," Says Outlook

BRITISH NAME ENDANGERED

LONDON, Jan. 17. — The Outlook yesterday contained an editorial bitterly attacking the Foreign Office on account of the report that Sir Lionel Carden, British Minister to Mexico, is to be removed from his present post and transferred to the Legation in Brazil.

"The transfer," The Outlook says, "has been semi-officially confirmed at Washington, to which place we must now turn for the earliest news of British diplomatic movements. The report of Sir Lionel Carden's transfer from Mexico wears a sinister look. The probability is that the removal of the British representative to Brazil or elsewhere may not take place immediately, but when the mind of the public has been duly prepared for the step, we expect to find that our apprehension of a most notable and wanton surrender to an unprincipled foreign intrigue is fully warranted. We assert that it will be absolutely calamitous if our Minister to Mexico is withdrawn from his post of duty until the existing situation in the Latin-American Republic has been wholly transformed."

The article then pleads for the retention of Sir Lionel Carden in Mexico, saying now is a time when he is greatly needed, especially when, because of the action of the United States, millions of dollars of British capital are wasting away, and when danger menaces British name and fame in the eyes of people with whom they long have stood pre-eminent.

The Outlook expresses the belief that the report of Sir Lionel's transfer did not "leak," and advances the opinion that relations between the United States and Great Britain will not be improved "by a temporary infirmity in our Foreign Office." In conclusion, the article says:

"But Great Britain still retains her rights, though they may remain in abeyance a short time longer while the present mixed company of self-seekers remain in office."

U. S. Senator Assails Britain.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—More than 100 Americans present at the weekly luncheon of the American Luncheon Club yesterday wildly cheered and applauded a veiled but obvious attack on Sir Lionel Carden and Britain's Mexican policy, made by Senator J. Ham Lewis, American delegate to the Conference on Safety at Sea, and the club's guest of honor.

Speaking immediately after an Under-Secretary of the British Admiralty, who expressed the conventional hope that America and Britain would always be united in the lasting bonds of peace, Senator Lewis said: "President Wilson desires friendship and peace with all nations, but how can there be peace with a nation that is inciting our neighbors to war on our borders? President Wilson's policy is peace with honor, but honor first. It must be honor over without peace."

CLEAN-UP IS NEEDED.

Pollution of Water Serious Says Report of Commission.

TORONTO, Jan. 17.—Ontario border towns and cities may now hold themselves in readiness for a mighty campaign of water purification. To those municipalities which draw their drinking waters from the chain of great lakes and rivers, the report of the field commission, made public yesterday, reads a warning of alarm. It is intimated that remedial legislation may be forthcoming soon.

The substance of the report compiled by Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, of the Provincial Board of Health; Dr. A. J. McLaughlin, of the State Department at Washington, and Dr. J. A. Amyot, for the International Commission on Purification, is that some municipalities to-day are drinking from sources which literally reek with pollution and where the colon bacilli of typhoid are swarming. Some of these have instituted plants to offset the evil, but the majority, if not entirely regardless, have but intermittent services, which do not combat the danger. Every place must have a water treatment for 365 days in the year if the inhabitants are to be safe.

In emphasizing the necessity for the establishment of plants for purification it is stated that in a single day a city may become contaminated and great disaster follow. The danger from passing vessels, which has hitherto been only guessed at, is here estimated as of pressing moment. In the narrow rivers there is a serious menace, especially since all the vessels on the lakes discharge their sewage into water without treatment of any kind. The greatest factor of all, however, is that every municipality in the area investigated discharges sewage untreated into the international waterways where the currents bear it far and wide.

STRICKEN BY REMORSE.

Man Who Should Have Warned Volcano Victims Suicides.

TOKIO, Japan, Jan. 17.—The suicide yesterday by hara-kiri of the chief of the Meteorological Observatory at Kagoshima is reported in unconfirmed despatches to the newspapers. The correspondents declare that the scientist committed suicide owing to the severe criticism of his action in informing the citizens of Kagoshima that they were in no danger from the eruption of the volcano Sakura-Jima as the centre of the subterranean disturbance was elsewhere.

The people of Kagoshima, many of whom have returned to the ruined city only to find their homes destroyed awaited with wonderful faith for Prof. Otteri to give his decision as to the possibility of further catastrophies. Many families had been separated from their children during the panic which followed the eruption, earthquakes and tidal wave, and the highways in the vicinity of Kagoshima are crowded with sad-eyed people searching for their relatives.

Houses Covered With Lava.

KAGOSHIMA, Japan, Jan. 17.—The houses on the island o. Sakura—those that still stand—are enveloped in lava and resemble gigantic wasps. The fugitives who have returned are still in a terrified condition and refuse to enter their houses except to make a hurried search for valuables. Fears are entertained for the disintegration of Sakura-Jima.

The western part of the island is thickly coated with melted sulphur. The southern part is covered with a great deposit of ashes. The condition of the central part is obscured by the heavy smoke.

BOMB THROUGH WINDOW.

Destruction of Italian Family Is Narrowly Averted at Niagara.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Jan. 17.—Frank Bongiovanni, his wife, and their six children, narrowly escaped death in an attempt made to wreck their home at No. 625 Twentieth street with a bomb at one o'clock yesterday morning. The bomb was thrown through a window while the Bongiovannis were sleeping.

Bongiovanni was awakened by the sound of breaking glass. Investigating its cause, he found the bomb and hurled it into the yard. A great hole was torn in the earth, and houses two blocks around were shaken by the force of the explosion.

A young Italian who formerly boared at Bongiovanni's is suspected of being the bomb thrower. Mrs. Bongiovanni told the police yesterday that her husband had ordered him from the house because he had paid unwelcome attention to her. She said that the man threatened to blow the family up when she refused to leave her home and elope with him. He cannot be found.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Captain Howson and the officers and men of the Cobequid, left yesterday for England.

Gen. Ynez Salazar, commander of Mexican Federal volunteers, who was driven out of Ojinaga, Mexico, by the rebels, was arrested in Texas yesterday.

The Northern Electric Co., with a capital of $10,000,000, has been incorporated by the state department. The company's headquarters are in Montreal.

Dr. Car Jacobsen, a rich Danish brewer, has bequeathed most of his fortune of $40,000,000 to art purposes. This was done with the consent of his children.

Charles H. Bates, an assessor of the town of Revere, Mass., was arrested yesterday charged with alteration of tax records and falsely abating taxes amounting to $60,000.

The Federal Cabinet has decided that the law shall take its course in the case of James Taylor, under sentence of death at Brantford on Jan. 23, for the murder of Charlie Dawson.

Dental students in more than a dozen schools in Germany are on strike. They want to be called "doctor," after graduation. The present title given to them is "tooth physicians."

Thomas L. Robinson, aged 76 years, died at his home near Listowel, yesterday from cancer of the stomach. Mr. Thompson had farmed in the vicinity for many years. He retired two years ago.

Had Eighteen Burglaries.

HAMILTON, Jan. 17—Four youths—Thomas Johnson, George Hill, and James and Andrew Smith—were committed for trial on six separate charges of shop-breaking and theft by Magistrate Jelfs yesterday morning. Their capture, together with an immense amount of loot, was the result of some clever work by Detective Cameron.

Wm. Wilmott, one of the complainants, who appeared against them, claimed that during the past seven months a house on East Barron street had been burglarized eighteen times.

SCHOONERS MAY BE LOST.

No Word of Three Ships and 37 Men Since Monday Night.

BOSTON, Jan. 17. — Considerable anxiety was felt in shipping circles to-day for the safety of the four-masted schooners Fuller Palmer and Prescott Palmer and the four-masted Northland, of which no tidings have been received since they were caught off the coast by the northwest gale of Monday night.

All were coal-laden from Norfolk. The Fuller Palmer was bound for this city, the Prescott Palmer for Portsmouth, N.H., and the Northland of Searsport, Me. Capt. H. H. Wallace of the schooner Grace A. Martin, which was abandoned off Martinicus on Wednesday, saw the three vessels at 10 o'clock Monday night. As they encountered the same weather conditions that caused the loss of the Martin, shipping men fear that disaster may have overtaken them.

The three schooners carried a total of 37 men.

Toronto Men Sentenced.

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 17. — Two years and six months in Kingston Penitentiary was the sentence handed out to Fred. Sutherland and Valentine Phillip, of Toronto, yesterday morning by Magistrate Judd. Sutherland and Phillip were caught red-handed last week passing bogus fifty cent Canadian coins which they admitted making. A search of their rooms unearthed a complete counterfeiting plant.

Sutherland's wife, who was also arrested, was liberated by the court on Monday.

Commission Halts New Rates.

CONCORD, N.H., Jan. 17.—An order suspending until August 1 the revised express rates, recently filed by the American, National and Canadian Express companies, has been issued by the public service commission. The rates were to have been put into effect on express shipments within the state on Feb. 1. The proposed schedule showed increases in many cases for short distance shipments. The commission will investigate the new rates before approving them and is empowered to forbid them.

I Will Stake This Medicine Against Your Time

A Few Days Will Be Sufficient to Prove its Value in Your Disease

A few minutes of your time for a few days and I will demonstrate to you, without expense to yourself, that I have a medicine that drives Uric Acid poison from the system and by so doing conquers kidney trouble, bladder trouble and rheumatism. I don't ask you to take my word for it, but simply want you to let me send you some of this medicine so that you can use it personally.

I am trying to convince sufferers from these diseases that I have something far better than the usual run of remedies, treatments and such things, and the only way I can demonstrate that fact is to go to the expense of compounding the medicine and sending it out free of charge. This I am glad to do for any sufferer who will take the time to write me. Understand, I will not send you a valueless "sample, proof or test treatment," nor will I send you a package of medicine and say that you can use some of it and pay for the rest, but I will send you a supply free of charge and you will not be asked to pay for this gift nor will you be under any obligations.

All I want to know is that you have a disease for which my medicine is intended, as it is not a "cure-all," and I give herewith some of the leading symptoms of kidney, bladder and rheumatic troubles. If you notice one or more of these symptoms you need this medicine, and I will be glad to send you some of it if you will write me the numbers of the symptoms you have give your age, and your name and address. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 546 Franklin Building, Toronto, Ont. You promise me nothing; you pay me nothing for it. All I ask, so there shall be no mistake, is that you send me the numbers of your symptoms or a description in your own words and that you take the medicine according to the directions I send you. It is my way of getting publicity for my medicine so that it will become widely known.

You will agree when you have used it that it dissolves and drives out uric acid poison. It tones the kidneys so that they work in harmony with the bladder. It strengthens the bladder so that frequent desire to urinate and other urinary disorders are banished. It stops rheumatic aches and pains immediately. It dissolves uric acid crystals so that back and muscles no longer ache and crooked joints quickly straighten out. It reconstructs the blood and nerves so that you soon feel healthier and stronger, sleep better and eat better and have energy throughout the day. It does all this and yet contains nothing injurious and is absolutely vouched for according to law.

Sufferers from these dreadful and dangerous diseases can surely afford to spend a few minutes each day for a few days to demonstrate to their own satisfaction if they are curable, especially when you consider no expense is involved, and I willingly give you my time and my medicine. All any fair minded afflicted person wants to know is if a certain thing will relieve HIM or HER, and here is an opportunity to find out without cost, obligation or important loss of time. THESE FEW DAYS may be the turning point in your life.

who will send medicine free of charge to those who need it.

All who are interested enough to write me for the free medicine will also receive a copy of my large illustrated medical book which describes these diseases thoroughly. It is the largest book of the kind ever written for free distribution and a new edition is just being printed. I will also write you a letter of instructions and medical advice that should be of great help to you; but in order to do this I must know that you need my medicine. Write me the numbers of the symptoms that trouble you, and your age, and I will promptly carry out my promises. Show an inclination to get well and write me, and I will gladly send you a supply free.

These are the Symptoms:

1—Pain in the back.
2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
3—Nervousness, loss of flesh.
4—Pain or soreness in the bladder.
5—Weak, watery blood.
6—Gas or pain in the stomach.
7—General debility, weakness, dizziness.
8—Pain or soreness under right rib.
9—Swelling in any part of the body.
10—Constipation or liver trouble.
11—Palpitation or pain under the heart.
12—Pain in the hip joint.
13—Pain in the neck or head.
14—Pain or soreness in the kidneys.
15—Pain or swelling of the joints.
16—Pain or swelling of the muscles.
17—Pain and soreness in nerves.
18—Acute or chronic rheumatism.

LONDON'S HOTELS

Great Variety of These to Accommodate Different People

London's hotels, of which there are upwards of 500, are called upon to find accommodation for between 25,000 and 30,000 visitors nightly. Some of these London hotels are wonderful places. Twenty of them represent a capital of $40,000,000. Some possess over 1,000 bedrooms, and as many as 3,000 guests have been known to sleep in a score of these palaces. Oftentimes the table silver at a famous hotel represents a value of $5,000,000, and a great deal disappears annually into the pockets of "souvenir-hunters." There is hardly a trade or profession but what has its own particular hotel in London. The origin of the modern Metropolitan hotel was that years ago an enterprising servant who left a West end mansion to start a boarding house developed it by stages into an hotel which afterwards became one of the biggest in London, and enabled him to retire to the country a rich man.

MONEY IN WRECKS

Boats Often Obtained For a Song When They Run Ashore

A beach boat which cost $1,000 to build was, after it had been run down off Yarmouth, sold for $10, and even that was obtained with difficulty, as seafarers do not like a boat which has once met with misfortune.

A splendid "deal" was made by a speculator who bought a wreck on the South Coast. He obtained from it nearly eighty tons of copper fittings and sheathing. This done returned him his money several times over, and yet he still had many tons of iron, fittings, rope, etc., besides a large quantity of copper sheathing out of sight.

The success of such transactions obviously depends on the ability to find a market for everything. And this is precisely where the specialists shine. The danger in buying sea spoil consists in calculating too confidently on a big yield of copper.

The most profitable way of utilizing wreckage is to turn it into souvenirs. When a famous man-o'-war came to grief at Blackpool some years ago a company purchased her and sold her piecemeal to visitors. From the oak timber walking sticks, bookcases, boxes, etc., were made, and the copper bolts she yielded were converted into ash-trays, pipe-racks, and other articles. As a result the company cleared thousands of dollars.

INMATES OF THE TOWER

The Ancient Building Has Seen Many Terrible Sights

Few places can claim the fascination which history has given to the Bloody Tower by the story of the murder of the young Prince or to the gloomy dungeons beneath the White Tower by their record of cruelties and harsh imprisonment. The White Tower, built by William the Conquerer after he had consolidated his conquest of the country, is the oldest portion of the famous fortress, and the Bloody Tower dates from the reigns of Edward III. and Richard II. The latter was formerly called the Garden Tower, because it opened to the Constable's garden, in which Sir Walter Raleigh was allowed to walk during his imprisonment. It was in the dungeons of the White Tower that Sir Walter spent 10 years of his life. Here also is situated the "Cage" in which Guy Fawkes was immured between the periods of torture on the rack; while the rack itself, the thumbscrew, temple bands, searing irons, and other instruments of torture around bear eloquent testimony to the practices of bygone ages.

Old Newspapers

The earliest English newspaper, Nathaniel Butter's Weekly News, had several predecessors on the Continent. The first of these in point of time was the Ordinarij Avisa, the publication of which began at Strassburg in 1609—fourteen years before the appearance of Nathaniel Butter's venture. In 1620 Abraham Verhooven founded the Nieuwe Thijdingen at Antwerp, and this continued to appear weekly for 227 years. The oldest existing newspaper is apparently the Swedish official gazette, which dates back to 1644.

An Ancient Newspaper

The newspaper "King-bao," which was suppressed by the President of the Chinese Republic, was undoubtedly the oldest paper in the world. For years it reported the more important news not only of China, but also of foreign countries. At a time when the art of printing and journalism was as yet unknown in Europe, the Chinese invented a means for making type from lead and silver, and in the year 400 A.D., the paper "King-Bao" was printed, and was issued regularly until this century.

Beneath Your Fat a Graceful Figure Dwells

How would you like, some day, to find your own slim self, emerging from the pads and rolls of fat that have gathered on chest, hips, waist, chin, cheeks, and neck, covering up and distorting the lithe, graceful figure beneath? Then learn this well. To remove or prevent these unwelcome deposits—control their quantity and location without paying the price of violent exercise, dieting, self-denials or impairment of health: in short, to find one's own slim self beneath the fatty sheath—has been made possible by a noted physician, whose Marmola Prescription helped thousands of over-fat men and women to reduce safely and surely from 10 to 16 ounces per day until the natural health of the system is restored and slimness results. Marmola Prescription Tablets, the new form of this great remedy, each contain an exact dose of the famous Marmola Prescription. Like the original prescription, they are absolutely sure and harmless. Nearly every druggist keeps these wonderful little tablets, or they may be secured direct by mail from the Marmola Co., Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich. 75c for a large case is the uniform price.

CASH DELIVERER

Coins Laid on Chute and Tilted Into Customer's Hand

It is rather surprising the number of devices patented for the purposes of delivering change into a person's hand. And in view of their number it is still more surprising that so few are in use, for it is often extremely annoying to have to pick up money from a glass showcase, or some other smooth surface. A man has designed a little chute for this purpose. A chute is mounted on movable links, rising from a comparatively heavy base. When the coins are placed in this chute it is tilted forward and the change is slid neatly into the customer's hand, no clawing of the counter is necessary. After this operation is performed the chute automatically flies back into place, owing to a spring attachment, and is ready for the next visitor.

FLIES BACK INTO PLACE.

Horse Fond of Swimming

Exciting scenes were witnessed at Sundee Harbor when a horse yoked to a wagon freed itself, and, bolting along the quayside, plunged into the water. A short time ago the same horse created a similar scene at the harbor.

Paupers' Porridge Victory

The working inmates of Inverask Poorhouse struck work on the alleged thinness of the porridge served for the morning meal. It appears that the porridge was thickened considerably, and the inmates resumed work.

MONUMENT TO POTATOES

The Tuber Has Been Thus Glorified in Germany

There are monuments to human beings, to animals, and, in one case known to the writer, to a lifeboat, but it has been reserved to Germany to rear monuments to the potato.

At Offenberg, in Germany, a private donor erected a really beautiful monument in honor of the potato. The upper part is a statue of Sir Francis Drake, who is alleged to have introduced the plant into Europe. This, and the pedestal also, is draped with garlands of the potato plant, with full-grown tubers. On one side is an inscription in praise of the potato, on another the name of the donor is given.

Nor is this the only German town having a monument to the glorification of the potato. The town of Murz has a similar statue to Drake and the potato, and in several of the small towns of the empire there are similar monuments.

The funny thing about these statues to Drake in association with the introduction of the potato is that Drake had no more to do with the matter than you have. According to popular belief the introducer of the potato was Sir Walter Raleigh. Raleigh heard of such a plant from his people whom he had sent out to colonize America, and he had some sent to him in Ireland, where he is alleged to have caused them to be planted. Such, at least, is the generally accepted version of the introduction of the potato, although we know that Raleigh had as little to do with the matter as Drake, for Raleigh found the potato already growing in Ireland, where it had been introduced by the Spaniards before his time.

But whether Raleigh or the Spaniards are the introducers of the potato we now stand little chance of knowing; of one thing, however, we do know, and that is that Drake had nothing to do with it. Yet Germany has erected statues to Drake a potato.

THOUGHT IT WOULD KILL HIM

Terrible Torture From Chronic Indigestion, Short Treatment With "Fruit-a-tives" Completely Cured The Whole Trouble.

C. T. HILL, Esq.

Chatham, Ont., April 3rd, 1913

"Some two years ago, I was a great sufferer from Indigestion. I treated with a prominent physician here for some time, but I did not get any better so I went in to see him one day and said "Doctor, what do I owe you? I am not getting any better and am going to quit you." I paid him his bill and he remarked to me, "Charlie, you have a case of chronic Indigestion that will be hard to cure."

I left his office and as I stepped out on the street my eye caught a bill board advertisement of "Fruit-a-tives"—that big "Fat Man and Thin Man" and I said to myself, "If Fruit-a-tives will build me up like that, it's good enough for me." I walked directly over to Park's Drug Store and I bought a box of "Fruit-a-tives." After taking these wonderful tablets for only three weeks, I found myself greatly improved. I continued taking them for a short time longer and cured myself entirely. My case was no light one either, for many times when I was on the street, I was compelled to go into some store or business place until the acute spasms wore away. Gas would often form in my stomach and I was in daily fear it would get around my heart and kill me. To-day, I have no such fears. "Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy for Indigestion, Dyspepsia and Stomach Troubles."

C. T. HILL.

Perhaps your case is exactly like Mr. Hill's. If so, do exactly as he did—take "Fruit-a-tives" and cure yourself. "Fruit-a-tives" will prevent the formation of gas in the stomach by making digestion complete. It will insure the food being promptly digested by providing an abundance of gastric juice in the stomach. It keeps the stomach sweet and clean, not only by helping the digestion but also by regulating Kidneys and Bowels and toning up the system.

If you suffer with Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Belching, Gas on the Stomach, Heart Pains after Eating, take "Fruit-a-tives." 50c. a box. 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. at all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

FREAK FAMILLES

The Adnets Hold a Record For Misfortunates

At Bilbao, Spain, is a family of seven who between them possess no fewer than 164 fingers. One has twenty-three fingers, another twenty-one while of the remaining five each can boast a couple of hands with twelve fingers apiece.

For loftiness of stature the family of Hassan Ali, would be hard to beat. His grandfather, the tallest of the family, stood 8 feet 11 inches, 7 inches more than his father, whose height was 8 feet 4 inches; Hassan Ali himself being content with a modest 8 feet 2 inches.

The family record for longevity has not been beaten since Robert Parr, the great-grandson of the celebrated Thomas Parr, died in 1757 at the age of 124. His father lived to celebrate his 109th birthday, his grandfather reached 113, while his great-grandfather was 152 at the time of his death.

A Russian, one Ivan Wassilif, was the proud father of eighty-seven children. He was married twice. By his first wife he had sixty-nine children in the following order: Four times quadruplets at a birth, seven times triplets, and sixteen times twins. By his second spouse he had twice triplets and six times twins.

Undoubtedly the record for misfortune belongs to a Belgian family named Adnet. The father, Jean Adnet, was drowned; his wife committed suicide by throwing herself from the roof of her house; while of his two sisters, who lived respectivelly at Ghent and Paris, one was killed by the kick of a horse and the other by a blow received from a falling scaffold.

Jean Adnet had six children, four sons and two daughters. Of these, the latter perished through the overturning of a pleasure boat. One of the sons was stabbed in a drunken brawl; another was crushed to death by a heavy wagon; while the remaining two, who had emigrated to America, were slain in 1891 while fighting for Balmaceda against the Congressists.

But of peculiar records the strangest was that held by a family, nicknamed the "Odd Family," that lived at Ipswich at the commencement of the eighteenth century. The names of the father, mother, and seven sons each contained an odd number of letters. The youngest son Ezekiel enlisted as a grenadier in 1703, and was wounded twenty-three times. Five other sons—Roger, James, Matthew, Jonas, and David—died in different places and, by an extraordinary coincidence, were buried on the same day in the year 1713. Ten years later another son, Solomon, was with Ezekiel drowned in crossing the Thames.

Freak Societies

Germany is said to hold the record for societies with extraordinary objects. One of these is entitled "Society for Promoting Good Manners Amongst the Poor," whilst another unites in the bonds of fellowship all Germans wearing a pointed beard. A curious association is that of exlunatics, detention for six months in an asylum being the qualification for membership. Another society is that for promoting the more general adoption of the name Wilhelm, presumably in compliment to the Emperor. As illustrating the craze for associations in Germany, it may be mentioned that in the little town of Wildau, with only 2,000 inhabitants, there are twenty-two societies.

Little Nell's Cottage

Tong, a pretty village of the Black Country green borderland, is immortalised by Dickens in the "Old Curiosity Shop." The church and village are much the same as when Dickens described them, and as when Little Nell and her grandfather tarried there. Little Nell's cottage is proudly pointed out.

Building An Empire

Every loyal Canadian is an "Empire builder." He is anxious to add to the health and prosperity of the Dominion. But you can't build an Empire out of lands and mines and railroads alone. You have to build an Empire with men—and the way to make men is to give growing youngsters a food that builds strong and sturdy bodies. Such a food is

SHREDDED WHEAT

It contains all the material in the whole wheat grain made digestible by steam-cooking, shredding and baking. It is better than mushy porridges because it induces thorough mastication and thus develops sound teeth and insures perfect digestion. A food to study on, to play on, to work on.

Always heat the Biscuit in oven to restore crispness. Two Shredded Wheat Biscuits with hot milk or cream will supply all the energy needed for a half day's work. Try Toasted Triscuit, the Shredded Wheat wafer, for luncheon, with butter, cheese or marmalade.

MONUMENTS FOR LIARS

The Sea Dyaks Are a Very Truthful and Honest Race

So truthful are the members of the race known as the Sea Dyaks of Borneo that when a really good lie is told to them they build a monument to keep green the memory of the perpetrator.

This is only one curious piece of information among many supplied in an article in the "Mission Field." These people, it is stated, are as honest as they are truthful.

So disgraceful do they consider the deceiving of others by an untruth that such conduct is handed down to posterity by a curious custom. They heap up a pile of branches of trees in memory of the man who has uttered a great lie, so that future generations may know of his wickedness and take warning from it.

The persons deceived start the tugong hula—"the liar's mound"—by heaping up a large number of branches in some conspicuous spot by the side of the path leading from one village to another. Every passer-by contributes to it, and at the same time curses the man in memory of whom it is. The Dyaks consider the adding to any tugong bula they may pass a sacred duty, the omission of which will meet with supernatural punishment, and so, however pressed for time a Dyak may be, he stops to throw on the pile some branch or twig.

In his jungle home the Dyak is remarkably honest. Families are often away from their homes for weeks at a time, living in little huts on their farms, and, though no one is left in charge of their rooms in the lone village house, things are seldom lost.

The writer states that with an experience of nearly twenty years in Borneo he knew of only two instances of theft. One was the theft of rice. The woman who lost the rice most solemnly and publicly cursed the thief, whoever it might be. The next night the rice was left at her door.

Keeping Tab on Railwaymen

The "Brown system of discipline" will be introduced on the Intercolonial Railroad of Canada. By this system merit marks and demerit marks will be kept for each employe. When the number of demerit marks exceed the number of merit marks by 60 the employe will be discharged from the road.

CORPORAL PUNISHMENT

Teacher Must be a Psychologist to Know When to Apply It

Corporal punishment in schools is a subject which is brought into the public eye every so often. It is a topic with painful memories for most people and one which is heatedly discussed among the parents of school children, but the average grown-up still believes that corporal punishment is a good thing. Discretion should be used in the application of the rod however, and it is in the lack of discretion among some school teachers where the system of corporal punishment is weak. There are children who can understand nothing quite so well as a "licking," but there are also children to whom a blow is a serious nervous shock. It is more or less a matter of temperament, which, despite the protests of the press agent, is not the exclusive possession of theatrical stars. The best school teacher must be more or less of a student of psychology and must be able to distinguish between "bad boys" and thoughtless ones.

It must be admitted that there are "bad boys." True, they generally turn out to be the best of men, but they are boys who need an occasional and sometimes frequent applications of the cane or strap, whichever happens to be the favorite weapon of the teacher. To them it is an honor to be "licked," and they display their bruised hands with considerable pride. But to the nervous, sensitive child corporal punishment does more harm than either the teacher or parent may imagine. It bruises the spirit more severely than the flesh. Such a child grows up timid and fearful, shrinking from expected blows before they are threatened.

It is rather a pity that school teachers are not better paid. If they are worth anything at all, they are worth at least double what they receive at the present time. They hold almost supreme power over the children in their classes; it is to them that the rising generation looks for guidance and knowledge, yet they receive what is hardly better than a pittance.—Vancouver Sunset.

SPOTS ON THE SUN CAUSE TORNADOES

Sun Spots Bring Changes of Temperatures Which Often Mean Storms on the Earth

Investigations at the Santa Clara University, California have proven to the satisfaction of weather experts that sun spots are responsible for great storms on this globe. They cause changes of temperature which affect the earth's atmosphere where it is most sensitive—at the equator and the poles. This, in turn, starts a whirl of air that develops in speed—and you have a great storm.

A sun spot has instant effect on two currents of air or whirls in the air, one from the north pole going south and one from the equator going north. The storm is the battle between these two currents when they meet. That battle may take place so high in the air that there is little or no effect felt on the surface of the earth. Or they may meet on a battle plain near to us and a violent storm—generally of tornado tendencies—ensues.

There are two general storm paths in the world—one north and the other south of the equator. The northern path starts at the equator and moves northwestward so long as it remains south of the 30th parallel. Once across this line it turns and travels northeast until it spends itself or reaches the polar regions. The same condition holds good with the southern path, except that the original direction is southeast and the change is to the southwest.

Sunspots having started air whirls from both ends of the path, the tendency of the southern whirl, being warmer, is to rise and of the northern whirl to say close to the surface. If the northern current is thick enough as it usually is in the winter time, the effect of the southern current will be lost. Anything that will send the southern current higher into the air will shield the country directly in front of it from the violence of the change of atmosphere it causes. Thus a mountain range will sometimes shoot the disturbing element so high that while a severe storm will take place on one side of the mountains, the other side is not affected at all.

A long stretch of flat country, however, will permit this southern current to settle down, if it happens to be very heavy, and so get closer to the earth. This explains the tornadoes and blizzards which occur in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

The great lakes serve as a deflector of the currents in this country because of the excess of moisture in the air over these great bodies of water and the consequent heaviness of the atmosphere at these points. For that reason the storms on the lakes are greater and more frequent in winter than in summer because the northern current, which freezes and removes this moisture, has the easier time. The southern current being warmer and lighter naturally passes over the lakes at a high altitude, although, of course, it sometimes creates big disturbances.

There are exceptions to these conditions, of course. These are caused by purely local disturbances of the atmosphere which must be reckoned with to produce certain effects—which might change entirely the character of the effect of the battle of the upper air currents for supremacy, causing a severe storm or no storm at all.

A UNIQUE POST OFFICE

A Letter Takes a Day to go From One Side to the Other

Probably no other place in North America has a post office of the unique proportions of Beebe Plain. There a simple wooden building shelters the offices of two countries. The structure is cut diagonally by the Canada line, being almost equally divided by the imaginary boundary. The northern half contains the post office of Beebe Plain, Canada, and the southern half the office of Beebe Plain, Vermont. They are separated only by a ten-foot corridor, using this passageway and the same door in common. George H. House, postmaster, looks after the mail of the two offices. As a result of red tape in the postal regulations regarding the transfer of mails a letter mailed at the Vermont office for the Canadian office across the hall travels 200 miles before delivery. A letter posted at Beebe Plain, Vermont, for Beebe Plain, Canada, will go south on the Boston and Maine Railroad from Beebe Junction, Vermont, to White River Junction, 111 miles on the same route, and thus continues its way to Sherbrooke, Que., thirty-four miles further. There it is again transferred and returns to Beebe Plain, Canada. That is, after a ride of twenty-four hours and going 290 miles it arrives at its destination, ten feet from where it started.

Telephone Muffler

A telephone muffler has been invented which is small enough to be installed on the ordinary desk telephone and which, it is claimed, afford the user the secrecy of a telephone booth. The telephone is made of aluminum and is therefore extremely light. When speaking into the muffler, the sound waves, together with the air expelled from the lungs, go forward, and are carried through a spiral coil of aluminum. This is non-vibrating and effectually prevents a person standing near from overhearing the conversation.

Habits of the Salmon

Students of the habits of the salmon are beginning seriously to doubt the old assumption of a definite migration in the deep sea. It is now held more likely that there is something in the nature of a falkine dispersal of young from the mouths of their native streams, and a reverse movement as spawning time approaches. It has been discovered that all species of salmon feed off the coast of Vancouver Island upon a small shrimp-like crustacean that floats in incredible numbers on the tides.

PUNCH AND JUDY

The Great Popularity of These Shows is on the Wane

Reports from England and the Continent indicate that Punch and Judy shows are slowly disappearing before the opposition of the moving picture plays. The showmen saw the decay of their famous entertainment coming, and some attempt was made to band them together to resist it, but their gypsy mode of living made combination difficult, and in any event it is not plain what they could have done. The popular demand is for the "movies," and no organization of showmen could resist it.

Who first created Punch nobody knows. He appears to trace back to Roman times, for a statue was unearthed a couple of hundred years ago that might have served as a model for the Punch of to-day. There was the long nose, prominent and hooked, the starting eyes and the hump on the back and on the breast. This was an ancient mime called Maccus, and must have been the ancestor of our modern Punch. It was in the sixteenth century, however, that the Punch of the professional entertainment came into popularity. He was heard of first near Naples, and was called Pullincinella, or Pulinchinella. Some historians say that the name was that of a merry waiter at an Italian inn who had a knack of amusing the patrons. A traveling showman induced the waiter to join his troupe, and it is said that both grew rich through the venture. Punch spread over Europe and even through Turkey, but for nearly two hundred years thereafter there was no mention of a Judy.

In England Punch and Judy were introduced by gypsies, and the entertainment has always been largely in their hands.

The various dishes in the Hungarian restaurant were numbered for the convenience of the waitresses and the benefit of the patrons. A young couple entered. The orchestra struck up the "William Tell" overture. Turning to her escort, the young woman said: "That's familiar. What is it?" The man glanced up at the orchestra and saw the number 3 displayed. Then, with the air of one who is accustomed to cafe life, he looked up number 3 on the bill of fare. "That," he replied when he had located it, "is 'Filet Mignon,' by Champignons."—Argonaut.

A Spasmodic Conversationalist.

Thirty or more years ago, there lived in the village of Angus, in Simcoe County, an elderly cobbler who combined in equal proportions the two unfortunate habits of stammering and profanity. One day, as the old man was crossing the railway, he encountered a wayfarer walking along the tracks. The stranger saluted the cobbler and enquired the distance to Brentwood, the next station above Angus.

The cobbler essayed to answer. "It-t-t-t-s-s-s-s——" He paused for breath and started again, accompanying his dislocated speech with vehement gesticulation. "It-t-t-s-s-s- ju-ju-ju-ju." There was another halt, and then the cobbler whistled, slapped his thighs, waved his arms, and tried once more. "It-t-t-t-s-s-s-s o-o-o-o-only—" Again he paused, then made still another despairing attempt, but succeeded only in sputtering and sizzling like a defective arc lamp. Then his embarrassment and anger rose to the boiling point and speech came to him with a rush.

"Blank blankety, double dash, asterisk it all, man," he exploded. "Go on and you'll be there before I can tell you."—Toronto Saturday Night.

CONCERNING HEALTH and BEAUTY

By MRS. HENRY SYMES

HAVE YOU A WEAK BACK?

As a general rule, women do not take enough exercise. So many of them are employed indoors all day long that they never get a chance to breathe in fresh air; or, I should say, they never make it possible to get all the advantages of the pure air. Consequently, we have before us women with pale faces, flabby muscles and a generally ill-nourished appearance.

A certain amount of exercise along with the fresh air is necessary if you wish to keep your joints limber and your muscles in a healthy condition. I advise all women to keep up gymnastic exercises and outdoor sports, no matter if they have reached the time where they no longer tell their ages.

However, there are just as many of the younger set who are as inactive as their elders. Sometimes I think it is lack of ambition that keeps them from indulging in vigorous exercises; but I am sure that once they enter the active field they would become so fascinated with the work and its results that they would regret the days they had lost.

I shall not dwell long on the necessity and benefits of exercise, for I am anxious to help today those persons who are troubled with weak backs. Very frequently the attention of a physician is necessary in such cases, but the patient can do a great deal for herself in the way of exercise. The various motions will strengthen the muscles and put them in a healthy condition. The trunk is kept from falling forward by the action of the muscles of the back; therefore, you see the necessity for keeping them up to the mark.

With two ordinary buckets a very beneficial exercise can be practiced. At the start have the buckets empty. Place one in front of the other and stand with the toes touching the bucket nearest you. Now bend at the waist line and raise the first bucket high enough to place it over the one furthest from you. Put it down on the floor without changing the position of your feet. This requires a great deal of practice, because it requires a certain amount of poise. As you become more efficient fill the buckets partially with water.

If you have not been in the habit of taking exercise, do not tire yourself by practicing too long. The sudden exertion on the heart will do more harm than good if it is prolonged.

The back is greatly rested by stretching the body straight out on the floor, and it can be further rested by going through the following movements: While lying on the back place the arms along the sides of the body, hold the feet together and let the toes point straight ahead. Now arch the back so that the weight is entirely supported by the heels and the shoulders. I know you will find this hard at first, but many attempts will soon bring success. You will derive more benefit by doing an exercise thoroughly and intelligently once or twice than if you do it a number of times in a slipshod manner.

A chair affords as much opportunity for gymnastic feats as any apparatus in the gymnasium. Try the one I am about to describe and see if you do not derive a great deal of fun and strength from it.

Place a chair with the back toward you; then step on the lower rung of the chair, lean forward and grasp the edge of the seat. Raise the left leg and extend the toes. Then raise the right leg and throw the shoulders and the weight of the body well forward so that the legs can be placed together on top of the chair's back. Your position should be so that the body is in a straight line.

When you look at the pictures illustrating the exercises you may feel that you can't do them, but just give them a trial and experience the glory of doing the things which seem impossible. And, besides, that weak back of yours should really not be. It it not necessary and can be conquered, with a resultant betterment of health.

ADVICE ON SOCIAL CUSTOMS

THE WEDDING RECEPTION

IF A church wedding has been held, there is generally a reception at the home of the bride or at a large hotel in its ball or drawing room. This is an excellent way to receive a number of friends and acquaintances, and especially good is the idea of the reception if the ceremony be private.

This allows for the entertainment of friends who are too numerous to group at one time in a home, for the guests of a reception should come and go, thus keeping a crowd comfortably large yet not too big to handle in serving refreshments and entertaining.

The decorations, especially now, can be of brilliant foliage. A bower of evergreen and autumn leaves is as beautiful a setting as inexpensive flowers. Here and there you can mass a bunch of roses, asters or bright flowers. Simplicity counts for much in the decoration of a small home.

When the guests arrive they should be met in the main room by the mother and father of the bride. These two are the hostess and host, remember, and should not be overlooked in the formal greeting of the guests. The father and mother of the groom are also included in the bridal party. The host and hostess should stand near the door and be the first to greet the guests.

Around the bride and groom are the attendants arranged so that any one who is a stranger to one of the married couple can be quickly introduced without embarrassment. It is the duty of the usher or a maid of honor to find out tactfully whether the advancing guest knows both bride and groom.

The bride receives all wishes for happiness with a gracious smile. She should greet each guest with outstretched hand. Her dear friends are privileged to kiss her. This, however, is very tiring if every one in a long line takes advantage. It is rather insincere if acquaintances presume. I must tell you right here of an awkward, shy young man who in his embarrassment stammered, "Is it customary to cuss the bride?"

Congratulations are extended to the groom for his good fortune in getting such a wife. He should accept all congratulations in a dignified manner.

If a guest be unknown to the groom, it is very easy for the bride to introduce him.

Above all, the bride and groom should not forget the waiting guests when a very intimate one is met. It is no time for lengthy conversation. Only the shortest exchange of greetings should be made.

The father of the bride need not remain in the room during the entire reception. After half an hour or so he is at liberty to leave and to see that guests are being properly cared for in other parts of the house.

If the bride enters the dining room at all it should be with her husband. This is done sometimes to cut the bride's cake or when guests drink a toast to her happiness.

A buffet dinner, with sandwiches, salad, olives, celery, candy, ices and coffee on the dining table, is a very easy way to solve the problem. A friend can preside at the coffee urn, and one or two maids can relieve guests of plates and pass coffee, ices, etc., to waiting ones. A caterer will furnish a menu and waiters, if a more elaborate feast is wished.

After all guests have arrived, or after the hour stipulated on the announcement card at the end of the reception, the bride should, with a near friend or relative, go to a dressing room, change her dress for a traveling suit, meet the groom, who has done likewise, and the two should depart for the honeymoon.

No practical jokes or dangerous tricks should be countenanced by the hostess or the guests. It is very commonplace for the jokers and distressing for the newly wedded pair. There is no humor in the embarrassment or, in some cases, actual discomfort of others. Fortunately, the jests of this type at weddings are becoming fewer, due to the mighty force of public opinion.

A Complexion Brush

Dear Mrs. Symes.
I have been presented with a complexion brush. Will you please tell me how to use it? H. C. F.

A complexion brush is used to cleanse the skin. It is splendid for removing blackheads and for stimulating the blood circulation. Use hot water, a pure soap and the brush and then scrub the skin thoroughly but gently enough so that the skin will not be injured. Rinse the face well with clear water so that no soap remains on the skin. It is important to keep the complexion brush, as well as all other toilet articles, clean if you wish to have a clear, attractive complexion.

To Cure a Double Chin

Dear Mrs. Symes.
Kindly tell me what I can do to get rid of a double chin. UNSIGNED.

To cure double chin, massage daily, using the following movements: From point of chin, with open hand, press firmly downward, throwing the head backward at the same time. Bathe the chin and throat frequently with cold water.

To Develop the Bust

Dear Mrs. Symes.
I have a small bust and am anxious to enlarge it. I have been using cocoa butter for two months, but do not see any change. Please tell me what to do. A MARRIED WOMAN.

Continue to massage with cocoa butter, and in addition to this take the tonic for which the recipe is here given:

Dr. Vaucaire's Remedy for the Bust

Liquid extract of guiesa (goats-rue)	½ fl. dr.
Lacto-phosphate of lime	154 grains
Tincture of fennel	10 minims
Simple syrup (sugar and water q. s. to)	1½ ounces

The dose is 2 teaspoonfuls with water before each meal.

Dr. Vaucaire also advises the drinking of malt extract during meals.

An Olive Complexion

Dear Mrs. Symes.
Will you tell me what will whiten the skin in a very short time? My skin is clear, but it is an olive color; and I should like to have a pink and white complexion. R. G.

If you have a naturally olive complexion, you cannot do much to whiten it. The presence of pigment is responsible for the color of the skin. However, you can induce color into the cheeks by exercising and living in the fresh air as much as possible. The rosy tint to the olive skin is very attractive.

Corn Cure

Dear Mrs. Symes.
I have two corns and should like to know what to use to remove them. ANNOYED.

Following are two recipes from which you can choose:

Corn Cure

Salicylic acid	20 grains
Extract cannabis indica	6 grains
Collodion	½ ounce

Corn Cure

Borate of sodium	1 dram
Extract of cannabis	1 scruple
Collodion	1 ounce

Paint over the corn once or twice a day and scrape away superficial growth in three or four days.

You should make an effort to get shoes that fit your feet properly, so that the corns will disappear.

Bran Bags

Dear Mrs. Symes.
I wish you would tell me, please, how to make the bran bags to be used in the water when bathing. A READER.

Mix equal quantities of powdered oatmeal and bran together; and to a pint add ½ cup or powdered soap. To this add about 1 ounce of powdered orris root. Fill small bags and use in the bath.

For Blackheads

Dear Mrs. Symes.
Will you please tell me what to do to remove blackheads from my face? HELEN

Indigestion and constipation are often responsible for the pores becoming clogged with black specks. It is, therefore, necessary to pay strict attention to the diet, and take proper medicine. For local treatment I advise the following:

Green Soap Treatment for Blackheads

Tincture of green soap	3 ounces
Distilled witch hazel	3 ounces

Let this mixture stay on only a few moments, then wash off with hot water.

If the green soap irritates the skin as it sometimes will, use it every other day. Apply a cold cream.

Green soap may be purchased at any drug store. It is not a regular "cake soap," but is of about the consistency of custard.

Open each seed pimple with the point of a fine sterilized needle. The hardened mass must be removed or inked out. The empty sac of the gland should then be bathed with a little toilet vinegar and water, or with a very weak solution of carbolic acid and water. Sterilize the needle before using it by dipping into boiling water, as the use of any instrument, unless the skin as well as the needle is thoroughly cleansed, is always dangerous.

Enlarged Pores

Dear Mrs. Symes.
Will you please tell me what I can do to make my pores less visible? EDNA.

I advise you to use the lotion for which I am giving the recipe:

Boric acid	1 dram
Distilled witch hazel	4 ounces

Apply with a piece of old linen or a bit of absorbent cotton.

You should always rinse the face with cold water after hot water has been used on it. An occasional massage with ice will help to contract the pores.

A Skin Food

Dear Mrs. Symes.
Will you please let me have your recipe for a skin food?
What can I use to increase the thickness of my eyebrows and to darken them? MRS. W.

Here is the recipe to which you refer:

Orange-Flower Cream
(A Skin Food)

Oil of sweet almonds	4 ounces
White wax	4 drams
Spermaceti	4 drams
Borax	2 drams
Glycerin	1½ ounces
Orange-flower water	3 ounces
Oil of neroli	15 drops
Oil of bigarade (orange skin)	15 drops
Oil of pimento	15 drops

Melt the first three ingredients, add the glycerin to the orange-flower water and dissolve the borax in the mixture; then pour it slowly into the blended fats, stirring continuously.

To improve the growth of your eyebrows apply vaseline to them daily. You will find an eyebrow pencil the most satisfactory thing to use to darken your eyebrows. Get one to match the color of your hair.

A Cleansing Cream

Dear Mrs. Symes.
Will you please tell me what I can use instead of soap to cleanse my face? IDA.

A cleansing cream will suit your needs and I am giving you the recipe for a very good one:

White wax	2 ounces
Spermaceti	2 ounces
Sweet almond oil	12 ounces
Distilled water	2 ounces
Glycerin	2 ounces
Salicylic acid	20 grains

Walking Proves Tiring

Dear Mrs. Symes.
I am very anxious to do a great deal of walking, for I find that I soon grow tired when I have gone but a few blocks. Can you tell me why this is? HAZEL.

It may be that you do not walk rapidly, slow walking proves very fatiguing, because there is not enough movement of the legs to force free circulation of the blood. The veins are too full of blood and consequently the legs become heavy, and the individual grows tired. Increase your speed the next time you go for a walk, and see if you do not feel refreshed at the end of the journey. One should not wear tight clothing at any time, but particular care should be taken to have the body loosely clothed during exercise.

Obstinate Freckles

Dear Mrs. Symes.
I believe that you have a very good recipe for removing freckles. It contains about three or four ingredients. Will you please publish it? SARAH.

I presume this is the recipe you have in mind:

Obstinate Freckles

Oxide of zinc	½ dram
Subiodide of bismuth	½ dram
Lactrine	15 drams
Glycerin	1 ounce

Spread the paste upon the freckles at night before going to bed. In the morning remove what remains with a little powdered borax and sweet oil.

To Reduce the Hips

Dear Mrs. Symes.
Will you kindly tell me the best [illegible] and quickest methods of reducing the hips and legs? Also tell me what [illegible] enlarge the bust. C. F. H.

Exercise will reduce the hips and legs. A very effective [illegible] for this purpose is to lie on the back and raise the legs until they form a right angle with the body. Then lower them slowly. Repeat this movement several times and do not let your arms assist you at all.

Squatting exercises, swimming and dancing will do much to reduce the hips and legs.

To develop the bust practice deep breathing and massage daily with cocoa butter.

Dark Circles

Dear Mrs. Symes.
Can you please tell me the cause of and a remedy for dark circles under the eyes? I am 19 years old and have them all the time.
What can I do to make the eyelashes curly?

Sometimes dark circles under the eyes are an inherited tendency and nothing can be done to remove them. Or they may be due to some internal trouble. When a person is anemic and there is an impairment of the chemical constitution of the blood the circles will very often appear. Prolonged study, lack of sleep or dissipation of any description will darken the skin beneath the eyes. It is necessary to have the doctor prescribe for you so that your system may be properly renovated.

Nothing can be done to make the eyelashes curly.

Cucumber Wash

Dear Mrs. Symes.
Some time ago you published a recipe containing cucumbers and alcohol. This lotion was to be used to whiten the skin. Will you please publish the recipe again? ANXIOUS

To make the lotion to which you refer cut one or two cucumbers into rather small chunks without peeling. Put these into a mortar and pound with a pestle (or use a heavy potato masher and a heavy earthenware bowl) until the mass is pulpilke in consistency. Now filter this through a piece of cheesecloth or very coarse muslin, squeezing out as much of the juice as you can. Now put the refuse and filtered juice into a clean enameled saucepan and simmer (don't boil) for ten minutes.

Then re-strain and when cold add alcohol to the proportion of one tablespoonful to half a pint of the strained liquid. Bottle and use to sponge your face instead of washing it during the day.

The alcohol should preserve the juice.

Face Powder

Dear Mrs. Symes.
Will you kindly publish a recipe for a face powder?
Also recipe for a dandruff cure. SUSAN M.

Following are the recipes you desire:

For Whitening the Skin—A Liquid Powder

Pure oxide of zinc	1 ounce
Glycerin	1 dram
Rosewater	4 ounces
Essence of rose	15 drops

Rub the zinc, dissolving it in just enough of the rosewater to cover it, then add the glycerin, next, the remainder of the rosewater. Add the essence of rose last.

Shake well and apply with a soft sponge or an antiseptic gauze. The face must be well wiped off before the liquid dries, or it will be streaked.

A Remedy for Dandruff

To an ounce of sulphur add a quart of soft water and during intervals of several days agitate the mixture repeatedly. After the sulphur has settled to the bottom of the receptacle use the clear liquid. Saturate the head with it every morning, and in a few weeks every trace of the dandruff will have disappeared. The hair will become soft and glossy, and there will be no return of the old trouble.

This remedy, however, will darken light hair.

For the Hands

Dear Mrs. Symes.
I shall be very grateful if you will tell me how to keep my hands in a good condition. I have three children and do all the housework. BUSY MOTHER.

When doing your housework or any work in the garden you should protect your hands by wearing loose gloves.

A perfectly pure soap should be used to cleanse the hands. A little almond meal may be put into the warm water in which the hands are washed. This will soften the skin.

At night rub cold cream into the hands and wear loose, clean gloves so that the bed clothing will not be soiled.

A Massage Cream

Dear Mrs. Symes.
Do you think a massage cream used daily will develop my bust? If so, kindly tell me what kind of a cream to use. D. J. K.

A massage cream rubbed into the bust with a gentle rotary motion will increase its size. Following is the recipe for a very good cream:

Lanolin	½ ounces
Spermaceti	½ ounce
Melton tallow (refined suet)	4 ounces
Cocoanut oil	4 ounces
Oil of sweet almonds	4 ounces
Tincture of benzoin	1 dram
Oil of neroli	20 drops

Mix as you would any cream of the kind. Rub in gently at night.

SOLUTIONS TO SOCIAL PROBLEMS

Providing the Carriage

DEAR Mrs. Adams.
If a girl asks a young man to go to a dance, is it proper for the man to hire the carriage?

If a girl has a dance which is not taken, should she stay with her escort or, if during the evening she is asked for a dance by another man, would it be proper for her to give it to him? In the latter case, would the girl's escort dance with the other man's partner? A.

Yes. If he does not provide a carriage the couple will then have to use the train or trolley or walk if the distance is not great.

When a girl is not engaged for a dance she sits with her chaperon or her escort.

It is customary for men to exchange partners for a certain dance. In this way no one is left unattended.

Offering Congratulations

Dear Mrs. Adams.
Will you kindly tell me how to congratulate the groom and also what shall I say to the bride? MARJORIE.

To the groom you may say, "Please accept my heartiest congratulations." To the bride you may offer best wishes for a happy married life.

Acknowledging Gifts

Dear Mrs. Adams.
I am a young mother and am anxious to know when I should write acknowledgments of gifts received by my little son. A READER.

If some one has not written notes of thanks for you, you should do so as soon as you are physically able.

To Secure Assistants

Dear Mrs. Adams.
I expect to hold a reception, but as I do not have any maids I should like to know what I shall do for assistance. This is my first experience. H. K. C.

You can have your relatives or your most intimate friends to assist you in receiving and in serving refreshments.

Wedding Invitations

Dear Mrs. Adams.
Does the groom pay for the invitations which are sent to his relatives and friends? JACK.

No; the invitations for all the guests are provided by the bride.

At a Tea

Dear Mrs. Adams.
Does she retain her hat and gloves while attending a tea? P. L.

Yes.

Form of Invitations

Dear Mrs. Adams.
If I feel that I cannot afford to have engraved invitations to guests whom I wish to attend my wedding, how shall I invite them? DOROTHY.

Your mother may send informal notes to your friends and the friends of your future husband inviting them to witness the ceremony.

Disappoints Her

Dear Mrs. Adams.
I have been engaged to a man for over a year. He is a resident of this city and nearly all of his relatives live here, but he has never taken me to see them, nor have they ever called on me. He seldom asks me out and comes to call Sunday nights. He promises to come during the week, but disappoints me all the time, saying he has business engagements. Do you think I should waste my time with him? A. M.

It is evident that you do not love the man to whom you are engaged or you would not entertain the thought that you were wasting your time with him. If you resent his treatment of you and are not happy in your engagement, now is the time to reconsider the step you took a year or so ago.

Use of the Knife

Dear Mrs. Adams
Is it proper to eat from the knife? MARIE E. K.

No. The knife should be used exclusively for cutting food.

The Engagement Ring

Dear Mrs. Adams
When should the engagement ring be given to a girl? ALABAMA.

Soon after the proposal has been accepted.

A Card Party

Dear Mrs. Adams
1. I am going to give a 600 party and should like to know the form of invitation to use. I desire to have answers to the invitations. How shall I let this fact be known?
2. How long before the party should the invitations be sent?
3. Is it proper to invite a man with whom I am not acquainted, if I invite a girl friend of his? DOROTHY.

1. You can issue your visiting cards, writing on the lower left-hand corner the date and time the party is to be held and the word "cards." If you add the letters R.s.v.p. your guests will be sure to reply.
2. Ten days or two weeks in advance.
3. Yes. You can inclose a card for him with the one you send to the young girl.

For an Afternoon Wedding

Dear Mrs. Adams
Is it proper for a man to wear a cutaway coat to an afternoon wedding? What kind of a vest should he wear? ALFRED.

The cutaway coat is quite proper. A single-breasted white, pearl or gray silk or linen vest or one to match the coat may be worn.

Who Suggests Departing?

Dear Mrs. Adams.
When I go with a girl to call on one of her friends, which one of us should suggest leaving? FRED.

The girl should be the first to make the suggestion.

Wording Announcements

Dear Mrs. Adams.
My mother is dead, and for a very good reason I do not want to have my wedding announcements issued in the name of my father. What form can I use under these circumstances? GERTRUDE O.

Following is the form you can employ:

YOUR PLACE IN THE WORLD.

Fill it Well, For, Though It May Be Small, It Is Important.

It is the privilege of a limited number of mortals to stand in the limelight and be applauded, to have a pathway cleared for their progress and an attentive audience for their highest accent of command or exhortation. Most of us fill humble places. We are not heard of at our birth, nor when we die. We make one more in the crowded thoroughfare. The "hungry generations tread us down." Life's swollen current roars and eddies about the little canoe we are trying to paddle through the rapids and stream. "What is the use?" we ask. And of what use are we? What difference would it make if we gave up the fight? Who would notice our vanishing, and what is one life among so many?

In that mood of discouragement it is to be remembered that each of us has his place which he alone can fill. There are others, no doubt, who can do the same kind of work, but they cannot do our work. History is full of tragedies due to the failure not alone of emperors, but of peasants—not merely of commanding generals, but of privates in the ranks—and the collapse of a great cause has been due to the fact that one inconspicuous man in a small place has thought it made no difference if he ran away.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Now, What Did He Give Her?

"Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cured me of what I believe was the early stage of locomotor ataxia or paralysis. I cannot describe what I suffered, but now I am entirely cured."

In "Through Siberia—An Empire in the Making," by R. L. Wright and Bassett Digby, the authors tell us that the city of Tomsk has two morning dailies. Any important news that comes over the wires during the day is struck off on handbills, which are sold in the streets as "telegramma." At the time of the Russo-Chinese crisis there came early one morning the startling report that the Russian minister at Peking had been assassinated.

"One of the papers at once rushed a handbill through the press, but before it was distributed came the official denials from St. Petersburg and Peking in keeping with the best journalistic traditions of the occident, the editor had the denials printed on a second handbill.

"Then he called all the newsboys into the inner office, explained the situation with the utmost candor, handed out supplies of each bill to the eager lads and told them to run the streets crying 'Horrible Assassination' until the 'Horrible Assassinations' had sold out. Then, after resting up for ten minutes, they were to open a chorus of 'Startling Sequel' and proceed to sell out all their 'Startling Sequels.' And they did."

GIANT FLAGSTAFF

Vancouver Has the Tallest Flagstaff in the British Empire

Towering 218 feet in the air and weighing eleven tons, the largest one-piece flagstaff in the British Empire is to be seen in front of the magnificent courthouse at Vancouver. The big stick is a product of the British Columbian forests, and is a flawless example of British Columbian timber. At its base the flagstaff is three feet square, and at the top it is a foot in diameter. The big gilt ball at the top measures twelve feet in circumference, while the big arrow which shows plaintiffs and defendants alike which way the wind is blowing at the courthouse measures fifteen feet from end to end.

The giant flagstaff is held in place by guy cables set in concrete beds at each corner of the courthouse lawn, and will stand for many decades as an example of what the forests of British Columbia can produce in the way of tall timber.

An Ancient Epitaph

To a Western art museum an Egyptologist presented the mummy, 3,000 years old, of a man who dwelt in Thebes in the time of Rameses II. and III. and held the official post of keeper of the scales. The epitaph reads:

"I have done good upon earth. I honored my mother. I loved my father. I was loved by my brothers and sisters. I was a friend to the weak. I collected corn for the poor. I gave clothes to the naked. I have not harbored prejudice nor crushed those over whom I was master. I have not said an evil word against anyone. I made sacrifices for others."

In an age whose materialistic ideas were set by cruel and rapacious rulers, each bent upon aggrandizement and fame, no matter what the toll in human lives, it is something to find this simple-minded Theban merchant of the eighteenth dynasty upholding the principles of kindliness and benevolence in his personal example. Could a modern man desire or deserve a nobler record than that of Ankan Peta Hotep's sarcophagus?

The "Prison of Silence"

Republican Portugal still tolerates a prison whose carefully-planned, diabolical torture is enough to make prison reformers turn in their graves.

In this prison, called the "Prison of Silence," in a grim castle on the outskirts of Lisbon, nearly everything that human ingenuity can suggest to terrify the prisoners is done. The corridors, piled tier on tier five storeys high, extend from a common centre like the spokes of a huge wheel.

The cells are narrow and tomb-like, and within each stands a coffin. The attendants creep about in felt slippers. No one is allowed to utter a word. The silence is that of the grave. Once a day the cell doors are unlocked, and the half a thousand wretches march out clothed in shrouds and with faces covered by masks, for it is part of this hideous punishment that none may look upon the countenance of his fellow-prisoners. Few of them endure this torture for more than ten years.

Ordeal to Regain Caste

It is astonishing the belief natives of southern India have in their "caste," and what they will do to regain it if lost. A certain day in the year is set aside for the ceremony of regaining "caste." An enclosure about twenty feet square is fenced off, and in this logs of wood are burned, the ashes of which are kept redhot by continual fanning.

Those going through the ceremony have to wash themselves in the river about a mile away; then, with strings of flowers hanging round their necks, they run to the enclosure. By the time they reach it the redhot ashes have been raked all over the floor and the idol of whatever caste they belong to has been placed on a platform at one end. In rush the "casteless" barefooted, without the slightest hesitation, and dance round and round on the redhot ashes until they drop from exhaustion and are dragged out by their friends. Before going through this painful ceremony of regaining "caste" a man is first supposed to fast for at least three days.

The Miner's Inch

On the Pacific coast, the unit for measuring water in mining is known as the miner's inch. This varies greatly in different localities, and is now generally defined by legislative enactment. In British Columbia, under the Water Clauses Consolidation Act, a miner's inch is declared to be a flow of water equal to 1.68 cubic feet per minute. Therefore, a miner's inch is equal to .028 cubic feet per second, and 1 cubic foot per second is equal to 35.71 miner's inches, approximately.

PECULIAR NAMES

In the Somerset House Registers is evidence that Mineral Waters, Frosty Winter and Alfred Day Weeks once walked on English soil. A father in Hampshire County of the United States named his sons Primus, Secundus, Tertius and Quartus, but it was a Canadian, one Cumber, that was named Quintus, and newspapers in good faith often printed his name Q. Cumber.

There are fathers who, at their wits' end, give the name of a place to a child. Was Boston the real name or the nickname of the man that shot Lincoln's assassin? Was not Rudyard Kipling named after a place? Andrew Lang in one of his books mentions the children of a courier, who named them after places where he happened to be when he heard of their births. The names were St. Petersburg, Naples, Kattegat and Skagerrak (twins), and the only daughter was named Vienna.

HAND RAILS ON LADDER

Give Person Sure Footing in Ascending to Top Steps

People who have had occasion to use tall stepladders know how difficult it sometimes is to keep their footing in ascending to the top steps, particularly if they have a bucket or some other burden in one hand. A pair of hand rails effectively overcomes this. Along the upper part of the sides of the ladder are attachments, on each of which swinging arms are pivoted. To these arms, in turn, railings are pivoted so that when needed the railings can be pulled out to form a guide and support to a person ascending the steps, and when not needed they can be folded in along the sides of the ladder. Painters or paperhangers will find this attachment a great help and need not worry about a tumble. Housemaids, too, will be able to climb to the top of the ladder and wipe the ceiling without any further excuse.

FOLD UP ALONG LADDER'S SIDE

CANADIAN EXPORTS

Goods From Canada Are Sold In South America

Chile imports a considerable quantity of farm implements from Canada. Canadian windmills, one or two industrial machines, a few tools, are also found there, and an occasional shipment of lumber and paper is also imported. To Bolivia, nothing beyond some chairs, brooms and wooden goods seem to be exported.

Peru takes an occasional shipment of lumber. In Ecuador, Canadian flour is finding a market, and bids fair to rival the United States product, if indeed it does not eventually drive it out, or at least form that portion of the trade which buys quality and not the cheap low-grade article which is obtained in California and the Pacific coast of the United States. In Guayaquil, some Canadian tools are also seen. Panama is now purchasing Canadian flour, and also small quantities of silver-plated ware and a patent automobile tire cement.

WOULD COUGH SO HARD

Would Turn Black In The Face.

A cough cold is one of the most dangerous kind. It leaves the throat or lungs, and sometimes both, affected if not taken care of immediately.

Obstinate coughs and colds yield to the grateful soothing action of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, containing as it does all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree.

Mrs. C. J. Selig, Dartmouth, N.S., writes:—"My little boy, six years old, had a dreadful, hard cough. At night time he would cough so hard he would turn black in the face, and at times he would cough nearly an hour before he would stop. I tried different cough syrups, but they did him no good. The little fellow was wasting away, as he could not eat or sleep, the cough troubled him so. I got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and it did him so much good I got another. Now I am only too glad to be able to write this to tell how thankful I am, and to tell every mother to use nothing else."

A FRIEND IN NEED.

Joe Jefferson's Story of the Men Who Helped His Parents.

The late Joe Jefferson told this story of his childhood days:

"When my parents were traveling in the west we had a hard time to get along, meeting with bad luck in town after town. Finally we came to a little village in Illinois and prepared to give the play. However, the people of this town had recently turned against the theater, and the license was far beyond what we could pay. We were almost in despair, for our situation was desperate, not enough money to give our play in the town where we were and not enough to get to the next town.

"Finally my father found a young lawyer who listened to his story with sympathy and promised to help us. He succeeded in getting us a permit to play free of cost. We made good money that night, which carried us on to the next town in comfort.

"I recently played in this same town, which is now the good sized city of Springfield, and I visited the cemetery where that young lawyer now lies. On the stone which marks his grave is carved the name 'Abraham Lincoln.'—Ladies' Home Journal.

Nervous Energy Is Limited

There is only so much energy in the human body. A few people have an abundance, but more have not enough. Hence the necessity of conserving vitality.

If wasted by mode of living, disease or worry there must be a reckoning, and trouble is sure to come. It may be headaches and weak, aching eyes; it may be nervous indigestion, or it may be merely lack of energy and ambition, and feelings of fatigue or helplessness. Of course, sooner or later exhaustion of the nerves leads to prostration, paralysis or locomotor ataxia, but there is no need to let the trouble develop that far.

By using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you can restore to the feeble, wasted nerve cells the energy they have lost. It will take some effort on your part to give up worry and anxiety, but you should realize your serious condition. Rest and use this great food cure and you are bound to improve in health and vigour.

Knew What to Do.

Speaking of rare presence of mind recently recalled to ex-President Taft the case of a handsome young woman of his acquaintance. She had gone to the railway station to meet a man friend of the family, and when he debarked from the train the young man lost his head and impulsively kissed her. The girl thought it the part of prudence to tell her mother of the affair, upon which the latter was simply horrified.

"You don't mean to tell me that he had the impudence to kiss you?" she cried. "And to think of the crowd at the station! Why, my dear, what did you do in such an embarrassing situation?"

"Why, mother, I just kissed him back, of course," coolly replied the young woman. "I wanted to give all those people the impression that we were relatives."—New York Tribune.

Best Fowl For the Table.

The best table fowl is one that has the heaviest weight of meat on those parts of the body which are favorite cuts. The breast and thighs must be heavy in a good table fowl in proportion to the remainder of the body. In order to have thick breast meat and big thighs these muscles must be used by the fowl. In other words, the flier and scratcher will prove to be the best table fowl, for their lively habits give the muscles of the legs and breast work that renders them firm and fine instead of leaving them flabby and full of loose tissue in the shape of fat.—Home and Farm.

Dangers of the Woods.

A hunter from Orillia was in the woods near Lorimer Lake the other day, and he saw what appeared to him to be a tremendous big deer coming toward him on the runway, and so he opened fire. The animal not falling immediately, he threw another cartridge into his rifle and was raising it to shoot again when he heard a shout, as if all the hunters in the woods were being shot, and going to see what was the matter, found that he had shot at, and hit in one of its legs, a greyish horse, which was attached to a stone-boat on which were two hunters, driving in to haul out their dead deer.—Parry Sound North Star.

The Second One Went Into Retirement After Five Centuries' Use.

After being in use for over 530 years, the old seal of the City of London was formally dispensed with. The seal which took its place is the third to be used by the Corporation throughout its long history.

The first was destroyed as far back as 1381, when the famous William Walworth was Lord Mayor, as (according to the archives) it was "too small, rude, and ancient, and unbecoming and derogatory from the honor of the City," and a new seal of "honorable aspect and a work of art," which Walworth had made, was provided in its place.

In this the figures of St. Peter (or more probably St. Thomas) and St. Paul, with the shield of arms of the City of London, appear, together with a figure of the Virgin. The seal was made of silver, and was about the size of a crown piece. In its frequent use during five centuries it had become worn and blurred.

The mayorial seal is used for stamping documents connected with the Mayor's Court and the Mansion House justice room, such as powers of attorney, declarations as to the origin of goods, marriage certificates for use abroad, and precepts for civic assemblies and wardmotes. It is probably used about 1,500 times a year.

STORY OF A FRONT TOOTH.

A Small Fortune That Was Restored to Its Rightful Owners.

One winter morning a little boy of eight or ten years ran into the office of the United Charities in New York city crying bitterly. Between his sobs he gasped out, "Uncle has stolen mother's front tooth; please get it back for us."

His mother, then lying dead at home, was an actress. In her youth she had had a large diamond inserted in her front tooth, and the advertisement had proved profitable.

As the years passed misfortune overtook her; she was deserted by her husband; the family larder was often empty and the children hungry. Resolutely she refused to part with the diamond, always telling the children that after her death the money it brought would support them for some time.

When the little mother became ill with tuberculosis the children hushed her fears about their future with reassurances of the value of the jewel. But before the funeral a wicked uncle came in the night and pulled out the tooth.

An officer was sent at once to the uncle with threats of arrest if restitution was not made at once. The mission was successful, the tooth restored, the diamond taken out, sold and the proceeds used for the children.—Condensed From Survey.

Iron That Does Not Rust.

It costs the owners of steel ships millions of dollars annually to protect their vessels from excessive rusting. Do what they will, the process of oxidation goes on, and every so often the metal hulls have to be treated with anti-corrosives. The same silent process of decay is going on in the metal work of bridges, of railway and trolley lines. The inventor who can find a preventive against rust will save the world almost incalculable wealth. And the curious thing is that once upon a time the world knew of such a preventive. There is still to be seen at Delhi, the new Indian capital, an iron monument, which, no matter what the weather may be, never shows signs of rust. Scientists look that piece of iron over, but it keeps its secret well. Yet if the old Hindu metallurgists could do as much, why not the metallurgists of today?—Rochester Post-Express.

ALEXANDER LAIRD,
General Manager.

B. E. WALKER,
President.

Z. A. LASH,
Vice-President.

Toronto, 13th January, 1914.

Before moving the adoption of the Report, the President called upon the General Manager to address the Shareholders:

General Manager's Address.

We have closed our accounts for the past year and have great pleasure and satisfaction in presenting you with a statement of the results of the Bank's business, which you will realize is the best record in its history, and should be a source of gratification to the Shareholders and those actively engaged in its administration.

There was enough difficulty and perplexity in the general financial situation at the close of 1912 to make us apprehensive at the beginning of the past year. Canadians had some reason to hope for an early return to normal conditions, but were doomed to disappointment, and the continuance of the unfavorable influences then evident, and the aggravation of some of their worst features, has made the history of 1913 memorable in the annals of international trade. While the year has been full of anxiety and much actual strain, there is cause for congratulation that, notwithstanding the long-deferred arrival of peace in continental Europe, the uncertainty as to how the adjustment of immense war expenditures will be made, and the distressing delay in bringing order out of chaos in unfortunate Mexico, the general position of financial credit has, on the whole, been fairly well maintained. In our own country we were seriously disturbed lest we should have a failure of the crops, as this would certainly have added to our difficulties, but we were fortunate in securing an abundant harvest of excellent quality. This was marketed with extraordinary celerity and realized good values, which enabled us to make a substantial measure of liquidation of our debts and largely increase our cash capital. Canada is so closely allied with and influenced by the movements of our neighbors to the south that there was great satisfaction when the radical and important measures initiated under the recent change of administration were brought to a successful conclusion without any serious disturbance in financial affairs. Taken as a whole, and keeping in mind all the adverse conditions, the past year has been marked by astonishing evidence of strength to meet great emergencies.

You will readily see from the statements included in the Report of the Directors that the Bank has had another satisfactory year in the matter of profits. After a very careful revaluation of our assets, making liberal allowances for depreciation in securities, and providing for all bad and doubtful debts, you will be pleased to know that the Directors remembered the staff, to whose faithful and zealous efforts our success is largely due. Before closing the books a substantial sum was set aside out of the year's earnings and distributed as a bonus, leaving the declared net profits $2,992,951.10, being 16.88 per cent. on the Capital and Rest combined. We were enabled to pay dividends amounting to $1,800,000, including the usual dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, and extra bonus dividends of 2 per cent. for the year; and we have reason to hope that we shall maintain this rate until the Rest equals the Capital, and thereafter make the permanent basis 12 per cent., with whatever advantage may come with extra good fortune.

In our last Report the urgent necessity for providing an extension of the Head Office and Toronto Branch premises was referred to; and arrangements have since had to be made for the temporary accommodation of some departments of the Bank outside the present building. We are now pleased to say that we have purchased the two properties adjoining, and will proceed to consider plans, although we do not expect to make much progress towards altering or erecting a building for two or three years. We have acquired property in Windsor, Ontario, where a suitable office building will be erected during the coming year, and are also engaged in planning the erection of an adequate building in the City of Quebec. In both these places it was absolutely necessary to provide for our growing business. Bank Premises account now stands at $4,281,481.60, and in this connection we would direct your attention to the item of $979,915.61 in the statement under Real Estate. This includes bank premises acquired by the amalgamation with the Eastern Townships Bank, which will be disposed of in due course at considerably more than the book value. With this sale and the sums from time to time written off Bank Premises we should be able to keep this account within reasonable bounds and still show our properties at approximately 50 per cent. of their value.

The enrolled members of the staff now number 3,540, an addition of 544 during the year. In accordance with our plan of contributing to the Pension Fund, which includes provision for the widows, orphans, and other dependents of deceased employees, we have appropriated $80,000. It will interest you to know that the Pension Fund now stands at the magnificent sum of over $2,000,000. This, of course, includes the contributions of the members of the staff themselves. This large amount has been placed in the hands of a Board of Trustees charged with its administration for the benefit of those who have given long and faithful service to the Bank. We are pleased to record our appreciation of the able manner in which this trust has been exercised. A large portion of the amount has been invested in Western farm mortgages, and the whole fund is earning at the rate of about 6¼ per cent. per annum. The importance of making every reasonable effort to create a loyal and efficient staff cannot be too strongly emphasized, and your generous aid in the direction of strengthening the ties which bind its members perpetuates what is best in our service and is creditable to the institution. The fund has been actuarially examined from time to time, and we believe that it is on a sure and sound basis. We hope in the near future, with the accretions from well-invested funds, to increase the maximum pension.

You will notice that after paying dividends, making appropriations for Bank Premises and Pension Fund, we transferred to the Rest account $1,000,000 and carried forward a balance of $384,529.98 to Profit and Loss account. We reported $16,422,864 note circulation in November, 1912, and reached a maximum of $16,545,225 in November, 1913. The lowest point, $13,532,000, occurred in May last. The early movement of the crops relieved the pressure but we took advantage of the emergency provisions of the Bank Act and at the date of our statement we had $642,923 circulation outstanding in excess of our paid-up capital. Our deposits show a decrease of $4,803,746, but this is accounted for by the adjustment of several large amounts which were held in special accounts, and the withdrawal of Provincial Government funds. The ordinary deposits show an increase; current loans and discounts were $154,576,889, and call and short loans $26,764,910, compared with $163,753,552 and $17,782,049 in our last Report. The total current loans were $180,341,800, a decrease of $1,194,808 for the year. We show an increase of $9,595,701 in Government and other securities, and $2,960,690 in cash.

We think it advisable to give you an assurance that in the midst of the troubled and dangerous state of affairs in Mexico our interests are being safeguarded and every precaution exercised in handling a difficult problem. Our Manager enjoys our full confidence and he has shown unusual ability and judgment under these trying circumstances.

We deemed it prudent to restrict the opening of new branches to the carrying out in some measure of a program we had planned early in the year; and we consequently confined ourselves to districts where we had no representation, except in some cases where we opened for the protection of other branches. The geographical distribution of branches and agencies as at 29th November, 1913, was as follows:

Alberta	53
British Columbia	44
Manitoba	23
New Brunswick	5
Nova Scotia	13
Ontario	82
Prince Edward Island	5
Quebec	83
Saskatchewan	67
Yukon	3
Total in Canada	366
Newfoundland	1
London, England	1
United States	4
Mexico	1
Total number of branches..	373

The number of the Bank's Shareholders is now 6,026, as against 5,456 a year ago, an increase of 270. The following table indicates how widely our Shareholders are scattered, not only in Canada, but abroad:

	No. of Shareholders	Amount Held
Ontario	1,461	$4,077,350
Quebec	1,162	3,011,900
Maritime Provinces	758	1,571,650
Western Provinces	126	255,700
Great Britain	1,723	3,315,650
United States	684	2,599,550
Other Countries ..	105	163,200
	6,026	$15,000,000

There has been a widespread agitation in the Central Western district as to the supposed need for greater recognition of the claims of farmers to accommodation from the banks, but investigation does not support this contention, so far as this Bank is concerned. A carefully prepared statement of the business of this Bank in the three Western Provinces shows the percentage of total deposits to total loans in this district to be 56.55 per cent., which means that for every one dollar on deposit in these Provinces we lend two. A compilation of the figures of the business of this Bank in Saskatchewan made at the request of the Royal Commission on Agricultural Credit appointed by the Saskatchewan Government gave the percentage of farmers' loans to farmers' deposits in this Province as 278.29 per cent., while the percentage of farmers' loans to total deposits was 88.36 per cent. This means that for every dollar which the farmers of Saskatchewan have deposited with us, we have lent them nearly three. These facts should convince those interested in this important subject that our farming customers have been generously treated by us.

The decennial revision of the Bank Act was an important feature of the last session of Parliament. A most searching examination and discussion of every conceivable phase of banking as it affects this country resulted in a measure evidently framed with the object of meeting every reasonable requirement, and the Act is generally regarded as a piece of unusually good legislation. The most prominent of the new features are the provisions for the creation of a Central Gold Reserve, and the appointment of Auditors for the independent examination of banks.

In view of what has been accomplished in spite of so many adverse influences and taking into account the natural disposition to look at the bright side of things after having passed through a trying period, it is not easy to forecast what the coming year will bring. We are inclined to the thought that with the correction and adjustment of important matters now pending—such as the settlement of European political and financial difficulties and the attempts to bring about a return of peace and prosperity to unhappy Mexico (an important factor in the situation)—we shall see a revival of better conditions and our problems may be easily solved. We fear there will be a slow recovery, and great circumspection will be required before we again sail in smooth waters. We are likely to have an accumulation of idle money in the financial centres, but this will probably not have any appreciable effect on rates for general business for some time to come, because of the depression in all first class securities and the difficulty of disposing of the large amount awaiting a favorable market. On the other hand, trade has been prosperous and is fundamentally sound, and while considerable restriction must be expected, we are hopeful that the coming year will be one of reasonable prosperity.

The President then said:

President's Address.

At our last Annual Meeting for the first time we presented the information at our disposal regarding industrial conditions in Canada, and in the foreign countries in which we do business, in the form of an appendix to the ordinary Report to our Shareholders. The advantage of presenting the views of our chief officers regarding the various districts directly to the Shareholders, instead of compressing them into the addresses of the President or the General Manager, seemed clear, and we think the experiment has justified itself, and may be adopted hereafter.

A year ago the tide of expansion seemed still to be in flood, although in some quarters a check was either in plain sight or had here and there made itself felt. Money for certain purposes, notably in connection with real estate, was not so easy to obtain as in former years, yet little heed was apparently paid to the oft-repeated warnings of bankers and others who tried to forecast the future, although at the end of the year we must conclude that, after all, such warnings did have some beneficial effect. Clearly we have come through a time of difficulty in a most creditable manner, and we can look forward to the future cheerfully if the spirit of prudence which now characterizes our people remains unchanged at least until another good crop has been marketed. Much of that part of our expansion which went too far reminds one of the diseases through which the young have to pass. We are doubtless glad if they escape them entirely, but we have no reason to expect that they will be so fortunate. Some undue speculation in real estate, and some over-building in connection with public improvements, is inevitable amidst such astonishing growth and prosperity, and it would be foolish to expect anything else. We are now realizing more accurately the value of real estate, and through the process we are gaining an experience which is absolutely necessary to the foundations of a sound prosperity. The Western country as a whole will not again have to suffer from this particular ailment of young communities. We have repeatedly deplored the fettering of the country by the high rent-charge which inflated real estate values impose, and the unfortunate effect of such a rent-charge on the cost of living, and if there is now to be a pause in the upward movement of values there will in any event be a corresponding gain to all landless people.

Immigration has not yet been much checked by the curtailment of industry, indeed, except from the United States, there has been a large increase during the year. The British immigrants exceed in number the combined total of those from Europe and Asia, and very much exceed those from the United States. The largest increase as compared with the figures of previous years, however, is in the division which includes all countries except Great Britain and the United States. Here the increase, December figures being estimated, is 83 per cent. From Great Britain the increase is 8 per cent., while from the United States there has been a decrease of 17 per cent. There is thus a total increase of 66 per cent., as against 13 per cent. in the previous year. The total number of immigrants, December figures again being estimated, was 417,769, as compared with 396,804, the revised figures for 1912. The total for 1913 is made up as follows: British, 156,672; United States, 115,805; all other countries, 145,031. These figures are again eloquent in explaining the conditions of our foreign trade, the total of which for the year ending March, 1913, passed the billion mark for the first time, being $1,088,175,000. The imports were valued at $691,943,000, and the exports at $393,232,000, showing the largest excess of imports we had ever had, namely, $298,711,000. In the six months of the current fiscal year ending September, the complete figures for which have been published, there is some improvement in the proportion of exports to imports, and since September a greater improvement has taken place. As to our exports we are glad to report an increase during this period in every group, while there has been a decrease in many of the classes of imports.

We again draw attention to the large proportion of our imports, which consists of iron and steel in various forms, not only as raw materials, but as manufactured goods. The total value is about $140,000,000. May we once more point out that in the main these are articles used in building, or in equipping the country for its future, and that such purchases differ in effect from the import of foodstuffs and other rapidly perishing objects? At the same time we regret that the greater part of these iron and steel goods is not made in Canada now, as certainly will be the case in time. To the extent to which, by making these goods in Canada, we could have lessened the debt represented by the securities we have sold to pay for the difference between imports and exports, we have burdened ourselves for a long time to come. Of course, while workmen are busily engaged in other things, as they have been in Canada, it may be said that they are not available for more work in iron and steel, but as soon as railroad and other building lessens in volume, not in the aggregate but in proportion to other industries, we may hope that we shall be able to make in Canada the larger part of the iron and steel goods now imported. The increased output of our coal and iron mines, of our blast furnaces, and of our manufactories, which would result, would be of inestimable value to the country as a whole.

It was evident to any student of the situation a year ago that Canada, and other borrowing countries, would be put to a severe test during 1913. What we were not prepared for was that this country should be singled out as, in some measure, chief among the sinners of this kind. It is well, however, to remember that when money becomes scarce in the great markets of the world, the chief borrower is always told he has obtained too large a share and that he must stop borrowing for the time being. We had scarcely realized that Canada had become the chief borrower, or practically so, and somewhat resented being held responsible for a situation created by the combined financial requirements of all the active mercantile nations of the world. However, we have had our warning, and shall doubtless act upon it.

The fact remains that under all this pressure England has taken more of our securities this year than ever before. She has patiently remembered that we are obliged to finish the many sound and important enterprises, public, semi-public, and private, which had been undertaken before the financial clouds began to gather. That such enterprises will command the money of the investor in preference to loans for the rehabilitation of foreign countries devastated by war, or in preference to securities based upon new ventures, we need not doubt, and out of the vast sum available each year in the markets of Europe for new investments we may be sure of getting a generous share. We shall have to face a keener analysis of the nature of the security offered and the necessity of paying higher rates to the investor, and we shall do well to abstain during the next year or so from seeking to market any unnecessary securities, in order that we may do what we can to restore the balance between the investment resources of the world and the securities offered for sale. It is pleasing in this connection to see that the higher rates of interest offered have opened the markets of the United States to our securities to an extent quite unusual in the past.

Now that we have come to a slight pause in the growth of North America, it is well to bear in mind some of the more important things accomplished during this period of expansion. In Canada, in addition to growth in many other directions, we have in sight the completion of two new transcontinental railway systems, and while they have been building the existing system has successfully established its claim to rank as one of the foremost railway systems in the word. As regards the United States, the Panama Canal is practically finished; a tariff adjustment, the mere thought of which would have created panic a few years ago, has taken place, leaving the outlook in this respect a certainty instead of an uncertainty; a Currency and Banking bill, for which the country has been waiting about 20 years, has been passed, and a more reasonable attitude has been adopted towards the question of railroad rate adjustment. These are all events of the greatest importance which must profoundly affect the future of the two countries, and so far as Canada is concerned we may surely feel that we are now entering upon a new and more important phase of industrial life, for which our equipment is more adequate than ever before. No more positive evidence of the need and value of such equipment could be offered than the ease with which the present year's crop was harvested, moved, and warehoused. This has been done in a manner which would have seemed impossible only a few years ago, and the value of the smoothness and rapidity with which the work was handled can scarcely be estimated.

In connection with the opening of the Panama Canal, there will be held at San Francisco in 1915 the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, for the purpose of impressing upon the world the vast change in Re commerce likely to accrue from this new waterway. It is peculiarly gratifying to know that in this exposition Canada will take a very prominent place. It is proposed to erect a building covering 65,000 square feet, considerably larger than the Canadian building in any previous exposition, and in this space the natural products of our country in agriculture, horticulture, minerals, forestry, fish, game, etc., will be adequately displayed. We understand that it is the intention of the Government to make this one of the best exhibitions that has ever been placed before the public in the interest of this country.

We turn to the Clearing House returns with unusual interest at such a time as the present. There are now 22 Clearing Houses in Canada, but leaving out two with records for part of the year only and comparing the figures of the 20 in operation a year ago, we find that there have been ten increases and ten decreases during the year, as compared with increases in every Clearing House the previous year. The increase in the total is 1.37 per cent. as against 23.74 per cent. a year ago. Increases appear in the figures of seven Eastern and three Western cities, and decreases in those of eight Western and two Eastern cities. After the phenomenal increases in 1912 we may be glad that we have held our own in 1913. Montreal, Toronto, and Winnipeg, three cities which account for 72 per cent. of the total, all show increases.

The building permits of the four chief cities were as follows:

	1911	1912	1913.
Montreal ..	$14,880,000	$19,662,800	$27,000,000
Toronto	24,874,000	27,461,000	27,000,000
Winnipeg	17,800,000	20,475,000	15,631,000
Vancouver ...	17,653,000	19,300,000	10,452,000

We have made the comparison for three years in view of the contraction which has begun in some cities. Toronto has just kept even, and the decline in Winnipeg is trifling. The marked contraction is in Vancouver, and this no doubt represents conditions in many other Western cities. In Montreal, however, there is a great increase in value, although the number of permits is practically the same. The figures for Montreal always exclude large suburbs, the building in which last year is said to approximate $10,000,000 in value.

The comments of our Canadian, United States, and English officers upon the trade and financial situation are so clearly set forth that I hesitate to repeat in any form their conclusions. It may be well, however, at such a difficult time to sum up the case as concisely as possible. The world has two problems before it: (1) How to render available a supply of money sufficient for the carrying out of such physical betterments as must be financed by the sale of securities? (2) How to enlarge the credit facilities of the world for those shorter term transactions which consist of the manufacturing and distributing of perishable goods?

The first problem can only be comfortably solved if there is sufficient money saved—that is, profits withdrawn from active use in business, or income not expended by the owners, etc.—to provide for the necessary borrowings of those who are expending money on permanent improvements. For some years the world has been more extravagant than in any period known to history since Roman times, and this extravagance has been accompanied by a rise in prices which has made it very hard for those who are not extravagant, and who are the most regular in saving money in ordinary times, to put by the usual margin against life's contingencies. When securities cannot readily be sold because of a shortage in these savings, the money necessary for these short term transactions above referred to is used to some extent, but the strain produced by this cannot continue indefinitely, and such permanent improvements must lessen in volume until savings catch up and the equilibrium has been restored. The situation during the past year, however, has been aggravated by many other factors. In many countries, notably in Canada, where large sums are being expended on permanent improvements, there is a relatively small number of those who have savings to lend, and the wants of all the borrowers in all such countries have exerted upon the lending countries of the world a combined pressure greater than ever before known. On the other hand, to the extravagance of individuals represented by motor cars, palatial houses, social display, etc., beyond the capacity of their incomes, have been added colossal expenditures in war and on armaments, and for many purposes which are useless from an industrial point of view. Armaments are necessary as part of the police system of the world, but the money sunk in their creation is none the less a sad burden to the industrial world. We have thus come to a time when, coinciding, as they do with the hoarding of money by timid owners consequent upon the Balkan and Mexican troubles, the unusual requirements coming from an almost world-wide prosperity cannot be fully met. All business activities, therefore, throughout the world must be lessened in volume until things right themselves, which they will do quite speedily if people generally are willing to profit by the lessons to be drawn from recent experience.

The motion for the adoption of the report was then put to the meeting and carried. Amendments to the by-laws regulating the number of Directors of the Bank were passed, and Mr. T. Harry Webb, C.A., of Messrs. Webb, Reid, Hegan, and Callingham, Montreal and Winnipeg, and Mr. James Marwick, C.A., of Messrs. Marwick, Mitchell, Peat and Co., Montreal, were appointed Auditors of the Bank, their remuneration not to exceed the sum of $15,000 for the year. The usual resolutions expressing the thanks of the Shareholders to the Board of Directors and also to the staff of the Bank were unanimously carried. Upon motion the meeting proceeded to elect Directors for the coming year and then adjourned.

The scrutineers subsequently announced the following gentlemen to be elected as Directors for the coming year: Sir Edmund Walker, C.V.O., LL.D., D.C.L., Hon. George A. Cox, John Hoskin, K.C., LL.D., J. W. Flavelle, LL.D., A. Kingman, Hon. Sir Lyman Melvin-Jones, Hon. W. C. Edwards, Z. A. Lash, K.C., LL.D., E. R. Wood, Sir John M. Allan, H. J. Fuller, F. P. Jones.

At a meeting of the newly elected Board of Directors held subsequently, Sir Edmund Walker, C.V.O., LL.D., D.C.L., was elected president, and Mr. Z. A. Lash, K.C., LL.D., vice-president.

WHEN LOVE IS DEEPEST.

From 24 to 26 in Men and Women
From 30 to 34.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 15.—Psychological tests to determine at what particular age men and women love with deepest feeling, conducted at the University of California and at Hamburg University have resulted in the graphic showing of the "curve of love" by German scientists, but with no results of scientific value at Berkeley.

Professor Jackh, the eminent German scholar, has based his theories and plotted his "curve of love" on the love affairs in the lives of four hundred famous men and women, and said, in a scientific bulletin, that these cases are typical of man and woman kind the world over.

"There are no psychological proofs," said Professor Brown, "to show that man or woman may be capable of experiencing greater feelings, such as love, at any particular age, but observation would seem to establish the fact. The majority of men make better sweethearts between the ages of twenty-four and twenty-six, because at that age they are under the sway of romantic ideals. After this, he contends and especially after they have arrived at thirty, they love but little.

"On the other hand, women are most susceptible to their deepest affection at thirty to thirty-four years, long after man has ceased to be a love factor.

"With women, the age at which this highest capacity is revealed may be later—may even be after she has reached thirty, not because the romantic impulse comes to women so much later but because its first expression seeks a different outlet than that of man."

WHERE THE 'BULL' FLOURISHES

Apropos of his travel talk on "London," E. M. Newman, the traveler and lecturer, tells the following story:

"In the House of Commons no incident is greeted with heartier laughter than that of a member who, after an eloquent ovation plumps down on his silk hat on the bench behind him. A young member who had just made his maiden speech sat upon his new silk hat. There were roars of laughter. An Irish member arose and gravely said: 'Mr. Speaker, permit me to congratulate the honourable gentleman upon the happy circumstance that when he sat on his hat his head was not in it.'

"This remark upset the dignity of the House and the speaker called 'Order! Order!'"

SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

Two Women Tell How They Escaped the Surgeon's Knife by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Swarthmore, Penn. — "For fifteen years I suffered untold agony, and for one period of nearly two years I had hemorrhages and the doctors told me I would have to undergo an operation, but I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am in good health now. I am all over the Change of Life and cannot praise your Vegetable Compound too highly. Every woman should take it at that time. I recommend it to both old and young for female troubles." — Mrs. EMILY SUMMERSGILL, Swarthmore, Pa.

Baltimore, Md. — "My troubles began with the loss of a child, and I had hemorrhages for four months. The doctors said an operation was necessary, but I dreaded it and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The medicine has made me a well woman and I feel strong and do my own work." — Mrs. J. R. PICKING, 1260 Sargent St., Baltimore, Md.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

USING THE CASH REGISTER

"I must have lost some of it!" cried the bride frantically, emptying her handbag helter-skelter on the couch. "It can't be that $3.51 is all I have. There was a queer-looking man next to me in an elevator to-day, and maybe he was a pickpocket. Oh, here—no, that's only a customer's receipt on green paper. Why, Jack! what on earth do you suppose has become of all that money? You gave me f-f-fifty dollars this morning—"

"You pointed out to me," said her husband, "that you could save money if you could pay cash for household expenses instead of charging things! You said that Emily Krinks had cut down table expenses nearly $10 a week because she watched the sales and bought things cheap, and you wanted to do the same. It seems like a good idea. I didn't suppose you were going to lug the whole fifty dollars around with you, though!"

"Now, you're cr-ross!" moaned the bride, with tears in her eyes. "Why, I'm a lot more wrought up over it than you can possibly be! The money's simply been stolen or something!"

"What did you buy to-day?" asked her husband, getting out a paper and pencil.

The bride wrinkled her forehead, and thought deeply. "That foreign looking man with the lace called right after breakfast," she said. "Oh, Jack! you never saw such bargains in your life! Do you remember that perfectly beautiful luncheon cloth the Biltons had the night of their supper for us, Mrs. Bilton paid $100 for it abroad, and this man had precisely the same thing for $13. Why, I simply grabbed it! I never saw anything like it in my life! Emily called later and tried to tell me that the lace was cotton instead of linen, but you know how jealous she is! Of course, I don't intend to use household money for that, and I shall pay it back next month out of my own personal allowance, so of course that doesn't count. But I knew you wouldn't mind.

"Then a man came with some plants I ordered a few days ago. He drove up last week with a waggon load of the most wonderful palms and ferns and his prices were so reasonable! We needed a lot for the sun parlour, so I got some."

"Those anaemic looking things," inquired her husband. "He soaked you! I'll bet they'll be dead inside of two weeks!"

"You are just as disagreeable as you can be!" declared the bride, with pink spots on her cheeks. "I'd have you know I got $15 worth of plants for $8.50. You don't appreciate the fact that I am trying to save money! Men always like women better who are reckless and extravagant and just smile and look pretty! I suppose you'd prefer to have me go to a downtown florist and order what I wanted and let him send you a bill for $30 or so!"

"Not at all!" declared her husband, hastily. "I'm not cross. I'm just trying to help you to find out what become of your money!"

"I tell you that man was a pickpocket who was in the elevator with me!" the bride insisted. "He had the shiftiest eyes!

"Then a woman called soliciting for a home for poor children, and—no, I've forgotten the name of it or where it was, but that doesn't matter. With Christmas coming and those poor little things—she nearly made me cry, the story she told was so pathetic. Why, James Perkins Long! I never knew you had such an evil, suspicious nature! Of course she wasn't a fake! How do I know? How—I—I just know, that's all! You wouldn't understand because you're only a cold-blooded man! I gave her $5, and I'm glad of it, and if you are so stingy I'll pay that back out of my personal allowance, too!

"I went downtown with Emily and she bought a lot of kitchen stuff, and so I had to. I wasn't going to have her think I couldn't afford just as good and modern things as she could, though I don't know what the cook will say about the eggbeater. We have five now, but Emily said it was the only one worth considering. And there was a sale of copper wash boilers—yes, but some day we may have it done at home, and then you'll be glad I got a $12 wash boiler for $4.45!

"I paid for our lunch because I've heard Emily talk about women who were stingy. Then we ran in upon a sale of waists. You know one needs so many waists nowadays, and they were just giving them away, Jack! I got three at $6 a-piece! And then there were some little things, I've forgotten just what. But what on earth became of the rest of the money, I don't—"

"Some day when you feel real strong," said her husband meekly, "you add up this row of figures that I've set down. And I think we'd better go back to our system of charging things at the corner grocery and market."

"If you'd rather," said the bride, with a little sigh. "But it's horribly extravagant to employ that system, Jack! You pay so much more for things."

WAS TROUBLED WITH Weak and Dizzy Spells.
Heart Would Beat Something Awful.

Those feelings of weakness, those dizzy spells which come over people from time to time, are warnings that must not go unheeded.

They indicate an extremely weakened condition of the heart and a disordered state of the nerves. One dizzy spell may pass off, but eventually they will come frequently, and at the same time more serious.

Those who are wise will start taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills before their case becomes hopeless, for they have no equal for restoring the heart to its usual strength, and making the nerves firm and steady.

Mrs. Len. Kinney, Moose Mountain, N.B., writes:—"I was troubled with weak and dizzy spells, and my heart would beat something awful. I got so I had those spells every day. I got so I would try one medicine, and then another, but nothing did me any good until I got Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I can safely say they did me more good than anything I ever took, for I feel like a very different woman. My friends often ask me what I have been taking, and I always say 'Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.' I tell all my friends who say their heart troubles them, to take your pills."

MEXICAN FRUITS

Many Fruits Unknown to Most of Us Grow Wild There

Mexico is the fruit paradise. Fruits never heard of by the hundreds of millions who live in the temperate zones grow there in profusion, and Acapulco, on the Pacific slope, is perhaps the garden spot of it all. It is noted for the great quantity of indigneous varieties which grow spontaneously. No effort has been made towards extensive cultivation by the natives, much to the surprise of visitors from the North. With the exception of some indifferent cultivation of cocoanuts and bananas everything else grows wild and in luxuriance.

Of the fruits known in the United States this district alone produces bananas, oranges, pineapples, mangoes, limes and lemons. And here are a few more of other varieties never seen above the border line. toronjas, a species of grapefruit, the aguacate, papaya, guayabo, chico, zapote, mamey, llama, anone, granada, caimita, cartajena, meson, wamuche, jicame, tamarindo, nanche, huicon, icacos, almendra (almond), ciruela (plum), and undoubtedly many others.

But so indifferent are the natives to their possibilities that nothing is exported except the lime and its products.

Waste of Lumber

Enormous as is the amount of timber used in British Columbia, it is estimated that the annual growth is five times the annual lumber cut. It is figured also that several times the amount of timber is going to waste through natural decay, fires, and improper lumbering methods than is being used. In one year fire destroyed 160,000 acres, or about 200,000,000 feet of merchantable timber.

Western Hydro-Electric Power

In these days, when hydro-electric power is becoming so important a factor in industry, it is of interest to note that in the Western Provinces there are vast possibilities in this regard. In Manitoba there is water power which could produce 7,000,000 horse-power, and only 78,000 horse-power is being utilized. This is at Winnipeg, which has a municipally-owned hydro-electric plant, supplying light and power to consumers at cost.

ONE TO REMEMBER

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—George Dougherty says the scene was weird. That means that an imaginative person would have left picking at his lips, and sounding little frightened cries. For Dougherty was for years the New York head of the Pinks, and is now in charge of the city's detectives. His nerves are under complete control.

"I had to identify the victim of the trunk murder mystery," said Dougherty. "So I made use of the means at hand."

It was at night. The bare body of the murdered man was laid upon a rough stretcher in the open court of a police station in perhaps the most congested district of the east side. Arc lights flickered overhead. Their pale blue light fell upon a crowd of 20,000 that jammed the street and clamored in every tongue of Europe.

"Line 'em up," ordered Dougherty. "March 'em past, single file."

So the blue uniformed police pushed the curious into line. For hours they tramped on each other's heels in a steady stream. By Dougherty's side, at the dead man's head, stood a polyglot policeman, shouting through a megaphone in a dozen dialects:

"If you know him, tell us about it."

Dougherty says the man sounded just like a barker at Coney Island. An Irish policeman who had been a rouster on the subway kept shoving the marchers on.

"Move on!" he bellowed, mechanically. "Watch your step."

Of all his police experiences, Dougherty declares he will remember this the longest.

NAVY TO RULE NOW?

Von Tirpitz May Rule Germany Instead of Bethmann-Hollweg.

BERLIN, Jan. 17. — Last night's Vossiche Zeitung says that circumstantial reports are current in well-informed quarters that Germany is on the verge of a "naval Chancellorship" under Admiral Von Tirpitz. It is asserted that Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg has already tendered his resignation and that Foreign Secretary Von Jagow and the latter's Under-Secretary, Zimmerman, will leave office at the same time with him. Dr. Solf, the Colonial Secretary, is mentioned as likely to be the new Foreign Secretary.

This story, which of course must be taken with the utmost reserve, alleges that Von Bethmann-Hollweg will become Viceroy of Alsace-Lorraine in succession to Count Von Wedel, who will leave office in consequence of the failure of the civil government in the recent crisis in the conquered province.

The Vossiche Zeitung adds that the statements come from dependable authorities and in such categorical form that it cannot refrain from giving them immediate publicity, although it is unable to vouch for their accuracy.

The Kaiser had a conference on Thursday with the Chancellor, the War Minister, the Chiefs of the General Staff and his Military Cabinet.

TO DESERT BISLEY?

New Rifle Union Formed In Britain Because of Changes.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—A new Rifle Union was formed last night as a sequel to the important alterations recommended by the War Office in the conditions of shooting for the King's Prize and other competitions at Bisley. The War Office suggests a time limit of 20 seconds in deliberate firing at all distances up to 600 yards, and the introduction of rapid-firing and snap-shooting in King's Prize shooting. This, among other proposed changes, and the agitation for the abolition of the bullseye, has caused some unrest among the rifle clubs, many of whom fear that the changes would kill the interest in rifle shooting. The council of the National Rifle Association have not yet expressed any opinion, but members of the association have taken a part in the founding of the new union.

To Keep Skin Healthy, Youthful, Wrinkleless

Now that the social season is here, be especially careful to keep your skin in fine condition. You know how conspicuous complexion defects appear under the bright light of the drawing or ball room. Also how very evident are some makeups when similarly illuminated. I have myself discarded cosmetics entirely, using a process which gives far better results, and which leaves no trace on the skin. At night I smear on a thin coat of ordinary mercolised wax, washing it off next morning. This gradually absorbs the devitalised particles of surface skin; just as gradually the more youthful skin beneath comes forth, providing a complexion as clear, smooth and delicately tinted as a young girl's. Get an ounce of mercolised wax at your druggist's and try this remarkable treatment.

Remember, too, that wrinkles, even the finer lines, are not easily concealed in a brilliantly lighted room. You can quickly obliterate these hateful marks by bathing your face in a solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in witch hazel, ½ pt. And your face won't look sticky, as after using pastes.—Aunt Sally in Woman's Realm.

Bank Teller Shot.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 17. — Three young men, not one over 18 years old, shot and killed Henry E. Nickell, teller, at the Omaha National Bank early yesterday, seriously wounded an unidentified man, robbed a dozen persons and escaped with money and jewels worth $8,000. The murder and robbery occurred in a resort run by Hazel McVey.

Battered, But Still Afloat.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., Jan. 17.—The schooner Harry Miller arrived here yesterday. Her windlass and a pump were broken, she had lost one anchor, her sails were in tatters, everything movable was washed away and she was partly filled with water. Her crew was exhausted.

The Miller, bound from Perth Amboy for St. John, N.B., was caught in the gale off Nantucket Shoals Monday night.

GIVE PROPER CARE TO THE HAIR AND YOU WILL NEVER NEED A WIG

HERPICIDE

The man who wears a toupee does not like it, but has the courage of his convictions.

Nature never intended that the top of the head should be left entirely without protection. A bald head is very susceptible to contraction of colds and neuralgia. Wearing an artificial top piece counteracts this tendency, and, aside from the improvement in the personal appearance, is amply justified.

How much better it would have been had the man, now chronically bald and wearing a toupee, but realized earlier in life the approaching danger and devoted a little regular attention to his hair, which would have saved it.

There is a remedy which will absolutely prevent baldness. Loss of hair in nine cases out of ten is unnecessary, being due to dandruff and the germ that causes it. This germ must be destroyed ad the accumulations of dandruff checked. Then the hair will not fall out, but instead will grow naturally and luxuriantly.

Newbro's Herpicide is the remedy, regular applications of which oftimes roduces the most gratifying results. It has long been known as the "original remedy that kills the dandruff germ" and is absolutely dependable.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c. and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Herpicide applications may always be obtained at the better barber shops and hair dressing parlours.

Anyone desiring to try Newbro's Herpicide before purchasing a large bottle will receive a nice sample and booklet by sending 10c. in postage or silver to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

MEN RETURN TO WORK.

Reports From South Africa Indicate Failure of Strike.

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, Jan. 17.—Despatches from all parts of the union report that the strikers everywhere are returning to work and that the victory has been won by the Government in the struggle with the Federation of Trades arising originally out of the strike of the railway employes against the retrenchment policy of the companies.

The iron grip of the Premier, Gen. Louis Botha, was still in evidence yesterday morning at Johannesburg, where 62 members of the Typographical Union were arrested while meeting. The charge against them was contravention of the provisions of martial law. The men had just passed a resolution to resume work.

At Salt River railroad work shops just outside Cape Town all the men have returned, their leaders having declared the strike ended.

Must Starve Him Out.

SUMMERDALE, N.Y., Jan. 17.—A ruse to draw Edward Beardsley out of the barricaded farm house in which he has successfully stood off Sheriff Gust Anderson, of Chautauqua County and his deputies since shooting Poor Master Putnam Tuesday evening, failed early yesterday, and the sheriff announced that he would go back to the starving-out process.

Painful Isolation.

To avoid learning bad habits little Frank was being reared in the most exclusive manner. The little fellow often became lonely playing by himself. One day he was enjoying a stolen interview over the back yard fence with some other boys. "Why don't you come and play with us?" asked one.

"'Cause mamma won't let me associate with other boys," was the reply. "Why, she won't hardly let me associate with myself."—Lippincott's.

"No doubt of it," replied Mr. Cumrox. "She always gives some of the finest parties of the season, and if I weren't married to her I wouldn't be invited to them."—Washington Star.

Hindus Must Have $200.

OTTAWA, Jan. 17. — Action has been taken by the Government to prevent or limit the immigration of Hindus in Canada. They must show themselves in possession of $200. This is not a poll tax, as is the case of Chinamen, on whom there is a head tax of $500. The Japanese enter Canada freely under the terms of the Anglo-Japanese treaty.

More Drugs Are Used.

HAMILTON, Jan. 17. — A local chemist claims that the drug habit in this city has grown to alarming proportions. He says that the traffic is heaviest in the drug called heroin, which is morphine in another form. The police have announced that any druggist found selling the drug without a doctor's prescription will be heavily punished.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is Sign You Have Been Eating Too Much Meat

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid, which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralysed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds, and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralise acids in the urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure, and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

AFTER EFFECTS OF DREADED LA GRIPPE

Overcome by the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Throughout Canada la grippe (influenza) prostrates thousands of busy men and women every winter, wrecking their health and leaving behind numerous serious ailments. It is the after effect of la grippe that cause such widespread misery. Here is the reason. La grippe leaves behind it weakened vital powers, a shattered nervous system, impure and impoverished blood, and a low state of health that renders the sufferer extremely liable to rheumatism, indigestion, neuralgia and nervous disorders. You can avoid la grippe entirely by keeping the blood rich and pure through the occasional use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Or if, because you have not recognized your blood weakness, la grippe fastens its fangs upon you, its disastrous after-effects can be driven out by the same medicine. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills increase and enrich the blood supply, feed the starving nerves, and thus impart new health and new strength to enfeebled men and women. Mr. G. St. Clair, connected with the Sun Life Assurance Co., Halifax, N. S., says: "I was taken down with a heavy cold and la grippe and was confined to the house for some weeks. I had the best of medical attention, and although the doctor said I was cured I was still far from well, and did not have the vim necessary for a strenuous business life, and did not attend to either office or field work. Talking with a friend he said 'Why not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.' I decided to do so, and before I had used a box felt an improvement, and before long the Pills made me feel like a new man. I can't therefore say too much in favour of this valuable medicine, and hope that any who may read this and be in need of medical attention will be persuaded to try this truly wonderful medicine."

You can get these health-renewing Pills through any medicine dealer or by mail post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LUCKY ACCIDENTS.

That Led To Valuable Discoveries and Inventions.

Valuable discoveries have been made and valuable inventions suggested by the veriest accidents.

The origin of blue tinted paper came about by a mere slip of the hand. The wife of William East, an English paper maker, accidentally let a blue bag fall into one of the vats of pulp. The workmen were astonished when they saw the peculiar color of the paper, while Mr. East was highly incensed over what he considered a grave pecuniary loss. His wife was so much frightened that she would not confess her part in it. After storing the damaged paper for four years Mr. East sent it to his agent at London, with instructions to sell it for what it would bring. The paper was accepted as a "purposed novelty," and was disposed of at a big price. Mr. East was astralshed at receiving an order from his agent for another large invoice of the paper. He was without the secret, and found himself in a dilemma. Upon mentioning it to his wife, she told him about the accident. He kept the secret, and the demand for the novel tint far exceeded his ability to supply it.

The power of lenses, as applied to the telescope, was discovered by a watchmaker's apprentice. While holding spectacle glasses between his thumb and finger he was startled at the suddenly enlarged appearance of a neighboring church spire.

The art of etching upon glass was discovered by a Nuremberg glass cutter. By accident a few drops of aqua fortis fell upon his spectacles. He noticed that the glass become corroded and softened where the acid had touched it. That was hint enough. He drew figures on glass with varnish, applied the corroding fluid, then cut away the glass around the drawing. When the varnish was removed the figures appeared raised upon a dark ground.

Mezzotint owed its invention to the simple accident of the gun barrel of a sentry becoming rusted with dew.

The swaying to and fro of a chandelier in a cathedral suggested to Galileo the application of the pendulum.

The art of lithographing was perfected through suggestions made by accident. A poor musician was curious to know whether music could not be etched upon stone as well as upon copper. After he had prepared his slab his mother asked him to make a memorandum of such clothes as she proposed to send away to be washed. Not having pen, ink and paper convenient he wrote the list on the stone with the etching preparation, intending to make a copy of it at leisure. A few days later, when about to clean the stone, he wondered what effect aqua fortis would have upon it. He applied the acid, and a few minutes saw the writing standing out in relief. The next step necessary was simply to ink the stone and take off an impression.

The composition of which printing rollers are made was discovered by a Salopian printer. Not being able to find the pelt ball, he inked the type with a piece of soft glue which had fallen out of a glue pot. It was such an excellent substitute that, after mixing molasses with the glue, to give the mass proper consistency, the old pelt ball was entirely discarded.

The process of whitening sugar was discovered in a curious way. A hen that had gone through a clay puddle went with her muddy feet into a sugar house. She left her tracks on a pile of sugar. It was noticed that wherever her tracks were the sugar was whitened. Experiments were instituted and the result was that wet clay came to be used in refining sugar.

ARRESTED AT GATES.

Convict After Four Years In Prison Meets Detective With Warrant.

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 17. — Although papers have been made out for the extradition of Reginald Middleton, released from the penitentiary yesterday morning, after serving four years for forgery in Toronto, it is believed that he will put up a hard fight against it. Middleton was liberated yesterday morning, and was given quite a shock when he was met at the prison gate by Detective Archibald, of Toronto. He is wanted in Wellesley, Mass., on two charges of grand larceny. He had no idea that other charges would be made against him, and before leaving his cell asked to be allowed to do some shopping in the downtown stores before he was put on the train. Detective Archibald left with him on the noon train for Toronto.

Rescues Eight Sailors.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The commander of the Cunard liner Lusitania, which sailed from here on Wednesday for Liverpool, sent a wireless message to the line yesterday saying that at 6.30 o'clock yesterday morning, in latitude 43.12, longitude 50.30, the Lusitania had rescued the crew of eight men from the Nova Scotian schooner Mayflower. The schooner was abandoned and set on fire.

Marine records show that the British schooner Mayflower left Perth Amboy, N.J., on Dec. 30 for St. John, N.B., and touched at Booth Bay, Me., on Jan. 10. She could not possibly have been in the position indicated by the Lusitania yesterday. No other Mayflower of the schooner type is recorded.

STOMACH TROUBLES DUE TO ACIDITY

SO SAYS EMINENT SPECIALIST.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, wind, stomach-aches and inability to retain food, are in probably nine cases out of ten simply evidence that fermentation is taking place in the food contents of the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acids. Wind distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the fermenting food. Such fermentation is unnatural, and acid formation is not only unnatural, but may involve most serious consequences if not corrected. To stop or prevent fermentation of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and render it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, probably the best and most effective corrector of acid stomach known, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water immediately after eating, or whenever wind or acidity is felt. This stops the fermentation, and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments. Fermentation, wind and acidity are dangerous and unnecessary. Stop or prevent them by the use of a proper antacid, such as bisurated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist and thus enable the stomach to do its work properly without being hindered by poisonous gas and dangerous acids.—M. D. F.

Oratory and Seasickness.

According to A. C. Benson, it was the habit of the late Professor Sidgwick, when crossing the English channel, "to take his stand in some secluded part of the vessel and to pour out audibly and rhetorically his repertory of English verse, accompanying it with a good deal of emphatic gesticulation. I believe that the first experiment was successful and that he secured immunity from nausea. But he said the second time that he tried it he was interrupted by one of the officers with a message from the captain begging him to desist on the ground that some of the lady passengers were frightened by his behavior, being under the impression that he was mentally deranged. He complied with the request, and, deprived of its intellectual prophylactic, his brain succumbed to physical sensations."

A Dream Superstition.

I heard what was to me at least a new piece of superstition the other day, and when I think of the risks I've run all these years because I did not know of it my blood runs cold. I met a woman from Virginia in market, and the talk falling on dreams I recalled a most blood curdling nightmare I had had the night before.

"I must tell you what I dreamed last night," I said.

"Let me ask first whether it's a pleasant or an unpleasant dream?" said the lady from Virginia.

"Decidedly unpleasant."

"Then for mercy's sake don't tell it!" said she. "Never tell a bad dream on Saturday, for we say in Virginia:

Friday night's dream on Saturday told
Is sure to come true, no matter how old.

INDEPENDENT TELPHONE PROPOSED IN OTONABEE

Township Council is Now Working on the Scheme—First Canvass Has Been Encouraging—How it Works in Other Places.

MAY JOIN BELL LATER

The Otonabee Council have arranged for a canvass of the farmers of the township with a view to establishing a Municipal Telephone Association, Already seventy ratepayers have been approached and practically all of them have promised to become patrons of this proposed independent system.

Mr. Fox, a representative of the Independent Telephone Co., waited upon the Council on Monday and went into the details of orgaisation and equipment. As a result of the conference, and of the support promised by the canvass already made, it has been decided to proceed with the proposal. Every farmer will be visited, and it is believed that nearly everyone of the three hundred ratpayers will join the Otonabee Association.

Under Telephone Act.

There are in Ontario thirty or more municipalities that have taken advantage of the Local Municipal Telephone Act and are furnishing farmers with telephone service. The Act provides means whereby any municipality may furnish the necessary capital to construct a telephone system upon a petition from a certain number of ratepayers. This capital is repaid by the subscribers in ten annual instalments of principal and interest, the cost of operation and maintenance being also a charge upon the ratepayers who are 'phone users. In this way, the ratepayers who take a telephone obtain service at actual cost, while those who do not, are exempt from all liability in connection with the cost of the system.

Made a Beginning.

Otonabee Council has made a beginning. The number of ratepayers who presented the petition for a municipal telephone system was far in excess of the required number. Now, it remains to find out how many of the ratepayers will become subscribers, and it is for this purpose that the canvass is proceeding.

The following is a list of a few of the municipalities in which this system is employed, showing the number of subscribers and the total cost per subscriber:

	Subscribers.	Cost.
Brussels 700		$88
Tuckersmith 500		$66
Maidstone 247		$44
Rochester 240		$41
Sandwich South 219		$65
Gorfield North 206		$43

Divide the total cost by 10 and you have the annual assessment to subscribers for ten years in repayment of cost of the system. These payments would cease at the end of ten years, the original having been wiped out. The original cost may vary with the details of the system installed. However, it is claimed that the amount would be an inconsistent sum either way. A central would be needed, but this can be made in accordance with the demands of the system and the wishes of the subscribers.

LANDLORDS WILL FEEL THE PINCH

Will Carry Tenants Who Are Unable to Meet Their Rents—Result of Improvidence

SHOULD HAVE SAVED

Among those who will feel the financial pinch are the landlords of the City. There is every indication that the number of tenants who will have to be "carried" until spring, either entirely or partially, will be much larger than in recent years. From what can be learned cases of this kind are already fairly numerous and some of the tenants will have anywhere from three or four months' back rent to pay when the present situation clears.

Said one landlord this morning: "The tenants who will be unable to meet their rent payments are those who live from hand to mouth, from one pay envelope to the next one. During the summer they were all working but so improvident are they that they did not save a dollar for winter; and now you have to carry them or turn them out. Those who you know to be honest you feel safe in carrying, but with others it is likely that many landlords would be just as far ahead if they turned them out. There is no reason why property owners should be forced to carry people of this kind, and, as frequently happens, never get a cent for the arrears."

Another man spoke along similar lines and it is likely that this condition prevails more generally than is supposed. If husbanding is a particular quality of bees there are many heads of families who might take a lesson from them. Likewise a little foresight might be helpful to many.

CASE IN THE DIVISION COURT

Argument is Being Heard by His Honour Judge Huycke

The case of the Ontario Wind Engine Company of Toronto and John P. Payne of Warsaw iis being argued to-day in the Division Court before His Honour Judge Huycke. The plaintiffs were represented by Mr. J. V. McElderry of Peterborough, and the defendant by A. G. Langley of Lakefield. The case involves a claim for a sum of money alleged to be due the plaintiff for services rendered. Mr. Payne was appointed agent for the defendant Company in March, 1911, and sold a number of wind-mill outfits for them, as well as pumps, and fittings. The plaintiffs claimed that he owed them a balance of $59. On Mr. Payne's behalf it was charged that the Company had failed to allow him commissions to which he was entitled and to give credit for some returned goods and money paid, and that the balance of accounts was in reality in his favour. A number of witnesses were examined and a pile of exhibits, consisting of letters, statements, cheques and drafts were put in and the case will be concluded to-day.

Case Was Withdrawn

Charge Against Norwood Hotelkeeper Was Not Pressed

NORWOOD, JAN. 17.—The case against David King of Norwood who was charged with selling cigarettes to a minor, was this morning withdrawn, owin to lack of sufficient evidence. The charge was laid by Constable I. Puffer and was to have been heard before Mr. J. L. Squires, Justice of the Peace.

A REAL ESTATE CORNER GROWING

Five Houses Located Near Corner of George and Charlotte Streets

The vicinity of the George and Charlotte Street corner is rapidly becoming a real estate centre. Not so long ago you couldn't find a "land" office within rods of the district, but now there is a group of them within a few doors of each other. Here is the list: A. N. Allison, Andrew Brown, J. A. Gibbs, C. Blewett, on Charlotte Street, and H. McCannon on George Street. This tendency of firms in the same business locating in the same district obtains in every big city.

100,000 MEN MAY BE LOCKED OUT IN ENGLAND

Employees of the Building Trades in Mother Country Will Refuse to Sign Agreement

TROUBLE IS LIKELY

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Jan. 17. (Special cable.)—A grave struggle is rapidly approaching its crisis in the London building trade. The employers, through their organization, the Master Builders' Association, recently presented the men with an ultimatum, demanding that they should sign an agreement to work peaceably with the non-unionists, and in event of refusal to be fined twenty shillings, deducted from the wages due. This agreement must be signed before January 26th.

Representatives of the five unions affected met last night and unanimously agreed to advise the men to refuse They say there is no question that the men will solidly follow the unions' direction. The employers will retort with a lockout of over one hundred thousand men, and fully another fifty thousand will be thrown out of work.

The employers say that they have been driven to this course by constant breaches of agreement on the part of the men, there having been twenty-strikes in the building trade in the last seven months. The men say that the employers are attempting to smash unionism.

PRAISE FOR GENERAL BOTHA

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 17.— (Special cable.)—The South African government's drastic suppression of the railroad strike is vigorously criticized here, especially in labour circles, where Botha's high-handed methods seem worse than those of darkest Russia. It is not likely, however, that the Imperial government will interfere with the Dominion autonomy so far as to make any question about it. In official circles credence is given to the stories that intertwined with the strike was a plot by the syndicatists to overthrow British authority in South Africa and make a republic. For his sharp dealing with this alleged plot, Botha, who was the former Boer Republican leader, is praised for his loyalty to the British empire.

LOCAL PEOPLE COMMUNICATED WITH "WIDOW"

Client of Mr. G. W. Hatton Was Among Those Who Were Figuring on Cheap Automobile

SWINDLER ARRESTED

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—E. R. Kiser, a bald-headed man of fifty, known as the "mail order widow," was held to the Federal Grand Jury yesterday. He is charged with operating mail swindles in Chicago, Pittsburg and other cities, including Edwardsville, Ill. He was arrested in Edwardsville on Monday on a clew given by George Andrews of Milton, Ont., who had entered into correspondence with him for the purchase of an automobile.

Kiser represented himself, it is said, as "Mrs. Elizabeth E. Walker, a widow of Edwardsville," who desired to sell two automobiles left her by her late husband.

The "widow's" letters offering the machines said: "I am a native of Canada and my late husband's estate is all in Canada." The letters said the cars were worth at least $3,500 each, but "Mrs. Walker" would accept a cash payment of ten per cent. and the car would be sent on approval.

The letter aroused Mr. Andrew's suspicions. He sent it back to the Postmaster at Edwardsville with a request that the "widow" be investigated.

Among letters received by Kiser and taken by Postoffice Inspector Otto, was one from Channing M. Doherty, manager of the Maritime Dredging & Construction Co., of St. John west, N. B. The letter stated that a draft for $375 was sent to Mrs. Walker through the Bank of Nova Scotia in Chicago.

Other letters in the bundle were from Samuel Lukes of Bradford; Graul & Reiner and Jacob Kaufman of Berlin; W. F. Bald of Port Elgin, and F. C. Sutherland & Company, Toronto.

At the time of his arrest Kiser had in his possession fifty unopened letters believed to contain cheques ranging from $50 to $400. Most of the letters were registered.

Several local people including a client of Mr. G. W. Hatton, were in comunication with the "widow" in regard to this matter, although The Examiner has not heard of any money having been sent.

SIX LITTLE CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH

Terrible Catastrophe in Coboconk Home When Over-heated Stove Set Fire to Building.

THE MOTHER ESCAPED

COBOCONK, Jan. 17.—Four girls and two boys, all between the ages of two and twelve years, were burned to death early this morning in the destruction of the home of Mrs. Weatherby, near here. The children were trapped in the rooms asleep. Mrs. Weatherby escaped by jumping from a window, after making an ineffectual attempt to rescue her bairns. She is terribly burned and bruised. The fire started from an overheated stove.

CHARGED WITH SERIOUS OFFENCE

John McClay, a Local Man Accused of Supplying Drugs for Illegal Purposes

REMANDED TO-DAY

John McClay, a local man, faced a serious charge in the police court this morning. He was accused of supplying drugs to Margaret Dale, a waitress in one of the local hotels, for an illegal purpose.

McClay was defended by Mr. V. J. McElderry, and Chief Thompson looked after the interests of the Crown.

"Are you guilty or not guilty?" asked the Magistrate.

But before the defendant or his counsel could reply the Chief said:

"I am not ready to go ahead with the case, your Worship."

So at the request of the Chief, the prisoner was remanded for a week.

Benjamin Hobson was charged with creating a disturbance while drunk near the Victoria Park. He pleaded guilty, but on the promise to abstain hereafter from any indulgence in spirituous beverages, he was allowed to go to his home in Madoc.

CITIZENS MEETING WILL BE HELD

In the City Council Chamber this Evening

A triple meeting, in which the City Council, the Board of Works and the citizens will participate, will be held this evening in the City Council chamber, commencing at 7.30 o'clock. The object of the meeting is to press upon the Government the claims of Peterborough to consideration in the matter of filling the Senate vacancy caused by the death of the late Senator Cox.

Grand Hotel Changes Hands

Mr. K. W. Schmuck, of Toronto, Has Taken Possession of George Street Hostelry

The Grand Hotel, 295 George Street, has again changed hands, this time the buyer being Mr. K. W. Schmuck, of Toronto. Mr. Schmuck has been negotiating with the former proprietor, Mr. P. O. McCrohn, for the purchase of the hotel, for some time, but the deal has been closed, and the new owner took possession this morning.

Since Mr. McCrohn has had charge, the hotel has shown a great deal of improvement, and received a better patronage than formerly. The new proprietor promises still further improvements to the hotel, and the method of running it. Stocktaking occupied to-day.

In Toronto, Mr. Schmuck was the manager of the Somerset Hotel, at the corner of Church and Carleton Streets.

Hold Out No Hope For Men

But Frantic Search is Being Made for Lost Submarine Boat

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PLYMOUTH, ENG., Jan. 17.—While the Admiralty held out no hope for the survival of the eleven men somewhere at the bottom of Plymouth Sound in the lost submarine, the frantic search for A7 was resumed at dawn to-day. Every available craft in the harbour hovered about and lent assistance, but the submarine is under such a heavy weight of water that rescue seems impossible. She was equipped for submersion only twelve hours, and for that reason the naval authorities fear all the crew are dead.

BANK OF COMMERCE.

The annual report of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, appearing on page six of this issue is another chapter added to a long story of the progress and successful operation, continued strengthening in material resources, and in public confidence of one of the foremost banking corporations on the continent. The annual report of the directors shows as a result of the year's operations, net profits of $2,992,951.10. Adding to these the balance brought forward for last year, there was a total of $3,764,520.98 for distribution. A million and a half was devoted to paying dividends at the rate of ten per cent.; $300,000 was devoted to payment of two bonuses at one per cent., $500,000 was written off bank premises; the pension fund was re-inforced by $80,000, and the rest account was strengthened by one million dollars, leaving a balance of $384,520.98 to be carried forward.

The general statement shows a strong and healthy condition of the standing of the bank; and expansion is the rule. With branches and agencies in five countries—altogether, 373—a large number of new branches were opened last year in Canada. Although this great bank holds a leading position in the financial world and wields a very wide influence. The annual addresses of the general manager and president are regarded as classics in financial literature. The Peterborough interests of the bank are watched over efficiently by the local manager, Mr. W. H. Dunsford.

MR. COX AS SENATOR

Hon. Senator Lougheed, Conservative leader in the Senate, pays the following tribute to the late Mr. Cox as a Senator:

"Senator Cox was appointed to the Senate in 1906, and since that time I have known him intimately. His services in the Senate were of invaluable value, particularly in the work of the more important committees when great financial and business questions were involved.

"His experience and judgment were recognized by his fellow Senators as of the highest order. Although he was recognized as one of the big financiers of Canada, and represented interests such as few men control, he was always most unassuming and most readily accessible to any and all who might seek his advice or his assistance.

"His personal kindnesses and his philanthropy were distinctive features of his career. He had unlimited faith in the future of Canada, and gave evidence of this in the large and important undertakings upon which he had entered. His loss will not only be left by the Senate of which he was a most esteemed and distinguished a member, but by the country at large."

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

SATURDAY, JAN. 17, 1914

PARTY MAJORITY.

The achievement of a Conservative majority in the Canadian Senate is the momentarily dominating policy of the Borden Government, which being realized, would in effect mean no Senate at all. It would have no revisory effect, it would simply be a re-registering body of the actions of the Commons. But the trick is not so easily turned. With the removal of Hon. Senator Cox and his place filled by a Conservative (from Peterborough we hope), there will still be a Liberal majority of 21 in the Senate of 87 members and, with the contemplated addition of nine members from the West, always providing the present Senators will welcome the new members, the Liberals would still have a majority of twelve in the Senate.

A SENATORSHIP FOR PETERBOROUGH.

Mayor Buller has issued a notice calling a public meeting in the Council Chamber to-night, to consider and urge the claims of Peterborough, to supply an occupant of the seat in the Senate made vacant by the removal by death of Hon. Senator Cox. The Mayor can well take this course without being accused of partisanship. The Examiner has frequently urged, on public grounds, the claims of Peterborough to representation in the Senate, and has chided the Borden Government for overlooking the claims of this City and county in this regard. Other vacancies have been filled and Peterborough should not be longer overlooked. On the comparatively low grounds of party fidelity this riding deserves recognition. And it deserves more recognition on account of the importance of the city, one of the most thriving, enterprising and substantial of the minor cities of the Dominion. Peterborough's claims to a Senatorship are overdue for recognition. The Conservative Government, in the early nineties, had a splendid chance and a real duty in regard to rewarding with a senatorship the late Mr Stevenson for his sacrifices in keeping the party in the fighting and winning line. But, with the proverbial ingratitude of governments, his claims and the claims of the riding were overlooked. Now there is another chance to recognize Peterborough. Though, of course, any Senator from Peterborough would be opposed, politically, to the Examiner, we place loyalty to the city first, and on this ground urge the appointment of a Senator from Peterborough. The main point from the citizens' point of view, irrespective of politics, is pushing the claims of the city to A senator. The selection of THE senator will be a matter of party concern; but no matter, so long as even ordinary good judgment is used. If the new senator is a Peterborough man he will be a good man, from the civic point of view, even though he may be a Conservative.

THE CONSERVATORY ORCHESTRA.

As the St. George's Society vindicated the claim of Peterborough to the possession of abundant talent in the realm of choral music; so the Conservatory orchestra last night demonstrated the possession of abundant talent in the instrumental department of musical art. And both are examples of what may be accomplished not only in music, but in other even more practical ways, by harmonious co-operation. The splendid success of last night's concert was brought about by two chief factors, the intrinsic excellence of the orchestra itself, and the co-operation of the citizens, representative of the clerical, professional, financial and commercial interests of the city. Though other talent was introduced to give balance and variety to the programme, the orchestra was a host in itself, and without assistance would have presented a most enjoyable programme. Mr. Gliddon deserves much credit for bringing together so strong a band of players, so capable, individually, and, collectively, so amenable to training, and with the enthusiasm necessary to submit to the hard work involved in attaining ordinary, not to say extraordinary, excellence. Peterborough is a musical city, and all that is needed to secure good and well attended concerts, given by and under the auspices of local musical talent, is concerted action on the part of musicians, and the public interested in good music. If, in music and other things, too, we work together, there is no end to the desirable things we can accomplish.

In view of the fact that funds might be used to advantage, to relieve adequately some of the too-much destitution, which unemployment and severe weather bring, would it not be a good thing to do to give a benefit concert with admission placed at popular prices, to be given by voluntary local musicians. It might be that the St. George's Society and the Conservatory Orchestra could furnish two or three numbers each, and we have capable vocal and instrumental soloists, who combined, could present a programme, which in addition to its intrinsic excellence, would by force of its appeal in a good cause, attract a large audience in the interests of bringing relief and comfort to many, now by force of circumstances and conditions, sorely in need of the oil and wine of their Good Samaritan fellow citizens.

THE ONTARIO PREMIERSHIP.

With Sir James Whitney's condition of health remaining as it is, there is little hope that he can ever again take up the reins of leadership; so the question of the leadership of the Conservative party in Ontario becomes a real consideration. Gossip has placed many persons in the Premier's chair, but these premature allocations have been so eliminated that the men in the running are cut down to two, Hon. Mr. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, Minister of Prisons, and Hon. Adam Beck, Minister of Power. These two popular candidates for the position are sharp opposites, especially in regard to what they personally represent. Mr. Beck as Minister of Power, tutelary deity of the Hydro-Electric, is essentially the sworn enemy of corporations, which so many Conservative journals hold as evil, only evil and that continually. Hon. Mr. Hanna on the other hand is the guardian angel—if that term can be applied to so much "slimness"—of corporations. He is the Canadian representative, the counsel, adviser and friend of the Standard Oil Octopus, whose tentacles are fastened everywhere, and are by no means so harmless as their oleaginous title would suggest. When the Steel Trust of the United States wanted to strike the Soo industries when they were down and get their hands on them; when the Ross Government proposed to come to their rescue by advancing a loan, Hon. Mr. Hanna, as the friend of the Steel Trust, was in the forefront of the fight against saving the Soo industry to Ontario; and if Mr. Hanna had had his way, the great works at the Soo would have been in the hands of the United States Steel Trust. Mr. Hanna, though he is the cleverest member of the Whitney Cabinet, is simply a corporation lawyer, and the admirers of Mr. Beck, who is the official prosecutor or persecuter of corporations, can't see why, Mr. Hanna's claims for the leadership should be entertained. They want Mr. Beck for leader, but are afraid that the glory of the premiership may dim the electric light halo that now encircles his head. If Mr. Beck has made the assured success of Hydro-Electric that is claimed for him, even though some sneaking Grits originated the idea, he might be released to play the comparatively easy role of premier. If Hydro-Electric is able to stand alone, Mr. Beck, who has a wide popularity will make a dangerous competitor to Mr. Hanna in the race for the premiership.

WHY SO MANY MEN FALL IN LOVE WITH THEIR NURSES

A Woman's Disposition Meets in the Sick Room its Severest Possible Test—There Is No Mystery in the Prevailing Tendency of Men to Carry Off the Best Trained Nurses—Make Splendid Wives.

Why do so many men fall in love with their nurses? Why are so many illnesses followed by the marriage of the patient and the woman who attended him? These questions have lately been made the subject of an interesting discussion in various publications devoted to the medical and nursing professions.

One physician who took an active part in the attempt to answer them contends that the mere fact of a man's helpless dependence upon his nurse makes him unusually susceptible to falling in love with her. Outside of the doctor the nurse is often the only person the sick man sees for weeks or months. On her skill and devotion to duty depends the length of his stay in bed, and often his life itself. How natural, if the patient be a single man, that his regard for the nurse to whose tender, patient care he owes so much should ripen from gratitude into friendship and finally into love.

It is also pointed out that some of the finest types of womanhood are to be found in the nursing profession. A nurse's arduous duties demand good health and physical strength, and to these robust qualities she frequently adds comeliness and even beauty. Nowadays many nurses are recruited from families of wealth and refinement—young women who take up the work out of love for it, and not because they are obliged to earn their own living. During his long wearisome days in bed, with little to occupy his mind, the patient has the best of opportunities to observe whatever personal charms his nurse may possess.

Another point which should not be overlooked is the fact that a woman's disposition meets in the sickroom its severest possible test. If she finds it possible to make herself congenial to a man during the irritating stress of his illness, she is more likely to make him a good wife than a woman who has never had to deal with him when pain and suffering have unstrung his nerves.

"There is absolutely no mystery in the prevailing tendency of men to carry off the best trained nurse they can find," says a hospital superintendent, who has had the opportunity of watching many of these sick bed romances. "We may even contemplate the possibility if a completely eugenic epoch when every bride, along with her marriage certificate will be called upon to produce her hospital training school diploma.

"The trained nurse rarely, if ever, proves the undesirable clinging vine type of a wife. She does not lean on a man when he is unable to hold himself up. She never contributes her hysteria to his brain fag. She is self-reliant and self-contained. This is the kind of women who are wanted in this age, and I therefore believe the man who selects his nurse for a wife is showing excellent judgment.

It is claimed that the percentage of happy marriages is higher among nurses than with any other class of women.

This is due to the fact that in the quiet of the sick room the nurse and her patient have a better opportunity to find out whether they are congenial to one another than other lovers do, and also to the excellent dowry of good health which the nurse brings to her husband. The nurse has been trained to keep her nerves well in hand, and she is therefore not so liable to the fits of bad temper which lead so many wives to the divorce court.

RINGWORM ABOUT CHILD'S HEAD

In Several Places. Blister Raised Up, Swollen and Scaly. Hair Fell Out. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured in Four Weeks.

Lorne, Que. — "My little son, aged nine years, was afflicted with ringworm in several places about his head. The ringworm began with a few pimples and as it grew worse it was one dark colored blister raised up and swelled. It was kind of scaly. The worst place was behind his right ear. It was about the size of a silver dollar, dark and swelled, the worst kind I ever saw. It used to pain so he could not rest. It looked very badly. His hair fell out gradually.

"Finally I sent for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used to take real hot water and the Cuticura Soap and that used to clean it off. Then I would put the Cuticura Ointment on the affected part. There was pus in the sores and the Cuticura Ointment drew that out and healed at the same time. We saw the Cuticura Soap and Ointment were very good so I got some more and it was four weeks from the time I started using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment till he was completely cured." (Signed) Mrs. Thos. Bagley, May 26, 1913.

STRIKING CHARACTERISTICS OF SIR THOMAS SHAUGHNESSY

His Rise in the Service of the C. P. R. Was Very Rapid---Was Born in Milwaukee of Irish-American Parentage.

The quality of imgaination is revealed in the whole history of the whole history of the Canadian Pacific Railway. There was imagination in the outlook of Joseph Howe, the father of responsible government in British North America, when he declared at Halifax—over sixty years ago:

"I am neither a prophet nor a son of a prophet, yet I will venture to predict that in five years we shall make the journey hence to Quebec and Montreal, and home through Portland and St. John by rail, and I believe that many in this room will live to hear the whistle of the steam engine in the passes of the Rocky Mountains and to make the journey from Halifax to the Pacific in five or six days."

There was imagination in the states who engaged with British Columbia to build a railway along the north shore of Lake Superior, across the unsettled western territories, and through the mountains to the Pacific. There was imagination in George Stephen and Donald Smith, who organized the syndicate by which the great project was achieved. There was imagination in the masterful mind of Sir William Van Horne, who ruled during the difficult era of construction, and neither less power nor less vision have been displayed by Sir Thomas Shaughnessy.

Born at Milwaukee in 1853, of Irish American parentage, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy had his early training on American railways. From 1869 to 1882 he was in the service of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway, of which Mr. W. C. Van Horne was General Manager. He so impressed himself upon Van Horne that he was asked to come to Canada when his old chief became General Manager of the Canadian Transcontinental highway. From the office of General Purchasing Agent for the Company he was advanced in 1891 to that of Vice President, and in 1890 he succeeded Van Horne as President. His power lies in his great knowledge of the affairs of the company and in the respect and confidence which he commands. He does not shrink from concession in order to remove local grievances and satisfy legitimate public demands. He recognizes that the Company has obligations which should be fulfilled, and that the progress and prosperity of Canada depends greatly upon the adequacy and efficiency of the services which the railway provides. Thus many millions have been expended in enlarging terminal facilities in the commercial centres in double tracking, in stimulating agriculture, in building branches, in improving grades in the mountains, in irrigating dry areas, in establishing industries, and in providing additional equipment for moving the Western grain to the head of navigation.

Between the Company and its workmen very satisfactory relations exist. The brotherhoods of railway employees are freely recognized. There is sympathtic consideration for demands for higher wages and better living conditions. There is full confidence among the Company's workmen than any deadlock in negotiations between the unions and the officers of the Company can be satisfactorily overcome by an appeal to Sir Thomas Shaughnessy.

The great body of shippers are as loyal to the Company as are its own staff. It is not suggested that grievances do not arise or that the Company is not vigilant to assert its own interests. There is continual agitation over freight charges. There are protests from individuals and communities against its methods and policies. There are journals which continually assail the Company, and forever demand fresh legislation to curb its power and regulate its charges. But the tradition and the policy of the Company is to give prompt and efficient service, and to treat passengers with consideration and courtesy. Hence whether charges be high or low, there is appreciation among shippers of the service provided. So there is gratitude among passengers for the attention which relieves the weariness of long journeys by rail.

There is a general feeling that the Company, as represented by its President and Board, is a strong fortress of national and Imperial sentiment. No other enterpise has done so much to establish and maintain the credit of Canada. It has assisted materially in settling the Western Provinces. It was active in attracting immigration when the Government services were inactive and efficient. It has kept trade within Canadian channels and developed ports on the Atlantic and on the Pacific. It has improved steamship communication with Great Britain and with the Australasian communities. It may be that this was in the direct interest of the Company. It may be that by attracting immigration the value of its own landed estate was enhanced. It may be that its sea fleets were the natural complement of its land services. But it still is true that the Company has been loyal to the objects for which it was created, and that the genius and energy of its management have stimulated national feeling and strengthened national feeling and strengthened national self-confidence. There is no doubt that if the Company should attempt to abuse its power it could exercise perhaps a dangerous influence in Canadian affairs. But Sir Thos. Shaughnessy does not believe that the Railway should control any party or that any party should control the railway. It is long since the Company depended upon the public treasury. Indeed the strength of its position is attested by its acquiescence in liberal gifts of cash to its younger rivals. Doubtless, if necessary, it could not act with vigour in its own defence, but no other consideration is likely to draw the Company into the quarrels of parties.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy dislikes publicity and loves simplicity. He speaks with ease and fluency, but shuns the platform. No one doubts that he directs the administration and determination the policy of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and if the era of operation and expansion has been at least as remarkable as the era of construction, to him chiefly belongs the credit and the honour.

READING AND ITS PLEASURES

(BY F. M. DELA FOSSE)

THE PLEASURES OF READING .. LITERATURE—PART TWO DR. SMILES' WORKS.

Dr. Samuel Smiles, in his excellent preface to his well-known work, "Self-Help," explains in a few words the origin of the book. He says that it was written to illustrate what cannot be too often urged, "that youth must work in order to enjoy, that nothing creditable can be accomplished without application and diligence—that the student must not be daunted by difficulties, but must conquer them by patience and perseverance, and that above all he must seek elevation of character, without which capacity is worthless and worldly success is naught."

These are trenchant words, and coming from one who grew venerable in the pursuit of theological and other knowledge and who never wrote anything that was not for the uplifting of humanity and for the inculcating of a spirit of true manliness in his countrymen, they are deserving of the fullest recognition.

The books by which this author is best known are his "Lives of the Engineers" and the "Self-Help" series, comprising four books—Self-Help, Duty, Character, and Thrift. To the average young man these titles are apt to suggest a certain amount of dryness and indigestibility, but he can be confidently assured that the lessons they teach are couched in a form that renders them of entrancing interest. No public or private library should be without them, for there are none that are so well calculated to fire the heart of youth with the ambition to succeed in life and become a worthy citizen of a great Empire.

Was Appointed Minister.

This article is written not so much for the purpose of dissecting the contents of Dr. Smiles' works, as to bring out the importance of virtues of which they treat. That they are of the greatest value and well worthy of attainment is attested by all men of mark and learning. Emerson, the great American philosopher, has said that "men of character are the conscience of the society to which they belong," and Martin Luther that "the prosperity of a country depends, not on the abundance of its revenue nor on the strength of its fortifications, nor on the beauty of its public buildings—but on its men of education, enlightenment, and character." However, it does not require sage aphorisms and trite allusions to show us how all-important character is in any department of life.

We know that when Chatham was appointed Minister, his influence was felt through all the ramifications of office, and when the dissolution of the Union seemed imminent and Washington desired to retire into private life Jefferson wrote to him urging him to continue in office. "The confidence of the whole Union," he said, "rests on you." So great is the influence of character that some have achieved their greatest conquests by it after their death. "Never," says Michelet in his "History of Rome," "was Caesar more alive, more powerful, more terrible, than when his old and worn-out body, his withered corpse, lay pierced with blows." On the very day of the murder of William of Orange by Delft the Estates of Holland resolved "to maintain the good cause, with God's help, to the uttermost without sparing gold or blood," and they kept their word. Mere intellect alone can accomplish little if the moral purpose is absent. Cleverness is nothing, genius is nothing in comparison with the possession of a good character, for while the one may command admiration, it is the latter attribute alone that can acquire and keep respect. Nobody in his heart of hearts respects the millionaire simply because he is a millionaire. It is only when he shows himself worthy of being the owner of his riches that he attains his place as a respected son of the state.

A Despicable Product.

Colonel Francis Chartres, one of the most despicable products of the 18th century, who had grown rich by infamy and ended his miserable existence on the scaffold, well knew the value of character. "I would not give one farthing for virtue," he once exclaimed to Lord Chesterfield, "but I would give ten thousand pounds for a character." When asked why, he replied, "because I could make a hundred thousand by it."

This article is not meant as a preachment or an attempt to pose as a professional moralist, but if these lines should happen to be read by some parent or guardian anxious to instill useful lessons into the minds of young people under his care some good will have been accomplished. The whole series is in the Public Library, and has been there for years looking reproachfully down on well-nigh a generation of contemptuous or unthinking readers. It often strikes me as strange that they are so neglected. Perhaps it is because they belong to a past generation of literature and present day readers are strangers to their merits. My first introduction to them was when I was living in the heart of the backwoods, and I shall never forget the influence that the reading of "Self-Help" then exerted on my mind. I think I can say in all truthfulness and sincerity that not all my years of schooling nor the precepts and maxims imbibed at home produced so strong an effect on me as the examples placed before me therein. My advice to every young man is to obtain and read every one of the volumes I have named. I am satisfied that there will be very few indeed who will not get so fascinated with their charm as to read them to the end, and what is more, profit by them. Among the charges that can be brought against the tremendous output of fiction of the present day, I think, is the fact that it has served to draw away the attention of readers from more helpful literature. Books like those of Dr. Smiles had more chances of attention in the days of the three-volume novel than they have now. And it is not to the credit of any reading community that such books should be passed over so completely in the pursuit of short stories in fiction, even if the age is confronted with newer problems in which hustle, unrest, and lack of time necessitate the fabrication of this brand of literature.

ENJOYABLE EVENING

St. Andrew's Church was the meeting place on Wednesday evening last of a party—"tookd," sweatered and moccasined, so no one knew what they were—the members of the choir. At 7.30, to the number of thirty, they boarded the sleighs and sleighed to the farm of Mr. Petrie, Otonabee. Mr. Petrie, who is a member of the choir, very kindly invited Mr. Treneer and his choristers to have choir practice at his farm, andthis night was consummated the innovation.

Arrived at the rendezvous, after an almost uneventful voyage, but pleasant, the Sabbath anthems were gone over, after which the social hour was wiled away with song and mirth.

About midnight the clarion note rang out, "supper's ready." Mr. Petrie and his guid wife and bairns flitted about to supply the wants of the toner man with a galaxy of good things. Need it be here said that the visitors were ready for the fray! Well, no; for all ate wisely and well.

On the approach of the "wee sma' oor," the partygathered round the host and hostess, and with "Auld Lang Syne" and cheers, took their goodnight; and under the organist's chaperoning ability, wended their way home, arriving "as the clock struck twa."

It is not expected to have choir practice thus every week,—though some would not object!

Why can't American genius invent a pot for boiling cabbage without perfuming the parlor?

Smoking In Bed Not Wifely Act

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan 15. — When a wife insists on smoking in bed despite the fact that her husband dreams nightly of the Chicago fire, dies a thousand deaths before morning and open his eyes to find them full of ashes, she deserves to be deserted and receive no money, either for cigarettes or nourishment. Justice J. F. Carmichael gave that opinion in releasing Daniel Fisher, of No. 35 Ewing Street, whose wife accused him of leaving her destitute.

Mr. Fisher said he worked steadily, got along fairly well and was willing to provide for his wife until she contracted the cigarette smoking habit. Even then, he said, he never once complained, when the kitchen smelled like a joss house and smoke poured from the windows during the day. But through the long night, sometimes on the point of death from aspyxiation, as the heavy clouds rolled along the pillow, and momentarily expecting to be carried down a ladder amid the clanging of fire bells, he could not bear it. Three long months he tolerated it, he testified, and then, feeling like a smoked ham, he slammed the front door, Gladstone bag in hand and walked out into the air.

Justice Carmichael indicated that he thought Mr. Fisher was more sinned against than sinning and dismissed the charges. Mr. and Mrs. Fisher met as they started to leave the court room. They looked at each other steadily for a moment and then Mr. Fisher said:

"Annie, will you quit smoking in bed?"

"Can't we get some asbestos bed clothes?" asked Mrs. Fisher.

"No," answered her husband, determinedly, "but I will get you a gas heater and a Morris chair if you'll get up when you want a cigarette. Could anything be fairer?"

There was a moment of hesitation and then Mrs. Fisher, taking her husband's arm, said there was nothing like trying. They stopped at the cigar store, which is on the main floor of the building in which the Justice's court is located, and Mr. Fisher bought the night's supply.

"WET" AND "DRY" DISTRIBUTION OF POPULATION

TORONTO, Jan. 16.—Rnalysis of the statistics regarding the local option situation within the province reveals a rather peculiar situation, brought about by the attitude of the large towns and cities. While three-fifths of the municipalities of Ontario are under the "dry" law, more people reside in liquor licensed districts.

There are now 502 municipalities "dry" and 333 "wet." The population in the "wet" territory is 1,432,772, while the population in the "dry" territory is only 1,090,502. Even when 17 more municipalities are added to the 502 and substracted from the 333 the situation will remain the same only with a slightly reduced population in the "wet" territory.

Radway's Ready Relief

Jacob Able of R. F. D. No. 1, Millstown, N. J., writes: "For the last three years I have had kidney disease and backache and I have had it so bad that for eight days and nights I could not get my clothes off. I thought I would try Radway's Ready Relief. I gave my back and hips and sides a good rubbing, and in a short time the pain was all gone. No one in this world knows but God and myself the misery I was in till I USED Radway's Ready Relief."

CURES LUMBAGO

Radway's Ready Relief should be well rubbed over a large surface, until a glow is produced, with a burning sensation. Few cases require the Radway Pills. Some do, when a dose on retiring would be taken.

ANALYZING THE COAL SITUATION IN PETERBORO'

Unexpected Drop in Prices and the Causes---Coal Selling at a Loss to the Dealers---A Fair View of Costs--Lots of Coal and Fair Prices Ahead.

It was no surprise to be told that the sales of anthracite coal by our local dealers during the first half of this week had gone away beyond any similar period for years.

Two reasons are assigned for this, first the decided drop in the temperature of the weather 32 below zero, and second the unexpected drop in coal prices by two of our local dealers. These two causes made a good combination for an overflow of orders into the coal offices, and so excessive was the overflow that the coal dealers were unable to cope with the demand for delivery for several days.

The first announcement of a drop of fifty cents per ton, was the talk of the town, for so much had been said about a "local combine" that no one expected any concessions this winter. But when on the following evening, the second announcement was made of a drop of oe dollar per ton, the public, as the phrase goes, "sat up and noticed," and have been waiting for some one else to drop.

The reason assigned for the first drop was the "improved methods of handling coal" put forward by one dealer; and for the second drop, "to meet any competition and to meet it decisively," by the other dealer. And, as has already been stated, the public quickly availed themselves of the saving, and rushed in their orders to the two dealers who had "locked horns." All the other coal dealers sat back and looked on, contenting themselves with protecting their own customers by meeting prices and selling as little as they could possibly help at what they claimed losing prices.

Cost of Coal.

It looks as if Peterboro' coal dealers have been wrongly blamed for being in a combination to keep up prices, and that their prices have always been higher than they should have been. Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald has done a good service to the public and to the coal dealers themselves by the publication of a statement showing the cost of coal to the dealers and the reasonableness of their prices in the past. His statement is as follows:

"I claim that the prices heretofore asked for coal have been reasonable, considering the expenses of the business. Below I give a statement of facts in connection with the cost of handling coal in this city. One ton of coal of 2,000 lbs.

1 ton nut (at Buffalo)	$5.36
Freight from bridge	$1.25
State export tax	.10
Total cost on track	$6.71
Handling cost in this city	$1.35
	$8.06
Selling price to public	$8.50
Leaving profit	.44c. per ton

Mr. Fitzgerald also gives the cost of economic coal handling from the "Coal Trade Journal," showing the items of expense based upon a well equipped coal yard, as being $1.42, really 7c. more than what he allows for the handling cost.

The public have now, for the first time, been in possession of information of sufficient value to set itself right with, and revise their opinion of, our local coal dealers. A profit of only 44c. a ton on an investment of $8.06 does not by any means seem exhorbitant. In fact, it is a question whether any other legitimate business in the City could be carried on successfully on so close a margin.

Losing Prices.

It is pretty certain, therefore, that our coal dealers are losing money at the present drop in prices. This should not be. The public do not demand it, much as they wish the cost of living to be reduced. There is no pleasure in watching good business men "locking horns" with each other and losing money to boot.

The coal situation is very much different this winter than it was last. Last winter, Peterborough, as well as many other places, had to be content with what it could get, and the coal barons had to be paid any price they asked for coal. The miners' strike, the scarcity of coal, and the freight blockade, all combined to stiffen prices in the winter and caused great inconvenience and losses. At times when the U.S. Coal Trust could not, or would not, supply coal, local dealers were compelled to fall back on the Independent Companies who demanded such inflated prices that dealers actually lost money. Quite frequently coal cost the local dealer $8.15 on the track and had to sell it out for $8.25 and $8.50.

Settled Prices.

This year, however, the situation is altogether different. There is no indications of trouble or of a shortage of coal. The season has been an unusually mild one, with the exception of the few severe days of this week, so that it is assumed that the general consumption of coal has been comparatively light up to date.

Then again there is no apprehension that the winter prices set by the Buffalo agents will be disturbed. All the winter price circulars embracing Lehigh, Scranton, Erie, Pittston, show a uniform figure for the winter, $5.36 for the short ton of 2,000 lbs. or $6.10 for the long ton of 2240 lbs.. There does not appear any grounds for an increase. In fact, the reverse seems to be the case. A letter received in the City the other day, from one of the large Buffalo agents, of the Independent Companies, quotes coal ten cents less than December prices.

With these facts in view, and looking at the conditions as they ought fairly to exist in Peterborough, there should not be any prolongation of unfair coal prices in our City.

Peterborough's Tonnage.

It is somewhat difficult to arrive at a correct estimate of the yearly consumption of anthracite coal in Peterborough, but 30,000 tons is said to be a fairly accurate figure. The relative proportions of this amount handled by the principal coal dealers in the City might be distributed in the following order: Robert Hicks, J. E. A. Fitzgerald, Fuel and Cartage Co., Weir and O'Brien and Scott and Hogg. There are a number of small dealers, including Robt. Wolstenholme, G. A. Goheen, Lowe and Co., Co-operative Co. and R. F. Davidson, who absorb a portion of this tonnage. When one comes to reckon what the new Pennsylvania coal tax alone of 2½ per cent. on the value of hard coal at the pit mouth amounts to on the Peterborough tonnage, it will be seen how susceptible the outside source of supply is responsible for increasing the selling price of coal.

Credit is due to Mr. Hicks for his enterprise in experimenting with the problem of cheapening the cost of handling coal off the track. What he has accomplished in securing more efficiency, quicker service and the elimination of car demurrage, etc., ought to effect substantial savings and increase his tonnage. His coal elevator and his well-equipped yards on Charlotte and Bethune Streets are a tribute to his enterprise and foresight. The introduction of magic type-setting machines and lightning printing presses has brought greater efficiency, but the cost of printing newspapers has not been lessened. Not even the substitution of the handy wood-sawing machine for the old-fashioned buck saw has helped to reduce the price of hardwood.

It is evident that we must look to the other end for help in the reduction of the price of our anthracite coal. So long as the wholesale price in Buffalo is $5.36, and the freight, State tax, and handling in the City runs the price up to $8.06 per ton, as Mr. Fitzgerald contends, it is doubtful if we may look for any permanent reduction in the price of hard coal in Peterborough.

THE CONSERVATORY ORCHESTRA CONCERT

The Peterborough Conservatory Orchestra Concert in the Opera House last night was up to concert pitch da capo al fine—from the first tap of the conducter's baton to the last heat of the last bar. This says volumes for the quantity, quality and cultivation of the musical talent of Peterborough, and much for the appreciative musical taste and musical spirit of the city. There was a large and representative audience present, and glad of it, too; for every moment of the three hours of continuous music was a delight. / There was nothing perfunctory about the programme or its presentation. Every contributor to it was a star and the orchestra a constellation. These be strong statements; but there are eight hundred witnesses—last night's audience—to prove their correctness. It's a long time since there has been as good a concert in Peterborough, in variety, in appeal, in character of programme, and in general excellence of performance.

The Conservatory Orchestra, under the baton of Mr. Gliddon, gave evidence of his intelligent and exacting leadership, and it is to his credit that he has been able to gather thirty-five instrumentalists willing and capable of putting in the hard work that was necessary to attain the excellence they have reached. The balance of parts is good, and the work is better. The volume of tone is strong without being strained. The piano passages show artistic restraint. The attack is sharp, and everybody is in tune. The shading is smooth; and taste and finish, fire, and vim are available on demand. The orchestra contributed four selections of varying character and temperament by as many authors, Rossini, Verdi, Greig and Gounod. Perhaps the best work of the orchestra was in an arrangement of the weird Greig's Peer Gynt Suite, in which the beauty of the strings was finely developed, and the whole played with delightful taste and sweetness and exquisite finish.

Miss Florence Hinkle, soprano, was superb, opening her programme with Haydn's great hymn "With Verdure Clad." During the evening she ran the whole gamut of vocal character of composition from the grandiose to the gay and sprightly. Miss Hinkle has a glorious voice of splendid quality, true and sweet as a bell in every register; and she knows how to use it. With singing an exacting oratorio selection and three song groups, comprising two encore numbers, she gave fourteen numbers, and her voice was as fresh and clear at the end as at the beginning, if not more so; for her concluding number, Woodman's "Song of Joy," was splendidly sung with beautifully sustained tone and striking vocal tours de force. Her fine enunciation, her phrasing, and her method and manner, make Miss Hinkle's singing in a class apart. Her platform presence is charming, and it is no disparagement to say that in quality of voice and in mannerisms, especially that piquant little stacatto toss of the head in the crisis or point of a humourous number, one is reminded of Albani. Miss Hinkle was most enthusiastically received by the audience, which will not gainsay the suggestion that she is one of the best singers before the public to-day.

Miss Lina D. Adamson, solo violinist, and by the way a member of the Conservatory faculty, distinguished herself anew last night. Her performance of the elfin "Gipsy Dances" of Sarasate was of delicious daintiness and technical finish, and at her second appearance, a Romance and Valse by d'Ambrosio were given with a beautiful clarity of tone and artistic authority and abandon. She was compelled to repeat and was honoured with a fine sheaf of Richmond roses.

One of the most genuinely artistic treats of the evening was the splendid 'cello contribution of Mr. Leo. Smith, of Toronto. His technique is adequate to every demand. His tone is beautifully round, full and smooth, and when needed fire and spirit were not lacking. He is an artist, and gained instantaneous and hearty recognition. For an encore number he gave Schumann's Traumerei, and under his hands it was indeed a dream of dainty and soulful music.

The accompaniments were not the least satisfying features of the occasion. Miss Pearl McKee was the orchestra accompanist; Miss Kilimaster played for the 'cellist, and Mrs. Alice Roger Collins furnished the accompaniments for Miss Hinkle. Mrs. Collins won a double share of glory. To the credit of supplying excellent accompaniments, she had the added honour of having Miss Hinkle sing two songs of Mrs. Collins' composition—words and music—"All To You" and "When the Sun Is Low"—beautiful songs beautifully sung.

Considering the exceedingly creditable work of the Conservatory Orchestra last night, the public would perhaps like to learn to whom they were individually indebted for the enjoyment they had.

WOMEN'S BIBLE CLASS WAS ENTERTAINED

The Women's Bible Class of the George Street Sunday School, which is taught by Mrs. Jas. Kendry, and the Mission Study Class, were very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Armstrong last night.

About thirty-five guests were entertained, spending the evening in original and spirited contests and games. Shortly before midnight refreshments were served.

COMPLAINTS RE SNOW PLOUGHING

Complaints are emanating from the west-end of the City concerning the manner in which the snow ploughing contract is undertaken. Several of the residents allege that the work is improperly performed, and that the plough is seldom out in time to be of service to those whose duties call them out at 8 o'clock in the morning, or earlier.

Hollow Tooth Ache

If you have a hollow tooth and it aches cut a piece of clove to fit the cavity and put it in lightly, allowing the upper part to stick out like a cork in a bottle. It will soon swell, keeping the air from the nerve, and the pain will cease until the clove drops out, when it may be replaced by another.

Thoughtful.

Many a girl takes a dab of red paint and a handful of excelsior and improves on nature.

Child Had Bronchitis

Once people get acquainted with the wonderful control which Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine exerts over bronchitis, whooping cough, croup and colds it is not easy to persuade them that anything else is "just as good." This is why the imitators never get very far.

In 1902 Mrs. Eugene Iler, King street, Truro, N.S., wrote as follows:

From an infant one of my children was troubled with bronchitis, and the least cold would aggravate the trouble. We could not get anything to help her, and were often greatly alarmed. Hearing of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as a treatment for bronchitis, we used it, and are glad to state that it effected a complete cure. If any of the children take a cold or cough I give this medicine, and have never known it to fail to bring relief."

Mrs. Iler now writes that she has since proved this medicine to be a cure for whooping cough, and would not be without it in the house.

PETERBORO'S BUILDING RECORD SHOWS SUBSTANTIAL INCREASE

Percentage of Increase is Greater Than That of Toronto and Many of the Larger Western Cities--Building Permits Total $488,540---Prospects Are Bright.

The value of the building permits issued in Peterborough for the year 1913 totalled $488,540. This represents an increase of $22,635 over that of the preceding year. The percentage of increase amounts to nearly five per cent. This is greater than many of the larger cities such as Toronto, which has a percentage decrease of a little more over one per cent. Other cities such as Winnipeg, Calgary, and Brandon show percentage decreases ranging from one per cent. up to sixty per cent. Only seventeen cities out of a total of thirty-eight can boast of an increase in the building returns:

Building Permits.

The value of the permits of 46 cities in 1912 was $196,000,000, and of 44 cities in 1913, $153,997,370.

Will Expand.

The prospects for the present year are even better than those of the previous year. Contractors assert that building operations will be carried out on a much larger scale and that many more substantial buildings will be erected. A few factories have also been spoken of, while several of those already located here are contemplating extensive expansion.

Furnishing the Dining Room in Oak

The Tough Wood Chosen for its Durability and Handsome Appearance

OAK CAN BE EITHER PLAIN OR QUARTER CUT. The difference being that Plain Oak is sawn from the log in the ordinary way, while in the case of Quartered Oak, the log is first cut into quarters and then sawn across the grain to produce that beautiful figure that makes Oak so desirable for the making of Furniture.

And it seems that in the dining room, Quarter Cut Oak finds the use for which it is particularly well adapted.

In the first place, it is tough and durable enough to withstand many years of daily service, while in either Fumed or Golden Finish, it forms a handsome setting to the room.

A complete set of Chairs—five ordinary and one arm chair, is procurable at $16.75, $18.25, $24, $26, $27.50 and $32, in Quartered Oak of rich quality, finished either way and upholstered with leather seats.

These sets, in company with other furniture of all descriptions, are to be seen upon the Third and Fourth Floors.

Prof. Coleman Delivered Interesting Address On The "Tooth Of Time"

Educational Lecture Was Heard by Good Audience in Normal School Last Night.

PROFUSELY ILLUSTRATED

"The Tooth of Time" was made the subject of a unique address delivered by Professor M. B. Coleman, of Toronto University, at the Normal School last night. Quite a large number attended, and were greatly pleased because of the educational and entertaining value of his speech.

Mr. D. Walker was chairman, and Mr. S. Keyes very kindly operated the lantern. The address was illustrated with many interesting slides.

"Every one has some idea of time, and, when we speak of it in an inconsequental way, we generally refer to it as 'Father Time' and we generally think of him as a toothless old gentleman," said the speaker, and continuing, said: "This is wrong — time has got teeth, that vanquish the strongest things about us. A passage from one stage to another is probably the definition of the word, but do we ever stop to realize the changes worked in these passages, and that it is the teeth of time that works these changes."

"For example one of the teeth is oxygen, one of the fundamental principles that give life, yet destroy it. Another is carbon of oxide, a simple little gas that we breath out. Another is the little rain drop—a very innocent thing, yet take 10,000,000 drops and they are a big force. Another is the changes in atmosphere, from hot to cold. All these are functions that are working against us, and which gradually destroy all things.

When the slides were thrown on the screen, the first place visited was an old graveyard in Toronto. Several old head stones were shown in advanced stages of dilapitation, and it was shown how granite stands the weather much better than marble.

Leaving the Queen City, the audience was conveyed to the Colliseum at Rome, and shown Nero's great theatre, and it was told that while the limestone was in a fair state of preservation due to the fact that Rome is much dryer than this country, many of the limestone slabs were deeply corrugated.

To Switzerland the thoughts were next turned, and quicker than the fastest aeroplane could carry them across, the mountains were brought into view. For a short while pictures of Canadian fastnesses were thrown on the screen. Rocks were shown that had been split asunder by the combined forces of air and storm, water seeming to have the most effect, wearing and eating its way through the hardest of rocks, and it was noticed that the higher the mountain the more effective the changes.

At the top of a high mountain, an immense boulder of hundreds of tons weight could be seen. Through a small crevice a tiny stream of water tricked to the bottom of the precipice, thousands of feet below. The stream would freeze and thaw out, and the expanding would gradually widen the crack, until one day, a staccato sound would break the stillness, and as a report of a heavy cannon pierced the air, the huge boulder, split asunder, would go rolling and crashing to the depth below—and so great mountains are destroyed.

Then to the dry climate of Arizona, where the dryness affected everything, and from there to the immense fields of granite in Rhodesia where the intense heat is felt, 150 degrees being an average heat. The sun beating on the rocks all day would make them feel like molten metal. After the darkness has fallen the air becomes chilly, and the night is made hideous with the constant crashes that are caused by the two extremes, heat and cold.

Travelling along the turbid waters of the River Nile, Egypt's most remarkable features are brought into view—the sphinx and the pyramids. The former was at one time buried to its neck in the sand, and later brought to the surface that tourists and scientists might have an opportunity of seeing this one of the greatest pieces of work of all ages, and as one gazes at the now almost obliterated profile, they can realize the havoc that can be worked by time.

In concluding his address, Professor Coleman spoke for a few moments about rain, adding that Ontario had 30 inches a year, 158 pounds per square foot, or figured out a little finer there falls 2,000,000 tons of rainfall on every square mile of the province, "and that," said he, "goes to show the power of one of the Teeth of Time."

A "BIG BROTHER" SAYS CLUB HAS NO SPARE TIME

To Devote to the Supervision of a Free Skating Rink

"There are no members of the Big Brothers' Club who have time to devote to the supervision or maintenance of a free skating rink. We felt that there might be a city employee who could have time to devote to the rink, particularly when there does not appear to be much civic work carried on just now. The Aldermen must have a faint conception of their duties if they hold themselves aloof from a project of this nature. They provide thousands of dollars for the mental training of the youth, but not a single dollar will they spend toward the physical development of the children. They may endeavour to evade this work but they will convince no one that the duty is not solely theirs."

It will be remembered that Mr. T. F. Matthews in his letter offered water free of charge. Since then—but what's the use?

MARGARET ANGLIN IN "AS YOU LIKE IT"

Will Be Seen Here on Monday, Jan. 26th

The engagement of Margaret Anglin at the Grand on Monday, January 26 in a special revival of Shakespear's comedy, "As You Like It," is an event, the importance of which can hardly be overestimated by those who cherish a love for the masterpiece of the stage and want to see them adequately presented. Miss Anglin has made herself known throughout the country as an artiste of the first rank, and few names connected with the American stage appeal to the play-going public with more potency. Miss Anglin's company is an excellent organization. Each and every member of her company have ben trained in Shakespearean work,—men and women who have gone through the best methods of stage education. Prominent in Miss Anglin's support are Fuller Mellish, Ian MacLaren, Ruth Holt-Boucicault, Eric Blind, Max Montesole, Allan Thomas, Florence Wollerson, George Currie, Wallace Widdecombe, Eugene Shakespere, E. Y. Backus and twenty others. Miss Anglin has prepared a most elaborate production for the play and a number of innovations in the matter of stage lighting and general treatment are promised.

FOUR LIVES LOST IN FIRE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

HEALTH FOR BABY

To keep the baby healthy and strong his little stomach must be kept sweet and his bowels working regularly—that is the secret of health in little ones. The mother who keeps a supply of Baby's Own Tablets in the house can feel reasonably sure that her little ones are going to escape the results of childhood ailments, for the Tablets instantly relieve and cure such troubles as constipation, indigestion, colds, colic and bowels. Concerning them Mrs. Jas. Deroche, Cache Bay, Ont., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for three years and have always found them the best remedy for little ones." They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

By-law No. 512 was passed, appointing Messrs. H. G. Fitzgerald, Dr. M. R. Graham and T. J. Burgess, as Board of Health for the year 1914.

Moved by Mr. Charlton, seconded by Mr. Isblister that the Treasurer return $2, collected for dog tax from Mrs. Jos. Watson.—Carried.

The Council then adjourned to meet at the call of the Reeve.

Lakefield Council desires to secure electric power as soon as possible, and passed the following resolution directed to the representative for East Peterborough:

We further desire to bring to his attention the fact that it will be an absolute necessity in the near future that Lakefield shall obtain power from some source for the industries she already has, and for the operation of her electric lighting plant as well as for further development, and although it is our wish to develop such power through the agency of the Hydro-Electric Commission, we also feel assured that the natural, the cheapest and most advantageous source from whence Lakefield may obtain power would be by development off the dam in the centre of our village, on the power site now nominally held under lease by the Dickson Co., from the Dominion Government. And as we realize that a new dam must soon be built at this point for the operation and safety of the Trent Canal, we desire to obtain his co-operation to bring this matter to the attention of the Dominion Government with a view to having such government expropriate the Dickson Co.'s interest in this site, so that power may be developed here for the benefit of the people at as early a date as possible, and that this resolution be signed by the Reeve and Clerk and forwarded to Mr. Sexsmith.—Carried.

The Council then adjourned.

THE NAVY CONTROVERSY VITAL ISSUE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Jan. 17.— The navy controversy continues to be the most vital issue in home affairs. There are daily menacing signs that despite the rigid official attitude, the sober Liberal opinion is rallying against the scare mongers. Those in direct touch with the government strenuously deny to me that there is any fear of a cabinet division. They hint that the difficulty between Churchill and Lloyd-George will be compromised, Churchill abating two millions of his original claims. Lloyd-George's essential problem is revenue. It will almost certainly decline this year, possibly heavily. He requires substantially larger amounts for social reform legislation. A heavier defence budget will necessitate fresh taxation. Political gossips exhaust themselves to-day in discussing the significance of the meeting of the Chancellor and the first Lord yesterday when Churchill was visiting Lloyd George, remaining an hour with him.

Cautious

"Let me introduce you to the most honest young man I have ever known."

"But mamma does not want me to meet any poor young men."

DR. GRENFELL'S WORK

Here is how a London writer describes his first introduction to Dr. Grenfell. He says: "I waited in the big, hot hall of a huge London hotel. All sorts of people fluttered in and out. I felt a vague sense of uneasiness creep over me. It was all so civilized so over-civilized. Their artificiality made me long for a breeze, for a fight, for a long hungry day in the open. Next moment I had the sensation I craved. A man stood beside me who brought with him into that hot hall a current of fresh invigorating air. It was bracing to look at his lean, clean figure, his firm, brown features, his clean, smiling eyes. With his curly hair and little brown moustache he seemed like a Viking, born by accident, into this new century of ours. All the surroundings of cushioned luxury faded away like a dissolving view. In their place I saw the grey Atlantic heaving with a mighty swell. I saw leagues of snow and ice gleaming in sunlight. I heard, too, the grateful murmurs of a people mightily helped and heartened. For this man was Grenfell of Labrador." And it, this man's work we are asked to keep these days. We too may hear the "grateful murmur of a people mightily helped and heartened"—if we give out of our abundance to help their poverty and distress. Send your gift at once to this paper.

MAJORITY OF BOARD WAS OPPOSED

To Introduction of Amusements Into the Church—A Church-workers' Opinion

A meeting that extended beyond the midnight hour was held in George Street Methodist Church a few days ago, when the advisability of introducing athletics into one of the departments of the Church, was discussed. The proposal which as said to have emananeed from the Superintendent of the Epworth League, was vigorously opposed by the majority of the members of the official Board. At the suggestion of Mr. D. W. Dumble, the matter was finally shelved, or as one of the Church workers put it—"laid aside for future reference." One of the active deparmenal workers also suggested that the basement of the Church be utilized for certain forms of amusements, such as parlour games. This was disapproved of by a majority of the members of the Board, with the result that no action was taken.

One prominent Church member sums up the situation in the following words: "There is no justification or necessity to introduce amusements into a House of Worship. It shows an undeniable lack of spiritual interest when such a course becomes necessary. We contribute regularly to the maintenance of the Young Men's Christian Association and other institutions whose purpose in part, is to supply the means of furnishing amusements for the young people of the City."

Society Held Social Gathering

The monthly social of St. George's Society was held in the W.O.W. Hall last night, and in the absence of the President, Mr. A. Pitchford took the chair. Despite the inclemency of the weather the chairs were well filled, and a good programme was rendered as follows:

Duet—"Carrier John," Misses D. and L. Hanson.

Solo—"When It's Apple Blossom Time in Normandie," Master H. Meredith.

Solo—"Little Gray Home in the West," Mr. Asa Huycke.

Recitation—"The Handy Man," J. John.

Solo—"The Children's Home," Miss L. Hanson.

Solo—"I Love a Lassie," A. Coleman.

Reading—"The Usual Way," Miss D. Hanson.

Pianoforte solo—Mr. Asa Huycke.

Duet—"Carmenia," Misses D. and L. Hanson.

Recitation—"Shot on Patrol," J. John.

Solo—"Till the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold," Mr. Asa Huycke.

Solo—"The Toilers," Mr. A. Huycke.

After the programme Mr. J. John put the following motion, which was seconded by Mr. R. Cooper: "That this gathering of the St. George's Society deeply regret the accident this week of Mr. W. Stocker, our esteemed President, and extend to him our sympathy and that he may have a speedy recovery." Carried.

Coffee and cake were then served and a good social evening was brought to a close at 10 o'clock by the singing of "God Save the King."

Stock Markets

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

Monday will probably exhibit a firm stock market again. The bullish operations are very conservative. This is gratifying to the element which is slowly regaining confidence. On moderate reunions good buying is reported. The standard railroad stocks are considered the best purchases, but the specialties may be bought for turns whenever made active. Information channels continue to favour Reading. They are also bulling T.C., D.R., K.S.U., S.R., A.C.P., A.O.O., and Erie. U.P., S.P., C.Q., and N.F. R. should furnish excellent buying opportunities on recessions. U.S. may work higher.

The room tenders call N.Y.C. and N.H. on rallies.

C.P.R. looks a good purchase at present levels.

Look for a very active market next week.

Causes And The Cure Of Tuberculosis

by the Contributed to The Examiner — Peterboro' Health Association

"Don't Shut in Disease Germs."

Two months of cold weather are ahead of us; possibly three. By keeping the windows closed you can shut out the cold, but you can and will, also shut in disease germs. Incidentally, by heating the polluted air of closed rooms, you will shut the germs in your system. Then you will first get colds and afterwards pneumonia. The germs of all diseases, measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough and diphtheria, that the children bring home from the schools and the street, will take up their abode in your closed apartments, and by and by they will fall to work. Keep the house ventillated and you will keep the family's health ventillated. It is important to every one to live in a pure atmosphere during the day and night. If we could only make sure that the air we breathe is pure, we could at a blow do away with nine-tenths of the cases of consumption. We in Canada are great sinners in that respect. The severity of our winters and the cost of heating, makes most people seal up their houses during the winter months, and the air becomes unhealthy. Much, however, can be done to improve matters by opening the windows of each room for ten minutes in turn each day; that in itself would do much to improve the air. Another valuable aid to health is to sleep with the window open sufficiently to allow fresh air in the room. Most people who have not tried this, think they will take cold, but if they are not in a draft they will not take cold. On the other hand, those who sleep with their windows open, usually go through the whole winter without taking cold. An extra blanket or two will keep the body warm, and it does not matter if the head is cool, as it is used to the action of cold air, and no discomfort is felt. Sometimes it is uncomfortable to rise feeling chilly, but it is much better than to rise with fever hammering at your pulses, and contagion surging through your blood.

Another great aid to health is cleanliness. Of all the people to be greatly admired in this respect is the Briton. He will have his daily tubbing, and its influence upon the health is most important, as by the removal of daily impurities the skin is kept in a state of perfect efficiency, and the tonic effect of the water, especially moving water, is wonderful. Americans, with their luxurious habits, have most of their bathrooms fitted with a shwer It is rapid and a satisfactory way of taking their morning scrub. Cleanliness is next to Godliness, and he who has not the wherewithal, can scrub his body in a tin cup of water, as did the famous prisoner of Libby.

GLOWING TRIBUTE TO MISS ALLAN

Musical Canada Makes Flattering Reference to Her Ability

"Musical Canada," a monthly publication of musical news, makes the following reference, accompanied by a splendid photograph of the young lady, to Miss Dorothy Allan, daughter of Mr. John Allan, organist and choirmaster of St. Paul's Church:

"Miss Dorothy Allan, daughter of Mr. John Allan, organist and choirmaster of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Peterborough, is a young messo-soprano, who is rapidly making a name for herself in musical circles. Although only seventeen years of age, she has already held two important church positions as soprano soloist. At present she is soloist in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Peterborough, where she is highly appreciated. Two years ago, when only fifteen, she was soloist in Olivet Baptist Church, Montreal. On her leaving that position to take the position in Peterborough, Rev. Joseph Sullivan, pastor of Olivet Baptist Church, Montreal, speaking from the pulpit on the evening of Sunday, July 23rd, said: 'It is with sincere regret we learn that we are to lose the services of Miss Dorothy Allan as soprano soloist, owing to her removal to Peterborough. Olivet Church never had so young a soloist, and I am safe in saying never one gave such universal satisfaction. Her beautiful voice has been a delight and inspiration to us all, and we shall follow her musical career with the greatest interest, as we expect great things of her in the years to come.' Quite recently overtures were made to Miss Allan to return to that position, an offer which she was unable to accept."

Miss Allan is a native of Aberdeen, Scotland, and until this past summer has not had any teacher than her father. During the past summer, while on an extended visit to the Old Country, Miss Allan embraced the opportunity presented to her of studying with the celebrated London voice specialist, Signor Giovani Clerici (formerly of Florence, Italy) Signor Clerici strongly commended the system Mr. Allan had employed in the training of his daughter, and predicted for her a brilliant career. Besides being the possessor of a beautiful quality of voice, Miss Allan had, he said, to a remarkable degree, that highest of all gifts in a singer, a fine sense of musical temperament. Miss Allan has already a very extensive repertoire, and being a "quick study," is rapidly and thoroughly adding to it. Her concert engagements for the season are numerous, while she has already filled quite a number. Her reception on these occasions is always flattering, and generally result in repeat engagements.

C. P. R. Had A Sharp Rise

International Leader is Seeking a Higher Level—The Weekly Bank Statement

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The usual Saturday apathy prevailed on the New York Stock Market to-day. Trading was light and was confined to the standard railroad stocks. The list did not move beyond the opening prices with the exception of probably half a dozen stocks. C.P.R. opened at 211, and after a sharp rise of one point and an eighth, closed at 211 3-4. The international leader has shown considerable strength throughout the week and there is every reason to believe that the improvement will continue.

Following is the weekly bank statement:

Reserve, increase, $16,448,000.
Loans, increase $2,045,000.
Specie, increase, $23,454,000.
Legals, increase, $4,492,000.
Deposits, increase, $45,909,000.

This is an excellent bank statement and should prove an incentive to the bull element to continue the activity that characterized their operations during the week.

LIVING CRAWFISH IN CITY WATER

Mr. Rose, of 700 Harvey street, showed The Examiner this afternoon, part of a glass of water which he said he had taken from the tap at his kitchen sink. The cubic space filled in the glass was more than half occupied by crawfish and mud, and the appearance of the liquid resembled mock turtle soup more than a glass of ordinary drinking water.

"There, this a sample of the water Dr. McPherson said was alright," said Mr. Rose. "And I often get it like that, too!"

Mr. Rose opened the tap in the hope of getting a drink of water, but received instead a miniature aquarium, with a nice assortment of living crawfish. He took the glass and its contents to M.H.O. McPherson, and the members of the water commission, who promised to find him a remedy if possible.

SOUTH CENTRAL VS. KING EDWARD

In a one-sided game of hockey, played this morning, the South Central team walloped the King Edward School seven, 11 to 1. Montgomery, the fast little defence player for the South Centrals, got eight of the eleven goals, and showed his class in many nice rushes. Robinson scored two counters and Bailey beat Jones for the other one.

Frank Fuller, the right defence man, made a good showing against the South Central seven, but his team mates could not make much headway.

The teams were:

South Central—C. Dobbin, goal; H. Chambers, right defence; F. Montgomery, left defence; D. Foster, rover; W. Bailey, centre; M. Killingbeck; right wing; H. Robinson, left wing.

King Edward—E. Jones, goal; O. Scott, right defence; F. Fuller, left defence; B. Cranfield, rover; Cunningham, centre; , Jackson, right wing; A. Stevenson, left wing.

Referee—Donoghue.

CURLING

R. M. Waddell's rink was the sole survivor this morning of the five local rinks that entered the Lindsay Bonspiel. This quartette was scheduled to play this morning at 9.30 in the Gillies' eights; Friday afternoon witnessed the defeat of J. E. A. Fitzgerald and Wm. Lang, in the Flavelle trophy series. Smith of the Hamilton Victorias was defeated by the former by 11—9, and it was that good Bradyn Rink of Winnipeg that put "Pete" Lang away by 13 to 8. In the 6.30 p.m. draw Fitzgerald lost to Pilgrim of Meaford.

Matthews of Peterborough, and Valin, of North Bay, put up a crackerjack of a game in the 3 p.m. Thursday schedule. The score favoured first one, then the other all afternoon, and the rinks tied no less than three times. The first scoring went to Peterborough, which chalked up two on one end. North Bay did the same number in the second end. This tie broke in favour of North Bay when that place was credited with another two on the third end. The next tie was on the eighth end. This time the balance swayed toward Peterborough, who made their board read 8 to North Bay's 7 at the finish of the ninth. Another clash on the tenth end was decided, North Bay at the end of the eleevnth and North Bay added another in the last end. Final score, Peterborough 8, North Bay 10.

"Larry" O'Connor Won.

The Peterborough picked quartette skipped by T. Medd, were defeated by three shots, in a very interesting game, "Larry" O'Connor of Lindsay, being the champion. The Electric City bunch had a score of seven before O'Connor touched the board but thereafter the Lindsay man played a steady game and finally eclipsed the Peterborough Medd and won out by three shots. SYMPATHY FOR THE WASHWOMAN

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—I was reading the sad story of the washerwoman in last night's Examiner. It was enough to bring tears from the hardest heart. I believe our dear Jesus was crucified again on Tuesday last at 32 below zero. How His dear heart went out in pity to that poor woman, some body's mother. Boys and girls, do take a lesson from this heartless treatment and look after the old folks. It is these so-called mistresses that is the cause of so many girls going to work in factories to work, where they would rather work at housework and make themselves ready for a good wife. That is not all. I believe if such Christians don't alter their ways and heart, their place will be a great deal hotter than the poor old mother's was cold. Cheer up dear old washerwoman, your occupation is no disgrace. Step on to that mansion of Our Heavenly Father. He has no wash sheds there. He has prepared a place for you and your dear old husband. Still believe there are good people in Peterborough. —Yours sincerely,

POOR OLD FOLK.

LUMBERMEN AND FOREST PROTECTION

"The success of co-operative forest fire protection has been established beyond doubt." This statement of Mr. Ellwood Wilson, Supt. of the Forestry Division of the Laurentide Co., Que., is amply justified by the very successful season just passed through by the St. Maurice Fire Protection Association, of which he is a member.

This association was formed in the spring of 1912 by the timberland holders on the purpose of securing the adequate protection of their limits by the establishment of a uniform system of patrol. They assessed themselves one-quarter of a cent per acre, engaged an efficient forester, and installed a thoroughly supervised and equipped patrol on their combined holdings of over 7,000,000 acres. So successful were they even in one short season, that the membership was considerably enlarged the following spring, and timber-limit holders on adjacent watersheds also became imbued with the co-operative idea. In the dry summer of 1913 over 275 forest fires were extinguished with practically no damage. Seven lookout towers were constructed and telephone lines were commenced to secure the early and accurate location of fires and the rapid assemblage of a fire-fighting force.

According to a bulletin being issued by the Forestry Branch, Ottawa, which traces the development of co-operative forest fire protection in the United States and Canada, there are now about thirty similar associations in America which are successfully protecting over 30,000 acres of timberland. Although the St. Maurice Fire Protective Association is the pioneer of this movement in Canada, co-operation is sure to be viewed with increasing favour by Canadian lumbermen, for by providing adequate protection from fire it paves the way for the insurance of forest property and eventually for scientific forest management. Adequate fire protection is the cornerstone of all forestry practice.

JUNIORS CAME FROM BEHIND AND BEAT PORT HOPE AT HOME BY 6 TO 5

Ontarios Led at Half-Time by 5 to 3 But the Petes Made a Grand Finish.

WAS A HARD BATTLE

The Peterborough Juniors had to come from behind to win their game at Port Hope last night, but they stuck to their guns and finally won out after a hard fight, by 6 goals to 5. The youngsters followed the example of the Intermediates in the last three games by coming strong in the last period. At the half the Ontarios were leading 5 to 3, and were confident of victory, but the blue and white kids carried the battle to them so hard in the second half that they failed to find the nets, while the Petes gathered three goals, enough to give them a victory.

Peterborough opened auspiciously, by scoring the first two goals and at the end of fifteen minutes were leading 3 to 1. Then the forward line grew careless and forgot to check back, and the first thing the youngsters knew they were facing a deficit of two goals. In the second half the line checked back all the way and the Hopers never had a chance, their rushes being checked all the way down the rink. Darling made several pretty stops on the few occasions they got within shooting range. On the other hand the Petes were wading into the Port Hope defence, with combination rushes that were bound to end up in scores.

Port Hope's team looks much better than last year's seven, with more weight and speed on the line-up. Thy have two good wings in Darch and Lowe, and Hills, the little centre player, is going stronger. Rowden is a clever goal-keeper, and Sandercock would be a good defence man if he paid more attention to hockey and less to "getting" somebody. He was on the fence three or four times for foul tactics, and the last time drew a five-minute penalty.

Richardson played a stellar game for the Petes and was the fastest skater on the ice. His rink-length rush for the Petes' second goal was the individual feature of the game. Captain Halpin had his foot cut with a skate in the first half, but finished out the game, doing fine work in spite of the injury. The rest of the team gave a good account of themselves. Barrie's work in the second half was especially effective.

Port Hopers claim their team is improving every time out and say they will beat Peterborough here next Tuesday and the Frontenacs, when they come to Port Hope. At all events they will give the Petes an interesting argument here and the game should be a good one.

Harry Burgoyne of Toronto handled a hard game in good style, although the Port Hope crowd did not like some of his decisions.

The teams were:

Peterborough—Goal, Darling; right defence, Long; left defence, Richardson; rover, Halpin; centre, Rose; right wing, Knapman, left wing, Barrie.

The ice was good at the start and the pace was lively. Port Hope got right inside in the first few seconds, but Darling blocked the shot. The Petes came back and pressed hard. Rowden made several nice stops, but finally Halpin tore in with a pretty rush and beat him.

Forsythe was penalized for slashing and Richardson followed for dumping Sandercock with a body check. The point player pulled off the best play of the night on his return.

EVERYBODY IS GOING TO COBOURG ON MONDAY

The First Hockey Excursion of the Year Will be a Monster One--Game Will be One of the Most Important in the District.

Did you ever see a prettier race than the contest for the honours in this group of the Intermediate O. H. A.? One of the surprises of the season came last night when Cobourg handed Whitby a trimming on their own ice. It was figured that the Whitby gang would clean up, but in spite of the fact that they had induced "Wizard" Blanchard, their star rover, to turn out, they were not equal to the task. Now Cobourg looms up as the team Peterborough will have to take into camp, although outside of Bowmanville there is not a team in the group that has not a chance for the honours. The Petes are leading now because they have played more games, but Cobourg, Oshawa, Whitby and Belleville are all in the running yet.

The game in Cobourg on Monday night is one of the most important the Petes have to play. A win will put them in a commanding position in the race, and they may be depended upon to put up the hardest kind of a fight. The game should be a corker, and with the local club running a special train to Cobourg, a big orowd of fans will be on hand to support the blue and white team. The excursion will leave the Grand Trunk station at 7 o'clock sharp, and everybody is going along. The return fare is $1.25.

The Mercantile League has set the example by cancelling its games for Monday night, and the players will take in the excursion.

Here is the group standing:

	W.	L.	T.P.
Peterborough ...	4	1	5
Cobourg	2	1	7
Oshawa	3	2	5
Whitby	2	2	6
Belleville	1	1	8
Bowmanville	0	5	5

PORT HOPE SAY THEY WILL WIN HERE TUESDAY

The battle the Port Hope Juniors gave Peterborough last night is a guarantee that Tuesday night's game at Brock St. Rink between the two teams will be a struggle well worth seeing. The Ontarios claim that they will beat Peterborough here. They are inclined to blame Referee Bengoyne for their defeat last night, and say that they will prove their class right here at Brock St. Rink. The Petes are out to trim the Hopers here, and then tie up the district by beating Kingston. The kids were there with "the old fighting spirit" last night, coming from behind and finishing like whirlwinds. Tuesday night's game will be a real classy Junior affair.

Getting the rubber at his own nets he outskated the Port Hope forwords and fooled the defence with a pretty rush that gave the Petes their second goal.

Port Hope woke up and Lowes scored their first goal after a combination rush.

Halpin made it 3 to 1, with a scoop shot from well out, and then Port Hope came with a rush. The Petes were not checking back and, running loose, the Red Shirts worked in on top of Darling for their shots. Forsythe made it 3 to 2 by batting in a pass from the corner and Hills evened the score by shoving another one through from a mix-up. The Petes kicked on this goal, but it was allowed.

Port Hope were coming strong, Lowe and Hill got away together and the wing man's shot beat Darling.

Halpin bodied Darch and both took the count, the Port Hoper having his wind knocked out, while Halpin's foot was cut by Darch's skate. Both retired until half-time.

Just before half-time Hills went in alone and scored Port Hope's fifth goal, leaving the half-time score 5 to 3.

There was a different story in the second half. The Petes improved as the game went on and pulled down the lead after a hard fight. Barrie closed the gap by a nice rush up the side and a good shot. Then Rose took a pass from behind the nets and whipped the rubber past Rowden for the tying goal. Port Hope tried hard to keep them out, but a three-man combination rush gave Long a chance to slap in the winning counter.

COBOURG BEAT WHITBY BY 5 TO 3

Trimmed Them on Their Own Ice —A win For Oshawa

WHITBY, Jan. 16.—In one of the fastest O.H.A. intermediate games seen here for some time, Cobourg defeated the home team by a score of 5 to 3 to-night. In quick succession after the game started Cobourg tallied three, but Whitby came back strong with two before half time. The second period score was 2 to 1 for Cobourg. Arthur Blanchard, Whitby's fast rover, sustained a bruised shoulder which put him out of the game early, materially weakening the team. The line-up:

Referee—Lawson Whitehead, Toronto.

OSHAWA, 3; BOWMANVILLE, 2

BOWMANVILLE, Jan. 16.—In the O.H.A. intermediate game played here this evening between Bowmanville and Oshawa, the visitors won by the score of 3 to 2. Score at half time was 2 to 1 in favour of Oshawa.

Oshawa—Goal, R. Fair; point, Freeman; cover, Quinn; rover, W. Fair; centre, Smith; left wing, Canning; right wing, Murphy.

Bowmanville—Goal, Spry; point, Robinson; cover, Jones; rover, Williams; centre Cryderman; left wing, Hoper; right wing, Higginbotham.

Referee—O. E. Burkart, Toronto.

MERCANTILE HOCKEY LEAGUE

Postponement of Fixtures for Monday Next, in Order to Support the O.H.A. at Cobourg

An emergency meeting of the officers, executive and team delegates of this league was called on short notice last evening at the office of the Review. President Nelson presided; all the teams being represented otherwise than the Bankers.

The object of the meeting was to consider a proposal to postpone the fixtures for next Monday night at the Brock Street rink in order to give the hockey fans an opportunity of supporting the O.H.A. team of this City at Cobourg.

The suggestion was opposed by President Nelson and the delegate from the Test Room team.

Finally it was proposed by Vice-President Russell, seconded by Delegate Cassidy that owing to the importance of the O.H.A. game at Cobourg and the general desire of the hockey fans in this City to be present at that game next Monday night, that the Mercantile League fixtures for Monday next be postponed.

This to be looked upon as an exceptional circumstance, and not to be taken as establishing any precedent.

This was carried by a majority of four to one, the only team opposing it being the Test Room; the "Examiner," Plumbers, Tool Room and De Laval teams supporting the motion.

The games scheduled for the 19th inst. will therefore be played off on January 26, while those scheduled for that night (January 26) will be played off, if possible, on an extra night during the week beginning Janaury 26. By this means the schedule will not be thrown out of gear.

Due notice will be given of the night selected to play the game of the 26th instant.

Protest By Notts County Has Been Disposed Of

And the Two Remaining Ties Brought to a Finish---Some Features of the Cup Tie Fixtures---The Pick of To-day's Games

That protest by Notts County against Sheffield Wednesday having been dismissed and the two remaining undecided ties of the first round having been brought to a finish, the way is now clear for the 32 clubs lining up for the second round on January 31. It was to be expected that Tottenham would beat Leicester Fosse Thursday, but many had their doubts about Liverpool succeeding at Barnsley. The latter are one of the best cup fighting teams in England, and with home advantage, were made favourites, but with a mighty effort the Annfield team got home in front and now wait the coming of Gillingham. Tottenham have to visit Manchester City.

"Firsts" Have Advantage.

In accord with a custom which never varies, fourteen clubs in the First Division have the privilege of playing at home—including even Preston, who had such a premonition of the subtle working of the law of averages. Of both their divisions the Southern League have nine teams with the privilege of playing at home. Eight Second Division elevens can appear on their own pastures—a distinction which has been conferred on Gainsborough, the only club outside the leagues with such a favour thrust upon them.

Some Features.

Right back to the days of Barnsley St. Peter's, that Yorkshire club have been meeting Liverpool. Barnsley have beaten Everton, but not Liverpool. Swindon Town, who have not been vanquished at home in a Cup-tie since 1906-7, were represented at Blackburn on Saturday, very carefully watching Manchester United. The United say that they are going to win at Swindon. Blackburn Rovers and Middlesbrough have been playing since 1890-91, and the last time they met the Rovers, by the aid of Simpson, won Brilliantly. But unless Blackburn Rovers learn to put the ball into the net, and Simpson and Sheat regain their ability and activity, Middlesbrough will not be easily beaten, in spite of League form. Sheffield Wednesday and Notts County, which takes us back to the days of protests, the win, tie, or wrangle epoch, will be a great game. Aston Villa anad Stoke can decide a little rubber which began in 1890-91. Fulham beat Manchester City in 1907-08, and are quite likely to give the Mancunians another hard battle.

A Great Ground.

Apropos the lack of sufficient ground in England for the Cup Final, Mr. I. I. Bentley writes:

"I sometimes wish we could get a ground in England like that of New Hampden, the home of the Queen's Park, Glasgow, but with the exception of Aston Villa I do not know a ground capable of the expansion, except, of course, Crystal Palace. And, after all what is the use of making a ground capable of holding 120,000 people? The original plans of the Manchester United provided for well over 100,000. At Hampden you feel absolutely lonely if there are only, say, 5,000 present. But the Queen's Park, as an amateur club, have high ideals, and one was to provide a ground capable of holding an International crowd, for it is the match of the year in Scotland. We in England regard the Irish as the tit-bit."

Captain Resents Jealousy.

At the conclusion of the Newcastle United match, Frank Buckley, the Derby captain, and one of the best centre half-backs in Great Britain, informed his directors that he would not kick a ball again for Derby County. The trouble is said to have been caused owing to jealousy among the players. This sort of unpleasantness has been carried on so far that the captain asked for anyone of the Derby County team to take the ball out, but none showed any desire to do so.

Rest Are Anglo-Welsh.

Only one of the eleven selected by the Welsh Football Association to play against Ireland at Wrenham this month is associated with a Welsh club. He is Llewellyn Davies, the Wrexham back, and, rather curiously, he will have for a partner Davies, the Northampton stalwart. As usual, the Jones family makes a brave show. J. T. Jones (Stoke) will figure at left half, Evans Jones (Bolton Wanderers) at inside right, and Lot Jones (Manchester City) at inside left.

The Pick.

Of to-day's games the most attractive will be Aston Villa vs. Sunderland, last year's cup finalists, and Liverpool vs. Everton, a local Derby. Middlesbro have a chance of avenging last week's cup defeat by Blackburn Rovers. They meet again to-day. The following should come out winners in the First League: Sunderland, Bolton, Derby County, Liverpool, Manchester United, Blackburn Rovers, Newcastle U., Preston N.E., Sheffield U. and Tottenham. In the second division all the home teams with the exception perhaps of Hull should secure the points.

Southern League.

Swindon, the leaders of the Southern League are at home and may be looked upon to safely account for Southampton. All the other games should prove interesting with the odds slightly in favour of the home clubs.

Scottish League.

Dundee will have the honour of entertaining Celtic, the leaders in Scotland, and nothing would please the Dens Park supporters than to see their team scoring a victory. It would make up for many downfalls.

We expect Celts to at least draw the game. Hearts will require to be very careful at Dumbarton but Rangers should have the pull over Motherwell. In the other games the following should win: St. Mirren, Airdrieonians, Morton, Clyde, Falkirk, Hamilton and Hibernians.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA SEVEN WON 7-3

The Queen Alexandra school seven defeated the Central school team on the Brock Street rink this morning, 7—3. This is the second victory for the north ward school this season. Robinson in goal had a hand in the victory, getting in the way of a number of likely shots. The half-time score was 4—0.

The line-up of the winning team was: Goal, Robinson; left defence, Head; right defence, Snelgrove; rover, Graham; centre, Park; right wing, Simpson; left wing, Henry.

57th. Band at Sacred Heart Rink Monday Night. Large rink, good ice, comfortable dressing room.

STORY OF ORT'S APPOINTMENT IS SOMEWHAT PREMATURE

Choice Lies Between St. Thomas Leader and Rube Deneau, the Popular Manager of Last Year's Cockneys.

SETTLED ON MONDAY

The story that George Ort, 1913 leader of the St. Thomas Club, would be Peterborough's manager this year, is somewhat premature. Ort has not yet been appointed, although he has submitted a proposition to the local directors. As a matter of fact, the choice lies between Ort and Rube Deneau, and the matter will not be settled until Minday.

Speaking of the Ort question, the St. Thomas Journal says:

Geo. R. Ort, who during the season of 1913, led the Saints as near a pennant as they ever approached in the three years they have been in the Canadian League, and who probably came in for more unwarranted panning than any manager in the league, has been appointed the manager of the Peterborough Club for the ensuing year, succeeding Davy Rowan.

Mr. Ort has been in communication with the Peterborough management for some weeks and to-day was called on the long distance by President Denham, of that club, who informed him that he had been appointed and instructed him to go out and get some players.

The "Sergeant" displayed real ability while leader of the Saints during the past season and his departure from the city will be heard with regret by a large number of the fans. Naturally he came in for a great deal of panning when the Saints took that memorable slide from the top of the heap to third position in July, but when it is remembered the manner of a ball club that he was leading at that time it could be seen that he was not entirely to blame.

The management here were divided on the question to appointing him again next year, some being decidedly in favour of him, while others were bitterly opposed to this plan of action. While the local men have been wrangling over this knotty question, George has quietly annexed another job and will be found fighting the Saints next season.

With Ort eliminated from the running the question of a manager for the coming season lies between Craven and Stewart, the concensus of opinion being that the former is the logical man for the job. The directors are mum regarding the matter, but it is quite probable that something will be done in the very near future.

While Mr. Ort will be connected with another club next season and a bitter opponent of the local team, he will have a host of friends in this city wishing him all the luck and success possible in his new berth.

THE WEATHER

A year ago at this date we were in the midst of a genuine "January thaw," or perhaps more properly speaking a spring flood. The creek running through the town was so high that dynamite was being used this day last year to break up the ice and open up passages for the raging waters under the different bridges.

The Widow's Dower

It is certain that "dower," the estate for life which the widow acquires at her husband's death, was not known among the early Saxons. In the laws of King Edmund the widow is directed to be supported wholly out of the personal estate. Dower is generally ascribed to the Normans, but it was first introduced into the feudal system by Emperor Frederick II. who was contemporary with the English Henry III about 1220.

KNIGHT'S OF PYTHIAS WERE "AT HOME"

Delightful Function Held Last Evening—200 Present

The Knights of Pythias were at home to their friends in their handsome apartments, Simcoe Street, last evening. About two hundred people assembled, the kind hospitality and genial spirits of the Knights combining to make this one of the most delightful "At Homes" of the present season. The club room and lodge room were both most artistically decorated, presenting a bright and gala appearance. The former, which was utilized for cards and refreshments, looked exceedingly pretty with its many pennants, bearing the name of almost every city and town in Canada, as well as several of the neighbouring cities of the United States. The lodge room was resplendent in the colours of the society, blue, yellow and red.

During the first part of the evening a pleasant time was spent at cards. A short programme, that was thoroughly enjoyed, was also given. It included a recitation by Mr. E. Desautel, entitled "Getting Old." So insistent were the demands for an encore that Mr. Desautel responded with "Johnny Corteau." Mr. Wainwright rendered a vocal solo in splendid voice, while Messrs. E. White and H. Allan were heard in a duet. Mr. H. Allan sang with pleasing effect Mr. H. Kendrew's recently published song, "The Bald-Headed Eagle of the U.S.A." This number was illustrated with some beautiful slides. Other numbers were a banjo selection by Mr. F. Clark, and fancy dancing by Mr. Custance.

Miss Gorman presided at the piano and great credit is due her for the splendid music provided for the occasion. The committee is to be congratulated on the very successful outcome of the evening.

Special Wire to The Examiner:

Another restless night left Sir James Whitney a little weaker than he was yesterday. What little sleep he was able to get came in broken snatches the longest nap lasting only three hours. He had little appetite for nourishment this morning, and though not losing nor talking much, seemed very feeble. It begins to look as if the gradual sinking would continue until the end, which may come Sunday.

WEDDING BELLS

The home of Mrs. E. A. Haisley of 247 Simcoe Street, Winnipeg, Man., formerly of Cobourg, Ont., was the scene of a pretty wedding, when her daughter, Miss Helen Gertrude Haisley, became the bride of Mr. Frederick J. Chapman, also of Winnipeg. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. Whiting, Pastor of Young Methodist Church, in the presence of only the immediate friends of the contracting parties. The bride wore an all-over lace gown over white silk, and bead pearl trimming, and carried a bouquet of white roses, lilies-of-the-valley and ferns. Mrs. Haisley, mother of the bride, wore black satin charmeuse, trimmed with Maltese lace.

The groom's gift to the bride was a ring set with diamonds.

Mr. and Mrs. Chapman left on the 3.50 train for Carbury and western cities, the bride travelling in an olive blue silk charmeuse, with fur trimmings and hat to match.

Upon their return they will reside at 247 Simcoe Street, Winnipeg.

The bride's many friends in Peterborough will join in wishing them every happiness.

CASTLE—KEEL.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at St. John's Church on Thursday, Jan. 15th, at 3 p.m., when Miss Elizabeth Royell Keel was united in marriage to Percy Richard Castle, Rev. Canon Davidson officiating. Both parties have been resident in this vicinity a number of years.

The bride who formerly lived in Edinburgh, looked very pretty in a grey tweed suit and hat of Alice blue, trimmed with fur and ostrich feathers. She carried carnations and roses. She was given away by her brother, Mr. Robert Keel, of Oshawa. The bridesmaids were Miss Elizabeth Smith and Miss Daisy Williams. Mr. Charles Drewett, an old friend of the groom, was best man. After the ceremony the People's Chimes were rung, and the happy couple returned to the home of Mrs. S. Patterson, 51 Hunter street east, where a splendid wedding dinner was served. Mr. Castle is a dairyman residing on the 2nd line of Smith, where the young couple will make their home.

O'BRIEN—BYRNE

Miss Mary O'Brien of Peterborough, Ont., and Mr. D. C. Byrne, of Edmonton, were married in the Sacred Heart Church on the morning of the 12th inst., at Edmonton, Rev. Father Pilon officiating.

The bride was attractively attired in a navy blue tailored suit and wore a black picture hat trimmed with aigrettes. She was attended by Miss Frances Byrne, who wore a becoming costume of tan broadcloth. Mr. J. A. Mackenzie acted as best man. Only the immediate friends of the contracting parties were present at the ceremony.

During the nuntial high mass solos were rendered by Mrs. Clement Digney. After the ceremony the party partook of the wedding breakfast at the Corona Hotel.

The groom's gift to the bride was a ring set with three whole pearls, to the bridesmaid a pearl brooch, and to the best man a valuable pin.

Mr. and Mrs. Byrne left on the afternoon train for Miette Hot Springs, where they will reside, bearing with them the best wishes of their many friends.

To Be Tried For Murder Of Jos. H. Pogue

Special Wire to The Examiner:

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 19. — John Faith, under indictment in the Logue murder case, was arraigned before Judge McDonald today for trial. Joseph H. Logue, the murder victim, was an aged jeweller and money lender, doing business in a downtown office building. In December, 1913, he was stabbed, beaten, shot and burned to death by acid. The murder occured in his office in the middle of the day. The motive for the crime was never determined, nor was the slightest clue to the murderers obtained for nearly two years. Some months ago a tale told by a woman led to the arrest of Faith as one of the murderers. Faith is alleged to have made a partial confession in which he implicated Harold Schneider. Schneider was recently tried and acquitted on the charge.

DR. WARDROPE DIES

Widely Known Presbyterian Minister Was 94 Years Old

PIONEER IN THE CHURCH

GUELPH, Jan. 19.—The death of Rev. Dr. Thomas Wardrope, aged 94, was announced to the congregation of Chalmers Presbyterian Church at yesterday morning's service. His death took place at the residence of his son-in-law, Arthur Greer, Montreal, on Saturday.

The late Dr. Wardrope was a pioneed in the service of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. For twenty-five years he was pastor of Chalmers' Church, Guelph, previous to which he had been pastor of St. Paul's Church, Ottawa, for twenty years. He was an ex-moderator of the General Assembly. Sixteen years ago he retired from active work and had since resided with his daughter in Montreal. He leaves four sons and two daughters: Thomas, Chicago; William H. (K.C.), Hamilton; J. Wyner, London, and George, Montreal; Mrs. Arthur Greer, Montreal, and Mrs. Dr. Corsan, Fernie, B.C.

Born at Ladykirk, Berwickshire, Scotland, in May, 1819, the son of the late Rev. Thomas Wardrope, a Presbyterian minister, and coming to Canada in 1834, the late Dr. Wardrope received his education at Queen's College, Kingston, by which he was honored with the degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1878, and at Knox College, Toronto, and Edinburgh University. In February, 1844, he married Miss Sarah Masson, with whom he passed forty-four years of happy wedded life, she dying in 1888.

In his early manhood he was principal of the Grammar School in Bytown, now Ottawa. He was ordained to the ministry in 1845. In 1858 he was elected Moderator of the Presbyterian Church of Canada, and in 1891 was similarly honored by the General Assembly of the United Church.

PELL UNDER RUNAWAYS.

Andrew Shaw Ran Out Into Road and Slipped on Ice.

TORONTO, Jan. 19. — Attempting to stop a runaway team of horses on Davenport road yesterday afternoon, will, in all probability, cost Andrew Shaw, 163 Christie street, his life. The team attached to a double cutter, was standing on Davenport road at the corner of Shaw street, at six o'clock, with three men sitting in the sleigh. Without warning the horses bolted and at the corner of Christie street Shaw ran into the middle of the roadway, and by waving his arms, tried to bring the animals to a halt.

Before the horses reached him he evidently knew they could not be stopped, for he started to run back to the sidewalk. At his first step his foot slipped on the icy roadway, and before he could recover the horses struck him and hurled him 15 feet to the other kerb. He was picked up unconscious and conveyed to the General Hospital in the police ambulance.

At the hospital it is stated he has both jawbones fractured, a fractured skull and internal injuries. His chances of recovery are slight.

Wholesale Murderer To Die.

FRANKFORT-ON-MAIN, Germany, Jan. 19.—Carl Hoff, a local druggist, was sentenced to death here yesterday, on charges of killing his two children, his father and his first wife, by administering poison. He was also accused of attemping to murder his second and third wives and another person, in order to obtain their insurance, which amounted to large sums.

Nine Fishermen Drowned.

CETTE, France, Jan. 19.—Nine of the crew of the fishing steamer Marguerite Marie, who took to a lifeboat during a storm, were drowned yesterday off Cape Creux, the boat being overturned by a giant wave. The captain and five sailors were rescued by a passing vessel.

CANNOT ARBITRATE

Sea Safety Delegates Fail to Agree on Important Point

CONERENCE IS AT AN END

LONDON, Jan. 19.—The work of the revision committee of the International Congress on Safety at Sea, was practically brought to a close last night, the members working all day Sunday.

The arbitration feature of the conference again obtruded last night, the United States and Great Britain coming to terms on the matter of allowing arbitration on such occasions as this was requested and was agreeable. Germany and France, however, declined to agree to arbitration between themselves or with Great Britain or the United States on the Anglo-American basis.

Great Britain had demanded originally that all disputes under the proposed convention, and all violations of the shipping laws should be arbitrated between the parties in dispute. This was unqualifiedly opposed by the American delegates, who also opposed the proposal that all disputes be sent to the international court of arbitration at The Hague.

Another agreement preserves intact the private code signals of any country, reserved for war. 'Use is made of the commercial code, and only one code will be used for any distress call. This will assure its being understood by all ships within range.

The adoption of the provision of rafts aboard ships, against the contention of the Americans, was carried. The Americans held out for the contantion that never more than one-third of the life-saving craft should consists of rafts, and always two-thirds or more of lifeboats, where the ship carries both.

Nova Scotian Vessel Abandoned.

BOSTON, Jan. 19.—The Nova Scotian schooner Ladysmith was abandoned at sea in a water-logged condition and her crew were saved by the British steamer Chignecto, according to a wireless message sent out by the transatlantic liner St. Louis.

The position of the schooner when abandoned was given as latitude 40.55 north, longitude 63.46 west. The Ladysmith has been sailing between Halifax, N.S., and New York, and carried a crew of six men, commanded by Captain Loynes.

RAILROAD IS JEALOUS.

It Accuses Canada of Misleading Immigrants From U. S.

OTTAWA, Jan. 19.—When asked if he had anything to say regarding the accusation made before a Congressional commission on Saturday that the Canadian Government was spending $100,000 a year through a western newspaper union, for the publication in country newspapers of false agricultural information in the form of news stories to lure American farmers to Canada, Blake Robertson, assistant superintendent of immigration, said, "absolutely nothing was published unless it was fact. The Department advertised largely in American newspapers and nothing was stated that they could not substantiate." He added that the Department would be glad to go before the Congressional committee at Washington and give evidence.

It is in the knowledge of the Immigration Department that a certain American railway which owns large tracts of land and is trying to fill them with settlers, has been conducting an inimical campaign against the Canadian Immigration Department, and it is considered that the main spring of the attack at Washington is this railway.

KRAFCHENKO CAPTURED.

Murderer Is Captured In Winnipeg—Constable Also Jailed.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 19.—John Krafchenko was arrested in Winnipeg last night.

Krafchenko, who was facing trial for the murder of H. M. Arnold, manager of the Plum Coulee branch of the Bank of Montreal, secured a revolver and keys to his cell and adjoining room through some mysterious agency, held up his two guards, locked them in the clothes' closet and escaped through the window of the photographing room adjoining on Jan. 10. He had not since been heard of, but the Winnipeg police believed him to be still in the city.

Another sensation in the Krafchenko case occurred Saturday night when Constable Reid, late of Hamilton, Ont., who, with Constable Flower, was on guard over Krafchenko when he made his sensational escape over a week ago, was placed under arrest charged with being an accessory in the jail delivery. It is stated that Reid was put through the third degree to discover his confederates, but to what effect is not at present known.

SIR JAMES RETURNS

Premier Whitney Being Brought Home to Toronto

IMPROVEMENT IS OBSERVED

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Sir James Whitney, who has been ill of heart disease at the Manhattan Hotel since Dec. 14, left for Toronto last night on a special car attached to the New York Central train leaving the Grand Central station at 8.05 p.m.

On the train with him are Lady Whitney, Dr. R. A. Pyne and Horace Wallis, the Premier's private secretary.

Dr. Pyne issued the following official statement last night:

"Sir James Whitney's condition remains practically unchanged, although he is somewhat stronger than he was a few days ago. As the outlook for any material improvement in the immediate future is most uncertain, and as he has been most anxious to be at home among his own people, his physicians decided yesterday that it was advisable to remove him to-night to Toronto. They believed that this could be accomplished without any dangerous risk or serious fatigue, and that if at home the possible chances for ultimate recovery might be improved. Sir James was conveyed to the Ontario Government car, and will make the trip to Toronto in it, accompanied by his wife, his colleague, Dr. Pyne, his secretary (Mr. Horace Wallis), and his trained nurses.

Yesterday's examination of the patient, whose life has been despaired of at various times since his arrival here, convinced Dr. Pyne and Dr. Herman M. Biggs of this city, who has been the consulting physician in the case, that the patient could stand the removal to his home.

The decided improvement in the Ontario Premier was apparent yesterday when the physicians made their usual morning examination. They found the heart in such condition that for a moment they had some doubts of the result of their own work and went over the patient again. The result was an optimistic bulletin, but at the same time Dr. Pyne was careful not to commit himself to any statement of probable action based on the improvement of his patient, as he had been disappointed just a week ago, when conditions seemed almost as favorable.

Sir James took nourishment well yesterday, and his wasted strength seemed to return quickly with the improvement in the trouble which had been the source of anxiety.

While he has lost a great deal of his splendid vitality, the belief was expressed yesterday, he has still reserve strength for a good fight against the enemy that threatened to cut short his career, and he has justified the hope expressed all along by Dr. Pyne, that it would still be possible to take him home.

The examination by the physicians yesterday having shown that Saturday's conditions were greatly improved, it was determined therefore to remove the Premier without further delay. Plans for the removal were prepared quietly. The day was propitious for secrecy for on Sunday the crowds about the hotel and station are smaller than at any other time. Even the people in the office of the Hotel Manhattan were not aware until about an hour before train time of the intention to take away their distinguished guest. At six o'clock, an enquiry at the office, when it proved impossible to get into touch with either Dr. Pyne or Mr. Wallis, brought the reply that as far as was known at the hotel there was no change in the condition of the patient. No mid-day bulletin had been issued, and no adverse reports had come from the sick room.

Some time after six o'clock came the first intimation to the hotel office that the Whitney party was about to leave. A short time later an ambulance, for which tentative arrangements had been made a couple of weeks ago, arrived and the stricken Premier was carried down from his suite and driven slowly the two blocks to the special car which had been waiting in the New York Central yards for weeks, and had been prepared during the day for the trip.

The transfer was made without mishap, and the special car was attached to the outgoing train. Thus was accomplished the wish which the distinguished patient had formulated many times during his severe illness, and he was started on his way home, where he hopes to make a better fight against the disease.

Still After Cherif Pasha.

PARIS, Jan. 19.—The police say that the associates of the man who on Wednesday attempted to assassinate Gen. Mehmed Cherif Pasha, one of the chiefs of the Radical Turkish party, undismayed by his tragic fate, already have planned nother attempt to kill Cherif Pasha. Knowing there is no chance of getting into Cherif Pasha's apartment, the police say the men design to follow him in an automobile and shoot him. They hope to escape in the confusion that will follow.

Pittsburg Railroad Makes Wholesale Dismissals of Men.

WASHINGTON, Penn., Jan 19.—Railroad men were startled yesterday when it was learned that 126 men employed on the Pittsburg & Brownsville division of the Pittsburg & Lake Erie road have been dismissed summarily. The charge in every case was drinking. While the company officials refused to discuss the case it was learned that about 500 employes are to go for the same reason.

While the discharge order came as a surprise, it was not issued without warning. Weeks ago the Pittsburg & Lake Erie, a New York Central branch, posted notices that all drinking among employes must cease at once, warning them that any detected drinking, whether on duty or not, would lose their positions without further warning. Detectives were detailed to watch suspected employes.

Some of the men who have lost their positions have grown old in the railroad service, and some of the highest paid skilled men are affected. Among those discharged were engineers, conductors, firemen, brakemen, and flagmen, but no telegraphers.

Suffragette Caught After Ten Months.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Phyllis Brady, the well-known militant suffragette, after evading the police for ten months, was arrested and brought before the police court at Chertsey, Surrey, Saturday. The magistrate committed her for trial at London sessions, on a charge of arson. She is believed to be one of the suffragettes who set fire to the residence of Lady White, widow of the late field marshal, Sir George White, at Englefield Green, Surrey, on March 20.

What Will 1914 Bring?

Will Be Year of Marvellous Scientific Discoveries—Also One of Disaster and Death

FOREMOST SEERS TELL US

The year 1914 will be one of marvellous scientific discoveries and progress, but in other respects it will be one of disasters, deaths of great and famous persons and misfortunes, says Prof. Simmons Latillier, the American astrologer. Uranus and Jupiter, occupying Aquarius, a metaphysical and watery sign, rule the world of scientific progress, but in other directions the heavenly signs are not favourable. Grave danger threatens the life of a world-famous American millionaire, whose vast fortune was made from a monopoly of one of the commonest domestic commodities. The danger to him will be greatest in February, when Mars, a planet inimical to his health, rules the tenth house.

Serious efforts will be made by several state legislatures to hold to responsibility the president and directors of railroads and other corporations. The wreckers of a great American property will be forced to disgorge some of their stolen gains by the infuriated stockholders.

I will now give a forecast for the month of January and a brief review of the principal events which the heavenly signs indicate for the following months of the year:

January—The figure for the winter Solstice shows Saturn near the ascendant, denoting excessive cold, blizzard and bad health. The third and last week of January bring this much into evidence, while Saturn, opposing the mid-heaven in the monthly lunation, emphasizes evil tendency. There will be earthquakes in the eastern and middle states near the ninth, seventeenth and twenty-sixth, and mining disasters in Pennsylvania and Virginia.

The month benefits those born in the last half of January, March, May, September or November of any year; and threatens evil to those born near the beginning of March, June, September or December.

February, with Jupiter so near the lunation, gives cause for optimism in many directions. There will be a great improvement in trade and finance. A great fire destroying a large section of a great eastern city will occur about the tenth.

Jupiter in conjunction with Uranus portends earthquake disturbances in the eastern sections of the contry in March. An unusual number of fires will occur in New York City.

The Pope's health will be a cause of apprehension in Aril. A crisis in that venerable Pontiff's life will occur about this time. The health of Thomas A. Edison will also be a matter of grave anxiety to his friends.

Uranus culminating in the lunation in May points to notable scientific discoveries. The wireless telephone across the Atlantic will become practicable.

A prominent naval figure will pass away in June, mourned by the whole nation. The month is ushered in with the Pleiades ascending, a strong promise for bountiful crops, but there will be a brief financial crisis followed by a quick recovery.

Severe storms will occur in July, with property destruction reaching a record.

Orville Wright is warned to keep close to the earth during August and not venture any flights into the air as the heavenly signs are very ominous for American flying men during this month.

A critical complication with foreign nations relating to the Panama Canal will occur in September, but the United States will pass through it successfully.

A great exposure of corrupt politics will be made in Philadelphia in October, showing that city is no better than New York was under the Tweed reign. A revolution will break out in Russia, anl the United States will help to bring it about by insisting on justice for the poor oppressed Hebrews.

An American cardinal will pass away in November. The month of December will be made remarkable by a tremendous advance in the stock market after a long period of depression.

Eric Armour A Candidate

TORONTO, Jan. 19.—Mr. Eric Armour, who is in the contest for the second vice-presidency of the Toronto Board of Trade at the elections today, is one of the most popular young men in Toronto business and legal circles. He has been a member of the council of the Board for three years, and Chairman of the Legislation Committee, and his fellow-members feel that in an executive position he would be of great assistance in unravelling such problems as that involved in the proposed purchase of the Toronto Railway and the Toronto Electric Light Company.

Mr. Armour is the son of the late Chief Justice Armour. He was born in Cobourg, Ont., and received his preliminary education in the public schools and the collegiate institute. Later he attended Upper Canada College and Toronto University, where he graduated in 1899, with honours. He graduated from the Ontario Law School in 1902, from the Ontario Law School in 1902, and has successfully practiced his profession in Toronto. He is a governor of the University of Toronto, and politics has claimed a little of his attention.

At the present time he is again in the limelight as counsel in the investigation into the affairs of the City Architect's Department that is being held at the City Hall before Judge Denton.

A Reply To An Elector

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Sir,—I read with interest your leader and also the letter signed An Elector, in your issue of the 12th inst.

I hold no brief for Mr. Burnham, but there are some things in your correspondent's letter which runs thus: "Surely if Free Trade (so-called) can and does enable England to pay her enormous increase of expenditure on armaments, provision for old age pensions reducing the number of paupers 50 per cent., state insurance, reducing the national debt by millions, emigrants from the British Isles, show a decrease of 278,253 for the eleven months ending November, 1913.

Regarding the increase of expenditure on armaments, my old and esteemed friend (Mr. Lloyd George), has spoken to the effect that he cannot see his way to provide the money for this unnecessary expenditure without saddling the ratepayers with a burden that he knows is already crippling industry.

Regarding old age pensions it was an excellent and popular reform, but unfortunately is abused. But I fail to see where it has reduced pauperism to the extent your correspondent attributes. The Board of Guardians, of which I was an elected member, found it very difficult for a pauper to accept a pension in preference to out relief, for the reasons that being carried with it medical attendance, and necessities ordered by the medical officer, whereas a pensioner would have to pay for both and also relief is delivered to the pauper's house where a pension must be got from a post office.

National Insurance is not popular, and in many cases this (stamp licking) act when its benefits have been put to the electors, has been the downfall of the Liberal party. In large and industrial centres like Manchester, where two seats were lost to the government in 1910. It was also fatal in a most radical place like Oldham and Crewe also sent a member to show its disapproval of the act, and moreover, Mr. Bonar Law has made it plain he will repeal the act upon the return to power of the Tory party.

The decrease of emigrants from Great Britain—According to the returns from Ottawa, dated Jan. 16, 1914, shows an increase of six per cent. of emigrants arriving in Canada from Great Britain during the first nine months, April to December, of the current fiscal year. There was 134,317 emigrants from Great Britain during the corresponding nine months. The number was 127,875, an increase of six per cent. Canada is the Happy Hunting Ground of the British emigrant, so according to the figures, the accuracy of which I know is correct, I fail to see where your correspondent can make out the decrease of 278,253. If things are so good in the Old Country I fail to see why there should be so many leaving it and making their homes in countries which are protected. I am, Sir,

Yours,

Suffered Intense Agony With His Back.

Kidneys Were The Cause.

Weak back is caused by weak kidneys, and on the first approach or evidence of kidney trouble Doan's Kidney Pills should be used, and serious trouble avoided.

Doan's Kidney Pills go right to the seat of the trouble, cure the weak aching back, and prevent any further complications arising.

Mr. John Briggs, Whitewood, Sask., writes:—"I am sending you this testimonial out of pure gratitude, as I am not a believer in patent medicines, but I got so run down, that I became quite willing to give anything a trial. I paid a visit to our local druggist, and told him I was suffering intense agony with my back. He told me I had kidney trouble, and handed me a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, saying it was the best thing he could possibly give me. I tried them, and the effect was certainly marvelous. They are worth $10.00 a box of anybody's money, and I would not be without a box by me. I certainly owe my present condition to Doan's Kidney Pills."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Here Is the Secret of Long Life

While looking forward to health and long life it is possible that you are unaware of the conditions necessary to attain healthful old age. Careful eating, and consequent preservation of the health and vitality of the digestive and excretory organs, is of the greatest importance.

Overeating is the usual cause of torpid, sluggish liver action, and when the liver fails additional work is thrown on the kidneys and they break down. Kidney disorders are the great source of suffering in old age. Rheumatism, bodily pains, aching arms and legs, backache and lumbago are the result.

By the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to regulate the liver, kidneys and bowels, as occasion requires, you not only overcome the suffering, inconvenience and unpleasantness of attacks of biliousness, indigestion and constipation, but you actually prolong life by keping these organs in good, healthful condition. This medicine is a wonderful source of comfort for people in old age.

CARE OF THE FEET

Women who spend hours caring for their hands pay little attention to their feet. They are such hard-worked members of the body that they deserve better treatment.

Feet are best kept in condition by shoes that fit. Never economize in shoe leather and do not yield to vanity and get footwear that is too small.

Frequent bathing keeps the feet from being tired and swollen, and it prevents roughhness of the skin that leads to callous spots.

Water in which a bit of washing soda has been dissolved is restful. Hot salt water is equally refreshing, while a vigorous rubbing with alcohol will quickly relieve a burning sensation.

Pumicestone, used frequently, keeps the skin smooth. It is especially necessary on the heel and on the ball of the foot, where the weight of the body rests in walking.

Never cut the nails too short, as they are likely to become ingrown. And file them smooth with sandpaper, so they will not catch and pull the threads of your stockings.

Open to Conviction

"Some of your constituents are disagreeing with you," said the trusted lieutenant.

"Well, keep tab on them," replied Senator Sorghum; "when enough disagree with me to constitute a reliable majority I'm going to turn around and agree with them."

The Glorious Promises Made to Israel Still Future.

ARE SECURED BY GOD'S WORD

"I Have Sworn, Saith Jehovah • • • That I Will Greatly Bless Thee, and I Will Exceedingly Multiply Thy Seed as the Stars of Heaven and as the Sand Which Is Upon the Seashore, • • • and In Becoming Thy Seed Shall All Nations of the Earth Bless Themselves.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its insertion.]

Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 18.—Pastor Russell spoke here this morning on the above text. In the afternoon he personally conducted the opening exhibition of the International Bible Students production of the Bible in pictures, "The Photo Drama of Creation." In Cincinnati's celebrated Music Hall. We report his discourse on a preferred rendering of Genesis 22:16-18. He said:

Six thousand years ago in Eden our Maker, in justly sentencing His disobedient children to death, intimated that ultimately the Seed of the woman would bruise the Serpent's head. This hidden promise was the first intimation of the Divine mercy which our gracious Creator had purposed in Himself from before the foundation of the world. Ever noble, kind and gracious, our Creator restrained His mercy for the good of His creatures—that they might learn to appreciate the exceeding sinfulness of sin. For the good of the angels also, that they might fully know of His Justice, as well as of His Wisdom and His Power. God insisted upon dealing with His creatures from the standpoint of exact Justice. Man had sinned, and thereby had forfeited all claim upon the eternal life which God had given him conditionally.

Eternal torment, as we have already seen, did not in any sense or degree enter into the Divine purpose. His sentence upon man, plainly stated, was, "Dying, thou shalt die," not Living, thou shalt live in torment. (Genesis 2:17.) God purposed to exemplify in His dealings with our race a principle of Divine government to be made operative everywhere ultimately—amongst all His creatures on the spirit plane as well as upon the earthly.

Long centuries after, God spoke to Abraham, but first tested his faith and loyalty. To him the Almighty mentioned the same great Deliverer who would bruise the Serpent's head. God gave Abraham the assurance that this One would in some way be identified with his posterity, so that He might properly be called the Seed of Abraham. God said, "In thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed."

The Divine Program was not changed, but more explicit statements were given respecting it. Thereafter all who were taught of God would know to look for the Messianic blessing through Abraham's Seed. This Covenant was afterward confirmed with an Oath to Abraham, and later to Isaac and then to Jacob. This Covenant became the basis of God's adoption of the entire nation of Israel—all of Jacob's children. They were the heirs of the Abrahamic Promise — the Oath-bound Covenant. All the hopes that have thus far preserved Israel as a people are built upon the foundation of this Covenant, secured to them by the Word and the Oath of our unchangeable God.

If it should seem strange to us that the Almighty Jehovah should condescend to make oaths to His creatures respecting the gracious gifts of His hand, I remind you that God knew what Abraham did not know; namely, that the Promise attested by that Oath would linger for more than thirty-nine hundred years without accomplishment. God foreknew that without His Oath to this Promise Israel would naturally feel either that He had forgotten it, or that something had occurred to alter or amend the Divine Program. Hence the Oath and the fact that this Covenant is called the Covenant of the Oath.

From Genesis to Malachi there is nothing in the Holy Scriptures that implies a change of nature from human to spiritual for mankind in general. Nothing intimates that mankind will ever be like the angels. The prophetic promises, on the contrary, tell of restitution to the former estate—to human perfection and to an Eden home restored—worldwide. The Jubilee system of the Law of Moses taught this same lesson. On the fiftieth year every slave was set at liberty and every property reverted to its original owners. In this God pictured man's return to harmony with Himself—man's liberation from the bondage of Sin and Death, his restoration to the image of his Creator, from which he fell through sin, and the return to him of the dominion of earth in its glorious perfection.

I remind you of the wonderful word pictures drawn by the Prophet Isaiah. He tells that the wilderness shall blossom as the rose; that streams shall break forth in the desert; that the blessing of the Lord shall be upon the earth, and it shall yield its increase. He tells that then the inhabitant shall no more say, I am sick, when all the blind eyes shall be opened and all the deaf ears shall be unstopped.

The Prophet Jeremiah tells us that then it will no longer be necessary to say to one's neighbor or to one's brother, Know thou the Lord; for all shall know Him, from the least to the greatest. The Prophet Habakkuk declares that in that glorious time the knowledge of the glory of God shall fill the whole earth.

These blessed conditions cannot come to the world, according to the Scriptures, until first God's blessing shall be upon His ancient people Israel, as attested by the Oath-bound Covenant, that through them the blessing shall extend to all the nations of the earth, when the Law shall go forth from Mount Zion and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem.

I am sure that I speak directly to the hearts of humanity when I say that this glorious picture of human Restitution is far more captivating to the great majority than are any suggestions of a Heavenly kind. Had we the time, it would afford pleasure to discuss the indications that the fulfilment of these prophecies is just at hand.

Some have imagined that Messiah's Kingdom will be an earthly one, and that Messiah Himself will be a great man. But this is a mistake. Israel's long-promised King will be, not a man, but a spirit being, Jehovah's honored Agent, whose glory will be far higher than that of angels who will be His ministers, His servants.

Do we not all remember that it is written in the Book of Daniel (7:13, 14) that Messiah will come in the clouds of Heaven? To Him the Ancient of Days will give the dominion and government, and all peoples and nations shall serve Him. Surely we are not to expect Messiah to come and conquer the world with cannon and dreadnoughts; God has another method by which earthly powers shall melt before His glorious Kingdom in the hands of Messiah.

Another description of Messiah's Kingdom conquering the world is given in the 97th Psalm. There is no doubt that this is the prophetic picture here given. His Kingdom, like David's and Solomon's of old, will be Jehovah's Kingdom; but, unlike theirs, His will be the higher, the spiritual, Heavenly.

We read, "Clouds and thick darkness are round about Him; righteousness and justice are the foundations of His Throne." Destructive judgments as a fire will sweep away unrighteous institutions from the world, whether these be backed by Jewish or by Gentile capital or arms. Then, the Prophet declares, "His lightnings (His revelations) will enlighten (and reform) the world." Society as now organized, symbolically called the earth, will tremble. This is already the case.

Soon the next verse will have fulfilment. The mountains will melt like wax at His presence. From the Heavenly ones will come the message of God's righteousness; and all the people shall see His glory—the glory of the Divine character in the righteousness of the Kingdom. All scriptures of kinds of every kind will be ashamed. Those who are worshipers of mammon—stocks and bonds, houses and lands—will, as Mr. Carnegie has declared, be ashamed of riches accumulated contrary to the Golden Rule.

The next verse tells of the Jews and shows how this blessed Message of the Kingdom will affect them, saying, "Zion heareth it and rejoiceth; glad are the daughters of Jerusalem because of Thy decrees, O Jehovah!" Then follows the message that is particularly due to-day to all—both rich and poor—"Ye that love the Lord, hate ye the evil. He will preserve the lives of His pious ones."

Malachi 3:1-5 is another prophecy speaking of the same great Messiah, Mediator of the New Covenant, King of kings and Lord of lords. As the Representative of Jehovah, His Father, He is to reign until all enemies shall be put down; until Satan shall be bound and ultimately crushed; until Adam and his race, released from the Divine sentence, shall under the New Covenant conditions be lifted out of sin, degradation and death up to perfection and life everlasting—the unwilling and disobedient being destroyed in the Second Death.

The Prophet Malachi points out that the Messenger of the New Covenant whom he announces, is the glorious Mediator and antitypical King for whom Israel had waited long and of whom they delighted to think. He would come to the Temple—thus implying that He would be not only an antitypical Prophet, an antitypical King, but also an antitypical Priest—"after the Order of Melchizedek"; "A Priest upon His Throne."

But after this joyful proclamation that Israel's long-expected Mediator of the New Covenant should be looked for, they were warned that His Day would be one of trial, of special testing and proving, in order that the Lord might find the antitypical Priests and the antitypical Levites to serve in the antitypical Temple. He would be like a refiner's fire to take away the dross and to leave only the pure metal—fiery trials and testings being implied. He would be like "fuller's soap," in the sense that a great washing or purging would take place to make ready for the Kingdom the called and chosen and faithful.

At that time the consecration of Judah and Jerusalem unto the Lord will be acceptable as in olden times. We may understand that this spirit of devotion is now reviving amongst the Jews, particularly amongst those who are identified with Jerusalem and the Zionist movement. Hitherto this has been a political movement in the interest of Jewish nationalization and a home for exiles. Now, however, the due time has come for a real movement of those who have the faith—to draw near to God and to show their faith by helping forward in the restoration of Jerusalem and her interests.

The Logos, the First-begotten of the Father, His glorious Agent in the mighty work of creation, had the honor granted Him of becoming the Messenger of the Covenant, the great Prophet, Priest and King of Israel, the great Michael of Daniel 12:1. But there were tests connected with His attainment of this high position.

(1) By faith He must lay aside His Heavenly glory, in obedience to the Father's will, and become a Man—not a sinful man, but "holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners"—a perfect Man.

(2) Thus prepared to become the Redeemer, it was His privilege to make full consecration of His earthly interest, and the Father's pleasure to beget Him of the Holy Spirit at Jordan to the spirit nature on the highest plane of existence. For three years and a half His sacrifice burned on the altar. It was indeed better than the sacrifice of bulls and goats; for it was a corresponding price for Adam—"an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, a man's life for a man's life."

(3) When Jesus had thus sacrificially parted with His earthly life He experienced a resurrection change from human nature to spiritual, like what He was originally, only higher and more glorious. Thus He was at once both a sacrifice and the spirit-begotten Priest who offered that sacrifice. When He arose from the dead, His personal sacrifice had ended, and His personal perfection as a spirit being was completed.

The question then arises, Why did He not at once begin His great work as Prophet, Priest, King and New Covenant Mediator for Israel and, through Israel, for the world? The Scriptures answer that it was because there was to be more than one sacrifice in the Divine Plan on the antitypical Day of Atonement. Throughout this Gospel Age this risen, glorified High Priest, Mediator, Prophet and King has been waiting to inaugurate His glorious Kingdom of Blessing—waiting while a little handful of saints should be selected from the world, tested and found worthy, and then glorified with Himself—a Little Flock, both Jews and Gentiles.

When this Bride class shall have completed her sacrifice in and under the merit of the great Priest, then every arrangement for Israel's blessing as Abraham's seed, and of all nations through Israel, will forthwith commence. Thus seen, the revelation of the great Messenger of the New Covenant is very important, not only to the Jews, but also to the world of mankind, who must receive their blessings under Israel by compliance with the same New Law Covenant. Moreover, the elect handful of saints drawn, called and gathered during the parenthesis period of the Gospel Age are also deeply interested in God's glorious Kingdom; for the Divine promise is that they shall then be changed to be like their Master and to share His glory.

Studying the Bible from this standpoint, I am sure that with myself you will see that the Divine predictions of Messiah's Kingdom indicate that it will have a glory and a power superhuman, in the light of which even Solomon's glory, riches and honor will fade. Indeed, was not Solomon merely a foreshadow of the great King of Glory, the Heavenly One?

When we remember that Messiah's Kingdom is not only to bless those living at the time of its establishment, but gradually to awaken the dead and give all of Adam's race a full opportunity to attain life everlasting, then it will be seen that the Kingdom must be a spiritual one. Then, too, Messiah's Kingdom of Light is represented as superseding Satan's kingdom of darkness—both spiritual.

In full accord with this thought is the prophecy, "Behold, a King shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall execute judgment." (Isaiah 32:1.) Messiah will be the great King—the Church, His Bride, being associated with Him. The Princes who will execute judgment will be the Ancient Worthies of Israel—Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and all the holy Prophets—carrying out the decrees and regulations of the Heavenly Messiah. This is the meaning of the Lord's promise to Israel, "I will restore thy judges as at the first, and thy counselors as at the beginning."—Isaiah 1:26.

In conclusion, I ask you to note the critical translation of my text which I have given. According to the Hebrew, the nations are to bless themselves in the Seed of Abraham. In other words, after the establishment of Messiah's Kingdom, when Israel shall have been reorganized and brought into favor with God under the New Covenant (Jeremiah 31:31-34), and when the Princes of all the earth shall be Israelitish—Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and all the Prophets—then the door of opportunity, first opened to the Jew, will stand open to all nations, that they may be adopted under the gracious terms of the New Covenant. Then, with Israel as servants of God, they may become children of Abraham. This is the significance of the words of our text. The nations shall bless themselves in Abraham's Seed—by becoming through faith and consecration to God members thereof.

A WONDERFUL CURE OF AN ABSCESS BY

Burdock Blood Bitters.

Mr. A. W. Dryden, Amherst, N.S., writes:—"I am going to tell you what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for us. My son "Vance," when only nine months old, got an abscess on his cheek bone. I took him to a doctor in St. John, N.B., and he lanced it, and told me it would get well in a few days, and wanted me to keep it squeezed out. It did not seem to get any better, so my wife took him back. The Doctor told her to take him home and it would soon get better. It would gather and break, and it went on that way until he was over four years old.

"He lost four pieces of bone out of where it was lanced, and two pieces came from his mouth; he has lost all of his cheek bone, and his eye was drawn down. I took him to doctors in St. John, Moncton, and Amherst, and all wanted me to let him go under an operation. He was so small I told them that if he was going to die he might as well die as he was as to go there and be all cut to pieces, so I declined to have the operation done. I told them I was going to try Burdock Blood Bitters, as I had heard my mother talk so much about it. I got a bottle, and when it was about half gone noticed it was doing good, and before many days the sore stopped running, and healed up, and the abscess has never broken out again. This happened nearly six years ago, so you can see I have great faith in Burdock Blood Bitters, and I can say with all my heart that it is the best blood medicine in the world."

The report of the Lands Department of the Province of British Columbia for the year 1913 indicates over a million acres of land were surveyed for the Government during the year, which is 209 per cent. acres more surveyed than any previous year. The greatest forestry revenue ever paid into any provincial treasury during a single year was received by British Columbia. During 1913 revenue from forest surveys amounted to more than three million dollars

TURNED DOWN

MONTREAL, Jan. 19. — Advices from Scotland state that the request of the Dominion Football Association, made to the Scottish football team, preferably the Celtic or Rangers, should be allowed to tour Canada during the coming summer has been turned down. Mr. Robinson, an official for the Scottish Football Association, is quoted as saying that his association has no power to grant the request. This does not mean necessarily that none of the big British teams will play here next season, although if any definite arrangements are to be made the D. F. A. will have to do some tall hustling.

Evidently it is the view of the Scottish Football Association, that the only body that can give its sanction to such a tour as has been proposed is the football association to which body the Scottish Football Association and the D. F. A. are alike affiliated.

If the D. F. A. can get the football association's sanction for a tour of one of the Scottish teams, or, for that matter, of two of them, or of an English team and a Scottish team, there is no reason why such a tour could not be yet arranged, always providing that the necessary capital can be found.

"SOME HA'E MEAT, AND CANNA EAT"

So Bobby Burns tersely describes the rich, but still poor, dyspeptics. But their case is not now so desperate as when Burns wrote. For the man who has the food now can eat without suffering for it, if he just follows the meal with a Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablet.

These remarkable tablets banish the troubles of the chronic dyspeptic—the man who is bilious—the sufferer from heartburn, gas on the stomach or occasional indigestion. You can eat hearty meals of wholesome food—and digest them, too—if you take Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets.

Compounded by expert chemists, after probably the best formula known to medical science, they are quick and certain in their action, giving prompt relief from all forms of stomach trouble, toning up and strengthening the digestive organs and bringing about permanent cures.

A man is no stronger than his stomach. Fit yourself for your best work by taking Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets. 50c. at your druggist's. National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Montreal. 146

SHOW IMPROVEMENT

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The three patients being treated for cancer with a tube of the chloride salts of radium at the office of Dr. Charles Russell Hancock here continued yesterday to show the marked improvement which characterized the earlier stages of the treatment.

Dr. Hancock is especially interested in the determining whether the cases can be cured, because two of the three are cases in which cancer has recurred after operations, and a cure, therefore, will be a field where the knife has failed.

One of the patients of Dr. Hancock came to him with a eye badly bulged from a cancerous growth behind the socket. The eye itself had been removed in an operation for cancer, but the cancer had recurred and the eyelid had been pressed back from the growth until it could not be seen. When this patient, a young girl from the Bowery, came to Dr. Hancock's office to-day the eyelid was moving about freely and winked as naturally as the lid on the eye which was healthy.

The patient suffering from cancer of the breast had been unable to sleep for several months without the use of opiates, on account of the pain. The treatments so far have resulted in a reduction of the cancer's size and the elimination of pain to such an extent that the patient has abandoned opiates, and is able to sleep normally. The patient's mannerhas completely changed towards a cheerfulness that was normal to her before the cancerous growth commenced.

An additional element of interest comes from the fact that the tube of radium was prepared by Mme. Curie.

Macaulay and Music.

Macaulay was entirely insensible to the charms of music. We find him writing from Windsor castle on Jan. 14, 1851: "At table I was between the Duchess of Norfolk and a foreign woman who could hardly speak English intelligibly. I got on as well as I could. The band covered the talk with a succession of sonorous tunes. 'The Campbells Are Coming' was one." And Macaulay's biographer, Sir George Otto Trevelyan, supplies the following instructive footnote: "This is the only authentic instance on record of Macaulay's having known one tune from another."—London Spectator.

COUNTY BALL SEASON IN FULL SWING, BUT LONDON STAYS DULL

Seven Affairs Out of Town Help to Enliven Society's Week, but a Tango Tea Is the Only Bright Spot in the City—Many Presentations at the Coming Court.

ENGAGEMENT OF INTEREST TO AMERICANS

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, January 17.

THE hunt and county ball season is now in full swing, beginning with no fewer than seven on Tuesday, these being the Southwold, Cumberland, Garth, Hurts, Crawley and Horsham and Wiltshire, and a bal masque at York. Both the latter had great attendances, especially the York bal masque. This on so large a scale was such a decided novelty in the county that more than six hundred were present, and as no one was allowed to enter the room without a mask, the ladies also having dominoes, there was much merry confusion, especially as no programme was supplied until after the masks and dominoes were removed.

Among the most distinguished persons present were Lord and Lady Furness, Lord St. Vincent, with Miss Gervais, Lord St. Germans and other officers of the Scots Greys.

It is not often a hunt ball is held in a country house, and the attendance at the Crawley and Horsham ball, held at Gravenshurst, Bolney, which was lent by Colonel and Lady Beatrice Rawson, was very large. Among the company were Lady Sligo, Lady Dorset Browne, Lord Apsley, Lady Muriel Bathurst, Lady Amy Gordon-Lennox and Lord and Lady Leconfield.

Prince Christian sent a telegram to the Garth Hunt Club ball at Wokingham wishing every one a happy new year and regretting that he was unable to be present.

The One Lively Spot.

London itself is very dull. The only lively spot this week was the Dansant Club's tango tea at Claridge's. On this occasion, however, it was a Scotch tango, when some old Scottish dances were given by a kilted piper, and a dancer in tartan excited much enthusiasm by a sword dance, a Highland fling and the shean trews. The new American hesitation waltz attracted considerable attention, and the members of the Dansant Club promise a novelty every week all through the season. Next week it will be a minuet tea.

Prince and Princess Arthur of Connaught will not [illegible] their Swedish trip until later in the year owing to the death of Dowager Queen Sophie. They have been for a short stay at Bagshot, where Princess Arthur quite recovered from her cold. One day Prince Arthur played an exciting game of golf with his cousin, Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein, who is a first rate player, her handicap being six. She drives a very long, low ball, and succeeded in getting a 3 at the first hole, which is 5 bogey. It was remarked that Prince Arthur came home smiling, but it was not a smile of victory. The Princess was smiling too, but hers was more like a smile of sympathy.

Interesting to Americans.

The first important engagement of the new year is interesting to American circles, the prospective bridegroom being related by marriage to Lady Granard. It is that of Captain Sigismund Trafford and Lady Betty Bertie. The latter, who is now stopping at Brackley Lodge, Northamptonshire, is the youngest daughter of Lord and Lady Abingdon and is a sister of Lady Gwendolen Churchill, who married Mr. Winston Churchill's brother. She has two brothers and her half sisters are Lady Edmund Talbot and Lady Alice Reynolds. Lord Norreys is a half brother of Captain Trafford, who is the eldest son of the late Edmund Trafford, of Pretham Hall, Norfolk, and through his mother, who before her marriage was Eleanor Petre, sister of the twelfth Lord Petre, is a cousin of Lord Granard, Lord Petre, Countess Blucher and Lady Furnival.

There will be an interesting gathering of brides at the spring courts this year, headed by Princess Arthur of Connaught, who is expected to attend the official court that is to take place on the evening of Friday, February 13. The number of peeresses awaiting presentation is very large, for in addition to the new creations many peers by inheritance came into their honors last year and others have married. The Duchess of Abercorn will be herself presented when she presents her débutante daughter, Lady Mary Hamilton, who bears Rhodesia among her Christian names, but is called Mary.

The Duchess of Devonshire, too, will have a daughter to present. Each of these young ladies is known to the King and Queen, as they were members of the recent royal party at Chatsworth.

Many Presentations.

Another presentation of special interest in court circles is the daughter of Lady Eva Dugdale, bedchamber woman to the Queen, and who is named Victoria Mary after the Queen.

Earl Curzon's eldest daughter, Lady Mary Curzon, heir presumptive to the Barony of Ravensdale, will make her curtsey to her sovereign, and Countess March will present her second daughter, Lady Doris Gordon-Lennox. The Honorable Cynthia Colegan, who is to be presented, has appeared already in society in the country. She is a clever actress, and took part, with her sisters, in the theatricals organized by her mother, the Honorable Lady Meux, at Portsmouth recently.

For all these young ladies notable houses will be thrown open and balls will be given during the next few months.

Lady Tredegar's only daughter will make her début this spring if her mother's health permits. Lord Tredegar succeeded to the title last year, and Lady Tredegar herself has not yet been presented.

Countess Normanton will present her eldest daughter, Lady Georgiana Agar, and the Marchioness of Sligo's third daughter, Lady Doreen Browne.

Another débutante, Lady Evelyn King, will be presented by her mother, Countess Lovelace, and Lady Morvyth Ward, second daughter of the Countess of Dudley, is ready to come out, while Countess Denbigh, Lady Ashtown, Lady Penrhyn, Lady Burghclere and Lady Mabelle Egerton have each a daughter ready for presentation.

Opera at Windsor.

Next week will be opera week at Windsor, when by desire of Princess Christian her favorite Gilbert and Sullivan opera "The Yeomen of the Guard" will be produced by the Royal Albert Institute Operatic and Dramatic Society. The Princess and others of the royal family will be present, but the King and Queen are not due at Windsor until a week later.

The celebration at Blair Atholl this week of the Duke of Atholl's ducal jubilee was attended by much merrymaking. He succeeded his father on January 16, 1864, when in his twenty-fourth year. The Duke entertained a party at Blair Castle, Lady Tullibardine acting as hostess for her father-in-law, who has been a widower since 1903. The celebrations included a ball at Ballinbrig on January 15, and entertainments for the children of the tenantry and employes. After pledging the Duke's health at the castle on January 16 a salute was fired from cannon on the terrace, and in the evening bonfires were lighted on the Rock of Blair, Tullock Hill and Glen Fender, torchlight processions being formed from each bonfire to the main entrance of the castle. There also were numerous presentations, but some of them were postponed until August, when the Duke will celebrate his birthday.

Sons of Peers Coming of Age

Many Heirs to Peerages Will Attain Their Majority During the Year 1914.

LONDON, January 17.
(Special Dispatch.)

THOUGH the heirs to peerages who will come of age in the new year will not be quite so numerous as in 1913, the number will still run comfortably into double figures. Among them is the Marquis of Titchfield, the Duke of Portland's heir. There will be brave doings at Welbeck when he comes of age in March. He is just one day younger than Lord Burghersh. This young man, whose late mother was a sister of Millicent Duchess of Sutherland, is a cadet in the King's navy.

Another very notable coming of age in 1914 will be that of Viscount Cranborne. If heredity counts for much in his case he ought to go into Parliament and do well there, for he is a grandson of Lord Salisbury and the nephew of Lord Hugh and Lord Robert Cecil. The event will be befittingly celebrated at Hatfield next autumn.

The eldest sons of the following peers will also reach their majority in 1914:—Lord Norreys, Lord Alington, Lord Cheylesmore, Lord Colebrooke, Lord Farrer, Lord Goschen, Lord St. Audries, Lord St. Oswald, Lord Sempill, Lord Southesk, Lord Tredegar and Lord Willingdon.

In 1914 two of the ladies who were Queen Alexandra's bridesmaids will celebrate their golden weddings. One of these is Lady Thurlow, a half sister of Lord Elgin, the peer who took unto himself another wife the other day. She is the mother of several children, but her eldest son was killed at Jagersfontein. The other is Lady Heneage, who belongs to the Hare family, of which Lord Listowel is the head. She has nine children living.

Clyde Shipping Makes a Record

Total of 767,000 Tons Launched Last Year in World's Largest Shipbuilding Centre.

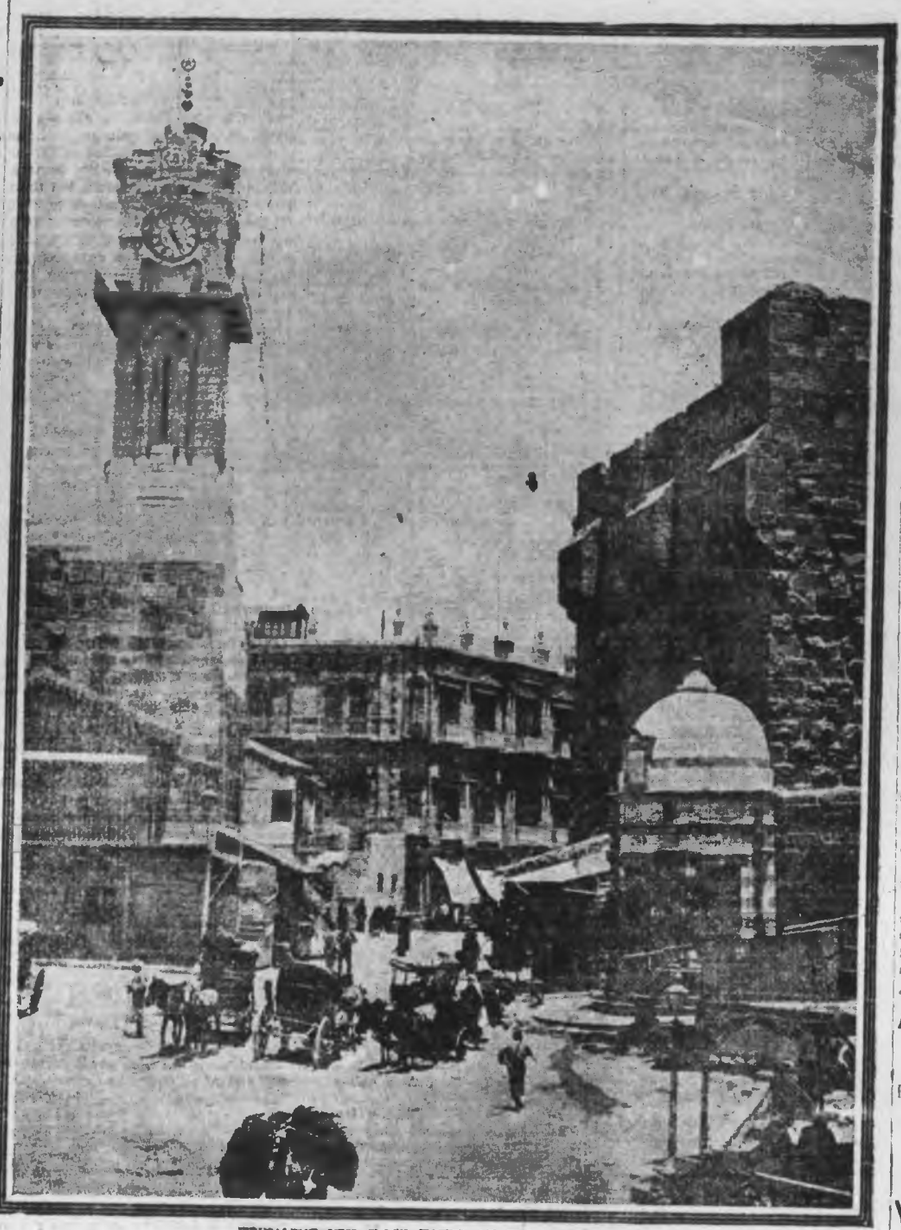
(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, January 17.

THE Clyde shipbuilding returns for the year have now been made up, and, as anticipated, the figures are the largest recorded for any shipbuilding centre in the world. The total is 767,000 tons, which exceeds last year's total—the largest then recorded—by more than 120,000 tons.

The vessels launched included the Cunard line steamship Aquitania, of 50,000 tons, and several battle ships, cruisers and destroyers.

Messrs. Russel & Co., of Port Glasgow, launched the largest amount of tonnage, with 36,000. Messrs. John Brown & Co., Clydebank, come next, with 83,000. Messrs. Brown and the Fairfield Company, Govan, each turned out machinery exceeding 200,000 horse power.

HOLY CITY BECOMING MODERNIZED



JERUSALEM'S NEW CLOCK TOWER AT THE JAFFA GATE

That the Holy City is being more and more westernized is evidenced by the improvements which have been carried out at the Jaffa Gate. The ancient entrance has been left intact, but a portion of the wall has been taken down to allow of a spacious roadway for vehicles passing in and out of the city, while above the ramparts a fine clock tower has been built which shows both European and Arabic times. (The Jewish New Year began on October 2.) Note the unusual numerals on the face opposite the spectator in the above view. To complete the admixture of ancient and modern one reads the inscription:—"Dent, Cockspur [illegible], London," on the dial. The clock tower, on the other hand, was built of stone obtained from Solomon's quarries, whence came the stones of which the temple was constructed. Near the clock tower is a drinking fountain.

WHAT AMERICANS ARE TO APPEAR AT COURT? BERLIN IS ASKING

(Special Dispatch.)
BERLIN, January 17.

HOLIDAY makers returning at the beginning of this week from a brief sojourn in the land of snow and sunshine found depressing conditions awaiting them in Berlin. Heaps of sullied snow were banked high along the streets and furnished an unpleasant reminder that Berlin's street cleaning forces is not accustomed to unexpected heavy snowfalls, and from a sodden sky a persistent rain added to the general discomfort and sense of dreariness.

Berlin's cheerless external aspect no doubt is partly responsible for the low mental tone which one meets at every turn, and it is impossible to discover any signs of marked enthusiasm about the coming high season, which by this time would be well under way were the court not in mourning.

"Who are the Americans to be presented this season?" is a question of the moment. It is understood the list will be very short [illegible] to arouse antagonism in [illegible] man circles where for some years there has been a growing sentiment that America has usurped an unusually large place in the line defiling before the Kaiser and the Kaiserin.

There would be an excellent precedent for confining the presentations strictly to the gentlemen and ladies of the embassy staffs, as this is done, for instance, in Tokio, where no exception whatever is made and can be made to this rule. This would eliminate many unpleasant situations which have arisen in late years and relieve the incumbent Ambassadorial post of the necessity of refusing numerous and in the majority of cases unjustified aspirants to such social distinction.

It is understood that among the possible four or six Americans to be presented this year will be Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kelso Cassatt, of Philadelphia, old and intimate friends of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard.

VISCOUNTESS CURZON AND HER SON

Safety and Comfort Features of the Giant Steamship Aquitania

New Cunard Line Vessel Has Inner and Outer Shells, Both Water Tight, and Enough Lifeboats and Motor Boats to Accommodate All Her Passengers.

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, January 17.

THE new giant Cunard line steamship the Aquitania, which is now being rapidly prepared for sea, having been launched on April 21, 1913, from the yard of the builders, Messrs. John Brown & Co., Clydebank, Glasgow, combines in her design and construction the experience and invaluable information deduced from the construction and performances of the Lusitania and the Mauretania and the many other famous ships that have preceded her under the Cunard flag.

Each succeeding vessel built for the company during the seventy-three years of its existence has in one way or another marked an advance on its immediate predecessor.

The principal figures of the Aquitania, according to information supplied by the Cunard Steamship Company, are:—Length, 901 feet; breadth, 97 feet; depth to boat deck, 92 feet 6 inches; gross tonnage, 47,000 tons; speed, 23 knots; accommodation for 3,250 passengers and a crew of nearly 1,000.

The unprecedented weight, length and other striking features of the great steamship involved the consideration of unusual conditions, and, like everything else connected with the construction, demanded arrangements being made on a scale of magnitude never before required by the Clyde.

An important feature of the Aquitania, as in the Lusitania and the Mauretania, is that extending throughout the most vulnerable parts there is that great desideratum, a ship within a ship. In other words, there are two shells, the inner as well as the outer shell being watertight.

The space between the outer and inner skins averages about fifteen feet, and at short intervals there are bulkheads dividing this intervening space into relatively small compartments. It will be understood, therefore, that any fracture on the outer shell due to collision will result in the ingress of the sea being limited to a small area at the side of the ship. In addition to this important provision there are sixteen bulkheads extending athwartship from the port to starboard side.

It might be thought that this combined system of transverse and longitudinal watertight subdivision was in itself sufficient safeguard against flooding, but further provision has been made by the development of the system of fitting watertight decks which was introduced into the construction of the Lusitania and the Mauretania.

From the point of view of strength, therefore, the Aquitania embodies the main features of the Lusitania and the Mauretania, with additions consequent upon increased beam and length. The Aquitania is also fitted with Frahm's anti-rolling tanks, which have proved so successful on the Laconia.

The passenger accommodation is provided on a scale commensurate with the great size of the ship. The first class public rooms include drawing room, hall and galleries, lounge, smoking room and veranda cafés, on deck A; foyer, restaurant, grill room and dining room on deck D. There are also a gymnasium and a swimming bath.

The second class public rooms include drawing room, lounge smoking room and dining room. There are altogether eight decks on which passengers are carried.

The division of the ship into watertight compartments is much more extensive than is required by any regulations, and exceptional conditions might therefore have been obtainable in connection with the lifeboats, but the Cunard company early in 1912 submitted its designs to the Board of Trade for an installation of lifeboats, including motor lifeboats, to accommodate all the passengers on board.

ANXIOUS TO JOIN BRITISH EXPLORER

Boy of Fifteen Is Among Hundreds Eager to Accompany Shackleton in Search for South Pole.

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, January 17.

WOULD-BE Antarctic explorers by the hundred have been inundating Sir Ernest Shackleton with applications to join his imperial Transatlantic expedition.

Two hundred more were delivered to him by yesterday morning's post from all sorts and conditions of men, and one boy, a lad of fifteen.

The exact constitution of the little party that will accompany Sir Ernest on the journey across the Antarctic continent from the Weddell Sea to Ross Sea will not be decided until the last minute.

"The men who will go with me," he said in an interview, "will be the men who are the fittest when the time comes."

Lord Curzon, of Kedleston, president of the Royal Geographical Society, has written to Sir Ernest Shackleton expressing hearty approval of the plans outlined by the explorer.

"When in my address in May I spoke of crossing the South Polar area from the Weddell [illegible] to Ross Sea," he says, "I hardly contemplated that any explorer would so soon essay the task. But that it is a work worthy to be taken in hand cannot be doubted; that it ought to be undertaken by an Englishman is to me quite clear, and that of living Englishmen you are the best fitted by training, knowledge, experience, and prestige to carry it to a successful issue, none will be found to deny."

MARVELS OF LIGHT SHOWN BY THE SPECTROSCOPE

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, January 17.

"IF you could go up into one of the nearest stars immediately and take a sufficiently powerful telescope you would be able to see yourselves as babies going out for the first time."

Professor H. H. Turner made this puzzling remark in the course of a lecture on "A Voyage in Space," at the Royal Institution. He capped it by adding:—

"If you went to the more distant stars you might even see your grandmothers going out for the first time as babies."

The explanation is the length of time it takes light to travel between a star and the earth.

Speaking of the wonders of the spectroscope, which, being more sensitive than the human eye, feels the slightest amount of light, Professor Turner said that it had revealed to astronomers many things.

"For years it has been observed that one star, known as Algol, becomes dim for some time and then gradually shines brilliantly again," he said, "and the explanation has been that there were two stars and that one was a dark one which revolved round the other.

"But quite a new thing has been learned by the spectroscope.

"It has been found that the light star also goes around the dark star, which is not entirely dark, and astronomers have calculated that the body which they had previously thought to be dark is really fifteen times as bright as the sun, while the light star is [illegible] 240 times as light as the sun."

NEW HATS TRIMMED WITH VEGETABLES

Carrots, Cucumbers and Other Garden Truck Is Used in Latest Form of Decoration.

(Special Dispatch.)
PARIS, January 17.

IT was bound to come. We have had hats trimmed with apples, and hats trimmed with cherries, and now, the experts declare, we are to have hats trimmed with vegetables.

One of the new models seen here by your correspondent is adorned with a couple of carrots which nestle in folds of black tulle. On another model are three little cucumbers accompanied by a small tuft of real grass.

Another curious "trimming" is a goldfish, which is a clever imitation, but looks rather out of its element in its surroundings of black silk plush and feathers to match. The coloring of the fish is superb, but that is about all that can be said for this new form of millinery decoration.

Above a cluster of red plumes on a black silk toque rises an ostrich feather, the fronds of which are tied closely to the stem to within three inches of the tip, where the plume the outline of a palm tree.

The new hats are smaller than ever, and are nearly all constructed on the toque principle. They enframe the face of the wearer more closely than ever, and in most cases are tilted considerably—sometimes partially covering an eye.

DARING DESCENT INTO VESUVIUS

(Special Dispatch.)
NAPLES, January 17.

MR. FREDERICK BURLINGHAM, of London, has made a hazardous descent of the crater of Vesuvius, penetrating 150 feet into the interior amid intense gas and sulphur fumes.

He reached the opening of a new cone of the crater some fifteen yards in diameter, at the base of which lava was accumulating to such an extent that Mr. Burlingham predicts an eruption before long. Magnificent photographs were obtained. Mr. Burlingham is in Italy on a mission for a British cinematograph company. He is the man who made a cinema record a few months ago of the ascent of the Matterhorn, and he has also filmed an ascent of Mont Blanc.

When living in Paris some years ago he figured as the "man with the red beard" in the Steinheil case, being identified by Mme. Steinheil as the man whom she saw on the night of the murder. As a matter of fact, he was some hundreds of miles from Paris on that night.

IT'S A SHAME TO TAKE THE MONEY

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, January 17.

LORD HALDANE, whose salary as Lord Chancellor is £10,000 a year, made the remarkable statement that nobody is worth more than £5,000 in his evidence before the Royal Commission on Delays in the King's Bench.

The Lord Chancellor, according to a Blue-book, was being examined by Mr. Samuel Robert, M. P., regarding the question of the judges' salaries, and in his reply said that, generally speaking, £5,000 a year was a very good salary to pay to anybody for public services.

"You think nobody is worth more than that?" asked Mr. Roberts.

"I am inclined to think no one is worth more than that," answered Lord Haldane.

"Not even the Lord Chancellor?" queried Mr. Roberts.

"I make no exception," returned the Lord Chancellor.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE OWNER

In the pioneer days of a certain western state a man named Josiah Flint took up 80 acres of land. Thousands of other men took up land in the same state, but there was no particular occasion that the act of so doing should pass into history.

Josiah Flint could have taken up forest or prairie land—acres that would double in value in a year, but he passed them all by and selected the worst spot in four counties.

Josiah might raise huckleberries on his marsh and blackberries on his hill, but men said he could hope for nothing better.

If he had any explanations as to why he selected such a claim they were lost as time went on. He and his family lived in his moving waggon for a few months and then passed on.

In ten years almost all the land in the country was settled up except Flint's hill and marsh. The nearest farmer opened a gravel pit at the base of the hill and sold enough to pay the taxes each year, and constituted himself the agent of the absent.

The county wanted to drain the swamp and to cut roads, but no one could find Josiah Flint. The only information was that he had gone further west.

By and by, in the village that had grown up two miles away, there came to be such a thing as a real estate office. It was furnished with two chairs, a table, a Bible, and Deacon Hardy. The deacon was one of the first settlers and a good man.

In connection with the real estate office was a department for the sale of Bibles and hymn books, and where one might subscribe for a Sunday school paper or donate any sum he chose to the welfare of the heathen of Africa.

There was another department devoted to the sale of garden seeds and roots and barks, and in this department a keg of root beer was always kept on tap. Every caller was invited to drink whether he bought land or not.

And lastly the deacon's wife held herself ready to take orders six days a week for mottoes of "No Place Like Home" at very reasonable prices and money back is not suited.

With all these departments in full swing the deacon ought to have been a moneymaker, but he wasn't. Why, he wasn't was a matter that worried him a long time and was still worrying him when his wife said to him, one evening:

"Josiah, you are honest and truthful and conscientious."

"I try to be, Martha," was his reply.

"There are lots of other men who are not as you are."

"Yes, and I feel to pity 'em."

"I don't think you need to. They are getting new houses and barns, fine bosses and planners, and we are right where we was."

"Yes," replied Josiah.

"And I've thought it all over, and I think I know what is the matter."

"I hope you do. I didn't hardly earn my salt this last year."

"You are too good."

"Can a feller be too good "

"He can, and you are a living example of it. You've got to get the big end of the bargain."

"But the Bible commands—"

"I know it does, but you've got to take your chances same as the rest. They are trading and selling spavined horses and holler-horned cows right along and expecting to go to heaven when they die."

"I've been thinking it over, too," said the deacon, "but I dunno. I want to soar away on golden wings when my time comes, but I'll be snummed if I want to live the rest of my life in this humble old log house and eat johnnycake and fried salt pork three times a day."

The deacon was waiting for an opportunity to be less good, when a keen-eyed young man of 22 blew into the village. His home town was 50 miles away, and he wasn't saying why he left it.

After hanging about for four or five days and taking long walks out into the country he entered Deacon Hardy's real estate office one afternoon and flung a chunk of marble on the table and asked:

"Do you know what that is?"

"Looks kinder like marble," was the reply after inspection.

"Kinder like? Why, man alive, it is marble for sure. And maybe you can tell what this is."

"It's some kind of sile."

"You bet it is, and it's kind o' worth money! It's peat. And what is that?"

"I should say it was clay."

"And you hit it. Finest kind of potter's clay. And what's this?"

"More clay."

"You've hit it again. It's brick-maker's clay and as smooth as silk. Once, what's this?"

"There's sand and there's gravel."

"Good guesser. And where did all this come from?"

"Dunno."

"Well, it's no wonder that all the flies in Benson County gather on you in the summer! Say, you haven't as much get-up about you as a blind horse! "

"I don't know why you talk to me that way," stiffly said the deacon.

"It's because you've had a fortune within your grasp for years and was too much of a mossback to know it! Oh, man, what a snap you've walked over!"

"Did you get that stuff around here?"

"Almost under your nose. Let's have a talk."

The talk resulted in a partnership. They were to buy the Joseph Flint hill and marsh and develop the minerals, peat, and other things.

The deacon had laid by some money in his better days. He was, besides, the only man in the county who knew anything about Flint. He knew that he had gone to Kansas and that he and his wife had died, leaving a young girl behind them.

The girl must be of age. She must have a guardian, but he had never made a move about the real estate.

The young man, whose name was Edward Sweeny, was to go to Kansas and hunt up Miss Sarah Fline and stick right to her until she accepted an offer. Then Hardy and Sweeney were to buy it.

"What's it wuth?" asked the deacon.

"A hundred thousand at least," replied Sweeney .

"And what do you think we can get it for?"

"I think she'll jump at a thousand."

The deacon chuckled. Then he sighed. Then he groaned. Then he went home and said to his wife:

"Martha, if me'n another feller can get the old Flint place for $500 apiece and make over $40,00 apiece out of it, do you think it would be wicked?"

"I should call it good abrgaining," she replied.

"It wouldn't be laid up agin me?"

"Look a-here, deacon, they used to raise a heap of cattle, sheep and asses in Biblical days, didn't they?"

"They did."

"And they sold a heap of 'em."

"They must have."

"Well, do you reckon anybody sold below the market price? Don't you think they sold away above it when they got a chance?"

" Ishould think they did."

"Of course they did, and there isn't a word of criticism in the Bible about it."

"Ought we to tell the gal what has ben diskivered on the place?"

"Does a merchant tell us what his kaliker costs him a yard and ain't they dying and going to heaven every day?"

The deacon's conscience felt very balmy after that, and young Sweeney started out to find the heir.

Luck was with him. He had located her whereabouts and was approaching the house where she lived when he beheld her coming towards him on a runaway horse. There was a fine opening for a hero and he grasped it.

He caught the horse and saved Sarah's life and had a leg broken. A hero is a hero in every state and county. When he has a leg broken in playing his part he is taken to the house where the heroine hangs out and given her hall bedroom until he can once more jump fences.

This case was no exception. Love came, and a marriage came according to programme.

One day Deacon Hardy got a letter with the Kansas postmark. He read it and took it home and laid it before his wife.

"He says he has found the heiress," she read.

"Yep."

"He says they are married."

"Yep."

"And therefore he's the owner of the Flint place, and don't care about taking in a partner. Deacon Hardy, did you have any partnership papers drawn up so that you can hold him "

"No."

"Well, you ain't a fool. You are just a good man, who is going to heaven when he dies, and if I'm left behind you I'll forward your salt pork and johnnycake by the first express."

Milady's Mirror

Worry an Enemy to Beauty.

All signs of approaching age are pathetic, but sagging muscles proclaim so unmistakably the wasting of the tissues that they always seem particularly so. They are inevitable, but there is much that a woman can do to ward off these signs. As a matter of fact, any woman can grow old so gracefully that even to quite an advanced age the flesh may be prevented from sagging and lines be kept from seaming her face.

If you wish to preserve the contour of the face, prevent the muscles from stretching, like wornout rubber bands, the chin from doubling or trebling itself, and to keep a strained, tired look from creeping into the eyes, cultivate cheerfulness, even if it does not happen to be natural to you. Try also to keep your illusions as long as you can and as many of them as you can.

Banish worry and ill temper, turn from all petty annoyances, do not allow yourself to be the least bit interested in sad events or happenings. Sadness tends to keep the muscles relaxed, particularly those around the mouth and eyes.

A woman who is sad and has a worrisome disposition will age long before her time, and all the massage treatment, with application of ointments and creams, can do little to ward off this aged look. The flat muscles of the cheeks relax, and this soon leads to deep ridges and furrows about the jaw and the chin. In turn the eye muscles are pulled down, and the result is a haggard, unhealthful look.

It is generally admitted that two persons living together often become alike in many ways and habits. Their mannerisms become so pronounced that even others notice it. The same thing may be said of a woman's thoughts. If they are pleasant they reflect in her face, and the result is a pleasing personality. A pleasant and happy disposition has a great deal to do with the making and keeping of firm flesh. A woman who is cross and becomes peeved over trivial matters usually has a firm look about the mouth and chin. This firmness strains the muscles under and about the chin to such an extent that when there is the slightest relaxation the flesh about those parts becomes baggy and loose, double chin often resulting.

Keeping Nails Attractive.

In nowise is neglect of the person so readily apparent as in badly kept nails. Neither can the manicure alone be held responsible for their care. On the contrary, if a woman desires she can dispense with the manicurist's services, save perhaps once or twice a month, and still have nice nails. Nails grow rapidly and respond readily to treatment.

If they are ill shaped give them almond shaped tips that are most attractive by shaping them carefully with the little sandboards. Use fine pumice powder to subdue the roughness or to reduce the little ridges that sometimes appear, and employ the scissors as sparingly as possible. Use them not at all upon the nails themselves, but merely for clipping the ragged edges of the cuticle around the base of the nail. Push back the scurf skin to show the coveted "half moons" with the aid of the orange wood stick.

To make white spots on the nails disappear, spread over them at night a paste made of turpentine and myrrh, mixed in equal parts, and remove the following morning with a little olive oil. A bruised nail should be plunged into hot water and held there for fifteen or twenty minutes.

Many of the vaunted powders and rouges cause the nails to become brittle so that they are constantly breaking, so as far as it is possible it is wise to avoid these.

Plain petroleum jelly or olive oil will answer every purpose of the pomade, and, as for rouge, it is not in good taste to tint the nails very deeply, and if they are healthy and their possessor is in good physical condition, they will be pink enough without the aid of the cosmetic.

There is no harm, however, in applying a little carmine. Mix it with fresh lard, and, if desired, perfume it with a drop or two of oil of violets.

Health and Beauty.

"For red eyelids there is nothing so beneficial as strong salt water," says a beauty doctor. Mix this about one teaspoonful to a glass and bathe the eyelids with it. It acts as a tonic to the lids and is particularly beneficial to eyelids that are troubled with styes or granulation.

One very prolific cause for women's wrinkles is the raising of brows, frowning, screwing up of eyes and mouth when talking. This habit ages far more quickly than years. When women practice facial repose there will be fewer wrinkles. The eyes and mouth are the only features intended to show expression.

A famous lotion of colonial days, known as "morning dew," consisted of one ounce of rose water, half an ounce of glycerin, half a teaspoonful of borax and three drops of benzoin. The quatities may be multiplied if a greater amount is needed. The lotion is applied to the chapped face, made rough from wind or exposure, with a bit of old linen.

Home Rule and Crime.

The official return of criminal statistics for Great Britain and Ireland for 1912 has just been published and the figures are very interesting. There is a decrease of 335 in the number of persons convicted of indictable offences in Ireland. The number of such offences in England was 11,340; in Ireland, 1,465.

Of those convicted in Ireland 778 came from Great Britain, 91 from the colonies and 41 from foreign countries, leaving the remainder, those born in Ireland, 555. Dublin shows 846 cases of drunkenness per 100,000 of the population; the proportion for Belfast being 1,342 and for Derry 2,388, both in the province of Ulster and the only centres of opposition to home rule. The Irish police force numbers 11,845; English, 51,203, and Scottish, 5,654. There are eight police for every indictable offence in Ireland; four and one-half in England, and three in Scotland. The cost of the Irish police in 1912 was $7,500,000, an increase of $34,660. As crime decreases in Ireland the police force increases.

The Mystery of India's Gold.

A royal commission has been appointed by Great Britain to discover what India does with all the gold it takes away from the rest of the world. In the last ten years India has drawn more than $65,000,000 of gold, which is almost one-fourth of the world's production in that time, from the western world, and the greater part of it has disappeared from the usual channels of trade and finance.

To draw this immense amount from the commercial world, and pay for it in goods, is, of course, an economic drain on India. Yet it does not seem to suffer more by the process than does the rest of the world when, thinking it has gold for general use, it discovers that the part of its imagined supply which goes to India is lost as completely as if buried.

A TRENT VALLEY FOREST RESERVE

The Commission of Conservation is recommending that the 2,000 square miles of land in the Trent Canal watershed be set aside by either the Dominion or Provincial Governments as a forest reserve. Such a protective measure would under the peculiar circumstances, seem to be well advised. The water supply for the Trent Canal and Kawartha Lakes is obtained from the watershed mainly, and would be seriously impaired if the area in question were denuded of the remaining timber. Since the Dominion Government in 1905 obtained control of the water rights, much valuable work in damming up the back lakes has been done, with the result that the flow of water for power purposes north of Peterborough has enlarged most satisfactorily. The Dominion has spent over ten millions already on the Trent Canal, and by the time the extensions to Georgian Bay and Lake Ontario are completed it will have spent several millions more. And further, there are cogent reasons beyond the water-conservation interest to support the commission's recommendation. Half of the area is now unpatented, or in possession of the Crown. Only a tenth of the land can be farmed, and the farming at the best is so poor as to be quite unprofitable. Less than 700 acres of a million acres of forest is untouched virgin area. Under the provincial order-in-Council of 1905, conveying to the Dominion the water control, the right to buy land along the lakes and water courses at 50 cents an acre was granted the Dominion Government, but only two thousand acres were bought. It seems obvious that the best interests of the district, as well as the requirements of a wise conservation policy, would be served by making the areas in question a reserve for afforestation purposes.—Canadian Engineer.

Ladies! Secret To Darken Grey Hair

Bring Back Its Colour and Lustre With Grandma's Sage Tea Recipe

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur ad alcohol added, will turn grey, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

Thin wispy, grey faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all grey hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE

"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from itching piles and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Fred Hins, Brodhagen, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease.

Western Farmer's "No Middleman" Scheme Now Before U. S. Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Co-operation among the farmers instead of competition, that "the farmer may receive the whole of the consumer's dollar for his product, instead of 35 to 45 per cent., as is now the case," is the aim of a bill introduced Saturday by Senator Borah of Idaho, to create "an agricultural capital" or clearing house to be run by the farmers under Government charter or subsidy. The bill would furnish machinery for scientific marketing and standardization of farm products, under direction of a country-wide organization of producers irrespective of any Government control.

It created quite a stir in the Senate, Senator Borah explaining later that he had not written the measure, but had introduced together with a memorial, at the request of E. H. Rettig, a farmer of Opportunity, Wash.

Not Wasting His Time.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 19.—Otto Buck Churchill, who came here to seek a wife, and who says he is the heir to an estate of $30,000,000 provided he marries before July 25, decided Saturday to combine business with pleasure while looking for a mate, by taking a job as a street car conductor on the Northern Indiana Railway. He announces he will hold the job until he finds his bride if the company lets him.

Churchill is receiving many offers of marriage through a letter he sent to an Indianapolis newspaper.

When left to itself, eczema, as a rule, runs on indefinitely. Even with careful treatment it is often obstinate in resisting curative measures.

The cause is often difficult to find, but you can readily obtain relief from the dreadful itching by the application of Dr. Chase's Ointment. This treatment cleanses the sores and soon sets up a process of healing which leads to complete cure.

Patient and persistent treatment is necessary in severe cases, but as you can readily see the improvement from day to day as Dr. Chase's Ointment is applied you will be encouraged to keep on until you have driven out the disease and restored natural healthy skin.

Attention to the genral health is advisable in order that the cure may be lasting, but you can depend on Dr. Chase's Ointment to stop the itching and heal the skin. So well does it accomplish this that many cures it brings about are almost like miracles. Put it to the test and you will be surprised and delighted with the results.

MISS WILSON AND THE TANGO

Special Wire to The Examiner:

Starkville, Miss., Jan. 19. — Miss Eleanor Wilson's name is being used as a leading argument in the fight here for the tango, the one-step, the hesitation waltz and other modern dances. Headed by the local W.C.T.U. many prominent citizens are urging the city council to pass an ordinance prohibiting the much-discussed dances. The council, although thought to favour such an ordinance, is delaying action in order to ascertain public opinion. Students of the State Agricultural and Mechanical College and many of the leading young women of the place are opposing the proposed ordinance. Several of the Starkville society set attended the ball of the Twelfth Night Revellers in New Orleans two weeks ago, when the tango and similar dances were freely indulged in. They returned with word that Miss Wilson had tangoed and "hesitated" with as much grace and liveliness as any one present and that what was good enough for the daughter of the President was good enough for the young ladies of Starkville. Advocates of the dance are now conducting a very active campaign and the town is divided into two well defined and almost equally influential camps and interest is running higher than in any political contest since the days of carpet bagging.

ON WAY TO FORT BLISS.

Broken Remainder of Huerta's Northern Army Does Severe March.

MARFA, Texas, Jan. 19.—Footsore, ragged, almost famished from their three days' march on foot of sixty-seven miles over a wind-swept mountain road, the 3,300 Mexican Federal soldiers and generals, routed from Ojinaga, Mexico, by the rebels, with 1,067 women and about 100 children, arrived yesterday within a few miles of Marfa, whence they are to be transported by train to Fort Bliss at El Paso.

The ragged remnant of the Huerta army, which sought asylum in this country rather than face possible extermination by the rebels, will on Tuesday be formally interned at Fort Bliss as wards of the Government.

None of those in the unique caravan was more visably affected on coming within sight of Marfa than Gen. Salvador Mercado, Huerta's former military chief. Riding on a horse, his uniform covered with dust he was confessedly humiliated, not only at the defeat of his army and the necessity for his flight to foreign soil, but also because of a report from Mexico City that he would be court-martialled should he return to his native country.

Huerta Installs Wireless.

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—A German wireless telegraph company Saturday secured a contract for the erection of a wireless station in Mexico City to enable Provisional President Huerta to maintain communication with the columns of Federal troops operating against the rebels in various parts of the country.

Threw Bombs at Train.

LISBON, Jan. 19.—Strikers in ambush behind the parapet of a viaduct on Friday threw three dynamite bombs and fired a volley at a train on which high railroad officials, guarded by soldiers were inspecting the condition of the tracks. Three of the soldiers were wounded, but others of their party succeeded in arresting several of the strikers before they could make their escape in an automobile.

Turned Over To U. S. Police.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Jan. 19.—Augustin Vitale, who, on arriving here from New York on Dec. 16 last, was arrested by the Kingston authorities on the charge of murder in connection with the killing of Anthony Pellato, a fruit dealer of Lancaster, Pa., on Oct. 31, was turned over to the United States officials Saturday. The prisoner will be taken to New York on board the steamship Metapan, which sailed Saturday evening.

Vitale did not avail himself of his right under the extradition treaty to file an appeal during his period of detention which expired Saturday.

Victoria Blacklisted by Navy?

VANCOUVER, Jan. 19.—That constant spite and malice on the part of officers of his Majesty's navy in the Pacific against the port of Victoria is in a large measure responsible for the placing of the contract of the repairing of the Algerine in Seattle, was the startling statement made by H. F. Bullen to the Board of Trade Saturday.

"I think H. M. naval officers should receive a severe reprimand," said Mr. Bullen, "not only from the organizations in this city, but by the Admiralty as well. I say it without fear of being challenged, that an officer of the navy in this city stated flat-footed, that no Victoria firm would be allowed to do any work for the Admiralty."

FOR CHRONIC COUGHS

Milton, Pa., Woman Has Found a Remedy.

Mrs. Howard Wagner of Milton, Pa., says: "I had a bad cold for months, and would cough every night until midnight. I consulted a doctor and took two kinds of medicine but got no relief. Vinol was recommended and after taking it a week I could sleep all night without coughing once. I continued its use and now have a fine appetite, never felt better and my cough is entirely gone."

It is a well known fact that when a person is run-down, stomach out of order, or the system overloaded with waste matter, vital resistance is lowered and colds and coughs are easily contracted.

The safest and surest method we know to overcome this condition is by taking our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol. In the most natural manner Viol tones up the digestive organs, promotes a hearty appetite, enriches the blood, and as a specific for chronic coughs, colds and bronchial troubles Vinol is unexcelled.

Try a bottle of Vinol on our offer to return your money if it fails to help you. McDermid & Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte Streets; also Paynes drug store, corner George and Simcoe Streets.

IMPRISONED A WEEK.

Watchman at Hamilton Find Emaciated Tramp In C.P.R. Car.

HAMILTON, Jan. 19.—Imprisoned for more than a week in a C.P.R. freight car, a man, weak from hunger and exposure, was found early on Saturday morning by a watchman in the Aberdeen avenue freight yard. The car in which he was found was filled with grain, and it was upon this that he had been subsisting since leaving Winnipeg nearly ten days ago.

Railroad men passing through the yard heard the imprisoned man calling feebly for help, and kicking with what strength remained to him upon the side of the car.

Asked where he was going, the man had no idea, and did not know he was in Hamilton.

"I'm going home to see my mother who is sick," he said.

Dazed and much emaciated by his gruelling experience, he was a sorry figure as he crawled out of the car. No effort was made to detain him, and he was allowed to go.

One Life Lost In Fire.

MONTREAL, Jan. 19. — Sidel Schneider, a tailor, 28 years old, lost his life in a Clark street fire yesterday, and six-year-old Abe Cohen was unconscious when taken from a top floor by the firemen. Young Cohen was received by an ambulance surgeon.

Seven families, with a total of 75 people, were rendered homeless through a fire due to the placing of hot ashes in a wooden receptacle.

The damage to the building will not exceed $3,000, while the individual losses of the tenants will be slight. Many thrilling rescues were made by firemen.

American Artist Murdered?

ROME, Jan. 19. — Advices from Sassari, Sardinia, state that the body of Miss Ellen Giles, a writer and artist of Philadelphia, has been found there. She had been killed by a revolver shot, and it was at first reported she had committed suicide, but further investigation led the police to believe she had been murdered.

Miss Giles had been studying the historic monuments and customs of the people. She appeared to be well supplied with funds, $100 in Italian money being found in her pockets.

KAISER HONORS COLONEL.

Von Reuter of Zabern Fame Gets Decoration of Red Eagle.

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—The list of decorations made public yesterday includes the Red Eagle of the third class, with knot, to Col. Von Reuter, who recently was acquitted by court-martial of charges made against him in connection with the troubles between the military and the townspeople at Zabern, Alsace. When the last army list was published on Nov. 6, 1913, Col. Von Reuter held only the Red Eagle of the four class.

Among others decorated was Rear-Admiral Von Reuben-Paschwitz, who commanded the German squadron which visited the United States in 1912. He receives the Red Eagle of the second class with oak wreath.

Street Car Victim Dies.

TORONTO, Jan. 19. — Alexander McPherson, 19 Mount Stephen avenue, the Toronto Railway employe, who was injured in the King street car barn accident, just before midnight on the night of the 14th, died of his injuries at St. Michael's Hospital, at 12 o'clock last night.

His death puts the two men being held by the police on criminal negligence charges, in a much more serious position. Conductor Hendry, who was refused bail, will in all probability, face a manslaughter charge, and Henry Gilbert, who was allowed out on $500 bail, possibly that of criminal negligence.

Woman Is Asphyxiated.

MONTREAL, Jan. 19.—Mrs. Geo. Baker, 35 years old, was found suffocating in her de Normanville street home yesterday, and died before before medical aid reached her. Mr. Baker and two children were unconscious from the fumes of gas, but recovered when taken to a hospital. The authorities are investigating a report that a leak in a big gas main is menacing the lives of other de Normanville street residents.

MISS EVA BOOTH ILL.

Commander of Salvation Army In U. S. Has Serious Attack.

BUFFALO, Jan. 19.—Miss Evangeline Booth, commander of the Salvation Army in the United States, is confined to her bed in her room in a local hotel, suffering with a serious attack of bronchitis. The doctors attending her say that pneumonia will probably develop, but late to-day her condition was much more encouraging.

Miss Booth contracted a severe cold in Elmira last Friday, which rapidly grew worse. Saturday night when she arrived here it was necessary to call doctors. She has been forced to cancel her present engagements, but unless pneumonia should develop by tonight she will be able to leave this city during the week.

Considerable alarm was felt over her condition yesterday afternoon.

"Drys" In France Busy.

PARIS, Jan. 19. — The campaign against liquor drinking in France began last night with a meeting at Nancy. This is in line with the demand to limit the number of bars, saloons and other establishments for the sale of spirits in France. More than 220,000 French women affixed their signatures to the petition, which was presented to the Chamber of Deputies on that occasion.

Deputy Ferdinand Buison and other leaders are among the supporters of the crusade, and it is proposed to hold meetings in all the principal cities. A demand will also probably be made of deputies seeking re-election that they pledge themselves for an anti-alcohol program.

PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, JANUARY 19, 1914

DEPUTATION FROM PETERBOROUGH WILL WAIT UPON THE RIGHT HON. R. L. BORDEN

To Urge the Appointment of a Peterborough Man to the Senatorial Vacancy Caused by the Death of Senator Cox.

MR. KENDRY NOMINATED

The City Council, the Board of Trade and a representation of citizens foregathered in the City Council Chamber on Saturday evening to discuss ways and means of facilitating the appointment of somebody from Peterborough to the Senatorial vacancy caused by the death of the late Senator G. A. Cox, and the name of Mr. James Kendry was unanimously put in nomination. Several carefully, and as one man remarked—"prayerfully," prepared resolutions setting forth not only the claims of Peterborough to Senatorial representation, but urging the appointment of Mr. Kendry, were submitted. It was Kendry first, last and all the time. If there were any doubts as to his qualifications for the position, they were not expressed at the meeting. He was characterized by Mr. E. A. Peck as "The dean of the Conservative party in Peterborough."

Was Frequently Opposed.

Memorials to the Government recommending Mr. Kendry's appointment to the Canadian Senate were endorsed by Liberals and Conservatives alike, not a dissenting voice was heard, although Mr. Henry Carveth arose to express his preference for the appointment of a man of fewer years. He contended that there was too many prototypes of Father Time in the Senate, without adding to the number. A member of the Council also took occasion to remark that Mr. Kendry seldom favoured anything that that was formulated in the interests of the city by the civic administration.

The Council meeting which was presided over by His Worship Mayor Buller met in the Committee room where they adopted a resolution of condolence on behalf of the late Senator Cox's family, and one other resolution advancing the claims of the city to representation in the Senate and recommending the appointment of Mr. James Kendry. The resolution which follows was moved and seconded by Alderman Langford and Saunders.

The Resolutions.

Whereas, the City of Peterborough has never had a representative in the Senate of Canada;

And Whereas, This City is a very important commercial and manufacturing centre, is the largest city between Toronto and Ottawa or Montreal, and is the centre of a large and populous district,

Resolved, That this Council desires to impress upon the Government of the Dominion the very strong claims which this city has to representation in the Senate, and to respectfully urge upon the Government that a representative from this city should be appointed to that body;

And, That the appointment of Mr. James Kendry, ex-M.P., who was for five years Mayor of the city, would meet with the general approval of the people.

A Little Premature.

Alderman Stratton observed that the action of the Council might be regarded as a little premature, and that it was hardly fair to the memory of the late Senator Cox, that the city should take material interest in the appointment of a successor prior to the funeral of one who had accomplished so much for the city.

Mayor Buller in reply said that he concurred with Alderman Stratton's view of the matter. He had called the meeting at the request of a deputation of citizens, who waited upon him on Friday evening. He was also in receipt of a number of telegraphic messages from Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., Federal member for West Peterborough, who at present is in Ottawa. The latter emphasized the necessity for immediate action, as competition was bound to result. "It is our duty," said Mayor Buller, "to drop all feeling at present, and if possible arrange to meet the Hon. R. L. Borden on Tuesday morning."

Mr. Stratton—"I am not adverse to Mr. Kendry's appointment. He has been a good citizen, a good Mayor, and a good politician, and I would like to see him finish up as a good Senator.

Will Send a Deputation.

"Will the Senator-elect pay the deputation's expenses to Ottawa?" enquired Alderman Green when the question of sending a deputation to the Capital arose.

To this Mayor Buller replied that it was in the city's interest. Alderman Green said that the matter might have been delayed a few hours as Alderman Stratton had suggested, and that while the Council were justified in pressing the claims of the city to representation in the Senate they should not undertake to advance the claims of one man, but rather leave that to the Government. The editorial which appeared in Saturday's issue of The Examiner was commented favourably upon by several of the Al-

SIR JAMES HAS ARRIVED IN TORONTO

Stricken Premier Now Occupies a Private Ward in the Toronto General Hospital

CONDITION IMPROVED

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Jan. 19.—Sir James Whitney rrived in Toronto this morning at nine-eighteen from New York city, and is now in a private ward in the General Hospital. The sick Premier's transfer from Gotham to his home city was accomplished without incident. So that there should be no undue excitement no representatives of the Ontario Government were at the station to meet him, but there were a couple of hundred curious persons attracted with half a dozen policemen to hold them back from the private car "Sir James" when it arrived coupled to the flyer. Hon. Dr. Pyne, who with the rest of the party, accompanied the patient, said that the journey had not affected Sir James' condition to any noticeable degree, and there were hopes that a change and new bright surroundings might effect a change for the better.

THE BANKER'S DAUGHTER

Will be the Feature at "The Grand" To-night

The Grand Opera House will devote the entire week to high class motion pictures. "The Banker's Daughter" in 2 reels will be the feature for to-night's programme in addition to which there will be four other reels of comedy and drama. As a special attraction for the children "Uncle Tom's Cabin" in three reels has been secured and will be shown on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, in addition to which there will also be shown three other reels of firms of the usual "Grand" standard.

Arrangements are being made for an extra high class programme for next Saturday matinee and evening, jan. 24th. The management are leaving no stone unturned to make the programme of pictures at "The Grand" worthy of the splendid patronage they have so far controlled. If you have not yet seen the pictures being shown at this popular playhouse, make it a point to do so to-night. The Opera House Orchestra plays at all performances. The programme is a continuous one, commencing at 7:30 p.m.

BAD COINS IN WESTERN ONTARIO

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 19.—Western Ontario is flooded with thousands of dollars' worth of Hong Kong and Straits Settlements' coins brought in by a clever gang whom the police have failed to locate, but whom they are warning many cities to beware.

CANADA'S POSITION IN CONTROVERSY

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 19.—(Special Cable)—How Canada and Canada's difference of opinion on the naval policy is more or less responsible for the dissension in the British Cabinet is indicated this morning by the Morning Post's definite statement that the Admiralty plan for replacing the expected Canada Dreadnoughts by two British vessels, received the endorsation of the Cabinet before Christmas. The Post declares it is believed in independent circles that Churchill and the Admiralty Board will resign en masse unless the Government consents to what they believe is the irreducible minimum for imperial safety. The Post says it is a matter of principle as well as of ships.

CONDOLENCE.

The Examiner desires to condole very deeply with Mr. F. H. Dobbin of the Review, on the—from the human point of view—untimely death of his son, Max Jeffers, a bright and promising young man, and to assure him of the warm sympathy of The Examiner and its entire staff.

AMENDMENT TO SPEECH FROM THRONE

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Will Refer to the Absence of Any Reference to the Navy or the Tariff

BORDEN'S LIKELY REPLY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Jan. 19. — After the social functions of last week, the business of Parliament got down to work at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The debate on the address took precedence over all other business, and the first speech of the season will be that of H. F. McLeod, successor of O. S. Judge, to the constituency of York, N.B., the mover, and J. O. Lavelee, the member for Bellechasse, the seconder. When the adress has been moved and seconded Sir Wilfred Laurier will deal at some length with the speech from the Throne, with special reference to those things which it does not contain. Sir Wilfred will comment upon the absence of any reference to the navy, the tariff, or the prevailing conditions throughout the country. He will make reference to the dissipation of the emergency as indicated by the government's failure to submit naval legislation of any kind. Sir Wilfred will undoubtedly conclude by moving an amendment regretting the inaction of the government and its failure to deal with the pressing problems of the day.

Round this amendment the debate for some days will hinge.

It is understood that Mr. Borden in the course of his reply will give the government's explanation of its reason for not introducing the navy bill this session. He will declare that it would be futile to reintroduce the measure while the government continues to be in a minority in the Senate. He will not however bring in any measure of Senate reform other than that which wil be brought about by the flux of time, and by a bill for increased representation in the Upper House, which heads the list on the order paper. There is talk of an amendment being introduced by the Opposition advocating the placing of wheat on the free list. It has not been decided, however, whether to add this to address, or later on as a separate resolution. It is believed that the government will vote against it in whatever manner it is brought forward. The government's supporters state that new redistribution measure will be framed in a spirit of fairness and that it wil be submitted to a joint committee for preparation.

The debate is certain to occupy more than the week, and may run into next week, and depends on whether there are one or more amendments.

DISAPPEARANCE OF SUBMARINE A MYSTERY

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PLYMOUTH, ENG., Jan. 19.—The disappearance of the submarine A7 and her crew of 16 men, was still a mystery to-day, although the admiralty authorities admitted the fear that quicksand has swallowed the diver. A search for the missing vessel was resumed at dawn. Blindly refusing to give up hope the rest of the fleet continue tirelessly to comb Whitsand Bay and Plymouth Channel.

THREW FLOUR OVER SPEAKER

Special Wire to The Examiner:

EDINBURGH, SCOT., Jan. 19. — While Thomas McKinnon Wood, secretary for Scotland, was speaking at a meeting here this afternoon suffragetes threw a bag of flour which nearly smothered him. He was taken to the hospital, and the police made eight arrests of suffragettes, who fought the officers tooth and nail.

CONFESSES TO MURDER

Special Wire to The Examiner:

SING SING, N.Y., Jan. 19.—With the last hour confession, that Ralph Furcola, who he testified against, and who is now serving a ten-year term, was absolutely innocent of crime. Francis Muhlfield walked to the electric chair with a smile on his face this morning, and was electrocuted for the murder of Patrick Burns, a New York saloon-keeper. Muhlfield intimated that he hoped till the last moment that his crime would be fastened on Furcola, who will likely now be liberated.

BODIES HAVE BEEN RECOVERED

Names of Victims of Terrible Holocaust Which Visited Coboconk on Saturday

ESCAPE CUT OFF

THE DEAD.

Corrine Weatherby.
Dorothy Weatherby.
Ellsworth Weatherby.
Mildred Weatherby.
Thelma Weatherby.
Edwin Weatherby.

The foregoing are the names of the victims who lost their lives in the terrible holocaust which visited Coboconk Saturday morning, an account of which appeared in Saturday's issue of the Examiner.

Mrs. Weatherby, mother of the six children, escaped from the burning dwelling by jumping through a window. The ages of the six children who perished range from one to eleven years.

Escape Cut Off.

The fire occurred about two o'clock and was supposed to have been caused by an overheated stove or defective chimney. The Weatherby residence, (a frame structure), was situated near the G.T.R. station and Gull River Lumber Co.'s Mills. No one noticed the fire until it was a veritable inferno. Mrs. Weatherby was aroused by the cracking of the flames, and when the terrible fact dawned upon her that the interior was in flames, her first thought was her six little ones sleeping in different parts of the house. It was impossible, however, for the frantic mother to rescue even one of them, and with the cruel flames fast hemming her in, she made a rush for an upstairs window and barely escaped in her night clothes.

Mother is Prostrated.

The mother is prostrated with grief. She is badly cut and burned, especially about the hands, and her grief over the loss of her six little ones is pitiable to behold. Kind friends are doing all in their power for the unfortunate woman.

This morning a search was made in the ruins for the remains of the little children, but they were burned to a crisp. All day long the scene of the fire was visited by a number from village and district, and several were visibly affected as they gazed upon what was the evening before a happy home with six bright, intelligent children.

A Previous Tragedy.

Mrs. Weatherby has been a resident of Coboconk a year and a half. Previous to this she lived in Toronto, where her late husband was a jeweler. She was held in high esteem by the residents of Coboconk who are stunned by the tragedy.

Coboconk has been the scene of two distressing fatalities during the past few weeks. It was in December that the two White children went to their death in the icy waters of Mud Turtle Lake. Then follows the Weatherby tragedy—the worst in the history of this portion of the Province.

The first villager to notice the fire was the night watchman at the G.T.R. station. The interior of the house was a fiery cauldron, however, so that it was impossible to rescue any of the inmates. The children occupied sleeping apartments over the kitchen.

Family Repartee

"No man is good enough for a good woman."

"You're right, my dear. It's absolutely impossible to please one."

Belmont Club Minstrels On Feb. 12 And 13

The popular Belmont Club Minstrel Show will be held this year on Feb. 12 and 13, and promises to be "bigger, better and grander than ever." Mr. Holly Shepard will again be in charge and is expected in Peterborough on Jan. 20th to take hold of the rehearsals. The Belmont Minstrels are always eagerly looked forward to and this year's show will no doubt draw crowded houses.

Bells of Bruges

The famous peal of bells in the belfry of Bruges is played on the principle of a music box, with an enormous drum weighing 2,000 pounds. In the drums are 30,000 holes for brass pegs which touch the trackers and move the wires communicating with the bell hammers. The airs are changed once each year, but the drum must be wound up every two hours.

APPOINT POLICE WOMAN TO COMBAT IMMORALITY

Women's Council Petition for an Appointment and Present Woeful Examples in Support of Their Demands—Police Commissioners Not Effusive in Their Reception of Petition.

CAREFULLY PREPARED CASE PRESENTED

That a new dawn has broken upon the interests and activities of the women of Peterborough was strikingly demonstrated on Saturday afternoon at a meeting of the Police Commissioners.

Twenty-eight members of the Women's Council presented an impressive appeal for the appointment of a police woman. The name of this official does not convey a clear and adequate idea of the duties connected with the position, but it will suffice for the present.

Judge Huycke presided and Mayor Buller and Magistrate Dumble were present. It was the Mayor's initial session with the Commission, and a cordial welcome was extended to him by Judge Huycke.

The committee room at the rear of the City Clerk's offices was crowded with ladies, who foregathered in the Bank of Montreal Chambers, and with an imposing array, inundated the Commissioners in their meeting quarters. Among the ladies who composed the delegation were: Mrs. J. C. Davidson, president of the local Council, Mrs. Rollins, convenor of the executive of the Moral and Reform branch, Mrs. Peter Campbell, Mrs. Mansell, Mrs. Chisholm, (Mrs. Mowatt, Mrs. Neal, Mrs. Montgomery, Mrs. Lightfoot, Mrs. Conway, Mrs. Stevenson, Mrs. (Rev.) A. R. Campbell, Dr. Carruthers, Miss A. Weir, (Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Roger, Mrs. Kendry, Mrs. Rush, Dr. Birnie, Mrs. Travers, Mrs. Hay, Miss Dickson, Mrs. Waddell, Mrs. Medd, Mrs. McElhinney, Rev. Mr. Peever and Adjt. McElhinney were also present.

The ladies were armed with written endorsations from prominent associations and individuals. They presented their petition in a logical, business-like manner, without flurry or fuss. They conveyed the impression that they were confident of the justice of their demands and determined that the conditions, the existence of which they conclusively proved, should be ameliorated and remedied. The social fabric has been afflicted during the recent years with the new feminine awakening to the opportunities and responsibilities, and Saturday's meeting provided ample proof that the ladies of Peterborough feel the influence of the new dawn. It was apparent from their remarks that the results of the administration of men have led to conditions which have become irksome to women, and their petition may be regarded as an expression of the snapping of their patience with evils that have been looked upon as traditional.

An Comprehensive Petition.

Mrs. (Rev.) Jas. Rollins introduced Mrs. (Rev.) J. C. Davidson, President of the local Council, and then began the reading of their petition as follows:

To the Police Commissioners,
Of the City of Peterborough.

Gentlemen:—

We desire to express to you our appreciation of the opportunity afforded us by the Police Commissioners to attend this meeting and present certain facts, which have engaged our attention and efforts for some time past.

This delegation represents the Executive of the Local Woman's Council—its Committee on Moral and Social Reform—and a small representation of women voters of this city. The Woman's Council comprises about thirty affiliated Societies, made up of religious, philanthropic and patriotic organizations, comprising over 600 members having for its definite aim the promotion of the interests of women and children; and it is in pursuance of this object that we appear before you to-day to present the following petition:

Sympathy Unanimous.

We believe, Gentlemen, that there are cogent reasons for this agitation. During the past two years a number of the women of Peterborough have become gradually aware of the existence of social conditions that threaten to become increasingly disastrous to the moral welfare of the growing youth of our city, and especially of such girls and women as are of necessity outside the safe environment provided by home life. So alarming an array of facts has by degrees come before us, that it is now morally impossible for a large number of us to ignore these conditions. We feel that as Christian women we are constrained to exert every influence we possess to check the evil. That the seriousness of these matters are not over-estimated by us, is evidenced by the fact that people in a position to know, such as doctors, ministers, Bishop O'Brien, the priests, nurses and teachers, have expressed themselves as almost unanimously in sympathy with our efforts along this line, as attested by the resolutions attached to this petition. Also men in various walks of life have, except in rare cases, eagerly proffered their assistance—Editors, newspaper men, merchants, attorneys, civic officials,—in spite of the fact that we did not attempt any systematic effort to obtain a concensus of opinion by canvassing men and women generally, feeling that such would hardly be required, because we have been made aware from so many sources that we have behind us the public sentiment of the city, and we knew that you, yourselves, must be increasingly aware that in conceding to our wishes you will be introducing a popular measure.

The objection has been raised that a woman in that position would be socially ostracised; but (because of the new consciousness that is pervading Society in relation to this vice), she is more likely to occupy a position of trust and honour in our midst. Indeed we have been much impressed by the large and diversified number of women to whom existing conditions have become unendurable, and who have promptly responded to any appeal made to correct the evil.

Extend Activities.

Critics fearfully predict that women are losing their fineness, their delicacy, their womanliness in touching this work. On the contrary, women are just beginning to exercise more broadly, than in the home environment, her finest womanly qualities, — mother protectiveness towards the defenceless—her natural aptitudes for cleanliness and order in clearing out this jungle of human wretchedness—. For womanliness is not an outer vesture that may be rudely torn aside, but an inner beauty which can be marred only by such things as rob her of her Faith or lower her ideals of life. So that, while this Menace has remained unmolested because of its peculiarly distasteful and distressing form of work, we hope to carry out a valiant crusade against it. We are no longer willing to be mere bewildered spectators of a given social wrong, but have become conscious of our own hypocrisy in regard to it, and realize that a veritable horror, simply because it is hidden, has come to seem to us inevitable and almost normal.

The rapidly succeeding revelations of dangers implicit in our civic conditions and the allurements which are being designedly placed around many girls, some of them mere children), in order to draw them into an evil life, has thrown the more sensitive of our men and women into a state of indignant revolt. Such things passionately challenge us to establish a new moral standard; to dry the tears of anguished mothers and enslaved girls; to insist upon the fact being known; that the civic consciousness may be roused to a sense of its responsibility, and rebel against commercialized vice in all its phases.

We wish you to know, therefore, Gentlemen, that we regard the appointment of a Police-woman as only one necessary step in the direction in which our faces are set, and that is, the eradication of the form of social evil which creates the social outcast, from our civic life. Ancient and apparently in-eradicable as this evil is, other evils as old and as deeply imbedded in human life, have been known to away before an enlightened public opinion, and in the end, to give way to a growing conscience which regards them first as a moral affront and at length as an utter impossibility. This is our hope.

New Departures Needed.

Changing conditions, such as confront us in our age, require new departures in administration along many lines. Testimony comes from outside sources, where the experiment of a Police-Woman has been actually tried, both in Canada and other countries, that it is practically an unqualified success, and those interested wonder that this remedial measure had not occurred to commissions long ago. We furnish endorsations from Mayor Hocken, Magistrate Denison, and Staff Inspector Gregory of Toronto; and the Chairman of the Police Commissioners, Ottawa. The margin between decent society and the criminal classes is always broad, vague and undefined:—Children, girls and women drift across it and enter criminal careers when in many cases this might be prevented if there is a woman of authority and earnestness watching places which almost inevitably lie outside the life of the busy wife and mother. Such a woman officially equipped and free to give her whole time and attention to perform this preventive and protective work, would save many useful lives for the State. —would call the attention of our women to those who require womanly help at times of crisis in their lives, and so (herself fortified by the sympathy and confidence of hundreds of our women) would bridge the chasm that now most unfortunately exists between the morally strong and our deeply wronged social outcast. Of these outcasts from decent society—of whom it is considered an impropriety even to speak—Lecky says: "This type of woman is the most mournful and the most awful figure in history; she remains, while creeds and civilizations rise and fall, the eternal sacrifice of humanity, blasted for the sins of the people." Of this sorrowful and stained sisterhood, the

WELCOME HOME, SIR JAMES.

Sir James Whitney, will be welcomed home from New York. He returned alive to Toronto this morning, and is with his own in Ontario. His condition showed improvement enough to warrant bringing him home. If recovery is possible, it will come all the more readily with the peace of mind and contentment the patient will feel at being again amongst his own people; and if recovery is not possible, the regret of his passing away in a strange land, will be absent among the universal regret that his death will bring. It is a pleasure to know that Sir James bore the journey well, and that his condition is more promising of a favourable outcome of his illness.

BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA.

The Bank of Nova Scotia's eighty-second annual statement appeared in Friday's issue, and is of the generally satisfactory character. Owing to changes in the form of statement, made necessary by the recent revision of the Bank Act, comparisons with last year's figures cannot readily be made. However, it is to be noted that the total assets have increased from $71,279,298.95 to $80,151,829.99 during the year. Liabilities to the public (deposits, notes outstanding, etc.) total $62,685,436.27. The holdings of coin and legal tender amount to $10,440,849.08. Notes of and cheques on other banks, balance due by banks, and banking correspondents, including Sterling Exchange, amount to $7,885,463.07, and other readily available assets, such as call loans and investments, are held to the extent of $20,746,796.20. So it can be seen that against the Bank's total liabilities to the public it holds in cash sixteen per cent.; in immediately availables, 29 per cent., and in quick assets, 62 per cent. This is a very strong showing and should be viewed with satisfaction by the shareholders, depositors and the public.

The net profits for the year amount to $1,210,774.39, as compared with $970,544.38 a year ago. These profits are distributed in the payment of dividends at the rate of 14 per cent., amounting to $814,804.60, Officers' Pension Fund, $50,000; written off Bank premises, $150,000. Premium paid Bank of New Brunswick on purchase, $100,000; and transferred to the Reserve Fund, $110,000, leaving a balance of $41,124.27 to carry forward.

The paid-up Capital has been increased by an issue of new stock and by the Capital Stock of the Bank of New Brunskick, from $4,734,390 to $6,000,000. The Reserve Fund, with the addition of the Reserve of the Bank of New Brunswick is $1,790,000. Premium received on new stock $371,854, and an appropriation from Profit and Loss of $110,000 is brought to an even $11,000,000.

The shareholders of this sound old institution, which is efficiently represented in Peterborough by Mr. A. F. Tomlins, must be pleased indeed, to note that their Bank has so well maintained and strengthened its position during the year 1913.

OFF-SIDE HOCKEY.

Hockey is one of our greatest winter sports, and almost universal in its practice. In Peterborough we have perhaps forty hockey organizations of varying imporatnce. We have two O. H.A. teams, four city league teams, six mercnatile league teams, eight church league teams, a dozen or more school league teams, and many minor loosely organized associations. This demonstrates the popular interest in the game, with the attendant social and civic unifying effects. The church league, though the result may seem difficult to preceive, may easily be, to use a sporting phrase, "a runner-up" to church union. It may be admitted that the chief obstructions to church union are the mutual distrust the mutual prejudices which exist among the churches on account of the mutual ignorance of each other—mutual ignorance of what good fellows the others are and will be found to be when close association removes mutual prejudices and mistrust. Church league hockey players will come into intimate association and this will create a larger mutual confidence and friendliness. These will result in a race of church members free from the religious narrowness and pharisaic aloofness that constitute one of the bars to church union, as well as one of the obstacles to harmonious citizenship and, consequently, citizenship of the highest and most useful type.

Hockey as our prime winter sport is well worth keeping a sport, and not allowing it to degenerate into a homicide game. Last Wediesday night at Montreal, "Newsy' Lalonde was stricken down from behind by "Bad Man" Hall, and was carried unconscious from the ice with a split open head. These were two professional hockey players, and the incident is what we might expect from degrading the game into professionalism. It indicates that we must both keep the game free from evils of professionalism and keep it clean and humane. President Emmet Quinn, President of the N. H. A. has, as a result of the Montreal brutality, declared that he is going to end rowdyism in hockey, regardless of the temporary results that may come to team or player. This can easily be done by penalizing such rowdy players in the most effective way — by putting them out of the game altogether. Such a drastic course applied to dirty players, while it might temporarily embarrass managers, would speedily work a cure, and in the end save our finest winter sport, from falling into disrepute, with loss of public support and encouragement. Every honest hockey player, every true friend of the sport, will sympathize with an effort to keep the game clean. Hockey is not an amiable, cushioned and riskless game like lawn tennis. In legitimate hockey play, in strenuous moments, inadvertent shocks and mix-ups may create contusions; and every sporting hockeyist is willing to take what the game, played with honest strenuosity, may bring, in the way of bumps and bruises, but no player is willing to be assaulted from behind, and deliberately struck down from behind, by some brutal and cowardly opponent. There's glory and sport and legitimate pride in winning a hockey game by skill; but only shame to the winners, and injury to the good name of the game in winning by bull-fight methods. Keep the hockey ice an arena of clean sport; don't make it an abettoir.

WHAT SAVING PARCEL POST WILL BRING

"Canada's New Parcel Post" is the title of an interesting article in the current number of the Canadian Magazie by Mr. George W. Austin, a Toronto newspaper man. Mr. Austin has evidently gone into the subject quite deeply, and gives some instructive figures which go to show just how vast a saving the new system will ensure to the public. After outlining the important part in the economic system played by parcel post in the United States the writer turns to Canada. He points out that the American parcel post system has, during its first year, netted a profit of $30,000,000, and assumes that the rates in Canada will be at least as low as those in the United States. The present Canadian rate on parcels in Canada is the almost prohibitive one of one cent an ounce. "If we apply the present United States rates to the Canadian traffic for purposes of comparison with the cent-an-ounce rate, we shall get a good idea of what a saving over the old rates will be made by the new parcel post." The following table, adopted from Mr. Austin's article, gives the comparison of present postal rates and those which will obtain if the United States' schedules are adopted in Canada:

New Parcel Post.

From Montreal to—	1 lb.	3 lbs.	5 lbs.
Ottawa	.05	.07	.09
Toronto	.07	.17	.27
Winnipeg	.10	.28	.46
Vancouver	.12	.36	.60

Old Rates.

Ottawa	.16	.48	.80
Toronto	.16	.48	.80

In the United States, the system started with an 11-pound limit for the whole country. On the 1st of July, 1913, this limit was increased to 20 pounds within the first two delivery zones—that is to say, within 150 miles from the point of posting. This, in practice, it was found would include about three-fourths of the entire traffic. Mr. Austin predicts an increase eventually to at least 100 pounds, since Germany carries 110 pounds, and Belzium 132. But he thinks Canada would do well to begin, as the United States did, cautiously in this respect. "At present the difference of charge on the parcels exceeding twenty pounds would probably be in favour of the express companies. Even on a ten-pound parcel, the express rate for a long distance is only slightly higher than the new postal rates. The savings in transportation cost come chiefly on the small parcels going short distances."

At the time Mr. Austin's article was written it was supposed that instead of the zone system in force in the United States, Canadian parcel post rates would be established on the basis of provinces, the Maritime Provinces being taken as one unit. On this assumption the comparison of express and parcel post rates would be about as follows, again adapting Mr. Austin's table:

Express Rates.

From Montreal to—	1 lb.	5 lbs.	10 lbs.
Ottawa	.25	.25	.90
Toronto	.25	.40	.45
Winnipeg	.30	.75	1.00
Vancouver	.30	.80	1.35

Parcel Post.

Ottawa	.05	.09	.14
Toronto	.07	.27	.52
Winnipeg	.10	.46	.90
Vancouver	.12	.60	1.20

Although no definite announcement has as yet been made by the Postmaster-General, it seems likely that the arrangement of rates by provinces will be abandoned in favour of the zone system. However, it is not probable that this will materilly affect the rates quoted above. It is therefore apparent that a very important cut in the cost of transporting small parcels short distances, in other words in the great bulk of the business, will be brought about by the establishment of the parcel post system.—Montreal Herald.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

THE FIRST FOUR TEAMS IN THE LEAGUE WERE DEFEATED

Nine Teams in the League Standing Were Unable to Score More Than One Point--Swindon Has a Commanding Lead---League Tables Up-to-date.

A peculiar feature about the First Division soccer games played Saturday is the fact that the first nine teams in the League standing were unable to score more than one point. The first four, Blackburn Rovers, Sunderland, Manchester United, and Oldahm Athletic were all defeated. The "Pensioners" scalped Manchester United at Old Trafford, while the 'Spurs" beat the "Athletics" at Tottenham. The Rovers, who head the League table, went down to a 3—0 defeat at Middlesboro, and Sunderland were whitewashed 5 to 0 by Aston Villa. The surprise of the day in this division was the defeat of Sheffield Wednesday, by the tail-enders of the League, Preston North End, by 5 goals to 0. Everton and Manchester City both got away from home victories, the former beating their local rivals, Liverpool, by 2 to 4, and the latter downing Derby County by 4 to 2.

"Peacocks" Beaten by Bradford.

The "Peacocks" went down to their neighbours, Bradford, Saturday, by two goals, the score being 3 to 1. Notts County are back in second place, their victory of 4 to 0 over Bristol City bringing them up over Leeds City. Hull City went down to the "Arsenal" on their own grounds. This gives Woolwich a nice commanding lead in the League standing. The Woolwich eleven was the only Second Division team to win away from home.

Swindon's Commanding Lead.

Swindon's 3 to 0 victory over Southampton Saturday, places them six points above their nearest rivals, Crystal Palace, in the Southern League standing. Swindon have only lost three games out of twenty-two, and have scored 53 goals to their opponents 32. Crystal Palace, who are running second, were beaten at Exeter by 1 to 0.

Aberdee Surprises St. Mirren.

Aberdeen gave St. Mirren a surprise at Paisley, beating the ably 2 to 0. The Paisley team now grace the bottom of the Scottish League table. Celtic continued on their victorious career and got a 1 to 0 decision over Dundee at Dundee. Rangers could no better than split the points with Motherwell, at Glasgow, while Hearts suffered defeat at Dumbarton. The following are Rugby scores with league standings completed up to date:

BUSY WEEK FOR HOCKEY TEAMS

Peterboro' Club's Two Teams Play Five Games This Week

This is a busy week for the Peterborough Hockey Club. To-night the intermediates play in Cobourg, to-morrow night the Port Hope juniors are here, Wednesday night the intermediates hook up with Bowmanville at Brock Street rink, while on Friday the two teams invade the east, the intermediates playing in Belleville and the juniors in Kingston.

MERCANTILE HOCKEY LEAGUE—NO GAMES TO-NIGHT.

Of course it is thoroughly understood that no games will be played by this League to-night on the Brock Street Rink. The games scheduled for to-night have been postponed for a few days—as an act of courtesy to the O.H.A. players, who play a very important match to-night at Cobourg, so as to give all the City hockey fans, who desire to take it in, an opportunity of going to witness the game at Cobourg, by availing themselves of the special train from Peterborough to that town.

In Memory Of General Lee

Special Wire to The Examiner:

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 19.—The one hundred and seventh anniversary of the birth of General Robert E. Lee, the famous commander of the Confederate armies, was celebrated throughout the South to-day. In eight States — Arkansas, Florida, Virginia, Alabama, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Mississippi—the day is a legal holiday and is marked by a partial cessation of business activities. Commemoration exercises were held in all the public schools and at meetings of many patriotic and historical societies. In many cities these exercises were supplemented by civic and military parades.

Old Boys And Petes Will Play A Benefit Game For Charley Ray

Early next month a benefit game will be played at Brock Street rink for Charley Ray, one of the most popular hockey players who ever wore a Peterborough uniform. Charley has been ill for over a year, and naturally a great deal of expense has been caused. The extire proceeds will be turned over to Mr. Ray. The game is the result of a suggestion made by Pete Campbell, and the arrangements were made when the sporting editor of the Examiner was in Toronto attending the Varsity-McGill Rugby game. Mr. Campbell is looking after the Old Boys' end of the enterprise, and judging by the following from the Toronto Star he has made great progress.

The Old Boys of Peterborough will play the present team a benefit match for Charley Ray, son of the famous Sam Ray, and one of the best hockey players ever turned out in Peterborough, after the first of February. The Peterborough Old Boys will run an excursion home for the game. The line-up of the team will be as follows:

Goal—Leo Derocher (Ottawa College.)
Right defence—Ken Crane (Bank of Commerce.)
Left defence—Frank Heffernan (Toronto R. and A.A.)
Rover—Hugh Burritt (Argonauts.)
Centre—Pete Campbell (Varsity.)
Right wing—Jerry Coughlin (Ingersoll.)

Port Hope Juniors To Play Local Youngsters Here To-morrow Night

The Port Hope juniors will be here to-morrow night to try to carry out their threat of beating the young Petes on their own ice, and the game should be a fight all the way. The Ontarios looked like a good team the other night, and the blue and white youngsters had to give all they had to nose them out. The Petes have to win this game to stay in the running, and they are determined to beat Port Hope here and then go down to Kingston and take the Frontenacs into camp. The Petes are improving with every practice and will show the fans a good game to-morrow night. The youngsters are popular with the sporting public, and their friends will be out in force to-morrow night. The game will be called at 8.15 o'clock, with the teams lining up as follows:

Port Hope—

Goal—Rowden.
Right defence—Sandercock.
Rover—Forsythe.
Centre—Hills.
Right wing—Darch.
Left wing—Lowe.

Peterborough—

Goal—Darling.
Right defence—Long.
Left defence—Richardson.
Rover—Halpin.
Centre—Rose.
Right wing—Knapman.

TO-NIGHT'S GAME MAY DECIDE THE DISTRICT

The game at Cobourg to-night promises to be one of the most exciting of the season in this district, and local fans are to be congratulated upon being given an opportunity through the special excursion of being able to see the battle that may decide the district. Many fans have announced their intention of going down, and there will be more excitement than Cobourg has seen in a decade. The ice promises to be keen, and hard, just as both teams like it. The special train will leave the G.T.R. station sharp at 7 o'clock, with the round trip fare $1.25.

The Peterborough line-up will be as follows:

Goal—Janes.
Right defence—Bradshaw.
Left defence—Denison.
Rover—Giroux.
Centre—Park.
Right wing—Kenneally.
Left wing—Kelly.

Petition To Police Commission

To The Police Commissioners,
Of the City of Peterborough.

Gentlemen:—

WHEREAS, in the judgment of many, the time has come when a considerable addition should be made to the Police Force of the City.

WHEREAS, since about one-half of the population consists of women and girls, many of whom are now a part of the working world, and new and permanent social conditions are thereby created, they are legitimately entitled to the kind of police protection which women feel will be most effective,

WHEREAS, the very presence of a Police-Woman would protect women and children leaving factories, stores, theatres and picture-shows, from being accosted, and also prove a safeguard in parks, stations and local courts where loafers congregate,

WHEREAS, except in hardened cases, women and girls who are involved in questionable and guilty conduct, will naturally tell their story much more readily to a Police-Woman, than a Police-Man,

WHEREAS, mothers who are anxious about wayward daughters, would more readily call in a Police-Woman than a Police-Man, for consultation and advice, and a woman in authority could more easily bring pressure to bear to secure proper conduct.

WHEREAS, it is the testimony of Police Inspectors who have had the services of a Police-Woman that;—

"None can deal so well with women as women; they can always get the desired information from women that a man cannot in many cases."—Staff Inspector, Robt. Gregory, Toronto.

"Our opinion is that they will be of very great service in detecting and preventing breaches of the law, that would otherwise escape the notice of the men on the force * * * * * And in saving young people from entering upon a career of crime."—Chairman Police Commissioners, Ottawa.

THEREFORE, WE, the undersigned voters of the City of Peterborough, would pray your Honourable Body to have a woman with full Police Powers, appointed to the Police Force of Peterborough.

A RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE

Was Passed by the City Council at Saturday Night's Council

At the City Council meeting on Saturday evening a resolution of condolence was passed and will be forwarded to the members of the late Senator Cox's family. Those who are representing the city at the funeral which is being held in Toronto to-day are His Worship Mayor Buller, Aldermen Duffus, Johnston, Duncan and City Clerk Armstrong.

The resolution of sympthy which was moved by Alderman Johnston and seconded by Alderman McIntyre, is as follows:

Be It Resolved, That this Council has learned with the deepest regret of the lamented death of the Honourable George A. Cox, Senator, at Toronto. The Honourable Mr. Cox was for many years an esteemed citizen of Peterborough, and by his business sagacity and commendable enterprise took a very large part in laying the foundation for, and the building up of the present prosperous city. He took a keen interest in civic affairs, and as Mayor for five years and a member of the Board of Education for a number of years, he gave efficient service to the community. After making his home in Toronto, whither his large financial interests called him, Mr. Cox retained his interest in Peterborough and his valuable advice and assistance were always at the command of those in charge of the city's affairs, and on many occasions he gave most effective assistance. His generosity aided many religious, and charitable institutions in this city, as well as in other parts of the country, and his private benefactions showed no less his benevolent disposition. Of a pleasant, genial and unassuming personality Mr. Cox endeared himself to very many friends who will very keenly feel his loss.

Be It Further Resolved, That this Council, on its own behalf and on behalf of the people of Peterborough, tender to Mrs. Cox and the other members of Mr. Cox's family and his relatives their deep sympathy in the sad bereavement they have been called upon to suffer.

And, That Mr. Cox's picture in the City Council Chamber be draped as a token of mourning of the Council and people of this city.

WILL SEND A DEPUTATION

A deputation of local manufacturers will leave for Toronto this evening. The object of their mission is to strengthen the hands of the Manufacturers' Association in the matter of discussing the pros. and cons of the Workman's Compensation Bill, when it comes before the Provincial Cabinet to-morrow morning. Both the manufacturing and labouring interests will have the privilege of expressing their views in respect to the proposed measure.

AS ROSALIND MISS ANGLIN CAPTURED AUDIENCE'S HEART

Says S. Morgan-Powell, Dramatic Critic of Montreal Star—Her Impersonation Characterized by Irresistible Charm and Delicacy

Miss Anglin challenged a notable array of distinguished actresses when she elected to play Rosalind. Her Viola, delightful though it proved, gave but little indication, after all, of her Rosalind. The latter is a veritable triumph. It stamps Margaret Anglin as a brilliant actress, and it must be placed among the few really great Rosalinds of the day.

It had all the charm of unexpectedness. You never felt quite sure what Miss Anglin was going to do. There were occasional flashes that almost made one catch one's breath, so exquisitely did they reveal feelings and moods. It was a subtle Rosalind, as any great Rosalind must be. It possessed a capriciousness, a strangely appealing quality that fascinated all the time. There was nothing of the hoyden about this Rosalind. Abundance of high spirits, natural, unforced gaiety, a bewitching swagger, and a grave manner that never failed, stamped it as distinctive.

MARGARET ANGLIN

Miss Anglin never allowed any hint or brazenness to creep into her characterization. Rosalind was a distinguished lady of the Court, and through all the devious wanderings of the play this fact was never allowed to be forgotten, though, on the other hand, Miss Anglin never obtruded it.

Her reading of the lines was even more illuminative than on Monday night, and she made the comedy scenes positively sparkle. To watch her making delicate sport of Orlando was an unqualified aesthetic delight, so subtly and so alluringly did she emphasize the fact that Rosalind herself is delighted at Orlando's feigned wooing,—a point that is too seldom made.

Considering her Rosalind as a whole, it left one with the deep impression that Rosalind is one of the most enchanting embodiments of triumphant maidenhood in the whole range of Shakespearean drama.

Mr. Fuller Mellish's Jaques was on a high plane. He spared us the usual melancholy elocutionist, and he suggested, with rare psychological refinement, the whimsical disillusionment of the man. He was indeed "a most humourous sadness," but it was invariably convincing. He reflected Jaques' varying moods, sometimes tender and wistful, sometimes ironical and petulant, but never heavy, never preternaturally solemn, never suggesting a touch of some latter-day Schopenhauer, with a skill that tended to elevate the comedy, and with an art that fitted the role to its proper significance.

No Jaques seen in Montreal in recent years has even approximated to that of Mr. Mellish in its fine poise and its fidelity to the Shakespearean ideal.

The Orlando of Mr. Ian MacLaren was youthful, manly, straightforward, and ardent. There was nothing effeminate about it. He made Orlando's love seem the simple and natural ebullition of a boyish heart on meeting the one woman capable of drawing it forth. He carried the part through with a grace and a certain charming vitality that gave it distinction.

The performance throughout was characterized by unusually good all-round work.

For instance, there was the Celia of Miss Boucicault, — a vastly superior impersonation to her Olivia of Monday night. There was the dexterous William of Mr. Montesolei,—a most effective piece of clowning,—and the same actor's no less skilful Corin; there was Miss Thurgate's delightful Audrey, Mr. Widdecombe's polished Le Beau, and the virile Adam of Mr. Harry Barfoot. All combined to make the representation an exceptionally effective one.

The scenery was beautiful. No other word does justice to the visions of sylvan glades and poetic landscapes Miss Anglin's production shows us. The forest scenes are intensely atmospheric, and the whole setting, staging and mounting of the play call forth the highest praise. It could hardly be better. It is all that the embellishment of Shakespeare ought to be,—that, and no more. It is another tribute to Miss Anglin's good taste.

S. Morgan-Powell.

Miss Anglin & Co. come to "The Grand" next Monday, Jan. 26, for one performance only.

APPOINT POLICE WOMAN, ETC.

words of the prophet are literally true: "They are robbed and spoiled; snared in holes and hid in prison houses — they are for a prey and none delivereth, for a spoil and none say, restore." Many a girl in the abyss of shame today has been the victim more of our economic conditions and current injustices than of inherent choice of badness.

Actual Happenings.

We do not place undue importance on the number of women voters whose signature to the petition are here presented, but direct your attention rather to the significance of the fact that so large a number of devoted women voluntarily went forth during the Christmas season, through all kinds of weather, constrained to do so by an overwhelming sense of duty, (at the very time when home and social claims make their strongest appeal), in order to extend a practical sympathy to those who obviously have no facilities for fighting their own battles—thus undertaking work new and painful to sensitive minds.

We desire to direct your interest to the incredible number of cases, daily brought to the notice of members of our Council, of the accosting of girls on the streets in the very centre of the city. Last spring a woman was accosted shortly after eight o'clock in foulest language on Hunter street, between George and Aylmer. Her indignant revolt against the possibility of some young girl even hearing the loathsome words, overcme her natural shrinking from publishing her humiliation, (an instinctive feeling among women, Sirs, which has helped the silence permitting the infamous practice to become so widespread). Overcoming this, she sought a policeman (who doubtless remembers the incident), assuring him if he would arrest the transgressor, who meantime had entirely disappeared on George street, she would appear to give evidence. But taking instances that have occurred, say within two months, I note a few common ones which are vouched for by people of unquestioned veracity:

(a) A young girl, a servant, esteemed by employers, leaving Public Library is followed by man, accosted when she turns off George to Murray, invited to "go walking and get acquainted." By degrees as she hurriedly proceeds she is obliged by alarmed efforts to fight off his embraces and kises, till happily she reaches the refuge of her home, when he slinks away.

(b) Vicinity of Smith and Water streets. A servant employed for two years and highly spoken of by her mistress, has been so frequently accosted that now she is afraid to go out even to the Public Library.

(c) Two different girls, vicinity Aylmer and Sherbrooke, accosted frequently, urged to go walking,—three weeks ago, having left the Y.W.C.A. the men's solicitations became so urgent, one of the girls drove a hatpin into some part of his anatomy and fled.

(d) Young lady walking long Simcoe street beheld the harrowing spectacle of a mother weeping before an open door and saying, "I want my daughter. I know she's in that stable."

(e) Young lady walking along Aylmer street, met by two men, who fall into pace behind her, soliciting her company all the way; till almost paralyzed by fright she fortunately reaches her destination, when they disappeared.

(f) Young lady of standing, loitering a few rods from her home in the early evening, waiting for a friend, is accosted—urgently entreated to go for a walk. "We don't know each other but we'll soon get acquainted and have a good time." Girl rushes back to her home, man disappears.

(g) A week ago Tuesday night a maid on Rubidge street, goes between seven and eight to George street, to purchase medicine; is accosted on her return by a young man; practically the same conversation. On the same street, about the same time on the same night, the little daughter of a prominent physician was similarly accosted.

Not Mere Escapades.

With inexpressible indignation we hear the theory advanced that these are mere boyish escapades. Gentlemen, it is an insult to the citizens of Peterborough, and all mothers of sons, to so characterize it. Is it not infamous that girls whose lives are limited enough in opportunity, should be debarred from the advantages afforded by such institutions as the Public Library and the Y.W.C.A. because they cannot safely walk to and from such central places? What is to become too of the weaker minded or foolishly romantic girl who yields to the honeyed invitations of promiscious acquaintances? As a case in point:—This week a mistress (herself unsuspicious of these evils), told us the following story: Her maid respectable but romantic, became acquainted with a young man and asked to go to church with him, three Sunday nights ago. The mistress, unwilling to seem severe, acceded to the request, herself staying home. Through the week he came, accompanied by another young fellow to invite her for a walk, but even she felt it ws not quite good form to go walking with two young men. The next Sunday night he came to take her to church again; and again the mistress consented. At the end of an hour or more, the girl rushed in, dishevelled and hysterical; confessed he had taken her walking, both nights, instead of to church; and that at a bridge in the north end, only her strength and determined struggles saved her from the greatest calamity that could befall a girl. You say, "That was a silly girl! Can a Police-Woman remedy such evils? It may be said a Police-Woman cannot remedy all the evil. Certainly not. Her appointment does not mean that the entire Police Force is thereby incapicitated. She can remedy certain evils, such as we have already partially indicated. We believe, Gentlemen, that the widest publicity should be given these conditions, that such men may not be permitted to ply their hideous tactics against the innocent, the weak, the unprotected; (for I might go on indefinitely quoting such occurrences). The very fact that these conditions lie so far away from the knowledge of our citizens generally, is largely responsible for the secrecy and hypocrisy upon which they thrive. It is a civic obligation, that these things be made known.

Revelations Overwhelming.

If such things take place in the heart of our city, what goes on in the outskirts? Question the people who live in these parts! They will tell you of the pitiful things that occur in the very shade of their own trees, for it is to these parts such girls as those whose cases have been quoted, are taken, when they are unsophiscated, or weak, or defenceless enough to accede. And this brings us, Gentlemen, to the part hardest of all for women to speak of; yet this supreme and delicate task we dare not shrink. Since it has been known that our Woman's Council has definitely set itself to this work, we have been fairly overwhelmed with revelations touching the pathetic down-fall of an incredible number of girls—some of them mere children.

A prominent lady was recently asked "what kind of place Peterborough was anyway." by a nurse in Montreal. Her attention had been drawn to it because of the large number of girls from Peterborough she had met in Rescue Homes there. When inaugurating this work, in writing to the Moral and Social Reform Committees of the Presbyterian, Methodist, Anglican and Baptist churches, for information and methods of procedure, the letters received from the secretaries were almost pathetically urgent that we should undertake this work, because of the large proportion of Peterborough girls received at Rescue Homes in Toronto.

The local hospitals furnish their own pitiful stories, but we have here, Gentleman, a lady who is nobly devoting herself to work in the so-called "lower world," who can speak more authoritatively because of definite experience. I will ask her now to say a few words. She has stated that after 23 years' experience in Canadian cities she has met in Peterborough circumstances more appalling than in any other place of the size.

Mrs. McElhiney.

Mrs. McElhiney of the Salvation Army said that she had been asked to attend the meeting upon only an hour's notice and otherwise would have had a more detailed statement to make. "Every day brings new revelations to me," she said. "I am bewildered at some of the things that I not only hear, but at what I see and come in contact with every day. In my work I have to deal with girls who have gone astray. There is no place here for girls who have erred. They may be driven from their homes, or their mothers may be dead and something must be done for them. I know of one girl whose mother died when the child was four years old. Her father died seven years ago. The woman with whom she was working said "I cannot have her here." Few care to have a girl of that kind and yet they cannot be thrown upon the world. On Friday I was actually discouraged with the conditions that confronted me. I think there is great need in this City for a woman who would be a nurse, an advisor, a detective, a mother and a whole-hearted Christian. If we could get a woman who would rescue girls in need of assistance it would be a great help."

Mrs. Rollins said that the ladies approached the Commissioners not only in their official capacity but as men and fathers. "If it is necessary we will canvass the whole City, and we feel we would secure an overwhelming support." Not all the business men have been interviewed, but of those who had been spoken to by members of the committee, practically every one had expressed their approval of the appointment asked for. Mrs. Rollins stated that the ladies would canvass every business man if the Commissioners required it.

Mr. S. T. Medd said that the police woman in Ottawa had been appointed to the permanent force after a probation of three months. Judge Huycke had remarked that he understood the appointment in Ottawa had not been entirely successful and he would write Judge McTavish for particulars.

Rev. Mr. Peever.

Rev. R. G. Peever of the George Street Methodist Church said he was impressed by the conference. This wonderful gathering of names must mean that there is considerable support from the first citizens of Peterborough. What was said regarding Ottawa is correct. Mr. Peever referred to the splendid work done by the woman probation officer in Ottawa. Regarding social conditions in this City, he remarked that as a stranger he was impressed by he low level of life. No other evidence is necessary than the reports in the local press. Revenue should not be a detriment in the appointing of a police woman. Not only is a police woman needed, but men to grip the question firmly and sincerely.

Mr. D. W. Dumble.

In reply to the statements presented, Magistrate Dumbl said that the evil of impurity had been in the world for ages. The complaint here is not of the inefficiency of the police. It is claimed that a police woman would be a panacea for present ills. You must remember that police are on their beats day and night. The people object to a reckless expenditure of money. Speaking of immorality and sin, everything sinful is not a breach of the law. The act must be illegal before the police can interefere, and everything that is improper is not such as the police can interfere with.

In regard to men accosting women that implies bad manners and low morality. Where is your remedy? You want to arrest them. Commence early and instruct the girls and boys so as not to fall easy victims to sin. How many parents have talked to their sons and daughters in this regard? Have you ever advertised in the papers that a girl could approach some of your members and give information such as you have mentioned. I doubt if you have. Have you ever put your hands into your pocketbooks for money to build homes where girls could go to? I know of cases where girls have been handed over to the Salvation Army and sent to Toronto, where they were taken care of. That institution has won our respect. Get a woman with a heart, who has pity. She can be on the street and get into the confidence of the girls. The only institution you have is the Salvation Army. They are trying to get property to build a home for the accommodation of girls. The woman you want must be prudent and educated. She must have the training that comes after years of experience. The Salvation Army is doing that kind of work.

My opinion is not that of getting a woman. Let us support an institution that is doing the work and will do it throughout the land. It is modest in this town. If we want that work done in its best form there is the lady before us (Mrs. McElhiney). You will make a great mistake by bringing a lady into this town. She would meet opposition from the first. We know that she would be almost as a fifth wheel to a coach.

Going back to first principles, let the pulpits teach morality. Is it taught in a way that will cause girls to flee from the appearance of evil. We know more than you give us credit for. Keep the girls off the streets. You are right in striving to check the evil, but the work cannot be done with handcuffs.

No More Rescue Homes.

In reply to the Magistrate, Mrs. Rollins said: "We do know of the splendid work of the Salvation Army. We have no words for our admiration of their efforts. The Women's Council has since its organization held mothers' meetings and are doing educational work. Magistrate Dumble has described our ideal of a police woman. We are anxious to prevent the need of more rescue homes. (Applause). Why should we have rescue homes? We are working to abolish them by creating a better sentiment. If Peterborough is a smaller place than other cities is it not in the interests of the people if we are willing to work toward the need of the present hour?

Mayor Buller.

Mayor Buller said: "I have learned a great deal this afternoon. I will do anything I can toward the betterment of the morals of Peterborough. I am in sympathy with the best interests of the municipality.

Judge Huycke.

His Honour remarked that the police should have been informed of the cases referred to in the petition.

A delegate—"One night a woman was shricking in front of my home. I called up the police but no one came until half an hour after the man had gone."

Judge Huycke—"The only possible time to get a clue or offer a remedy for thse cases was when they occurred. The police are splendidly carrying out their work. In rexard to a police matron, much depends upon woman engaged. My own judgment and conscience must be reached. All the votes would not effect me. As I am at present advised a police-woman is not wanted. If you can get a good, kind woman, not to arrest, but to talk to girls, and advise them, it would be a different matter. We do not want a woman to afrest girls and drive boys off the streets. I hope some method will be worked out. We will read your petition and supporting endorsements."

Mrs. Mowat.—"If you intend to appoint more police officers, why should not one of them be a woman?

Mrs. Kendry—"The men of the City are not true to the police. If we had a woman officer all the women of the City would help her."

Judge Huycke—"I usually tell the police."

Mrs. Kendry—"But Your Honour—Judge Huycke shared in the general smile that greeted this diversion. He said that the standard in Peterborough was not high.

Mayor Buller.

His Worship told of an incident in which two girls who were followed by two men ran into his house for assistance. He caught the men, but they said the girls had spoken to them firsa. The homes in this town are not all un-Christianised. If the girls are accosted and followed they should turn into some home for assistance. Let us all get busy. We have to provide police protection, but we have to keep down the taxes, and it is the balancing of these difficulties that causes grey hairs.

One Day a Month.

Rev. Mr. Peever—"Do the police have a rest day?"

Chief Thompson—"A year ago they were granted one day a month. There is not one of the officers who is not willing to work day and night.

Adjt. McElhiney.

"We all agree that there is a need of improvement in the moral conditions of the City," Adjt. McElhiney said. "When you have four girls on your hands and have not a place for them it is all very well to talk about not needing rescue homes. I have had a girl in my home for four weeks. The man concerned is behind the bars to-night. The solution of the problem would be the appointment of a morality officer. He could call in the aid of members of the Women's Council and my wife. We are at your service, but we don't want any money nor a position. I have been here only seven months and I find the conditions terrible. It is we who know them and our hearts are well nigh broken. It is only fair to say that we have found the police sympathetic and always ready to aid us. They are not surpassed by any other police up or down this country. With an efficient morality officer you could bring about a revolution in this City within twelve months that would please this delegation.

Mrs. Jas. Kendry.

Mrs. Kendry asked whether "accosting" was a breach of the law and was told that it was a legal offence.

There are a large number of young girls whose mothers work during the day and who are left to the care of an elder brother or sister. These girls of tender years, left to themselves, are not safe. The Women's Council is trying to put preventative measures into force, so that rescue homes may be avoided. The girl who falls is socially ostracised; but the man does not suffer. We do not want our girls shut out of society or sent into rescue homes. We want them protected and counselld in order to save them before it is too late.

Nobler Men Wanted.

Mrs. A. R. Campbell—"Surely our girls should have the liberty of going unmolested on our streets. A higher standard among men is required ad groups loitering on street corners should not be tolerated. There seems to be one standard for men and another for women, but in the face of Almighty God they are equal. Men will have to learn this, and there must be a single standard of morals and of manners.

Judge Huycke assured the ladies that their petition would receive the earnest consideration of the Commission.

RESOLUTION OF THE BOARD OF TRADE

The appended resolution was adopted by the Board of Trade at their meeting, which was held on Saturday evening. It was moved and seconded by Mr. J. J. Turner, Junior and Mr. R. W. Travers:

Be it resolved that the Peterborough Board of Trade desires to respectfully submit to the Government the claim of the City of Peterborough to be represented in the Senate of the Dominion of Canada.

That on account of its being a steadily growing business and manufacturing centre and the only one of any importance between Toronto and Ottawa, it is entitled to be represented in the Dominion Senate, having never yet been thus honoured.

Be it further resolved, that the Peterborough Board of Trade respectfully submit the name of Mr. James Kendry, formerly representative of this constituency in the Dominion Parliament for a number of years as a fit and proper person to further represent this City in the Dominion Senate, he having also been been for several years Mayor of the City and is at present engaged in one of the largest manufacturing interests in the City, and having moreover the full confidence and support of the entire population, would be a desirable and competent representative of the City in the Senate of the Dominion of Canada.

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 19.—Captain Jno. Graham, aged 91, for half a century one of the best known skippers on the Great Lakes, is dead at his daughter's home in Ekfrid Township after an illness of only a few days.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Toronto, Oct. 13, 1913.—This is to certify that I was almost a cripple from corns. I had given up all hope of ever being relieved of my trouble. I had almost lost the use of my right leg, it was almost paralized from a corn on my little toe, the pain was unbearable, I could not rest night or day for it. I was worn out, and as some would say, was all in. I called on Prof. Mulveney, 384 Water street, got a remedy from him, followed the directions and now I am rejoicing because life now is worth living, the corns are gone and I am a new man. I have used his remedy called B'Well and Rheumaticide and can well recommend them. Take my advice if you are crippled with corns, waste no time but call on Prof. R. L. Mulveney, 387 Water Street.

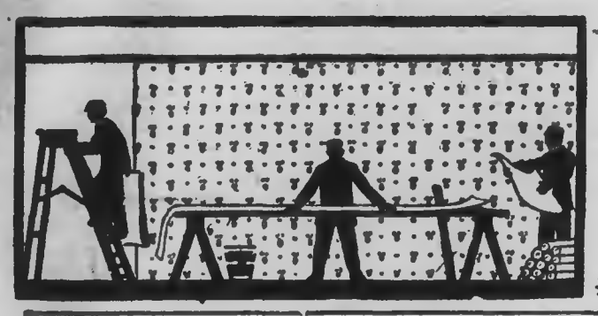
Crown Border and Paper on The Same Roll Simplifies The Hanging of The New Spring Wall Papers

A Novel Idea Which We Are Showing For The First Time In Peterborough

CAN YOU IMAGINE a simpler method for the hanging of Wall-Paper, than to have the border printed on the paper itself, at intervals which give ample length for the loftiest of rooms? To say nothing of the immense saving of time over the more complicated method of cutting out every width of border and matching it to the paper.

And in this new way, you hang the paper just like the ordinary side wall paper, while the finished result is a crown bordered effect, that cannot help but match evenly, and which is far ahead of the separate border because it is all on the one piece.



This does away with much measuring and planning, and places paper hanging on a plain straightforward basis, which enables the decorator to do twice the work in the same amount of time.

And coming from New York, these papers are printed in some of the richest designs and colourings ever used for interior decoration, and in styles suitable for parlour, dining and bed rooms. We are showing this new method of papering, in our bright Wall Paper Section upon the third floor.

Local Ministers Refer To Death of Senator Cox

AT ST. JOHN'S.

In referring to the death of the late Senator Cox at St. John's Church yesterday, Rev. Canon Davidson said that by his remarkable powers and hard work, not only himself, but the whole City and community had benefitted. "As citizens we are grateful," he remarked, "for the services he rendered as Mayor and in other offices. His benevolences were widespread and showed the kindliness and generosity of his nature. We remembred with gratitude his handsome gift to the People's Chimes, thus greatly encouraging the movement for a larger set of bells. Altogether we honour him as one of Peterborough's distinguished citizens. The City was unfortunate to lose him in the middle of his most successful career."

GEORGE STREET METHODIST.

In his sermon yesterday morning at the George Street Church the Rev. R. G. Peever referred in a feeling manner to the death of the late Senator George A. Cox. He drew the attention of the congregation to the fact that the late Mr. Cox was a trustee of the George Street Methodist Church, and was for many years a citizen of this City, and his early life was bound up in the growth of Peterborough. It was in keeping to publicly remember his death, because of the larger place he filled in the business life of this country. His great capacity for accomplishing large things gave evidence of unusual mind. His service in the municipal government of this City and the government of the country as a Senator, was evidence of his statesmanship. And above all the late Senator Cox was to be admired and remembered for his splendid Christian character—his great kiminess, unusual simplicity and unquestioned integrity.

AT MARK STREET METHODIST.

At the Mark Street Methodist Church yesterday morning the Pastor, Rev. Mr. Cragg, referred very feelingly to the passing away of three prominent Methodists during the past week. These were Mrs. Platt, who was for twenty years President of the Women's Missionary Society of the Bay of Quinte Conference, Rev. Dr. Crosby, a distinguished divine of the Methodist Church, who died in Vancouver, B.C., on Wednesday last, and Senator Cox, whose death took place on Friday last. It was a singular thing that three such prominent people should pass away within such a short while of each other, particularly of the latter two, as Dr. Crosby was born June 10th, 1840, and Senator Cox on May 7th, 1840. Mr. Cragg paid a glowing tribute to the life of each of these men, both of whom were self made and owed their success to their own individual efforts.

AT CHARLOTTE STREET CHURCH

At the morning service in Charlotte Street Methodist Church, Rev. Mr. Mansell referred feelingly to the loss th church and the state had sustained in the death of the late Senator Cox. The speaker made reference to the deceased's intimate connection with Charlotte Street Church, and of his visits to it since his removal to Toronto. Mention was also made of the many large gifts made by the Senator to charitable institutions.

The whole congregation stood to express in a feeble way its sympathy and sorrow for the loss of so great a man.

Rev. Mr. Mansell and Dr. Morrison are attending the funeral to-day, to represent Charlotte Street Church.

CLASSES WILL OPEN TO-NIGHT

The Industrial School will open this evening with the usual list of classes, comprising draughting, domestic science and dressmaking. It was the intention of the authorities to institute a three r's class which embodies elementary English and arithmetic. That this idea has not been consumated is due to the lack of sufficient students. Mr. Hagerman, principal of the Industrial School, is desirous of getting in touch with those who would be in favour of joining such a class.

"Additional privileges brings added responsibility. Those who wish to benefit by attending the classes can scarcely afford to neglect them."

The coloured porter approached a genial gentleman from Missouri the other morning as a through train was nearing Englewood station, and, smiling, asked: "Shall ah jest brush yo' all off, sah?"

"Not on your life," replied Mr. Missouri, "I'll get off this train in the regular way just as soon as she stops."

"LOST! A PLANK FROM PLATFORM OF MAYOR BULLER"

Such is the Advertisement the Rev. Mr. Rollins Would Have the Women's Council Insert in Local Papers

COMMISSION IS CRITICIZED

The Rev. Mr. Rollins, preaching last night in St. Andrew's Church, made some references to the Police Commissioners. He was speaking about Ahab's desire to get possession of the rich vineyard owned by Naboth.

"How will Ahab get the vineyard?" he asked the congregation. "He will first go to bed and be disagreeable—so disagreeable that his wife will do anything rather than have such a bear in the house. So Jezebel will get the vineyard. But how?

"A week ago I would have said there is just one way any woman would proceed. Jezebel will invite Naboth to the Royal Table. She will expend all her charms upon him. She will make him believe he is the most important man in her husband's kingdom and just at the right moment she will renew the request, and put herself under obligation to Naboth if he will sell the vineyard.

"A week ago I would have said that, but a mere man may learn much in a week. After all you can never tell what the ladies will do.

"Why this change?

"Answer—The Women's Council.

"They want a woman police officer and they actually went to the Police Commissioners, with arguments, reasons, petitions, names of doctors, teachers, nurses, business men, and the names of most of the women taxpayers. Had they invited the noble Judge, the marvellous Magistrate and His Honour the Mayor to a dinner I do not know what might have happened in the case of the Judge or the Magistrate, but one thing is certain that His Honour the Mayor could not have forgotten his written promise, and the 'Police Women' plank in his election campign platform. In the short space of 14 days—but alas, my brother! If I were a member of the Women's Council I would have an advertisement like this placed in the newspapers of the city:

"Lost, Strayed, or Stolen

Between Jan. 3, 1914, and Jan. 14, 1914, one plank from Mayor Buller's platform, labelled "Police Woman." $100 will be paid by the Women's Council on indisputable evidence that said plank has been found and returned to its place in the said platform, and padlocked in such a way so as not to get lost again during the year 1914."

The above reference by Mr. Rollins is in reference to the promise made in Mayor Buller's address before the January election strongly in favour of a Police Woman, and his attitude at Saturday's meeting of the Police Commissioners when he opposed the appointment of a woman official.

The late Mr. Cooper was born in London, Eng. When a young man he took service in the British Navy, being a member of the crew on the ships Leopard and Defence, and seeing service in all quarters of the globe. After leaving the navy he came to Toronto, later moving to Barrie, where he was an active member of St. George's Society and other fraternal organizations.

He came to Peterborough about 14 years ago, and here he engaged in the business of piano tuning and repairing.

MAX J. DOBBIN.

One of Peterborough's most promising young men, Max. Jeffers Dobbin, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Dobbin, passed away at his home yesterday after an illness of six months He was 22 years of age.

The deceased young man was born in Peterborough in April, 1891, and attended the public schools and graduated from the Collegiate Institute in this City. In the year 1908 he went to Toronto, where for a year he was on the staff of the Mail and Empire. At the end of that time he returned to this City, and held a position for a short time in the business office of the Review. He then went to Montreal, where, in the advertising department of the C.P.R., his promotion was rapid, and when his illness forced him to give up his duties he held a responsible position with that company.

The late Max. Dobbin was very popular in this City, and in Montreal, where he resided for several years. He was prominent in sporting circles here and was an active worker in the local Y.M.C.A. before he left the City.

Mr. and Mrs. Dobbin, and the bereaved family, will have the heartfelt sympathy of the community in the loss of their son.

Deceased is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Dobbin, two brothers William, of this City, and Ross, who is on an extended visit at his home here, as well as four sisters, Mrs. H. Pope, of Westmount, Que.; Daisy, New York City, N.Y., and Huldale and Dorothy at home.

The funeral was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the family residence, 622 George Street, to the Little Lake Cemetery. Service was conducted at his late home by the Rev. R. G. Peever, at 2.30 o'clock. A large number attended the funeral, testifying to the esteem and respect in which the deceased young man was held, not only by the young people of the City, but by all who knew him.

GERALD BULLEN.

Peterborough friends of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bullen, Campbellford, will be sorry to learn of the death of their young son Gerald, aged one year and five months, who passed away on Sunday morning after an illness of several days.

The remains will be brought to the City on Tuesday evening, and the funeral will be held from the residence of Mr. H. J. McCannon, 556 Charlotte Street on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock to the Little Lake Cemetery.

One Way to Clean Windows.

There are so many "best" ways to clean windows that one hesitates to offer her method unless very sure it is the way. Three or four ounces of emery flour in a heavy canvas sack will clean and polish windows with greater ease than anything else that I know. Simply rub the bag over the window. It also removes streaks from any glass.—Women's Home Companion.

CREDIT TO WHOM CREDIT IS DUE

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—Your article in Saturday's Examiner on the coal situation in Peterborough had the right ring in it. And you weren't very far astray in your facts either. But what I liked was the fair and conciliatory spirit in which it was written. If you cared I could give you a whole lot more information that your readers should know. I admire the man who has the courage to break away from old tracks and methods and thinks and acts for himself; and when he is successful in cheapening a commodity to give the public the benefit. The public will be sure to give credit to whom credit is due, instead of encouraging a spirit of unfair rivalry. Let others follow, if they cannot lead. "Every man for himself" is a poor motto. "The most good to the greatest number" is better.—I am, etc.,

OLD COAL HANDLER.

WHAT A LABOURER THINKS OF IT

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—I read in Saturday's issue a statement purporting to be made by a landlord of the City, that the landlords have to carry so many tenants this winter because of the tenants' improvidence whilst work is plentiful. Now, sir, that is a statement that, in my opinion, will not bear examination. The true reason is that the rate of wages in our City is not large enough to allow a labouring man to keep his family in decent comfort, and also to put something by for a rainy day. The average wage of a labouring man in our local factories is $1.50 per day, or $9 per week if he can work a full day on Saturday. Now, how can a man with a family pay rent light and fire and feed and clothe a family and save money on such a wage? In my ten years' acquaintance with Peterborough I have seen rent and food prices increase about 50 per cent., whilst the wage rate is about the same level as then. In few instances where wages have risen they are nowhere commensurate with the rise in prices. Landlords have less cause to grow! for houses that ten years ago were rented at $7 per month, are now rented at $15, an increase that was not caused by the rise in the price of building material, but was caused by the influx of that very improvident class that this landlord so much bewails. In most of the working class houses in this City, the tenants are compelled to burn about two tons of coal more than they should to each winter, because the houses are thrown together and not built. Rents are not fixed by the cost of the houses but by the demand for them, and landlords will get 25 per cent. if they can and will also take three per cent if they cannot get any more. Considering the amount of money the landlords are supposed to lose by bad tenants, it is remarkable how sleek and well fed they appear to be. We hear a great deal about the improvidence of the poor, but what about the improvidence of the rich? How many reputed rich men in this City owe large grocery bills? How many landlords have bought an automobile they could not afford and raised their rents to make their tenants pay for it? It would be also interesting Mr. Editor to get a monthly budget of say a family of six persons and see about what it does cost to keep them in rent, fire, light, food, boots and clothing per month (hoping you will find space for this) I am, etc.,

A LABOURER.

His Outlook

His aunt said to the boy athlete the other day: "I am delighted to hear of your success on the school baseball team, Harold, but you must remember that there are other things in life besides baseball."

"Yes, aunt, I know," said the boy "but hang it all, I am afraid I'm too light for football or rowing."

IN FAVOUR OF POLICE WOMAN

Men's Bible Class of Charlotte St. Methodist Church Passes a Resolution.

At the meeting of the Men's Bible Class in Charlotte Street Methodist Church yesterday the following resolution was carried unanimously by the large representation of men present:

"Resolved, that the Men's 'Brotherhood' Bible Class of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church desire to place itself on record as endorsing the motive of the National Woman's Council of this City in securing a policewoman and more adequate police protection to guard the welfare of the City.

"Further, we desire to announce a combined public meeting of all the Men's Bible Classes of the City churches in the Lecture Room of Charlotte Street Church, Monday evening, January 26, at 8 o'clock, for the furthering of this movement."

SOCIALISM FOUND WANTING SAYS MR. POGUE

Pastor of St. Paul's Refers to Subject in Sermon Yesterday

In the course of a sermon on "True and False Estimates of Life" in St. Paul's Church, Sabbath morning, the pastor, the Rev. R. Pogue, referred to one of the weaknesses of Socialism.

His text was "A Man's Life Consisteth not in the Abundance of the Things which he Possesses."

He said: "The Master is not condemning here the possession of money. He nowhere says that a rich man is necessarily a bad man He does say it is hard for a rich man to be good. But the thing which our Lord condemns here is that estimate of material things which places a higher value on them than on the things of character, the things of the Spirit, which binds a man to the physical and temporal and blinds him to the things which are spiritual and eternal.

"It is just here that Socialism finds its strongest condemnation. I am not of those who would make a wholesale condemnation of Socialism. There are many things for which it stands which are praiseworthy, things which are in complete harmony with the teachings of Christ. Indeed there is a school of Socialism which claims that Jesus was a Socialist, the members of which delight to call themselves Christian Socialists. I do not condemn Socialism because it demands a more equitable distribution of the wealth of the world; or because it has set for its goal a condition of affairs where everyone shall be well fed, well housed and well played, and where there shall be no rich and no poor, no idle and no overworked in the community. I do not condemn it because it preaches the doctrine that the great natural resources of the world, the land, the mines, the forests, the water are the property of the people and not of a few men who use these things for their own enrichment, and the slavery of the multitudes. The thing which condemns Socialism, from the Christian standpoint, is its estimate of life. That estimate is a purely materialistic one. Its chief concern is work and wages, earthly comfort and the things of time. And any such programme as that for the life of immortal beings, made in the image of God, carries with it its own condemnation, for, 'Life does not consist in the abundance of the things which a man possesses.'

"Over against such a programme of life is the programme of the Master: 'Seek first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you.' Christ taught that the whole duty of man is not physical enjoyment, nor for that matter intellectual or aesthetic enjoyment. He taught us that any such ideal for life as that is poor and barren, good enough for animals; but for men made in the image of God with spiritual instincts and experiences, it is not sufficient. As Victor Hugo says, 'Truth is nourishment as well as wheat,' or as the Mater elsewhere says, 'Man shall not live by bread alone but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.'"

PAID A TRIBUTE TO THE DECEASED

Following his glowing tribute to Senator Cox, Rev. Canon Davidson, at St. John's yesterday, spoke with deep feeling of the death of Dr. Geoffrey S. Beck, who died in Port Arthur a week ago. The late Dr. Beck was a son of the late Canon Beck, one time rector of St. John's Church, and spent his boyhood days in this City. The late Dr. Beck was an eminent and enthusiastic practitioner of his profession, and had greatly endeared himself to the citizens of Port Arthur. In his latter days his heart turned to his old City and Church of his boyhood, and he expressed the wish that he might be buried here. He was a striking example of strong Christian manhood.

He also spoke with deep regret of the passing away of Mrs. Allan, at Millbrook, sister of Mr. Robt. Fair, who was a frequent worshipper at St. John's Church, and of Mrs. T. M. Howard, who was a recent comer to St. John's, and who had previously been an earnest worker in the Church in the United States.

POLICEMEN ON TRIAL IN SAN FRANCISCO

Special Wire to The Examiner:

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 19.—Four former members of the San Francisco police force were brought into court to-day to stand trial on a charge of grand larceny. The accused were alleged members of the Italian bunk gay, said to have cleaned up half a million dollars the past year or two. The four officers are already under conviction and sentence on a conspiracy charge.

Deputation From Peterboro', Etc.

dermen. On motion of Alderman Johnston all members of the City Council who desire to accompany the deputation to Ottawa on Tuesday morning will be privileged to do so.

The Upper Chamber.

The Council then adjourned to the upper chamber where a citizens' meeting aided and abetted by the Board of Trade was in progress. Two resolutions similar to the one that was adopted by the Council in respect to the vacancy in the Red Chamber at Ottawa, were recorded in favour of each of the meetings.

Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., in speaking on behalf of the Citizens' meeting, voiced his endorsation of Mr. Kendry whom he referred to as the "right man" for the position. He also noted that the local press were urging the claims of this city to representation in the Senate irrespective of party politics.

Three Cheers and a Tiger.

Mr. E. G. Patterson, of the Canadian General Electric Company, in moving the resolution, augmented what Mr. Turner had said. He led the meeting in three cheers and a tiger for Mr. Kendry. The resolution was seconded by Mr. W. R. Travers.

Messrs I. M. Hayes, George Elliott, W.R. Travers and Reeve W. G. Howden, of Monaghan, verbally endorsed the stand taken by the meeting.

"I quite agree," said Mr. Peck, "that politics are better excluded from the question though the fact is patent that the appointtee must be of one political stripe. I know of no better man to fill the position than Mr. Kendry, who is regarded as the dean of the Tory party."

Mr. Travers—"I think you have chosen a worthy man and you will be proud of your choice."

A resolution arising out of the meeting of the Board of Trade and recommending local representation in the Senate together with the appointment of Mr. James Kendry, was moved and seconded by Messrs. J. J. Turner, Jr., and W. R. Travers. It was heartily endorsed by the meeting.

The meeting in conclusion recorded a resolution of sympathy to the family of the late Senator Cox.

Services Concluded

At Gilmour Memorial Church—Presented Pastor With Fur Coat

Gilmour Memorial Church was crowded to capacity on Sunday evening, the occasion being the valedictory service of Rev. Wilson Pugsley. The evangelist gave an account of his life from 'the gambling table to the pulpit,' and incidentally urged his hearers to exclude the euchre deck from their homes or any other amusement that savoured of gambling. The congregation indicated their sympathy with the speaker's remarks by rising to their feet.

At the close of the service the Young Men's Bible Class presented the Pastor, Rev. R. J. McLean with a handsom fur coat.

Rev. Pugsley will conduct union services in Selwyn with the aid of the Methodist and Baptist churches. The meetings will last for fourteen days. Il those who can avail themselves of the opportunity are invited to attend.

The services which were concluded on Sunday evening at Gilmour Memorial Church were productive of excellent results. A total of forty-four having decided for Christ. The services were regarded as the best that have ever been held in the history of the church.

There was a Miss

Some picture-hanging was being done in the house, and one of the younger members of the family had just driven a nail into the wall when the observant father remarked—"Be careful with those nails, now; you might drive one into a gas pipe." As another picture was to be hung the parent's superior wisdom was invited to find a safe place for the nail. "Give me a screw-bit," said he "and I'll probe carefully into the plaster and find out where the gas pipe is." He carefully thrust in the sharp little instrument, and instantly there was a hiss. He had found the gas pipe at the very first try. "And," said the young member of the family, who had been engaged on the job, "no one but father would have found it like that." But he took care to say it to himself.

THIS MORNING'S POLICE COURT

Acting Magistrate H. Rush presided at the session of police court this morning in the absence of Magistrate Dumble.

Benjamin Hobson was the first offender to ask leniency from the Magistrate. He was charged with being drunk in a public place and pleaded guilty. On Saturday, Ben, who is something over 60 years of age, was charged with being drunk and disorderly. He pleaded guilty then, and made a solemn promise to keep on the outside of the barroom door hereafter. So he was allowed to go to his home in Madoc at once.

This morning he was fined $5, but could not pay it. He will therefore spend the next 20 days in the county gaol.

A local man pleaded 'guilty' of creating a disturbance "in or near a public place" on Saturday night, and to a charge of being drunk while on the blacklist. On both he was remanded until to-morrow.

Course of the Panama Canal

There is a somewhat popular delusion about the Panama Canal—to wit, that the course from Colon, on the Caribbean or Atlantic side of the isthmus, to Panama, on the Pacific side, is from east to west. Of course the Atlantic is at the east and the Pacific is at the west, but the isthmus is very crooked and at this point tends from a little south of west to north of east, and Colon is actually farther west than Panama. As a result the canal runs from north-north-west to south-south-east, and on reaching the Pacific one finds himself further east that he was when he left the Atlantic. Queer, isn't it, to go westward by going eastward? But it's a geographical fact, all the same, which few realise until they study the map.

LAWYER IS IN JAIL

Counsel For Krafchenko Offers Heavy Bail in Vain

STORY OF ESCAPE IS TOLD

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 20.—Bail amounting to $20,000 was insufficient to release Percy Hagel, John Krafchenko's counsel, when application was made by R. A. Bonnar, K.C., counsel for Hagel, before Sir John Macdonald, yesterday afternoon. Hagel was brought before the court, charged with unlawfully assisting Krafchenko to escape from custody.

"I've defended a good many murderers, and none of them was ever hung, and I don't want this one to hang. If we can't get him on the street one way we will have to try another." According to John H. Buxton, under arrest for assisting in the escape of Krafchenko, testifying yesterday afternoon before the royal commission, Percy Hagel, who Buxton claims engineered the whole plot for escape, had no other motive than shown in the foregoing statement, made to him by Hagel.

Buxton, who was formerly secretary of the Winnipeg Builders' Exchange, told his story without reserve, and it was stranger than any dime novel. It was Buxton who on Sunday night led the police to the sensational and unexpected arrest of Krafchenko. He had then been under arrest nearly twenty-four hours, and as it was his first time behind the bars he quickly caved in and told all he knew to Mayor Deacon.

It is generally understood that Buxton will be given immediate immunity, while the charges against Percy E. Hagel, counsel for Krafchenko, Constable Reid and John Westlake, who sheltered Krafchenko in his room, will be pressed to the limit.

He detailed the whole working out of the plot. The gun and rope were supplied by Buxton to Constable Reid through Hagel, ad taken by Reid to Krafchenko's cell. Buxton secured the gun only after a good deal of trouble, having forced a boy in Ashdowne's hardware store, over whom he had influence, to steal the gun, a Colt automatic. At Hagel's request he bough a hank of ordinary cotton clothesline, which was also given to Reid.

Over and over again Buxton declared that he had no motive whatever himself in assisting, and that it was only when too late that he realized that he was making a fool of himself.

Frank Holt, a young man who shared the rooms with Westlake on Toronto street, declared that he had been forced into the affair unwillingly, and that he kept quiet because he was afraid to "split." He took no active part.

Hardening of the arteries is now mentioned as the most frequent cause of death by the cheerful scientists who seek to entertain the popular fancy with vital statistics. However, the easy generalization "heart failure" still has its advocates.

The American hen is better prepared than the American "beef critter" to meet the removal of the tariff. In 1913 250,000,000 eggs, fresh and canned, were exported, bringing nearly $4,500,000 in return. Imports increase, but are far below exports, and the hen is prepared to do still better if spoken to kindly.

Lord Strathcona's Condition Reported Extremely Grave

ALL BULLETINS CUT OFF

LONDON, Jan. 20.—At 2 o'clock this (Tuesday) morning the condition of Lord Strathcona was stated to be extremely grave and the end was expected at any moment.

No official bulletin has been issued since yesterday afternoon.

The Financial News give prominence this morning to the statement that such dispositions have been made with regard to Lord Strathcona's very large holdings in leading Canadian securities as will completely obviate any shock to the market in the event of the present grave apprehensions being realized.

The arrival in London Sunday morning by special midnight train from Edinburgh of Mr. Garson, Lord Strathcona's solicitor, reminded the public that Lord Strathcona's interests in this country are concentrated with Mr. Garson's law firm of Edinburgh.

Mr. Garson has long been entrusted with Lord Strathcona's will and all matters concerning the peerage and succession, also his British properties which consist chiefly of the London residence in Grosvenor Square, "Debden Hall," a fine country seat in Essex, "Glencoe" with its moors and deer forests; and also "Colonsay," a large island off the west coast of Scotland which he acquired from the executors of the late Sir John McNeil some years ago.

It is said that since the death of Lady Strathcona, a few weeks ago, the High Commissioner has lost his old zest for life.

DETERMINED TO SEE KING.

Suffragette Deputation Will Seek Audience Ready for Emergencies.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—"The King has got to see us or we shall know the reason why," Mrs. Dacre-Fox told a meeting of militant suffragettes in London last evening. It was at a meeting called to re-open the campaign for equal suffrage after the recent lull and the women were full of fight.

Mrs. Dacre-Fox said the suffragettes had not anticipated that His Majesty woud refuse to see a deputation of women on Jan. 7, but if he had been advised by his Ministers not to see the women he could not shield himself that way.

"He has got to see us," the speaker added, "or we shall know why. The next deputation will go to Buckingham Palace prepared for all emergencies."

CONDITION UNCHANGED.

Last Night's Bulletin Concerning Premier Whitney Discouraging.

TORONTO, Jan. 20. — Sir James Whitney was back again among his own people yesterday. The journey from New York on Saturday night was accomplished without apparent shock to the distinguished patient, and shortly after his admission to the General Hospital at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, and after taking nourishment, he fell into a restful sleep.

At 9.45 last night Dr. Alex. McPhedran, in attendance on Sir James Whitney at the General Hospital, issued the following bulletin:

"Sir James has been pretty restless for the last two or three hours, more restless than before and not quite so well. He is not taking any nourishment and not sleeping, but is expected to sleep soon."

At Toronto yesterday the car conveying the patient was disengaged from the train and was placed where the ambulance and hospital staff were in readiness. Dr. Pyne stepped off plainly tired after his all-night vigil. He did not have a wink of sleep, and after speaking to the newspaper men, followed his patient to the hospital, and then went home to bed.

PRISONER JAILED CHIEF.

Constable Watt of Niagara Falls Locked In a Cell.

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, Jan. 20.—To be locked up himself in the cell in which he was about to incarcerate a prisoner, was the novel experience of Chief of Police Watt of this town. Thomas Connolly was remanded to the cells on a drunk and disorderly charge, having not sufficiently recovered from the day he was arrested, to stand trial. The chief turned his back to the prisoner for a moment in the corridor of the police cells, when Connolly seized the officer, and, thrusting him into the cell, locked the door and decamped.

The noise raised by the imprisoned policeman finally brought assistance, and Chief Watt was liberated. Connolly was found in a barroom, begging the barkeeper for a drink. He fought all the way back to the cells, but was finally locked up.

When left alone Connolly set fire to the mattresses of his cell cot, and his shouts only saved him from a fiery death. He was taken to another cell and locked up after another big fight.

ACCUSES STEPFATHER.

Deaf and Dumb Girl Found To Have Been Terribly Abused.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Jan. 20. —Deaf and dumb, with a broken arm and an injured hip, emaciated, and thinly-clad, a fifteen-year-old girl giving her name as Winnifred Graham came to police headquarters yesterday claiming that her stepfather had brutally ill-treated her in Merritton and thrown her out of his house five days ago, since which she has been wandering about from place to place getting what she could to keep body and soul together and stopping where she could get a night's shelter.

When questioned on paper she told Chief Kimmins that her injuries were due to her stepfather's treatment. The Medical Officer of Health examined the girl, and found that it would be necessary to treat the arm and reset it. The girl fainted twice on her way to the police station; she was later removed to the hospital. Chief Kimmins will make an investigation.

PAPERS IN COURT.

J. W. Moyes Was Ill, However, So Documents Were Not Examined.

TORONTO, Jan. 20. — Instead of the serious developments expected at the resumed inquiry into the affairs of the Ontario West Shore Railway Co. by the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board at the Parliament Buildings yesterday, the air of mystery thickened and the investigation was adjourned sine die.

Mr. John M. Moyes, ex-president of the railway, who has been persistently called as a material witness, was absent and a doctor's certificate of illness was presented. It said Mr. Moyes was too ill for mental or physical effort.

The much-talked-of papers connected with the inquiry were on hand in charge of Crown Attorney Corley and Detective Twigg of the Toronto detective department, and this was the signal for much discussion regarding their ownership and as to whether they should be opened to the public gaze before Mr. Moyes could be present. It was finally decided to allow Messrs. Wm. Proudfoot, K.C., M.P.P., and Herbert Lennox, K.C., M.P.P., the respective counsel for the municipalities interested in the road and Mr. Moyes, to open and inspect them in the presence of a representative of the Railway Board and accountants to be appointed by that body.

The papers were seized at the home of William Baxter of Toronto, on a search warrant.

RELIEF IS NEEDED

Government Proposes Nothing, Declares Sir Wilfrid Laurier

DEBATE OPENS IN HOUSE

OTTAWA, Jan. 20. — The debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne yesterday in the Commons indicated the main lines of the coming session. Premier Borden plainly indicated that the navy program was shelved and blamed the situation on the Senate, which he declared might need reform. Sir Wilfrid Laurier laid down the fiscal issue and took the Government to task for proposing no means of curing the pressing economic evils, which were directly attributable to the high tariff.

Mr. McLeod (Con., York, N.B., in opening the debate, urged against any reduction of the maritime representation under redistribution, and stated the claim of the Province of New Brunswick for aid in the building of the St. John Valley, Railway, which he said had been made necessary by a mistake in the route of the N. T. R.

Mr. Lavallee (Con., Bellechasse) seconded the address in French.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier referred to the absence of Hon. Geo. E. Foster from the House. It was true that Mr. Foster was a member of the Dominion Commission, but it was doubtful whether a Cabinet Minister should sit upon a commission of that kind. He could not serve two masters.

The failure of the Government to make any reference to the naval aid bill in the Governor-General's speech was hailed as the indication of the position taken by the Liberal party at last session. We know now, he said, that naval scares, panics and emergencies which from time to time excited the world, were deliberately manufactured by the armor plate manufacturers, who bought space in newspapers.

Sir Wilfrid contended the peril of Canada was financial, not military.

We now had 100,000 idle men in the country. For the first time since 1897 there was unemployment in Canada and the Finance Minister was not justified in saying at Montreal, and subsequently at Gananoque, "that the crisis had come and passed." The Government knew there was a situation to deal with, and had appointed a commission to enquire into the high cost of living. It was a good commission in some respects, but being composed of civil servants, it could not touch the tariff or any political question.

What was the remedy? In Sir Wilfrid's opinion it was wider markets. By a stroke of the pen, the Prime Minister could give Canadian wheat and flour free access to the American market. Why did he not do so? The request had come from the Conservative legislation of Manitoba, from the Legislature of Saskatchewan, from the Grain Growers' Association, and from the Conservative members of the Alberta Legislature.

Sir Wilfrid closed by offering the following amendment, "we regret to represent to Your Royal Highness, that in the gracious speech, with which you have met Parliament while it is admitted that business is in a depressed condition, yet there is no indication on the part of your advisers of determination to take any steps relieving such situation."

Premier Borden in his reply said he was amused at the solicitude displayed by the leader of the Opposition over the absence of Hon. George E. Foster. He doubted if Sir Wilfrid or the Liberal party would shed any tears if Mr. Foster never came back. However, for their relief he would tell them that the Minister of Trade and Commerce was now on the ocean and would be in the House on Monday next.

The Prime Minister reviewed the action of the Dominion Senate in loading the highways bill, the Intercolonial branch lines bill, the tariff board legislation, and the naval aid bill, with amendments which the Government could not accept. In no other country, he said, was the upper chamber so beyond control when it saw fit to defy the people. The Liberals were warned that if they persisted in using their majority in the Senate to defeat the popular will, that the matter of dealing with the upper chamber would be forced upon the Government, in which event Mr. Borden said that the subject would be dealt with once for all.

Reviewing the history of the naval bill the Prime Minister said that the action of the Senate in rejecting that bill had created a profound impression within and without the Empire. It had delighted the foes of Britain and had been interpreted as signifying that Canada would be hereafter not a source of strength but a source of weakness to the British Empire. To pass the bill again, and to have it again rejected by the Senate would be to further discredit the country and imperil the Empire. He promised that the three Dreadnoughts would be built if the Government remained in power.

Mr. Borden said that he regretted to see that Sir Wilfrid Laurier had not scrupled to summon to his assistance the cry of "hard times." He had criticized the Government for having no policy wherewith to cure the present temporary depression, but the amendment offered by him showed that Sir Wilfrid had himself no policy to suggest. He had already retreated from the "free food" platform proclaimed at Hamilton only two months ago.

Mr. Borden did not wonder that the Liberals had fled from the free food policy, which meant that the farmer should be left without protection while the tariff was retained for the benefit of all other classes of the community. As for the trade depression he was confident that the slight check to our prosperity which we were now experiencing would be overcome by a great revival of business with the opening of spring.

Dr. Clark (Red Deer) declared that the greatest event of recent years from the standpoint of Canada had been the passage of the Underwood tariff law. He also urged free wheat. Argentina, he said, accepted the offer of the United States, and Canadian statesmen should be no less allied to the best interest of their country.

Mr. Burnham, the Conservative member for West Peterboro, observed that the Liberals in an effort to defend their cause on the naval question were discussing theories of government. These theories interested the people of Canada less than did the tango. He scouted the notion that any reduction could be made in the high cost of living by tinkering with the tariff.

Mr. A. K. Maclean (Lib.) Halifax moved the adjournment of the debate.

ONE MAY RESIGN.

Churchill and Loyid George at Loggerheads Says Telegraph.

LONDON, Jan. 20. — The Daily Telegraph asserts that the antagonism between, Winston S. Churchill First Lord of the Admiralty, and David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, on the question of naval estimates has reached a point where the resignation of one of these Ministers is a possibility of the next few days.

A majority of the Cabinet support Chancellor Lloyd George in opposing Mr. Churchill's estimates, and should the First Lord resign rather than reduce the estimates, the paper adds, the whole Admiralty Board will resign with him.

It is stated that a meeting of the Cabinet will discuss the navy question and Mr. Churchill's attitude on Thursday.

TWO WOMEN SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Edmonton, Alberta, Can. — "I think it is no more than right for me to thank you for what your kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have done for me.

"When I wrote to you some time ago I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had organic inflammation and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend your medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and think they are fine. I will never be without the medicine in the house."—Mrs. FRANK EMSLEY, 903 Columbia Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta.

The Other Case.

Beatrice, Neb.—"Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe at times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and I have two little girls."—Mrs. R. B. CHILD, Beatrice, Neb.

SMART COAT LINES.

Yokes the Newest Addition to Wraps.

MODEL WITH LAPPED SECTIONS.

The new coats show deep yokes lapping downward and wedge shaped fronts lapping leftward. This coat, made by a famous Parisian tailor, is in lapped effect and is of leather brown duvetyn with skunk fur trimmings.

A Momus.

Have you ever heard a grumbler called a Momus?

Momus in Greek legend was the god of mockery, whose chief joy in existence was to find fault with mortals and immortals as well when the occasion offered.

Upon one occasion Neptune, Minerva and Vulcan contested the point as to which was the best artist, and Momus was appointed to sit in judgment upon their respective merits.

Neptune made a bull in his best style. Minerva fashioned a house. Vulcan made a man.

Momus decided that Vulcan's man was not perfect because he had neglected to put a window in his chest so that his creature's thoughts could be read by all who wished to know of what he was thinking. Minerva's house did not suit him because it was not movable and therefore could not be shifted out of the way when trouble threatened or meddlesome neighbors tried to peer in. Neptune's bull, said Momus, was very imperfect because its horns were too near the front of its head.

So furious were the gods at his decisions upon their best work that they banished him from heaven. Shortly afterward, it is said, Momus died of a broken heart because he could find no flaw in the peerless beauty of Venus.

TOOK SEVERE COLD.

Left A Terrible Hard Cough And A Nasty Tickling Sensation In The Throat.

A bad cough accompanied by that distressing, tickling sensation in the throat is most aggravating.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is rich in the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree, and for this reason it will stop that tickling in the throat which causes that dry hard cough that keeps you awake at night.

Mr. Sanford Roode, Antrim, N.S., writes:—"Last fall I took a severe cold which left me with a terrible hard cough and a nasty tickling sensation in my throat. I tried many cough medicines, but they did not help me so I got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and before I had used half of it the cough had left me, and the next one made a complete cure, and I will recommend it as the best cough medicine on the market."

See that you get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it. Do not accept any imitation. The genuine is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price, 25 and 50c., and manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

such a wrap is good looking. When the child is six or eight years old to the brown coat may be added a "brownie" cap of corduroy.

To Keep a Stove Top Clean.

If you are using a gas or oil stove, or even the range, this is a good plan when frying: Use an asbestos mat, the size of the stove top, with openings made the size of the lids. Place this mat on the stove when doing considerable frying, and it will prevent the stove from becoming very greasy.

The Best Cough Syrup is Easily Made at Home

Costs Little and Acts Quickly, Money Refunded If It Fails.

This recipe makes 16 ounces of cough syrup, and saves you about $2.00 as compared with ordinary cough remedies. It stops obstinate coughs—even whooping cough—in a hurry, and is splendid for sore lungs, asthma, croup, hoarseness and other throat troubles.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. Tastes good.

This takes right hold of a cough and gives almost instant relief. It stimulates the appetite, and is slightly laxative—both excellent features.

Pinex, as perhaps you know, is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and the other natural healing pine elements.

No other preparation will do the work of Pinex in this recipe, although strained honey can be used instead of the sugar syrup, if desired.

Thousands of housewives in the United States and Canada now use this Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe. This plan has often been imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equaled. Its low cost and quick results have made it immensely popular.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

WOMEN ARE BAD LOSERS.

That Is Why, It Is Said, Stock Brokers Fight Shy of Them.

Nobody loves a stock broker, least of all his customers. This affords a touching, if somewhat subtle, reason why he does not want any women speculators on his books.

There is another reason. I hate to mention it, but you wring it from me. Women are not good losers. At times, under stress of great speculative losses, I am told they become lachrymose. The one stock broker of my acquaintance who catered to women speculators is now in a madhouse. They were all long of Steel at 50 the time it broke to 8, and all the water squeezed out of it in that decline was wept back into it by these women. It was an economic disaster.

Stock brokers carry home with them all the troubles of their customers, and this poor fellow was no exception. He used to lie awake all night picking at the counterpane and grieving over beauty in distress. Finally he went crazy. They have given him a set of stock broker's books up there in the asylum, and it would break your heart to see him. Jeanne d'Arc and Harriet Beecher Stowe are long of Copper; Catherine de Medici and Mrs. Browning are short of Rubber; Maria Theresa and George Eliot are pyramiding in Steel. Every now and then somebody is stopped out, and then there are dreadful times. Charlotte Corday's, Cleopatra's, Mme. de Stael's and the mother of the Gracchi's margins are exhausted. He calls to them for more. They weep. I cannot go on. Women have much to answer for.—William Van Antwerp in New York Post.

He Knew How He Got It.

"That large lump running across the back of your head," said the phrenologist, "means that you are inclined to be curious, even to the point of recklessness."

"I know it," said the man who was consulting him. "I got that bump by sticking my head into the dumb waiter shaft to see if the waiter was going up, and it was coming down."

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grape and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

A Story of Labouchere.

Labouchere's popularity at Frankfort, according to his own account as given in "The Life of Labouchere," rested on a very simple basis. Great Britain was represented at the diet by Sir Alexander Malet, one of the most popular chiefs to be found in the service.

"But I was even more appreciated than my chief," he would relate, "and this is why: Sometimes there was a ball at the court, which we were expected to attend. At my first ball supper I found myself next to a grandee, gorgeous in stars and ribbons. The servant came to pour out champagne. I shook my head, for I detest champagne. The grandee nudged me and said, 'Let him pour it out.' This I did, and he explained to me that our host never gave his guests more than one glass. 'So, you see, if I drink yours I shall have two.' After this there used to be quite a struggle to sit near me at court suppers."

Stopped His Talking.

In the memoirs of Li Hung Chang the great Chinese viceroy, commenting on his visit to Russia, refers to the manner in which the czar and all the high officials appear to be surrounded by would be assassins. "I do not think I would like to exchange positions with the czar even to have the fine czarina as wife and my choice of the rarest tea," says the statesman. He adds the following anecdote, which seems to show that he would have been quite at home in the atmosphere of assassination which he believed to exist in St. Petersburg: "Once in Tientsin a low fellow came into my courtyard and told the banner captain in charge that he intended taking my life. He had a long piece of wire and said he was going to hang me to my own gateposts. I had to have his head cut off before he would stop talking."

Painters' Tragedies.

The painter Boecklin's wife would never allow her husband to bring a model to his studio. "That is the tragedy of my life," said Boecklin. "To create without a model is almost impossible, while to employ one would at once mean to break with my wife." The episode is recalled by Dr. Angelo S. Rappoport in "Famous Artists and Their Models."

Another story is of Lucretia del Fede, the cold, unsympathetic, exacting woman who was adored, married and immortalized by Andrea del Sarto. She outlived her husband by many years, dying at the age of eighty-seven in 1570. Long after Del Sarto's death Jacopo di Empoli was one day engaged in copying "The Birth of the Virgin" in the Church of the Annunciation, Florence, when an old woman on her way to church stopped to watch his work and, pointing to the central figure in the painting, said, "That is my portrait." At eighty-six she was proud to proclaim herself the widow of the immortal artist to whom she had given so little peace when he was alive.

Good Tempered Turtles.

Place a number of different kinds and sizes of turtles in a small space and the forbearance which is exhibited might well be a lesson to man. Big and little will crawl about, heedless of each other's comfort or security from harm. A small painted terrapin, for instance, will clamber solidly over the head of a vicious snapper, and the chances are that the latter will merely duck its head or move to one side so that the claws of the former will not injure its eyes. There seems at such times a look of patient resignation or sullen submission, which would immediately change to savage resentment and fierce attack if a man made a hundredth part of the commotion. These creatures appear to be able to distinguish between "no offense meant" and intentional mauling. While they submit to the one, they will fight over the other, if fight has not been previously thrashed out of them.—Kansas City Star

A Statute of Apparel.

A little while ago there was a strike in London, Eng., because the 'bus men were not permitted to wear a labor button and this recalls the time when the English Parliament attempted to choose the material for the suits of the workers. 1363 labor was beginning to find its feet, to the confounding of the landowner, who appealed to Parliament for help. Mr. Hackwood summarizes one of the resultant acts—the statute of apparel—in his Good Old Times. "It directed that artificers and servants should be served only once a day with meat and fish, or the waste of other victuals, as milk and cheese; and that they should wear no kind of cloth save that called black russet at 1 pence a yard."

"We are only little ones, but we know Zam-Buk eased our pain and cured our sores. Perhaps it would cure you, too, if you tried it?"

Isn't this sound advice from "babes and sucklings"? Take it! The speakers are the children of Mrs. E. Webster, of Seigneurs St., Montreal, and the mother adds weight to their appeal. She says: "My little girl contracted scalp disease at school. Bad gatherings formed all over her head, and not only caused the child acute pain but made her very ill. The sores discharged, and occurring on the scalp we feared she would lose all her hair. She was in a pitiable plight when we tried Zam-Buk, but a few days' treatment with this balm gave her ease. Then the sores began to heal, and we continued the Zam-Buk treatment. In a short time she was quite healed.

"My little boy sustained a serious scald on the neck. It set up a bad sore, and quite a few things we tried, failed to heal it or give him ease. Once more we turned to Zam-Buk, and we were not disappointed. It acted like a charm in drawing away the pain, and soon healed the wound."

Zam-Buk is "something different" in the way of balms. It contains powerful healing herbal essences, which, as soon as applied to skin diseases, kill off the germs and end the painful smarting. Other essences contained in Zam-Buk so stimulate the cells that new healthy tissue is speedily formed. Eczema, itch, ulcers, cold sores, abscesses, festering sores, blood poisoning, chronic wounds, cold cracks, etc., are healed and cured in this way. Use it for all skin injuries and diseases. It is also of great service for piles. All druggists and stores at 50 cents box, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Gibbon's History.

It is said that when Gibbon sat down to write his great work, "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," he proposed writing it in French. But David Hume, a close friend, on hearing this wrote him a letter of remonstrance in such strong and stirring language that he was only too glad to relinquish his fancy. There is an excellent foundation for the story of Hume's letter to Gibbon, and beyond doubt we owe it to this old Scotchman that the immortal history was written in our own language. — New York American.

WAS BORN FORTUNATE

SIR EVELYN WOOD THE "LUCKIEST MAN ON EARTH."

British Field Marshal Has Gone Through Accidents Enough to Account For Most Human Beings But He Always Gets Better—Fell From Rigging, Toppled Overboard and Once Was Frozen Stiff.

The veteran Field Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood recently met with a very serious accident whilst riding at Marlow, and was for some time confined to bed suffering from concussion of the brain. Indeed the doctors were not at all certain for a while that Sir Evelyn, who is now in his 76th year, would recover from the shock and the concussion.

"He will recover right enough," said a well-known man on hearing of the accident. "Wood is the luckiest man living, and it will take more than this to kill him!"

This gentleman had excellent grounds for his remarks, since probably no living man has ever been so near death, time after time, and escaped in the most astonishing and lucky ways imaginable as Sir Evelyn Wood.

This good luck began whilst Sir Evelyn was but a midshipman on board H.M.S. Queen in 1853. He and some other middies were playing "follow my leader," on the rigging of this vessel, at a height of 147 feet above the deck. Wood became giddy and fell, but he managed to catch hold of the lighting conductor, and held on by it until he was rescued, though he stated afterwards he was so nervous as to feel sick, and at one moment almost let go his hold, which would have meant certain death on the deck below.

At another time, when his ship was at anchor, it is related the daring midshipman fell overboard one night whilst taking part in some games. An officer suddenly startled him with a shout. Wood let go of the yardarm where he was, but fortunately fell immediately between two lower deck ports which were open. He turned over twice in the air before he reached the water, and his shins were bleeding from coming in contact with the side of the ship, but he was able to swim to the boat stern. He regards this as one of the most miraculous escapes, since there was little distance between the ports, and had he fallen on either of them he must have been killed on the spot.

The future field marshal was present with the naval brigade at the attack on the Redan in the Crimean War, where his many and astonishing escapes from death were often the topic of conversation. He was passing some guns when a shell buzzing close over his head made him suddenly stop. As he lifted his head and looked round he saw the shell had killed two gunners just behind him.

In one of his journeys from the caves to the battery he was walking close to a sergeant when a round shot whizzed past, just missed the midshipman, and cut the sergeant into two pieces, as it struck him between the shoulders.

One night Wood went to sleep in a covered part of the battery, whilst it was freezing hard, and terribly cold. When he woke at daylight he found all his limbs and body were so frozen that he was unable to move. He was discovered by some comrades who carried him back to camp, and it was only after hot bottles had been placed at his feet, and all round him, renewed time after time, that he revived. Many of the soldiers in that part of the Crimea died from the intense cold of that same night.

Another striking escape of this lucky sailor and soldier (for Wood later was transferred from the naval brigade to a line regiment) took place on the 6th April, 1855, whilst a battle was raging. He was moving between two of the guns when a man suddenly called out to him, "Look out, sir!" The officer stood still, but had not time to move a foot before a 12-inch mortar shell fell within six feet of him. In ordinary circumstances he would have been blown to pieces in no time, but Wood's quick eye noticed that the shell had a longer fuse than usual, so he set off running as fast as possible, and just managed to get out of reach before the shell burst.

During the attack on the Redan, Wood was standing with his right hand on the shoulder of Chas. Green, a first-class seaman, and calling out the results of the shots, when a man handed round the rum for the gun's crew, and Green asked the officer to move his arm a moment, so that it might not be shaken, whilst he was drinking his grog. Wood took his hand off Green's shoulder, and the latter was holding the tin of grog to his mouth, when a shot coming from the left took off his head, the body actually falling upon Wood. Had he still kept his hand where it was previously it is ten to one that the shot would have killed him, too.

Some years afterwards, when Wood contracted a fever, he was taken to the regimental hospital, and Dr. Smith, who had been specially sent out by the Government, was sent by a captain to visit him. The specialist asked the medical officer in charge of Wood how he was doctoring the patient, and on being told said: "Yes, but that is for typhoid; he will die later from that; he just at present seems more likely to die from pneumonia." His parents were telegraphed for, and told to come at once. Wood heard the senior officer tell the doctor in charge not to worry him with more medicine, saying: "The boy must die, so let him die in peace." However, Wood unexpectedly began to recover, and with his usual luck was soon all right again.

He had a wonderful escape from death by an infuriated tiger when he was out hunting in India.

The Writers.

Marie Corelli has taken to writing moving picture plays.

M. Anatole France, at the age of seventy-two, has returned to Paris to resume his literary labors and is about to write in a new vein—stories for young persons.

Theodore Watts-Dunton, poet, essayist, author of many books and noted for his contributions to the Encyclopaedia Britannica, is working away almost as hard as ever, though he is now eighty-one years old. At present he is engaged on a volume of collected essays.

THE LIGHTHOUSE.

The Sailor's Best Friend As It Is To-day.

Is a lighthouse a "revolving," an "occultating," or a "flashing" light? It is a very simple matter to determine. With a "revolving" light the illuminating beam seems to increase gradually in strength, and then die away into darkness.

An "occultating" light shows a steady beam of light, interrupted suddenly at regular intervals by short periods of total darkness. With occultating lights the period of illumination is always longer than the intervals of darkness.

"Flashing" lights are of two sorts. They may show a swift flash of light at regular intervals in the darkness, or they may give a steady light with frequent intervals of darkness. What makes a light a "flashing" light is that there is more dark than light, while with an occultating light there is more light than dark.

The correct word for a lighthouse's period of darkness is "eclipse."

Lights differ greatly in their strength. The Gt. Orme's Head light, for instance, beside Llandudno, is visible twenty-four miles off in clear weather. The Flamborough Head light shows for twenty-one miles, the Cromer light for twenty-three. The Cape Wrath light, looking out on the stormy water round the north of Scotland, shows clear for twenty-seven miles, the longest distance at which any British light can be seen. The Eddystone can be seen for seventeen.

Some of the newer fashions in lighthouses are very curious.

The great Cape Wrath lighthouse, for instance, is to be rebuilt. At present it stands on a mighty cliff four hundred feet above the sea, and is frequently hidden in fog. The new light will be a quarter of a mile further out on a low-lying storm-swept reef. The waters there are so dangerous that the usual steam-tender is out of the question.

So a great shaft is to be dug of the cliff-head. From the foot of this shaft a covered way of reinforced concrete will run out along the top of the reef to the new light, the gaps being crossed by steel girders enclosed in concrete to keep them from being eaten away by the spray. A lift at the land end and a narrow-gauge line for supplies will make the new Cape Wrath lighthouse the only one in the world with a tube of its own.

A new idea in lighthouses that has caught on greatly of recent years might be called that of the "fake" lighthouse. Its technical name is the "apparent" light. It is used for economy's sake, where a light is wanted on a dangerous sunken reef, and where the building of a proper lighthouse would be a very risky and a very expensive job.

A small size lighthouse is fitted up instead. But the lantern has no light of its own. It only collects and reflect, by means of a mirror and lenses the powerful beams of a hidden light on shore.

A still newer idea that the Elder Brethren of Trinity House (the lighthouse authorities) are experimenting with is the use of wireless in time of fog. By the use of what is called the radiocompass bewildered ships can get their exact bearings by wireless messages from lighthouses.

Another new idea is submarine signalling. Sound signals, travel far better under water than over it. These submarine bells can be heard ten miles away in rough weather and twenty in smooth.

The bells are struck by powerful clappers being worked by electricity. As showing the spread of submarine signalling, it may be mentioned that eight years ago only one ship was provided with submarine ears, while now there are over nine hundred.

Never Suspected It Until Then.

Only Sixty-Nine Years Ago.

It was not until 1844 that a law was passed in England compelling every railway line to run one train each way daily, conveying passengers in covered carriages, at the rate of a penny (two cents) a mile. The ordinary speed was to be 12 miles an hour. In those days," writes J. C. Wright, "there were three classes. The third-class coach was little better than a cattle truck. It had no roof and no seats. Into this the passengers were packed and had to stand during the whole journey, or, if there was room, to squat on the floor, exposed to the rain or sun and bombarded by sparks emitted from the engine. Second-class passengers were kindly advised to provide themselves with gauze spectacles and to sit as far from the engine as possible. As for lighting the carriages at night, no such luxury was entertained."

Primitive Signalling.

Of primitive railway signalling a curious example is given by Dr. John Kerr in "Memories Grave and Gay." He wished to take train at Ordens, a siding on the Banff branch line, and was instructed by one who knew the methods of that line "to go to the siding and as the train approached set fire to a newspaper and the train would stop." On carrying out instructions the wind prevented the paper burning, but a stentorian shout brought the train to a standstill, and Dr. Kerr was taken aboard.

Bedlam.

The word Bedlam is a corruption of the word Bethlehem, which was the name of a religious house in London, converted into an asylum for lunatics in 1546.

It is believed by many to be the oldest asylum for lunatics in Europe, though there is one in Spain which is said to have been founded at an earlier date.

Child Almost Strangled

You never know what minute a child will develop a bad cold or be seized by croup. For this reason it takes a great burden off every mother's mind to have at hand Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

Mrs. E. W. Silver, South Milford, Annapolis County, N.S., writes:—"I have used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for my little boy with most satisfactory results. His throat would fill up with phlegm so bad that he could scarcely make a sound, and I thought he would surely strangle. He grew worse, and had frequent bad attacks, so I began using Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Scarcely half a bottle was used when the strangling ceased. This medicine had a wonderfully soothing effect, and when he had taken two bottles I could not tell that he had any throat trouble. We have also used Dr. Chase's Ointment with equally good results. It is a grand medicine for salt rheum."

There are imitations, but the genuine Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine bears the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author.

Industrial Items.

A single workman can cut by hand 6,000 watch glasses a day.

Labor organizations in the United States have an aggregate of 1,952,131 members.

Thirty-two per cent of the 7,000,000 working women in this country are under age.

In Christiania, Norway, there are nearly twice as many male factory workers as female, but the number of both sexes under the age of eighteen is equal, which shows that women and girls seek work early, but also leave it early.

What Could He Do?

The teacher was reading the history of England to some of the little pupils. When she came to the statement that Henry I. never laughed after the death of his son she noticed one of the little girls had raised her hand and seemed very desirous of attracting her attention.

"Well, Amy," said the teacher, "what is it?"

MABEL'S CHITCHAT

Don't Gossip, Girls; Maybe You'll Be Just as Interesting.

NEGLIGEE MADE OF FROCK.

Lots of Suggestions For Christmas Gifts to Be Picked Up by Prowling Around the Big Shops—Charming Present For the New Baby.

Dear Elsa—You're always amused at Margaret A.'s latest notions in faddom, so here's the dernier cri—don't gossip. This is the way she carries out her methods:

"Oh, Margaret," a gossiping friend will begin, "have you heard the last piece of news?"

"That tomorrow is going to be very cold?" interrupts Margaret, good naturedly. "Yes; isn't that delightful? I like cold weather."

Not yet put out of commission, the friend will go on, "But as I was going downtown I met Louise W., and she told me"—

"No, I don't like mission furniture," Margaret will interrupt. "I am devoted to mahogany, with yellow walls and enameled white trim. I have just finished reading a most interesting book on interior decoration, which has given me some lovely ideas. Would you like to see the book?" And with that Margaret will trot out the new volume, and gradually the conversation will drift into less personal channels.

I really think that Margaret carries her fad almost to the point of rudeness, but she certainly has the right idea. Gossip is so purposeless and often does a lot of harm. It's interesting surely; no one will deny that. Still if there were less aimless chatter the world would be a wiser and a better place.

It's awfully hard though, to stop gossiping suddenly unless one has a whole heap of self control and a strong impelling purpose, but I am going to try the effect of a little wholesome curtailment of "Do you know?" and "Have you heard?" in my talk.

Having unloaded all this wisdom upon you, let's turn to frivolous subjects. You ought to see the pretty negligee I made out of my old white crepe dress. I always liked the dress, it was so soft and fluffy looking and certainly wore beautifully. The material is still good, but I was afraid to appear in that costume again, for fear my friends would think I never had any new clothes.

So I washed and ironed the skirt. By the way, Elsa, remember in washing silk crepe to use only lukewarm water and not to rub soap on the material; also when you rinse it try to keep the water at the same temperature and be sure to get all the soap out of it. When it was clean the silk looked as good as new, so I cut a square measuring a yard on each side. From one corner I cut diagonally to the center, making the opening for the front. At the center I cut a circle big enough for the neck about four inches in diameter. I had a pretty embroidered batiste collar about three inches deep which I sewed around the neck to give a becoming finish. Then the edges were turned in and hemmed and val lace sewed all the way around the negligee.

The sleeves were formed by simply stitching the edges of the material together and turning up the points, which fall on the outside of the arm, and finishing with pink satin ribbon bows. I put a bow of the same color at the neck. The first time I wore it at the matinee Dick pronounced it "some dud."

Many of my ideas for Christmas gifts I am getting these autumn days from prowls about the big shops. Yesterday I saw the prettiest strap for a baby's go-cart—just the thing for Mary's new son, I mentally ejaculated.

The strap was quite expensive, and after examining it closely I went home to try to reproduce it. I bought a yard of elastic an inch and a half wide that comes with the blue satin ribbon shirred on. On both ends I put strap fasteners, which I purchased in a hardware store. I then made three little rosettes of blue ribbon, and in each of these I put the smallest pink rose I could buy. From each of the rosettes I hung narrow blue ribbon about half a yard long, and on the ends I sewed a small celluloid doll, an ivory ring and a celluloid dog.

The little strap was a beauty, as good looking as the expensive one in the shop. It is now reposing packed and ready for shipment in my "Christmas present chest."

Well, I've had a look at the militant suffragette from England, Mrs. Pankhurst, and really, dear, she is a very inoffensive looking "bad" lady—not a suggestion of the bomb throwing species about her. Still when one gets a good glance into her eyes they fairly blaze forth determination. It's very hard for an American to understand the English way of conducting the suffrage struggle. But perhaps this will show the type of man they have over there:

I was presented to an Englishman recently, and the conversation turned to suffrage and the death of Emily Post, the first martyr to the cause.

I remarked upon the tragic manner of her passing away.

"Yes," said the Englishman sympathetically, "she destroyed a race horse, God's noblest work."

Perfect brute of a man, wasn't he.

Devotedly yours, MABEL.

WITH REAL "PROPS."

When the Genuine Article Is Used Behind the Footlights.

On the eve of the production of "Sealed Orders" at Drury Lane—by one of the coincidences that happen so oddly for managers — a genuine George Morland was discovered among the properties of the theatre.

The painting, which is, of course, "worth a considerable sum," will be exhibited at every performance of the drama, making its appearance in the scene representing Christie's famous auction-room. This is by no means the first time that genuine art-treasures have figured upon the stage, though up to now, none of them have had newspaper paragraphs all to themselves.

In "The Last of the Dandies," at His Majesty's, the scene representing Gore House, the residence of Lady Blessington, was staged with an absolute disregard of expense as regards real bronzes, real bric-a-brac, real pictures, and real antique furniture. Among the silent performers was a genuine Aubusson carpet, costing $1,000. Indeed, the carpet in a west-end production is not a thing to be looked down upon at all, and the artistic conscience of the modern manager bids him spare no expense in the acquisition of real "properties." When the Duchess of Strood received the gay Lord Quex (in the play so entitled) in her boudoir, the bottle of wine which the pair cracked was brought forth from an Italian cabinet (worth a large sum), for which the management had hunted all over London.

The late Sir Henry Irving, as Charles I., wore a pair of silver spurs which were genuinely "of the period," and would have been prized by collectors. These, together with the antique lace and the genuine medallion worn by the actor-knight, represented quite a considerable sum of money. Another of the real properties which figured in the same production was an ancient Jacobean chest. The same chest afterwards played a thinking part in Mr. H. B. Irving's production of "Markheim," at the Lyric Theatre.

The interior of the antique-dealer's shop was well stocked with genuine wares. Some good oil paintings and a few sixteenth century bronzes were among the articles displayed, and a very valuable mounted mirror was toyed with by Markheim, just before the murder of the dealer. The crime was committed with a dagger dating from the Borgias, with which—thrilling thought! — some genuine tragedies may have been consummated.

On a slightly different plane was the feeling for realism which led a manager, touring Sir J. M. Barrie's piece, "The Little Minister," to travel" (technical term) a real farmhouse dresser and a concealed bed—both genuine articles from Kirriemuir, famous alike as the birthplace of Sir James and the original "Thrums."

There was a curious incident, some years ago, in connection with a piece produced at a west end theatre, concerning an easel.

The business of the scene required the usual appurtenances of an artist's studio. One of the players had a relative who was a painter, and he was deputed to borrow an easel. This he did without going through the trying formality of asking leave — his artistic kinsman being out when he called on his quest, but he was careful to select the oldest and least valuable looking easel in the place. Matters were duly explained afterwards; but the painter looked more perturbed than the circumstances seemed to warrant.

"Well, mind you take care of that easel," he remarked, on parting, "it belonged to Sir Joshua Reynolds, and I wouldn't lose it for a thousand pounds."

Now that a man has succeeded in flying upside down and women have decided to add X ray shoes to their attire, this jaded world will be hard put to it for a new thrill in the way of sensations.

Recently collected statistics show that the proportion of bachelors to married men is steadily increasing in England. That's probably because more American girls are marrying at home nowadays.

THE REBELLIOUS SHADOW

By Charles Leonard Moore

(Copyright, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

PROFESSOR AKRON was easily the most conspicuous though the most retiring member of the faculty of the L—— University. Because of his prodigious learning, and the repute it brought the university, he was released from any but voluntary duties in lecturing and instruction. For the most part he buried himself in his large, gloomy house, amid his fossils and specimens, busied with writing papers on paleontology and monographs on geology. But occasionally, of course, he did go out, and his appearance was such as to engage the attention and fix the remembrance forever.

He was tall, very thin and always clothed in a long, closely buttoned frock coat. If the weather afforded any excuse whatever he wore a shawl around his shoulders, after a fashion which had gone out as thoroughly as his mastodons. His stock of yellow hair stood up or projected in writhing wisps in every direction like Medusa's serpents. He had bushy eyebrows, great goggy eyes, long thin nose, perked up lips and a chin which retreated into his high collar until it was not. Such was the picture which existed in the public mind of this learned and excellent man.

One night the Professor sat in his study. It was a large, lofty room with the usual furniture of desks, tables and bookcases, but it was given a grim and ghostly air by the skeletons and relics of bygone ages which decorated the walls or hung suspended from the ceiling. The restored anatomy of Eohippus was planked above one bookcase. Over the fireplace gaped the jaws of a Dinosaur, and the bones of a Mastodon made a sort of a cave in one corner. The large table desk before which the Professor was seated was lighted by a powerful electric bulb in a ground glass globe. There was no other illumination in the room.

As he bent over his task, which was the sorting of some fossil specimens recently unearthed in Nevada, [illegible] behind him and then an impatient voice exclaimed:—"I am sick and tired of this!"

The Professor turned quickly around, for he had supposed himself alone. And alone he seemed to be. No living being was visible in the room. But on the wall, back of him, he saw his shadow, greatly magnified, and apparently in a state of independent motion. Its arms were stretched out as though in weariness, and its lips were trembling as if they had just spoken.

"Who are you and what are you tired of?" he cried, starting up. The shadow preserved its former outline, though it should have altered with its owner's posture.

"I am your Shadow," its voice replied, "and I am tired of you and of this existence. This is a very dog's life for a Shadow. I don't even get the red blood of sunshine in my veins once a week. I am shut up in this musty old house, where, in the daytime, I eke out a pale anaemic existence, and where at night I am created solely by the electric light. No romantic moonlight projection for me or the soft suffusion of fire or candles. Don't you know that the electric light is bad for the morals of a shadow?"

"No, I didn't," said the Professor, rather astonished, but taking the matter calmly. "Have you anything else to complain of?"

"I have nothing but complaints," answered the shadow. "It has been thus always. You were a puny, peaked boy, shut up over books, while your fellows were playing in the sun, and I had to be tied to you. Then came your college days and your professorship, with your eternal mousing over old bones and skeletons. Do you suppose I care anything for skeletons? They remind me too much of my own state. A shadow likes to be gay. A shadow likes to see life. A shadow likes to be admired by the ladies. What chance have I? I think I am as well turned out a shadow as the most, but I repeat, what chance have I to show it? I don't even get the society of my own mates and equals.

"I warn you that I am tired of the whole thing. I am going to break away from you occasionally—have some time off. You can do very well without me, for you live so much alone that nobody will know whether you have a shadow or not. You don't deserve to be well set up with such a property, anyhow."

With this the Shadow gave a convulsive twist and seemed to wrench itself from its juncture with the Professor's feet.

The Shadow Gets Into Trouble.

The latter looked about him—the Shadow had certainly disappeared. Place himself anyway he would against the light, nothing defined itself from the obstruction. Well, it did not much matter. It would not affect his great study of the possible fossils of the Arctic period. He would not go out while his black familiar was away. His housekeeper was shortsighted and for the other servants he could keep in the twilight while they were about. The Shadow did not threaten entire separation.

Indeed, he soon found that by some law of its being it was required to be on duty for some part of each day. If he lost it in the morning it reappeared before dinner. If it left at night he found it by his side on rising. It spoke no more about its wrongs and gave no account of its doings.

But accounts soon began to come in from outside to trouble his tranquillity. The Professor's Shadow, like the Professor's self, was too distinctive to fail of recognition if seen. Every man, woman and child in L—— would know it. A few mornings after its first truancy a confrère of the Professor met him as he was hurrying through the college yard.

"Ha, you old slyboots, you gay dog!" he said, giving Akron a dig in the ribs.

"What do you mean?" said the latter, looking at his friend, innocently.

"That's right. Brazen it out. I don't suppose you ever heard of Aeolus Hall?"

This was a celebrated dance house in the vicinity of the university, forbidden to the students, but nevertheless frequented by the light hearted and frivolous among them.

"Surely," said the Professor, "I have heard of it."

"Yes, and have been in it," said the other.

"Not to my knowledge," protested Akron.

"Well," said his friend, "I saw you coming down the steps from it last evening. You disappeared around the corner before I could catch up with you. That is, I saw your shadow, your unmistakable shadow; and I suppose you were not far off."

What could the good man say?

But worse was to come. There was a controversy raging in the University over some recent finds of supposed valuable Egyptian relics, and the Professor, who was only an archaeologist, by the way, had taken sides and had written a bitter pamphlet attacking the authenticity of the remains. A meeting of the supporters of the discovery was to take place one evening, and the Professor was naturally curious about it, but he dismissed the matter from his mind, until the next morning one of his opponents called on him, wearing a grave face. He began by saying that he knew the Professor was an enemy, but he had supposed he was an honorable one.

"Bless my soul," said the Professor, "and why not?"

"After your conduct last evening you can hardly expect people to accept an eavesdropper and a spy as an honorable gentleman."

"Eavesdropper? Spy?" shouted the Professor. "Explain yourself!"

"You need no explanation, sir, but to satisfy you we know, I will tell you. We were in the midst of a most secret discussion last evening, when one of our party chanced to look up and saw your shadow outlined on the wall at the other end of the room. We all saw it; there could be no mistake—there was your tumbled hair, your prying nose, your no chin, your muffling shawl. We made for you—the body, but you glided out of the door and got away. And lucky for you, you did."

Again, what hope to explain?

But evidences of the divorce between the reality and the shade, between the Professor and his dark familiar, soon became too abundant to be denied.

Kicked It Downstairs.

The Shadow was seen in places where the Professor could not possibly have been, and in many instances his alibi was clearly proved. This did not altogether release him from opprobrium. It was said that he had revived the Black Art and, while pretending indifference and innocence, sent his shadow out into the world to pry into other people's affairs and to witness doings he himself refrained from. One morning the Athletic Instructor in Physical Culture bounced into the Professor's study, and exclaimed excitedly:—

"Well, sir, I kicked that confounded shadow of yours downstairs last evening."

"Bless my soul!" said the Professor, "did you?"

"Yes," said the other, "I was calling on a young lady and we were having an animated discussion on female suffrage when she happened to turn and saw your shadow peering through the doorway—half in and half out. She screamed and I had to support her. And do you know what the infernal thing did? It glided around the wall, across the floor up to her and kissed her. I grabbed it by the collar, as well as I could, and kicked it downstairs, as well as I could. I'd thank you to keep it home in the future. There it is on the floor behind you now," and with that the young fellow jumped and trampled on the dark figure on the carpet.

"But what is the good of doing that?" remonstrated the Professor.

"Well," said the other, "if you had such a thing come between you and a girl when you were talking female suffrage, you would manhandle it too, if you could."

The Shadow was a strenuous and indefatigable worker in its hours of liberty. Like Gaine's ghost, it could not be laid. It began to be seen not only in the town of L——, but at far distant points. Apparently it had the power of projecting itself through space with the greatest economy of time, though occasionally it appeared on railroad trains and steamships, as though it enjoyed the immunity from paying fare. It was reported as having been seen on the pavement of the Pantheon at Rome, under the eye of the great dome. It had marched down the long galleries of the Louvre, scaring women and children into a panic. Nay, a statement was current that at a close session of the House of Commons it had appeared in the aisle, had examined the mace and the Speaker's wig, and then had flitted about the benches, poking its impertinent nose over the members' shoulders. Its tastes were omnivorous, but in the main its proclivities were low. Night after night it was said to have haunted the Mabelle and other questionable resorts in Paris, mingling with the dancers and not wanting to leave until the lights were turned out.

The climax came when the militia companies of L—— decided to give a street drill and parade. They turned out with a full military band and a cavalcade of policemen to head the line. It was muddy, a bright June sun blazing down on the asphalted street, and of course what shadows were made were gathered under the feet of the troops and horses. Yet there, heading the whole array, floating on the white avenue, and keeping step and time to the music, was the Professor's Shadow at its most definite and largest outline—snaky hair, sharp nose, muffling shawl and all. The horses were the first to notice the strange object. They began to snort and rear and back, and as the Shadow turned toward them as if to see what was the matter they broke and bolted to the rear, scattering the band right and left and charging down on the thin lines of the militia. At this unexpected onset the soldiers, too, turned, and the whole procession fled down the street, pursued by that black, gesturing phantom.

This was too much. The Mayor protested to the Provost and the two, together with some other members of the faculty, called on the Professor and demanded that he curb his shadow, and compel it to ways of peace and pleasantness. He heard them out and then said, sadly, but firmly:—

"There are some things, gentlemen, beyond a man's control. He has less to do with the making of his shadow than with any other of his corporeal or mental attributes. It comes into existence without any volition of his. It increases or diminishes as the sun or any artificial light decays. It dies when he sleeps. I know not how to meet your views."

"Perhaps," said a German member of the faculty, who was his bitterest enemy, "if der Herr Professor should decease, his shadow would haf no legal or oder standing."

"Thanks for your hint, sir," said the Professor. "You have given me an idea. Let me have a day or two and perhaps I can abate this nuisance."

Having made some preparation, the Professor sat that evening in his brilliantly lighted study, waiting the return of the truant Shadow. Late, very late, it came in, slowly stealing through the crevice under the doorway, and moving softly though unsteadily about the floor, until it found the Professor's feet and attached itself.

"Are you there, Shadow?" inquired the Professor.

"Yesh," answered the thing, thickly.

"Where have you been?"

"Been out with the boys—shelebrating!"

The Professor switched off the electric light and the room was in darkness.

"What are you doing?" came the voice, alarmed out of intoxication.

"Doing?" answered the Professor, "I am obliterating you. You cannot exist without light, and light you shall not have. The door is locked, the windows are shuttered and double curtained. Not a ray of light shall enter here until I will it. I have made arrangements to have my meals served through a hole in yonder dark closet. The chimney will serve for ventilation. You are immured, imprisoned, buried until you agree to stop your accursed wanderings and be a true and loyal Shadow again."

"Oh, if I could only get at you," said the Shadow, with a sound as of gnashing of teeth.

How It All Ended.

"You can't," coolly replied the Professor. "You are less than a shadow, you are nothing. You do not exist. Nor shall you until you promise to reform. I am prepared to spend the rest of my life in the dark room, rather than be made a martyr and a ridiculous zany by my own shadow."

"But I can't break off all at once," pleaded the annihilated thinness.

"You must," answered the Professor. "Listen! For your sake I am willing to change my habits. I will go out into the streets. I will drive in automobiles. I will attend those atrocious football games. I will even go to the commencement ball, a thing I have not done for thirty years. You shall have all the rights and advantages that a well regulated shadow is entitled to. But you must cease your tricks. You must never again detach yourself from my person, or do anything to make me conspicuous or foolish. If you once break these terms I will give you no other chance, but will shut myself and you up forever. It is life or death for you! Which do you choose?"

There was a long pause and a writhing sound as though the Shadow was wrestling with itself. Finally he said, sullkily:—

"You don't give a fellow a chance. Of course, I have got to agree. Life is sweet to me as to [illegible]. But I must say your programme is mighty tame for a chap who has had a taste of real living."

And so the compact was sealed and the Rebellious Shadow ended its travels.

Somebody (with confidence)—"I said everybody says so."

Everybody—"Well, I'm Everybody."

Somebody—"Oh, indeed; thank you. I'm so glad, because now that you have seen me you can say I am Somebody."

Everybody—"But I don't."

Somebody (puzzled)—"Then why should I be informed that everybody says I'm Somebody?"

Everybody—"Don't ask me."

Somebody (more puzzled)—"If I don't ask Everybody how can I know what everybody says?"

Everybody—"Well, I've told you once that everybody doesn't say you are Somebody and"——

Somebody (impulsively)—"But everybody does say so and"——

(Enter Nobody.)

Nobody—"Ho, here; what's the disputing about?"

Everybody—"What business is it of yours?"

Nobody (smiling)—"It's yours, isn't it?"

Everybody—"Yes, it is."

Nobody—"Then if it's yours, it's mine. Don't you know the proverb?"

Everybody—"Who are you?"

Nobody—"I know you, all right."

Somebody (eagerly)—"Don't you know me, too? Don't you know I'm Somebody?"

Nobody—"Sure, I do."

Somebody—"Please tell everybody then."

Nobody—"I have already."

Everybody—"What?"

Nobody (to Everybody)—"I've told you that this was Somebody."

Somebody (to Everybody)—"There, I told you so."

Nobody—"And, what is more, Everybody knows I know you are Somebody."

Somebody (to Everybody)—"Good, good! Now will you believe?"

Everybody (to Nobody)—"Who are you?"

Nobody—"I'm Nobody."

Somebody throws a fit; Everybody laughs and Nobody is sorry.

Passed His Chance.

An actor without funds managed in some way to get a second-class ticket on a line of steamers running between Seattle and San Francisco.

The voyage between these two points consumed the better part of three days and in view of the fact that his finances were at low ebb, he figured it out this way: The first day out he slept all day to keep from eating, and remained up all night to keep from sleeping. The second day he took physical culture exercises.

On the third day he could stand the strain no longer and he went down to the dining room and ordered the best meal the boat could afford. While tucking it under his belt he conjured up, in his mind's eye a picture of a cell in the bastile in San Francisco.

After finishing his meal he said to the waiter: "How much do I owe you?"

"Nothing," replied the waiter, "your meals are included in your ticket!"

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

"CROWNED"

They had celebrated together the advent of each New Year since the first year of their acquaintance. That meant five celebrations. And each had ended with a declaration from him which she parried, and a question from him to which she would not give a definite answer.

That night they sat in the glittering restaurant, part of the noisy, hilarious crowd, and yet by their sincerity and simplicity differentiated from that crowd. The extravagance of such surroundings was not ordinary for either of them, and they chose New Year's Eve for their appearance in the setting because that was a time when the rest of the world seemed better worth looking at.

In [illegible] satisfaction, the satisfaction of work well done and reward about to be attained. To-night she intended to listen to his plea, and to explain why she had kept him waiting these long years. He was splendid, she thought, looking at him. And what fidelity he had shown in this world of multitudinous appeals! The thought of that happiness for them which she would no longer deny—that happiness so near—irradiated her, brought tears to her eyes and smiles to her lips, gladdened her so that revelling in her own joy, she failed to see beneath the surface of his mood.

With the rest of the crowd they ate, drank, and laughed, adding their little clamour to the din, now submerged, now rising, now drowned again, by the tumult of the orchestra. And the orchestra sang of love. One after another of the love arias from the operas were played with all the feeling that can be drawn from stringed instruments of many tones, and with each aria her heart welled afresh. With sudden recklessness she looked straight into his eyes. If ever eyes spoke to eye, hers said, "tell me." And if eyes ever refused to answer, his refused. It was as if her heart staggered.

A bell struck, and at the sound the great noisy throng hushed suddenly, voluntarily, expectantly. A distant door opened and a silken, silvery page led in a rosy child, typifying the New Year. A thousand chimes rang out. The diners sprang to their feet, and the scene in the restaurant became pandemonium. She was alone silent with a fixed smile. As her escort joined those about them in the cry of Happy New Year! she only smiled and smiled. Had she emitted a single sound it would have been a cry.

The first confusion over, they settled in their chairs again. Her eyes were fixed upon her plate. Before raising them she must be sure that they were veiled. Last year he had seized this moment to speak to her. This year — could she live through this year?

He was relating a story, doubtless amusing. With an effort she gave him attention. Something was wrong. He no longer cared. Could she keep him from knowing that she did, that after all she did? He would not speak. Would the wretched evening ever end? Was she the same woman who had trembled in surging happiness at that table an hour ago?

Rather abruptly he leaned back, as if he, too, wearied of the farce they played. "Aren't you bored with this, Alice? It only lasts—so long. Let's go."

She nodded and rose. He held her wrap, and as she slipped into its loose, warm folds, his fingers touched her shoulder. She could feel the warm blood rise in that touch, and miserably conscious, she fastened her wrap without a glance in his direction. He picked up her white gloves and handed them to her. She observed, with a dull surprise, that his hand was a bit unsteady. In a flash, she recollected—she was almost positive of it—that the fingers touching her shoulder had trembled. She looked up at him swiftly, caught him off his guard, and read the bitterness in his eyes.

Threading her way before him, through lines of colourful sparkling tables, the distance to the door seemed interminably long. She must verify that glimpse into his soul. If she had seen aright, then he still cared. It was only indifference that proved the death of love.

As the cold air of the street smote them they breathed deeply of its freshness. "Let's walk," he said.

Again she only nodded. "Now," she thought, "now, perhaps he will speak." But they walked on in silence, a silence almost unbearable to both of them. It was after they had travelled many blocks, passed out of the district of garish merrymaking, were approaching the threshold at which they must part, that she took her fate in her hands.

"To-night," she said, endeavouring to speak casually, lightly, "we have omitted a part of our ancient and honourable formula."

"Since it is only a formula," he said, "it is better omitted. The times are against formalism."

"But the occasion is not complete without it," she persisted, with a soft laugh, the while her eyes were blank with pain.

"It is not only complete, but finished," he said.

They walked on. She was praying for strength to carry her through the little distance remaining, until—until the end. So he thought she had trifled with him! He would not understand. A wild determination came to her. He should understand! As though they had both been speaking frankly, she said, "I will answer your words of last year, and the year before and the years before. I could not give myself to you while I was a failure. I should have been less worth winning. I have succeeded now. The commission has come to me to make the mural paintings for the New Centre. It will be in the papers to-morrow. You are the only one who knows."

"Then you are worth winning now?" he asked, calmly.

"Now," she said to herself, "my heart will surely break."

"Now," she said to herself, "my heart is surely broken. It does not matter what I say now." To him she said in a voice like death, "I understand. It is too late."

"I am bitter against you," he said. "I am sorry. It is hard for a man to forgive the woman who does not want him, the woman who prefers success to love."

"But I am not that woman," she said, throwing what was left of her pride to the four winds.

He asked scarcely above his breath: "Do you mean—that you care—for love—my love?"

And now she would not answer. They had reached the threshold of their parting. They passed over it, and into the dimly-lighted, deserted hall.

He gathered her into his arms.

"I want success," she whispered, "only—to crown my love."

Derbyshire's Lead Mines

Derbyshire's disused lead mines have a varied history. In the palmy days of the lead mining any man might search for veins of ore wherever he pleased, save in house, church or garden, regardless of any damage done to crops or surface. Naturally, this practice was found in time to require some check, and searchers were made liable for damage unless they got enough lead to pay a dish of ore to the King or his lessee. The chance, however, was commonly still considered good enough, since finders were awarded a "meer" measure of ground, provided that the vein was worked. If it was left unworked for a specified time, anybody else might claim the "privilege." Trouble was continually arising out of these customs.

Siamese King as Matchmaker

When a Siamese girl attains the age of thirty-five without marrying she is labelled and placed in a privileged class under the special care of the King, who binds himself to find a husband for her. His method is delightfully simple. A prisoner in any one of the Siamese jails may gain his pardon and release by marrying one of the mature maidens. Whether he is already married or not is of no great consequence, for in Siam a man is not restricted to one wife.

WEAKNESS AND PALPITATION OF THE HEART.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitates and throbs, skips beats, and sometimes seems to almost stop, it causes great anxiety and alarm.

Many people become weak, worn and miserable, and are unable to attend to either social, business or household duties.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are a specific for all weakness and heart disorders, and are recommended by us with the greatest of confidence that they will do what we claim for them.

Mrs. George Burridge, Coboconk, Ont., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I have been troubled with weakness and palpitation of the heart. I tried many remedies but got none to answer my case like your pills did. I can recommend them highly to all with heart or nerve trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited Toronto, Ont.

RAILROAD MAN HAD TO LAY OFF

Until He Took GIN PILLS

Buffalo, N. Y.

"I have been a Pullman conductor on the C. P. R. and Michigan Central for the last three years.

About four years ago, I was laid up with intense pain in the groin, a very sore back, and suffered most severely when I tried to urinate.

I treated with my family physician for two months for Gravel in The Bladder but did not receive any benefit. About that time, I met another railroad man who had been similarly affected and who had been cured by GIN PILLS, after having been given up by a prominent physicians who treated him for Diabetes. He is now running on the road and is perfectly cured. He strongly advised me to try GIN PILLS which I did—with the results that the pains left me entirely."

WEDGWOOD'S MASTERPIECE.

It Is His Reproduction of the Famous Portland Vase.

Sir William Hamilton was an authority on Roman and Grecian antiquities. His fine collection of them and his great book on the subject prove that assertion. He wrote to Wedgwood about that much admired work of ancient art (the Barberini vase) in these terms: "Except the Apollo Belvedere, the Niobes and two or three others of the first class marbles, I do not believe that there are any monuments of antiquity existing that were executed by so great an artist." This is about the highest commendation that could be bestowed, and when we consider that such a work, so soaringly eminent, was successfully imitated by one of our own artist potters it is surely a ground for national gratification.

The original vase came into the possession of the noble Italian family of Barberini, hence its name. It was acquired by Byres, the antiquary, and then by Sir William Hamilton, who brought it to England in the year 1784. He, in turn, sold it to the Duchess of Portland. Her descendant, the fourth duke, deposited it in the British museum, owing to which fact it is best known to Englishmen as the Portland vase. It was lent by the duke to Wedgwood to make his copy from. The body of it had been much disputed, but he found that it was glass. He was not a glassblower, but had invented his wonderful jasperware by that time and decided his copy should be made of that substance. It was a tremendous task and took some three years in the modeling by Hackwood and others. The cost was never recouped by the subscriptions.

It justly esteemed to have been Wedgwood's masterpiece. It has been reproduced by his successors and by other potters, but, of course, they have not the same market value as those made by the great Josiah himself.—W. Turner in Westminster Review.

Curious Fish Spearing.

In spite of the march of civilization there remains much that is still primitive in Sicily, and a curious sight at Palermo is to see the fishermen spearing fish in the harbor by the aid of glass bottomed buckets, says the Wide World Magazine. There are many corners of the world where fish are speared, but perhaps the use of the glass bottomed bucket in this connection is to be seen only at Palermo. The fishermen lean far over the side of their boats and hold the bucket on the water with one hand, poking their heads into it as if engaged in the Halloween game of ducking for apples. They hold a spear poised in the free hand and thus await the arrival of their victims, who are sighted through the glass bottom of the bucket, which acts as a kind of telescope.

Peps
What are they?
Peps is the name bestowed upon a new scientific preparation put up into tabloid or pastille form, which provides an entirely new and effective treatment for coughs, colds and lung and throat troubles.
Did it never occur to you as peculiar that when you have a cough or a cold, or any chest trouble, you should apply medicine—not to your lungs, but to your stomach?
Look at it the other way round. Suppose you suffered from some stomach complaint—indigestion or ulceration. How strange you would think it if you were asked to take a medicine which had to be breathed in, and which went—not to your stomach, but to your lungs and breathing passages?
Peps—this newest remedy for coughs, colds, and lung troubles—go to the lungs and breathing-tubes, direct. Peps are really pine fumes, and certain highly beneficial medicinal extracts specially prepared by a new scientific process and then condensed into tabloid form. It is like making a breathable gas solid!
You put a "Pep" on your tongue and let it dissolve. As it does so, the healing essences it contains turn into vapor, and you BREATHE them direct to your lungs and air passages!
Just as the out-door treatment for consumption—the "breathing" treatment—is now admitted to be the only rational treatment, so the "Peps" treatment for colds and lung troubles is the only rational home treatment.
Peps cure catarrh, coughs, bronchitis, sore throat, tightness or aching across the chest, difficulty in breathing, night cough, hoarseness, asthma, laryngitis, smoker's throat, etc. Best for children, because free from opium, morphine, or any poison.
All druggists and stores sell Peps at 50c. a box or 3 for $1.25.
FREE TRIAL
Cut out this article, write across it the name of this paper, and mail it to Peps Co., Toronto, or 52 Princess Street, Winnipeg, enclosing 1 cent stamp to pay for return postage. A free trial packet of Peps will be mailed you by return. If you have a friend suffering from a cough, cold, or any throat or lung trouble, hand this on.

HOW TO MAKE YOUR HAIR BEAUTIFUL

Ten Minutes' Home Treatment Works Wonders, Stops Falling Hair, Itching Scalp and Dandruff and Makes the Hair Soft, Brilliant, Lustrous and Fluffy.

Better than all the so-called "hair tonics" in the world is a simple old fashioned home recipe consisting of plain Bay Rum, Lavona (de composee), and little Menthol Crystals. These three mixed at home in a few minutes, work wonders with any scalp. Try it just one night and see. (Get from your druggist 2 oz. Lavona, 6 oz. Bay Rum, and ½ drachm Menthol Crystals. Dissolve the Crystals in the Bay Rum and pour in an 8 oz. bottle. Then add the Lavona, shake well and let it stand for an hour before using. Apply it by putting a little of the mixture on a soft cloth. Draw this cloth slowly through the hair, taking just one small strand at a time. This cleanses the hair and scalp of dirt, dust and excessive oil and makes the hair delightfully soft, lustrous and fluffy. To stop the hair from falling and to make it grow again rub the lotion briskly into the scalp with the finger tips or a medium stiff brush. Apply night and morning. A few days' use and you cannot find a single loose or straggling hair. They will be locked on your scalp as tight as a vise. Dandruff will disappear and itching cease. In ten days you will find fine downy new hairs sprouting up all over your scalp and this new hair will grow with wonderful rapidity.

Any druggist can sell you the above. The prescription is very inexpensive and we know of nothing so effective and certain in its result.

TO CLEAR A CASE

"When did your husband begin treating you cruelly?" asked the lawyer.

"It was about a year ago," replied the pretty petitioner.

"What happened?"

"We were on our way to New York."

"Yes. Did he strike you?"

"No. I asked him to get a drawing room so that I would not have to dress in my berth."

"And he refused?"

"Yes. He said his mother had never occupied a drawing room in a sleeping car and he didn't consider me any better than his mother."

"Was that the only time he ever was cruel to you?"

"No. After I had bought my fall clothes last year, they were so fine that I couldn't ride in a public conveyance without raising them, and when I explained to him that he would have to buy an auto to save my clothes, he told me to go ahead and ruin the clothes and get the kind that could be worn in street cars next time."

"It will be useless to go on with this case," the judge interposed. "There is no doubt that the man is absolutely heartless."

In the Football Game.

Reporter at Finish of Match — Any injured in the game today?

Football Captain—No, the boys took matters easy. You see they're reserving themselves for the cup-tie next Saturday. Robinson got his nose broken, Smith lost an ear, Jones had a few teeth knocked out, Duncan dislocated his jaw, and Peters broke four fingers, but no one was really hurt!

Makes Hairs Disappear Almost Like Magic

(Toilet Tips)

Advocates of the electric needle for removing stubborn hairy growths now concede that a simple paste made with powdered delatone and water is fully as efficacious and is devoid of pain, while the cost is trifling. The delatone paste is left on the hairy surface about two minutes and when it is rubbed off all traces of hair vanish. Washing leaves the skin soft, smooth and spotless. Be careful to see that it is delatone you get or you may be disappointed with the result.

REPORT READY SOON.

Dr. Robertson's Technical School Document Being Printed.

OTTAWA, Jan. 20.—Dr. J. W. Robertson, as chairman of the Royal Commission on Industrial Training and Technical Education, has now completed his work. The voluminous report is being published by the Labor Department and will be in the hands of the public in a few days.

Dr. Robertson has received numerous invitations to address Boards of Trade and Canadian Clubs throughout the country. He has accepted some of the invitations and will outline the nature of the recent world-wide movement for the training of the productive, constructive and conserving workers of the foremost countries.

Dr. Robertson asserts that Canada, from the alertness, intelligence, energy, ambition and wealth of its people, can do more in the next ten years than any other country has done. She has greater need and wider opportunity. She can reap more benefit than any other has won.

WORKMEN ARE KILLED.

Six Meet Death In Explosion at C.N.R. Construction Camp.

OTTAWA, Jan. 20.—Six men were killed and three others seriously injured in a dynamite explosion late on Saturday on the C.N.R. construction work at Ross' Point, Que., opposite Arnprior. The name of the dead so far as known are:

Joseph Elliott, aged 22, single, Bristol Mines.

Stephen J. Trudeau, aged 32, with a wife and three children, at Bristol Mines.

Duncan Herron, aged 55, married, but leaving no children, of Bristol Mines.

The other three were foreigners.

The accident occurred on the Pembroke-Ottawa branch of the C.N.R. The men were engaged by Brennan & Grant, contractors, in excavating rock for a bridge pier, and had exploded one blast successfully. Another had been put in, but a premature explosion caught the gang before they had time to reach safety. Four of the men were killed outright and two died later. There were ten men in the gang, and the one who escaped is a Polish laborer, unable to give anything but the barest details.

Caught In Quicksands?

PLYMOUTH, Jan. 20.—"The submarine 'A 7' must be found" was the order issued yesterday at the office of the naval commander-in-chief, who is determined that the search for the ill-fated vessel, which has been missing since Friday, when she disappeared with her crew during manoeuvres here, shall not be given up.

From early morning 12 destroyers, working in pairs, have steamed slowly up and down, sweeping with cables the sandy bottom of Whitesand Bay, but thus far without result. The quest is to be continued throughout the week if necessary, but the impression is growing that the "A 7" may already have been swallowed up by the quicksands which prevail in the vicinity.

Relief Fund Goes Back.

HOUGHTON, Mich., Jan. 20.—Because of the refusal of members of the Western Federation of Miners to accept the $30,000 collected from the citizens of the copper country for the relief of families who suffered by the Italian Hall disaster, on Christmas Eve, the money may be returned to the donors.

The relief committee will try to distribute the money this week, although union men declare they are able to take care of the sufferers without assistance.

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness" writes Mr. Wm. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble wasted nerve cells.

GEN. PICQUART IS DEAD.

French Officer Saved Dreyfus by Discovery of Papers.

AMIENS, France, Jan. 20. — The death occurred here yesterday of Gen. Marie-Georges Picquart, commander of the second French army corps, who was, except for the prisoner himself, the most prominent figure in the Dreyfus case. He was in his 60th year.

Gen. Picquart, regarded as one of the most brilliant officers of the French army, rose to high rank at a very early age. He was an Alsatian by birth and an extremely good linguist, and this aided his appointment to the general staff. It was while serving there that Picquart discovered a number of forgeries which had brought about the condemnation of Dreyfus to the horrors of Devil's Island. Picquart thereafter became one of the most enthusiastic appellants for a revision of the judgment on Dreyfus, and his zeal led to his arrest and imprisonment on various charges, which were, however, dismissed for want of evidence.

Second Execution For Murder.

OSSINING, N.Y., Jan. 20.—Frank Meuhlfeld, alias "the Kid," went smilingly to his death in the electric chair at Sing Sing Prison yesterday. The second man to die in the chair for the murder of Patrick Burns in New York City two years ago. "Big Bill' Lindley, Meuhlfeld's pal, was executed on May 5 last.

Both Lindley and Meuhlfeld left statements absolving Ralph Furcolo of any connection with the crime. Furcolo is serving a 20-year sentence.

Burns was robbed and shot down in his saloon in the Bronx early on the morning of Feb. 11, 1913.

Another Typhus Ship.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Another typhus ship, the third within two weeks, was detained at quarantine yesterday by Dr. Joseph J. O'Connell, health officer of the port. The vessel is the Kaiser Franz Joseph I of the Austro-American Line.

The patient on the vessel was removed to Swinborne Island, where the case was diagnosed yesterday as typhus. One hundred and forty-nine steerage passengers who had been exposed to infection were detained at Hoffman Island for observation until the incubatory period of the disease terminates.

Poetic Heredity.

Of poetic families, the Coleridges like the Tennysons, are hard to beat. The author of "Christobel" had a daughter and two sons—all poets. The first, Sara, wrote lyrics which, according to Dr. Garnett, entitle her "to rank high among English poetesses." The eldest son, Hartley, in the same critic's opinion, was a sonneteer "among the most perfect in the language." Derwent, the other son, wrote some very beautiful verses in Knight's Quarterly Magazine of 1822 and elsewhere. Derwent's son, Mr. Ernest Hartley Coleridge, is the author of a volume of poems. The Hon. Stephen Coleridge has several volumes to his credit as a poet, and everybody who is a verse lover knows of the late Mary E. Coleridge, whose beautiful gift appeared through a volume of poems in 1907. And there is an E. P. Coleridge who has rescued certain translations of the classics from ridicule.—London Chronicle.

The Unexpected.

Labouchere's gift of repartee is illustrated in Thorold's "Life of Henry Labouchere."

"Labby," only six years old, had just gone to a private school. Before breakfast, the morning after his arrival, the new boys were placed in a row and asked whether they had all washed their teeth. One by one they all answered in the affirmative, until the turn of Henry came. "No," he said firmly. "And pray why not?" wound up the master indignantly, after a long lecture on the enormity of the crime of neglecting the cleanliness of the teeth. "Because I haven't got any," smiled Henry suddenly.

And he showed his toothless gums—he was just changing his baby teeth—to the discomfited moralist.

The Discouraged Poet.

"Everything seems to be going wrong!" sighed the poet. "I asked the maid at my lodgings this morning what had become of the paper that I'd left lying on my desk."

"'Oh, sir,' said she, 'I thought it was waste paper, and I threw it in the waste paper basket.'

"'No,' said I, 'it wasn't waste paper I hadn't written anything on it yet.'"—Youth's Companion.

Fined for Having Bad Eggs.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—For having in their storehouses eggs unfit for human consumption, Armour & Co. and Swift & Co. were yesterday fined $500. In the same court eight smaller dealers were fined $25 each for the same offence. The court explained that it was the duty of the large companies to set an example to the smaller ones, and for that reason they deserved severer punishment.

Baby Seals Fear the Water.

It is a curious fact that the fur seal was once a land animal. The baby seals are actually afraid of the water. They would drown if thrown into it and have to learn to swim by repeated efforts. When once they have been taught to swim, however, they soon forget to walk.

Get on the Bear Side.

"So you owe your success as a stock speculator to stoicism?" asked the interviewer.

"Yes," explained the broker. "Whenever there was a declining market I made a practice to grin and bear it."—Buffalo Express.

Got News From Home.

There are eighteen consulates in New York, representing that number of Central and South American countries where Spanish is spoken. This does not include Spain. The "compatriots" in "hard luck" with a little knowledge of the geography of those countries can operate among all of them, in each consulate representing himself a native of the country to whose representative he applies for aid. One of these beggars, a negro, unfolded a sad tale to a consul general. The official asked the visitor from what part of his own country he came. The negro was not well posted on his geography, for he mentioned the name of the capital and added that he had sailed from there for this country. The capital happens to be 5,000 feet up in the mountains. The consul general smiled, then gave the mendicant a quarter, saying: "That is for the valuable information that our country has advanced to the stage where they sail ocean vessels from the mountain tops. It has been a long time since I was home, and I really didn't know it."—New York Tribune.

Palestine's Water Bottles.

Of all the queer sights to be seen in the ancient city of Hebron, Palestine, none is more interesting than the "water makers' market," where the goatskin water bottles are made and sold by the thousand yearly. Lying upon the ground in rows may be seen between two hundred and three hundred goatskins awaiting purchasers. Each skin is inflated, either with water or air, so that the buyer may know it is perfectly water tight. The majority of the skins used come from Arabia, while a large number are received from the Lebanons. They are brought to Hebron by the camel caravans and are purchased by the tanneries and turned into bottles. They pass through many processes, and a tanner will spend a week upon a single skin before it is rendered water tight and serviceable. From Hebron these odd bottles are sent to all parts of the east, thousands going down into Egypt and the Sudan every year.—Argonaut.

Train and Track.

Over 1,600,000 persons are employed by the railroads of the United States.

New York city transportation lines in the year ending June 30 last carried 1,760,260,284 fare paying passengers.

The railroads of Great Britain kill in accidents for which the passenger is in no way responsible one passenger for every 72,000,000 carried, while those of the United States kill one for every 4,000,000 passengers that are carried.

Unique Ship Berth.

Sydney harbor, in the Government dock on Cockatoo island, possesses a unique ship berth. It is hewn out of solid rock. The formation of the island was originally quite unsuitable for a dockyard, as the rock rose sheer from the water to a height of fifty to seventy feet. This was gradually cut back, first to permit the building of graving docks and later to make room for building slips and shops near water level. The work has been continued until at present two-thirds of the total area of thirty-three acres has been brought to a practically uniform level of about fifteen feet above high tide.

Servant Girl a Greek Scholar.

A servant girl has won the first prize for New Testament Greek given by The Sunday School Chronicle of London, Eng. She studied it in her pantry. The girl was left motherless at ten years of age, and, in consequence, had not properly mastered even English grammar in her childhood. She bought a Greek Testament, and, after learning the alphabet, proceeded to learn simultaneously English from the Bible and Greek from the New Testament. On odd pieces of paper she would scribble notes of what she wished to learn, and learnt them in intervals during her duties about the house.

Telling Wrong One.

Whistler, the artist, was once walking through a field, when suddenly he found that a huge bull was making straight towards him. He ran as he had never run before. When he reached the other side of the fence he saw a farmer, the owner of the field, coolly watching the proceedings. Mr. Whistler was furious, and shaking his fist at the farmer, said:—

"What do you mean, sir, by letting a savage bull like that roam at large? Do you know who I am, sir? I'm Whistler."

"Are you?" replied the farmer. "Then what's the good of telling me? Why didn't you tell the bull?"

Low Spirits From Weak Nerves

Low spirits, depression, discouragement are a form of nervous disease. You worry over little things, and at the slightest ailment apprehend the gravest dangers and diseases. You form the habit of looking at the dark side of things.

Indigestion is a frequent accompaniment, and you probably do not sleep or rest well. The cause of the trouble is to be found in the exhausted condition of the nerves. To get well you must build up the feeble, wasted nerve cells by use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This great food cure forms new, rich blood, and thereby nourishes the nervous system back to health and vigour. There is nothing like new nerve force to bring back hope and confidence to the weak and discouraged. This treatment works in natural ways to restore health, and, therefore, cannot fail to prove of benefit to you. Put it to the test and you will be surprised with the building-up influence that will result.

Open Windows at Night.

It is difficult to get doctors to agree and to agree with the patient listener. For years I had been a slave to the open window, the fresh air at night. That doctrine of the open bedroom window was my obsession, but recently doubt crept in. By accident the bedroom window had been closed, and I slept peacefully and woke refreshed in a closed room. There was no ventilation of the official medical variety. To a medical journalist I put the problem of the window at night, and, to my astonishment, he told me that I am an animal when I sleep and do not want fresh air at all.

"Look at the animals! When they sleep they choose the stuffiest nooks they can find, and they know what is best for them. Shut your bedroom windows at night and open them in the morning." And when I reflected on the dormouse and the dog I am encouraged to tuck my nose with the other animals.—London Chronicle.

An Old Caddie's Retort.

He is an old caddie on an east coast course, and being a noted figure on the links he endeavors as far as possible to caddie only for thoroughly efficient golfers. Occasionally, however, he finds himself accompanying a "fozzler," and on these occasions his dignity is injured.

One day recently he found himself caddying to an old gentleman who was out, clearly, more for exercise than for the love of the game and who was playing shocking golf.

By the time the twelfth hole was reached he had been in most of the bunkers on route and had succeeded in breaking a club. "I think I shall give up this hole," he remarked at last to his indignant caddie. "Na, na," retorted the old worthy bitterly; "feenish the course, sir—feenish the course. Ye've gotten other four clubs to smash yet an' nine bunkers tae dae it in!"—Glasgow News.

MR. FRANK WISE
Efficient Superintendent of Little Lake Cemetery who gets increased Salary.

MR. F. WISE GETS HIGHER SALARY

Directors of Cemetery Co. Grant an Increase of $100 a Year—Appreciate His Services

NOW RECEIVES $1100

The directors of the Little Lake Cemetery Co. have manifested their appreciation of the services of Mr. Frank Wise, Superintendent of the Cemetery, by increasing his salary from $1,000 to $1,100 a year. Mr. T. H. G. Denne made the motion for the advance, and it was seconded by Dr. Burnham. The increase is for the balance of Mr. Wises term, a period of three years. His first contract was for three yeas. It was renewed twice, and on the last occasion a five years' agreement was entered upon. Mr. Denne stated that in view of the high cost of living, the demands upon the Superintendent's time and the manner in which he attends to his duties, the directors should make his salary $1100.

Mr. Wise in expressing his thanks, said it was the first time he had received an advance without asking for it. He would continue to put forth his efforts in the care and attention to the Cemetery.

THE WEATHER

The recent light falls of snow have greatly improved the sleighing, which was not very good in many places. The temperature has also moderated considerably and this morning registered 21 degrees above zero. Yesterday morning it stood at three degrees below, and Sunday morning eight degrees below zero. The weather has again turned decidedly colder all through the west, and will in all likelihood be here shortly. The last two weeks of January last winter were comparatively mild, much of the time without sufficient snow for sleighing. —W. P.

MEETING OF THE PETERBOROUGH PRESBYTERY

Rev. F. M. Cree, of Norwood, Will Go to Allison and Rev. D. H. Currie, of Omemee, Will Go To the Brockville Presbytery

THE BETHANY CHURCH

At a special meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery, which was held in St. Paul's Church this morning, Rev. D. H. Currie, B.A., of Omemee, was granted permission to accept a call to Cardnell, in the Brockville Presbytery. The charge comprises two churches, and includes a salary of one thousand dollars. A communication from Omemee expressing dissatisfaction at the action of the Presbytery in placing Bethany with Omemee and Mount Pleasant created considerable discussion.

Rev. D. H. Currie, Moderator of the Peterborough Presbytery, presided at the meeting. With him was Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings, Clerk of the Presbytery. The latter read the communication that was received from Omemee respecting Bethany Church, and in which it was stated that the arrangement necessitated a drive of twenty-six miles each Sunday.

System Was Workable.

Rev. M. F. Cree, who introduced himself as one who had had considerable to do with the question, said that the present arrangement should be given a fair trial. He regarded the present system as being workable. Special arrangements have been made for the winter months, whereby Bethany will be supplied with a man for six months, leaving Omemee and Mount Pleasant together, which practically constitutes the pastoral charge. In the summer time, Bethany was added to the circuit.

"A drive of twenty-six miles is not impossible," said Rev. Mr. Cree. "I have done it myself. What we need is people to think along the right lines, and a minister who is not afraid. We have a peculiar situation to meet and this appears to be the only solution.

"The present arrangement is very unfavourable to the Omemee congregation," said Mr. H. Lamb, who represented that Church. "We don't wish to infer that we do not want Bethany, but it is unfavourable while Mount Pleasant is with us."

Rev. Mr. Pogue thought that Mount Pleasant could be closed, and intimated that the proximity of the Omemee Church would enable the congregation of Mount Pleasant to attend the Church in Omemee.

Rev. George A. Brown, Campbellford, was also of the opinion that something should be done with Mount Pleasant. He visited there on two occasions and had received very little response. He contended that if any sacrifice was to be made it should not be done in Omemee.

It was finally decided to lay the matter on the table until the March meeting of the Presbytery.

Calls Sustained.

A call was extended to Rev. D. H. Currie, of Omemee, to go to Cardnell in the Brockville Presbytery, which he accepted. The Omemee charge will be declared vacant on February the fifteenth. The Rev. H. J. Keith was appointed moderator to the charge. The office was assigned to Rev. James Rollins, but the latter declined to accept for reasons which he did not state.

Rev. M. F. Cree, B.A., of Norwood, accepted a call to Allison, Ontario. A very strong deputation was present from Norwood to oppose his going. They expressed the high appreciation in which Rev. Mr. Cree was held in Norwood.

The Rev. heath charge have extended a call to Rev. W. H. Alp, of Sturgeon Falls, North Bay Presbytery. The call was sustained by the Peterborough Presbytery.

Among those who were present at the meeting this morning were Rev. R. Pogue, Rev. James Rollins, Rev. James Skeene, Havelock, Rev. O. A. Thomson, Hastings, Rev. M. F. Cree, Norwood, Rev. George Brown of Campbellford, Rev. Wm. Johnston, Millbrook, and Rev. Donald H. Currie, of Omemee.

JOHN McCLAY COMMITTED ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Magistrate Thinks Evidence Submitted in Preliminary Hearing Warrants Trial

HEARD THIS MORNING

In this morning's Police Court John McClay, a local man, was charged with supplying drugs to a local young woman for illegal purposes. He pleaded not guilty.

Mr Joseph Wearing conducted the prosecution and Mr. V. J. McElderry appeared for the defendant. After hearing a lot of evidence, most of which was given by the girl in the case, the Magistrate committed the prisoner for trial.

The girl to whom the drugs were supplied was the first witness. To Mr. Wearing she said that she had resided in this City for two years, coming here from Cardiff, Wales. She was 19 years of age and had no relatives living. She first met McClay on the day the Barnum and Bailey circus played in this City. That was late in June and prisoner "introduced himself" to the girl and asked her to go with him to the circus. She agreed and that evening he treated her in a very gentlemanly manner. The next night they went walking to the Lift Lock and in spite of the fact that she resisted as desperately as she was able, he took liberties with her, as he did on several succeeding occasions. She resisted each time but still kept on friendly terms with the prisoner.

Then she became ill and the prisoner insisted that her condition was serious. She however thought her illness only a trivial one. But the prisoner gave her a box of pills (produced in court) telling her that if circumstances were as bad as he feared, they would remedy matters, and prevent a disclosure of their relations. She herself did not believe she was in such a condition, but took the pills at his urgent request, hoping that they would relieve the trivial illness from which she supposed herself to be suffering. She took a lot of the pills, but as they failed to relieve her she stopped taking them. When the prisoner gave her the pills he told her that they would fix things if she were seriously ill. He seemed to be certain that she was. On the other hand, because of her extreme innocence, she had no idea of her real condition. The pills did not accomplish the desired result. She tried no other remedies.

McClay had told her that "if the worst came to the worst" he would marry her. She had been living lately with Adjutant and Mrs. McElhinney, who had very kindly aided her in her distress.

A local doctor was the next witness. He said that the ingredients of the pills given to the girl were drugs. The pills would not accomplish the purpose hoped for by the prisoner, but were intended only for minor female ills. The general public, however, usually bought them, thinking that they would accomplish th purpose desired by McClay.

WAS LARGELY ATTENDED

TORONTO, Jan. 20. — With heads bared in respectful reverence, the immediate relatives of the late Senator George A. Cox were present yesterday at the interment of the remains in the family's Mount Pleasant mausoleum. The esteem in which the late Senator was held was manifested by the large and representative attendance at his funeral held from his residence, 439 Sherbourne Street, and although it was announced that the ceremony would be strictly private there was nevertheless a long line of carriages which followed the remains to the cemetery.

Services at House.

Two services were conducted at the house, one at ten o'clock by Dean Wallace of Victoria University for the members of the family only and one at eleven o'clock, by Rev. At the cemetery only the immediate relatives were allowed to enter the mausoleum while the remains were laid away alongside of those of his first wife,

Many Floral Tokens.

Hundreds of friends and admirers of Senator Cox viewed the remains as they reposed amid a large bank of varied flowers in the late Senator's home. The casket itself was embowered in violets, a family token of affection.

So many were the donations of flowers that three carriages were required to convey them to the cemetery. Among those who sent flowers were: Senate of Canada, wreath; directors of Canada Life Assurance Co., wreath; directors of Imperial Life Assurance Co., large pillow; directors Central Canada Loan and Savings Co., large basket; head office staff, Canada Life Assurance Co., wreath; Imperial Guarantee and Accident Co., basket; Sherbourne Street Methodist Church, wreath; Charlotte Street Methodist Church, Peterborough, large spray; Mayor and Corporation of Peterborough, large wreath; Mr. and Mrs. J. (Stanton Club), large spray; men and maids of the house, large spray, and others.

Chief Mourners.

The chief mourners were, in addition to Mrs. George A. Cox, the widow, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Cox, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Cox, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Ames, Mrs. A. L. Davis, Miss Ethel and Mr. George Ames, Mrs. Aaron Cox, Mr. Walter Stirling, Miss Muriel Stirling, Mr. W. G. Morrow, Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Will Cockburn, Winnipeg, Dr. and Mrs. Goldsmith, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Ardagh, Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Cox and nephews, Messrs. George, Frank, William and Harold Cox.

J. C. ELLIOTT CONDEMNS LEGISLATURE

Denounces the Conservative Lack of Interest in All Kinds of Farming Projects

RURAL DEPOPULATION

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, ONT., Jan. 20. — At a rousing Liberal rally held at Coldstream last evening, J. C. Elliott, M. P.P., for West Middlesex, denounced the Whitney Government for its lack of interest in all farming projects and its favouritism towards the big moneyed interests. He stated that recent events had proved conclusively that the principle of reciprocity as projected by the Liberals, is a right one for Ontario farmers. The Underwood Bill and the reduction of tariff, with the rush of farming trade across the border, were cited by him. He urged that something be done to stop the rural depopulation, and thought the Government should pay $10,000 a year if necessary to a big enough man instead for deputy minister.

Great Programme At Red Mill And Princess Theatres

By visiting the two theatres, one can see twelve reels of the best pictures for 10 cents, the biggest bargain in the picure line ever offered.

The British films at the Red Mill are making the biggest kind of a hit.

Elections Cost The City $289

The recent elections depleted the gold in the city treasury to the extent of $289.50. This was mostly for the salaries of deputy-returning officers and poll clerks. The cost to the candidates is not available for publication, but in some cases would run well into three figures.

WHITNEY IS VERY LOW

News of His Death May Come at Any Time

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Jan. 20.—The physicians' bulletins concerning Sir James Whitney plainly indicated that the distinguished patient's condition was very critical this morning. News of his death may come at any moment.

TORONTO, Jan. 20. — "Sir James Whitney is much weaker. His condition this afternoon is still very unsatisfactory." This bulletin issued at 1.45 to-day is taken as indicating very serious turn in the patient's illness. Sir James slept very little last night or this morning, and all day to-day so far his temperature, pulse, respiration and general state of the premier's health, all contributed to cause the doctors much anxiety. The latest bulletin is by far the most serious and depressing yet issued since Sir James was stricken.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Special Wire to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—President Wilson's message to Congress to-day dealt severely with the trusts, and proposed remedial legislation for the interlocking of directors, and also suggested that punishment for combine and trusts offences be visited on the individual heads and not on the companies as a whole. An Advisory Industrial Commission is also proposed to consider tariff with Canada, and other matters.

POLICEMEN, WOMEN AND OTHERWISE.

One of the longest and by all odds the most interesting report that has appeared in the Examiner for many a day was the report appearing in yesterday's issue of the meeting or conference in the city hall in regard to the appointment of a police woman for Peterborough. From what appears it does not seem probable that the Police Commissioners will meet the wishes of the formidable dputation of ladies in this matter.

The plea that it will cost too much—will add to the taxes—seems to be a good deal in the character of evasion. If the appointment of a police woman will do even a little of what the ladies claim it will accomplish, the question of cost within reasonable limits is not to be considered. The facts brought forward by the ladies show at once how earnestly and thoroughly they have worked, in collecting evidence of undesirable conditions and what a serious menace these conditions are to our social integrity, the quality of our citizenship and our whole civic morale.

The insults and annoyance of respectable women and the ruin of respectable, but thoughtless, girls, unprotected by prudent parentage, and well grounded moral principles, is not the only thing. Their possibility and occurrence show a condition of moral debauchery in the male sex that is alarming, and indicative of widespread corruption of citizenship.

Something must be done; but what? There seems to be no official disposition to try the remedy prescribed by the Women's Council, whose rejection is not justified by the suggestion of any adequate substitute. There are two main demands for action. One is for dealing with the consequences of the conditions the ladies at the meeting in question so graphically brought to the attention of the officials and the public. Failure to do this suggests the other pressing demand. If we cannot adequately provide for the ruined girl we can, and must, take steps to prevent the ruin. Medical science in its highest activity is directed to proving that the best way to heal disease is to prevent it. We know that the night streets of a city are the factory where the ruin of girls is begun and finished. If we could devise some means of preventing young girls without protection or chaperonage roaming the city streets at nights, we should prevent, nine-tenths of the ruin that takes place.

If the ladies who, to all appearance, have failed to get a policewoman appointed, would devote their energies to securing such amendments of the Curfew law as would make it of practical value, much will have been accomplished. As the law now is a policeman or a policewoman can only order home the young of both sexes abroad in the night streets, contrary to the law—there is no provision for seeing that the order is carried out or dealing with continuancy that may, and does continually, arise. The curfew law which, in principle, if that principle were effectively applied, would prevent nine-tenths of the girl ruin and boy debauchery, is practically a dead letter.

If, in the business districts of the city, under full police patrol, may originate such comparatively minor offences as the Woman's Council complains of, such as insults to women and annoyance of girls, what must be the danger of the real scenes of ruin—our unprotected residence streets, especially the outlying streets, and especially in summer? These streets are totally without police supervision and are the refuge of the vile men and the foolish girls—"hunted out" of the policed district — where, without restraint whatever diabolism and ruin that is done and plotted for, elsewhere, is consummated.

It is a fact that the Chief of Police has demanded additions to the force, so that the outlying districts can be placed under police supervision. This need not be a large force. The knowledge that even one policeman was patrolling the residence districts and liable to appear at any point at any time, would have an important deterrent effect not only upon lawless characters like petty thieves, but would tend to help the effective enforcement of the curfew law. The young boys and girls of curfew law age, who might be "shooed" away by the business district police, would encounter the one or two in the outskirts, which are now practically given over to the work of the ruin of the young.

The ladies of the Women's Council should not be discouraged. They may fail in gaining their specific demand, but there is still work for them to do. In default of getting a police woman appointed they might well work for the improvement of the Curfew law and, meantime, for the appointment of extra policemen, so that the residence districts, where the chief damage is done, the ruin chiefly wrought, may be under police supervision.

VALUE OF ADVERTISING.

Newspapers are generally the agencies of peace and of the conditions that make for peace and progress and prosperity. But at times they can effectively take place in the facilitation of warlike preparations. Great Britain, which is quoted as effete, worn out and decadent, is very much alive to the value of advertising. The British Government's action in the adoption of modern methods of advertising the army have been successful. Recently Lord Northcliffe suggested this course, pointing out how the Dominion Governments attracted immigrants by good advertising. The authorities this week took whole pages in popular London dailies, stating in business-like fashion the wages and attractions of the army. The special staff created by the War Office to deal with the response has been almost overwhelmed by replies. "A full page advertisement in a daily paper is worth a hundred recruiting sergeants in bringing the right kind of men," said a responsible official yesterday. This advertisig scheme is only one of many evidences that the British army is now run in business-like fashion.

HEATON'S ANNUAL—TENTH EDITION.

We again welcome Heaton's Annual, the Commercial Handbook of Canada. The 1914 edition of Heaton's Annual has come to hand. With this issue, the Annual arrives at the end of its first decade. The first edition was compiled in 1904 for the Department of Commerce of the Dominion Government, to meet the requirements of British firms doing business with Canada, and 15,000 copies were purchased and distributed by the Government in Great Britain and Continental Europe. Year by year the handbook has been gradually developed with special regard to its original purpose, and to meet the requirements of those who want a book of easy reference to answer questions regarding the Dominion. Heaton's Annual to-day is the 'Bible' of many Canadian offices, and is absolutely idispensable to any financial or commercial firm having business relations with Canada. In the first 214 pages will be found information which a business man must have at his elbow. No pains have been spared to maintain the reputation of the book as the standard authority on the Customs Tariff and Regulations. The digest of the Customs Laws and Regulations includes all the memoranda and bulletins that are issued by the Department to the Customs officials. This information cannot, so far as we know, be found collected in any other single volume. The Shipper's Guide, giving population, banking accommodation, and railway connections in every banking town in the Dominion is a new feature which will be appreciated by a great many subscribers.

The second half of the book contains a concise, up-to-date description of all the towns in Canada of any commercial importance, including the leading hotels in order of merit, the existing industries, and special opportunities for new industries. To this is added a section covering such subjects as agriculture, fur-farming, commerce, education, finance, fisheries, forests, immigration, mining, population, professions, railways, game laws, water powers, etc., an admirable, up-to-date pocket encyclopedia of the resources of the Dominion. The book has received a loyal support from the leading Boards of Trade, which is quite unique. Substantial evidence of this appears in the illustrated advertisements of over fifty Canadian cities and towns who are anxious to secure new industries. The illustrations are admirable, and the advertising section is a liberal education in itself. —Toronto, Heaton's Agency, price $1.00.

LIBERTY FOR FOOD SUPPLIES.

If food taxes were removed in Canada, we should draw freely upon the surplus, not only of the United States, but of Australia, New Zealand, Argentina, and all the other countries of the world— British and foreign, tropical and temperate. Surely that vast liberty of choice would tend to make food more abundant, and therefore cheaper. We do not say that it would remove the whole evil. The vicious ingenuity of the framers of food combines may demand other remedies. But certainly all evils and all remedies must be considered in any investigation worthy of the name; and the food taxes and the food combines cannot be ignored, unless the investigation is to be a farce.—Toronto Star.

My Easy Way For You
TO OWN YOUR HOME

If you have or ever intend to have a wife and family you must have a home by renting or buying. Doubtless you have read my ad. in the Examiner, where I offer to do for you as I have done for others, viz., to guide you to a home of your own, on as easy terms as you now have, paying rent.

If you rent you pay for ever, and have nothing to show. If you buy you have a valuable property to use, rent or sell. You are a man amongst men, with a stake in the country, honoured and respected, not a floater, here today and away to-morrow. My desire to sell and retire causes me to offer prices and terms that will never be repeated; so come to work and in the way of the City's growth. Come in and see plans; get full particulars, then you can lay out your plans for early Spring action.

AN IDAEL HOME
DON'T YOU WANT ONE?
WE HAVE IT AND CAN HELP YOU GET IT

The ambition of most men is to have a comfortable home of his own design. Usually the ideal home is pictured as standing well back from the street in a large lot laid out in lawns and gardens, with shade and fruit trees, hedges and flower beds arranged about the lot to suit the man's particular taste. A Lot 60 ft. x 180 ft. gives enough space for a lawn 30 ft. x 60 ft. in front of the house, a house 18 ft. x 24 ft. with summer kitchen, 10 ft. x 10 ft., a tennis or croquet lawn, or berry patch, or asparagus and rhubarb bed beside the house, an 8 ft. or 10 ft. driveway and still leave a large lot 60 ft. x 120 ft. at the back for vegetables and fruit trees and stable for the horse and cow. When to this ideal lot is added the advantage of easy access to the river for boating and the convenience of being only a short walk from the factory district, and reasonable building restrictions, this ambition seems capable of realization. Where such a lot can be bought on a deposit of $10 and the balance as the purchaser desires, this ideal home is within the reach of everyone.

WE HAVE THEM BUT

These lots have been picked up very fast, and we have only a few left for those quick enough to grasp the opportunity afforded to own an ideal home that is bound to increase in value to a remarkable extent at a small present cost. You can build and finish your kitchen in the spring and plant out your garden, and as you are able, complete your house. Get in line and out of the rut, and become a land owner, instead of paying someone else a premium for the privilege of living in his house. Remember, there are only a few lots left, and applications therefor will be filled in the order in which they are received.

SAVE YOUR HAIR! IF IT IS FALLING OR FULL OF DANDRUFF—25 CENT DANDERINE

Ladies! Men! Here's the Quickest, Surest Dandruff Cure Known

Thin, brittle, colourless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die — then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine to-night—now—anytime — will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store, or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, down hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

FACTS ABOUT GROWING CHERRIES

When I began planting sour cherries 26 years ago there were no commercial orchards in this locality. It was to be expected that those who led in this, as in every new enterprise, would make many mistakes, and I have fulfilled expectations. My mistakes may keep others who are now setting large orchards of this fruit from learning in the expensive school of experience.

My first plantings were made 15 feet apart both ways. No sooner had the trees attained good bearing capacity than the lower limbs began dying and the tops to go skyward. This made picking the fruit a new proposition. While the trees were small women did nearly all the picking, and they were the best help we ever had; but with the advent of longer ladders they soon gave up the business or went to younger orchards. Boys and girls and Italians took their places, and a change was made from day wages to piece work.

A MISTAKE IN PRUNING

To prevent the trees from growing too tall I tried heading back, the same as with peaches and plums. This proved to be only multiplying mistakes. Let me warn everyone against cutting back cherry trees. He will only spoil the top without improving the bearing capacity of the lower limbs. After seeing my oldest trees failing every year I cut out every other tree in diagonal rows, and was rewarded by seeing the remaining trees make new growth on the lowest branches, set buds and bear fruit again. Of course, they will never be what they would have been if they had had room to spread naturally. Thirty feet apart is too far for sour cherries, but my trees at this distance are still a lot better than no trees.

I renewed the top of a block of English Morello trees that were fast dying out by dehorning the entire trees, and the crop of fruit they gave last summer was the wonder of those who saw it.

VERY SEVERE CUTTING BACK

Emboldened by this I took a block of old Montmorency and instead of cutting out every other tree cut the limbs back to within 12 or 14 inches of the stump, leaving one limb in the centre to keep the tree alive. Much to my surprise, they are all making a new growth, giving promise of a fine new top when the remaining limb is also cut back. The recuperative power of a sour cherry tree is greater than anyone would believe before he has tried.

The object in shaping trees is to give them spreading tops, as near to the ground as possible. To do this the trees should not be planted closer than 18 feet. My latest plantings are 10 by 18 feet, intending to remove every other tree in the 10-foot row as soon as they begin to crowd. Before that time they will bear enough fruit to more than pay the cost of the trees.

BEST STOCKS FOR CHERRIES

For years there has been a standing dispute as to the best stock for cherries, the nurserymen growing the Mahaleb and orchardists demanding the Mazzard as being a much longer lived and more profitable tree. I was thoroughly instructed in this belief when I began, and went to considerable trouble and expense to secure trees on the Mazzard stock. But 15 years ago I decided to make a test for my own satisfaction, and planted a block of 13 rows, 20 trees to the row, six rows on Mahaleb and seven rows on Mazzard, and have treated both kinds exactly alike ever since.

When they first began to bear the Mahaleb trees bore far too heavily and the fruit was much smaller than on the Mazzard. In a few years the trees showed signs of weakness; 10 died and several others were saved only by severe pruning, while only one tree is missing to-day from the Mazzards. I added my condemnation of the Mahaleb trees and the nurserymen who sold them.

Five years ago I began an annual fertilising of my orchards with heavy applications of stable manure, when, to my surprise, the Mahaleb trees responded much more freely than the others, making a longer wood growth foliage resisting blight, and holding on much better and having decidedly heavier crops of fruit.

OF GREAT SERVICE TO THE EMPIRE

Mr. Martin Harvey Banquetted by His Confreres

Some interesting references to Mr. Martin Harvey's tour of Canada were made at the annual dinner of the Actors' Benevolent Fund which was held at the Hotel Metropole in London This yearly function always brings together a gathering representative of all the arts and of public life in the Old Country. This year Mr. Martin Harvey had been invited by the committee to take the chair and a very distinguished company, including Sir Charles Wyndham, Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, Sir George Alexander, Sir George Frampton, R.A., Sir James Dunlop Smith, K.C.V.O., Mr. Henry Dickens, K.C., Mr. Rose-Innes, K.C., Mr. G. K. Chesterton, the well-known novelist and playwright, Mr. Austin Harrison, editor of The English Review, Mr. J. T. Grein, and others, were present to support the great theatrical charity and to testify the high regard in which the chairman, Mr. Martin Harvey, is held by members of his as of other professions.

Mr. Henry Dickens, K.C., eminent both for his own position at the Bar and also because he is the son of Charles Dickens of immortal memory, in proposing the health of the chairman, aroused the greatest enthusiasm from the large company present by his allusions to the Imperial work and service which a man as Mr. Martin Harvey is about to undertake performs. The arts and especially the dramatic art which is par excellence popular and universal, are a by no means inconsiderable bond among peoples of one language, one kindred and one flag, and the speaker was sure that no one was more justly qualified to represent the English stage of our generation on a great journey overseas than the distinguished artist, Mr. Martin Harvey.

The chairman, in reply, spoke with great warmth of the pride and pleasure with which he and all his company were looking forward to their visit to their fellow-Britishers across the Atlantic.

Large Repertory

Mr. Harvey's first appearance of the tour was made at Halifax on January 8. In the journey westward, Montreal was reached on January 19, Ottawa on the 26th and Toronto on February 2nd. The Winnipeg visit opens three weeks later. Vancouver, which is the last point on the outward journey, will be reached on March 30th, thereafter the circuit will be completed by return visits to some of the biggest cities on the homeward round.

The repertory of plays which will be brought on the tour consists of three of Mr. Martin Harvey's best known and most remarkable successes, "The Only Way," the famous dramatization of Dickens' "A Tale of Two Cities," in which Mr. Martin Harvey first sprang into fame at the Lyceum Theatre; "The Breed of the Treshams," a stirring romance of the Parliamentarian wars in Caroline days, and "A Cigarette-maker's Romance," a charming play founded on the well-known novel of the same name by the late Marion Crawford. In conjunction with the last named will be given a one-act play entitled "The Conspiracy" by the late Robert Barr, another celebrated novelist, and Sidney Lewis Ransome. It is safe to prophesy that Canadian playgoers from the Atlantic to the Pacific will welcome the coming opportunity of making (or perhaps, in some cases renewing) acquaintance with three of the most successful and widely-loved plays which the modern English theatre has produced, especially as they will see in them the actual personality round whom their wonderful measure of public favour has been established.

TWO LOCAL MEN FINED

Assessed $10 Each for Taking Liquor While on the Blacklits

A local man, who pleaded "guilty" yesterday morning in Police Court to being drunk while on the blacklist, came before Magistrate Dumble this morning. He was fined $10 and costs, amounting to $13.75.

Another thirsty one pleaded guilty to being drunk in a public place and was fined $2.

"You'll get rich if you keep on," said the Magistrate. "In winter time you people all have so much money that the proper thing to do is to throw it away on whiskey."

Another blacklister, charged with being drunk while on the blacklist, was fined $10.

An important development in connection with the Edinburgh School Board this past session has been the introduction of a scheme providing for the medical treatment of necessitous school children.

In succession to Professor Bergson, whose first course will be given next near, the Senatus of Edinburgh University have appointed Sir W. M. Ramsay, D.C.L., to be Gifford Lecturer for the period 1915-1917.

At a meeting of Dingwall Parish Council, Dr. Bruce was reappointed chairman, and the vacancy in the medical officership was filled by the appointment of Dr. Broadfoot as successor to the late Dr. Adam.

By stating that he had been knocked down and injured by a Glasgow Corporation tramcar in the Trongate, John McCusker attempted to get compensation. He was sentenced to 14 days' imprisonment for fraud.

Shipping firms in Glasgow having berthage accommodation in the portion of the harbour above Glasgow Bridge are up in arms against the proposal to erect another bridge across the river at Oswald Street.

A widow named Elizabeth Mullen or Morgan, 60, was found lying unconscious on a basement area in Glasgow. She was removed to the infirmary suffering from a wound on the forehead and bleeding of the nostrils.

There was a large assembly of old students of Glasgow University at the Trocadero for the dinner of the Glasgow University Club, London, on a recent evening, when Sir William S. McCormick, secretary to the Carnegie Trust, occupied the chair.

Head Of Local Firm Is Interested

Mr. Frederick Nicholls, of the C. G. E., is Appointed Receiver for the Brantford Street Railway

HOLD FIRST MORTGAGE

BRANTFORD, Jan. 20.—The appointment of Frederick Nicholls, general manager of the Canadian General Electric Company, who are the first mortgage holders of the Brantford Street Railway, as receiver for a period of three years, at the end of which time Brantford is to have the option of taking the railway over and running it as a municipal utility—that is the latest development of the street railway situation, according to well defined rumours.

There has been nothing doing for some days, owing to the fact that City Solicitor W. T. Henderson has not yet returned from his honeymoon, and the city, therefore has taken no further steps in the matter. The appointment of a new receiver to take the place of E. B. Stockdale, the present one, is now before the courts, waiting for the interested parties to get together to come to some arrangement, without the court making the appointment. As soon as City Solicitor Henderson returns this will be again taken up, and it is expected that matters will soon be brought to a head.

Asked as to the facts in connection with the latest story of the city's move, Mayor Spence this morning said that he had nothing to say further than that the city's interests were being safeguarded. "When Mr. Henderson returns, we will go into the matter very fully, and it is likely that we will then take the public into our confidence. The citizens can rest assured that we are watching their interests," he said.

At the same time it is generally understood that the suggestion that Mr. Nicholls be the new receiver, came from the city's representative, and that such an arrangement would be quite acceptable to them.

Discount of one-third to one-half the original price prevail on many lines of Fur and Fur-lined Coats, Fur Sets and Children's Furs.

Scenic Production Seldom Equalled

This is What is Said of Margaret Anglin's "As You Like It."

The sterling methods of education upon the stage in which the men and women of Margaret Anglin's company were trained, are nowhere shown to better advantage than in their clear-cut pronunciation and flawless enunciation of the mother tongue, all of which will be demonstrated during Miss Anglin's engagement at "The Grand" on Monday next, Jan. 20, when she will present "As You Like It."

Not only has Miss Anglin surrounded herself with a company of particular strength and general excellence, but she has given the play a scenic production seldom if ever equalled. All the stage effects and costumes were made from designs by the well known artist Livingstone Platt. The overture and incidental music were composed by William Furst, and in short Miss Anglin has left nothing undone, and spared neither pains nor expense in making her series of Shakesperean revivals notable in every respect. Miss Anglin will, of course, be seen in the leading character. The seat and box sale for the engagement will open on Friday, Jan. 23.

ST. GEORGE'S YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETY FORMED

A very pleasant meeting was held in the school room on Wednesday last, Jan. 14th, when a branch of the A.Y.P.A. was started. Over 20 people (mostly young ones) were present and most of them have promised to become members. The society is holding a social meeting on Wednesday next at 8 p.m., when it expects to enroll even more. This is the first attempt ever made in connection with St. George's for a society such as this, and it is hoped it will meet with the success it deserves. The officers were all elected at last week's meeting when Rev. Mr. Price was made Hon. President, A. Pitchford President, Miss E. Wise Vice-President, Miss Tillie Lesuri Secretary, and Mr. K. Sparrow Treasurer. The comittee extends to each and every young person of the congregation, male or female, a most hearty invitation to their meetings, which will take place every Wednesday, and will be of a social character.

LORD STRATHCONA'S LAST VISIT TO CANADA.

The above photograph of the distinguished High Commissioner for Canada, who is now in critical condition at age of 94, was taken on his last year's flying visit to Canada, when he touched Montreal for a day or so, after rushing across the Atlantic on the fastest steamer he could find.

AFTER FIVE YEARS NOTHING IS DONE BUT MERE TALK

A Government who have to deal with a new question of importance may reasonably ask for time to consider it before declaring a policy. But a Government who have before them an old question, that has been discussed in Parliament and throughout the country for years, that is admittedly one of the highest importance, and still refuse to declare their policy on that question are clearly not dealing frankly or fairly with the people, but are endeavouring to evade their responsibility and escape from their obvious duty. That, unfortunately, is precisely the position in which the Government of Mr. Borden stand today on the naval question. It is not a position that is likely to command the respect of fair-minded men of any shade of political opinion.

There is room for difference of opinion as to the form which Canada's naval action should take. Those who hold strongly the view that we should make a beginning in the organization of a Canadian naval force, on lines that will allow co-operation in time of need with the Imperial Navy, can sincerely respect those other Canadians who, differing from them, favour the principles of centralization and contribution. But what Canadian can there be who in his heart is not ashamed of the Government's weakness as manifested by their putting in the mouth of His Royal Highness the Governor-General a speech which contains not a single word as to the policy of the ministry on the question which they themselves have declared is one of transcendant importance?

We may, for the moment, almost leave aside the question of an "emergency" so much talked of a year ago. If there was an "emergency," and if it was expedient a year ago to make provision for meeting it, and even if it be assumed that the Government's method of dealing with it was at the time wise, does that absolve the Government from the duty of devising and proclaiming a definite policy of a permanent character, so far as anything in the way of legislation can be permanent?

As we have already pointed out, the naval question is not a new one. Even thes trange interchange of views between Mr. Churchill and Mr. Borden disclosed nothing new in principle, so far as the wishes of the British Admiralty were concerned. The desire of Mr. Churchill, as First Lord, though sometimes treated in the discussions as something new, was in reality only a repetition of the view held by the Admiralty for many years. As far back as the London Conference of 1902, when Lord Selborne occupied the position now held by Mr. Churchill, that nobleman informed the Colonial Ministers of the Admiralty's desire that the Dominion should make contributions to the upkeep of the British Navy. The Canadian Ministers at the Conference put on record the declaration that such a policy was not acceptable to Canada. And although that declaration remained before the Parliament and people of Canada for many years the soundness of it was never questioned.

When naval matters were considered in 1909 the House of Commons, by unanimous vote, maintained the principle that had been laid down by Sir Wilfrid Laurier at the London Conference in 1902. Mr. Churchill's call for a Canadian contribution was practically a repetition of the appeal of Lord Selborne seven years before. The only difference was that, whereas Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues had firmly resisted the proposal of Lord Selborne, Mr. Churchill was encouraged by Mr. Borden, and the two gentlemen proceeded to fix up a correspondence which has, with some ground, been characterized as a conspiracy against Dominion autonomy.

But the "emergency" policy, whether good or bad, has failed to materialize. Meanwhile time is passing. The naval question was particularly brought to the front by the discussion of 1909. Men who, perhaps, had thought little about it in earlier years, had the subject brought sharply before them in the parliamentary session of that year. From that time on every public man in Canada had the fullest opportunity to consider the question. For five years, therefore, at least, Mr. Borden and his associates have had ample opportunity to make up their minds, not merely as to a temporary policy, but as to a permanent one. Yet they meet Parliament, practically confessing that they have no policy on that great question. Did ever a Government in Canada before occupy such a position? — Montreal Telegraph.

Stray Topics From America's Gay Metropolis

A report just issued by the Director of the Census Bureau shows that the assessed valuation of New York City constitutes approximately one-third of the total assessed valuation of taxable property in 184 of the leading cities of the United States, having a population of more than 30,000. The total assessed valuation of taxable property in these cities was $26,050,387,438 in 1910. Of this total $8,322,954,952 is credited to New York City.

A Millionaire Hermit.

For a man worth nearly $50,000,000 to live and die practically unknown except by a small circle of acquaintances and associates would have been an impossible thing in the United States, or in any other country, a few decades ago. Nowadays it is taken as a matter of course and attracts little or no attention. Only a few days ago a man whom very few persons had ever heard of died at his home in Mineola, L. I. His will showed that he left an estate worth between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000. The man's name was Chas. E. Appleby. He made practically his entire fortune in real estate operations in Manhattan and along the orth shore of Long Island.

Miniature Banking Quarters.

The smallest banking quarters in New York, if not the tiniest banking room within the financial circles of the world, is that occupied by the Universal Savings Bank, which does its business in a booth in the corridor of the Singer building, near the Liberty Street entrance. In the lobby, facing the battery of elevators, a section of he hear of the big skyscraper has been partitioned to form an oblong room for the business of the Bank, providing floor space of approximately eight by eighteen feet. The positions of cashier and teller are filled by one man, who has a little cage for his work, and another small section, provided with a shelf, ink, pens and deposit slips, is for he customers. If the officers and trustees of the bank desired to hold a general meeting three they would have to assemble in the corridor outside to do it, as there isn't space enough in the entire banking room, with its minute, safe for books, a filing cabinet, and a wardrobe taking up part of it, for six persons to crowd in and sit down together.

Money in Drug Stores.

Drug store is getting to be a misnamer for the old-time shop where the apothecary was to be found. In these get rich-quick days the former druggist has become a seller of candy and cigars, a dispenser of soda and ice cream, a dealer in all kinds of knickknacks and novelties. In addition, he usually maintains a local telephone exchange in his store, for he has found it profitable. Toilet preparations are there in abundance, and some patent medicines may still be found on his shelves. But in the up-to-the-minute store, as it exists in New York nowadays there are to be seen few drugs and medicines. The prescription counter, it has been done away with altogether—has been relegated to the extreme back corner of the establishment. The entire front of the store is occupied by a colossal soda fountain on one side, with the cigar stand and candy cases opposite. A look into one of these stores at almost any hour of the day or night is sufficient to convince one that there is no exaggeration in the statement that the American public pays $50,000,000 a year for its soda and other soft drinks. There is more than one drug store in New York that does an average soda business of from $500 to $1,000 a day. When it is figured that the profit runs as high as 350 per cent. it is easy to see why the druggist is giving his attention to the soda fountain.

A Scientific Post Office.

The big new post office on Eighth Avenue, opposite the Pennsylvania Station, is now ready for its formal opening. The building cost about $6,000,000, and is not only the largest but the finest of its kind in the world. The facilities for handling immense quantities of mail matter there, with lightning speed and under constant supervisio of the most thorough-going and effective kind, will be unsupassed by any other postal building. The building is second in size only to the Pennsylvania Station and the Grand Central Station in this city. It is five stories high, and takes in two city blocks. The exterior is of pink granite and there are some 165,000 cubic feet of granite in the building. Behind this are walls of tarnctural steel. It is the most lightsome building in the City, 200,000 square feet of glass being used to make it so. There are 400,000 square feet of working space within. There is no part of the building where mail is handled which is not covered by a protective overhead inspection system. The secret passageways, half a mile in lngth and all connected, have another use as well, however, as ventilating ducts. A temperaure of 70 degrees will always h maintained in them. It is estimated that about 5,000,000 pieces of mail will be handled each day under the eyes of inspectors travelling to and fro in the overhead galleries.

$25 an Hour for Dancing.

Th earnings of professional exponents of the modern dance is a theme of discussion over the dancing tea tables these days. One hears figures mentioned that seems almost incredible. It is an actual fact that a New York couplo well known in New York hotels and cabarets recently received a fee of $600 to go to Philadlphia and give one night's performance at the home of a well-known society woman in the Quaker City. When the tango and other modern dances first came into vogue teachers could be had at a little advance over the old rates charged by the dancing masters. And when it was announced two years ago that oe well-known New York teacher was giving lessons in the new dancing at $25 an hour, New York gasped in astonishment, and the rest of the country stood up in wonder. Now the number of these teachers has grown to large proportions, but their rates have not decreased in the least. Some of these teachers are able to hire the ball rooms of the leading hotels along Broadway and Fifth Avenue in which to give lessons to their pupils. It is hardly necessary to say that the classes are made up of only those men and women who have well filled pocket books. It is estimated on pretty good authority that Gotham is spending not less han $50,000 a day in order to learn how to dance the modern dances.

A WOMAN'S WAY OF LOOKING AT IT

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—As a woman, I was much interested in the meeting of the ladies' deputation with the police officials; and I'm afraid that they won't get their police woman. But I am proud of the pluck they showed in discussing delicate subjects boldly, but yet delicately. They must have worked hard to get the information together, and it must be discouraging that they are not able to look forward to the backing of the official authorities.

While I am not a public character, inclined or able to step from my domestic circle to make speeches in public, and I may not have much right to find fault, but in reading the reports of the meeting it seemed to me that there was only one woman acting the good Samaritan, Mrs. McIlhenny of the Salvation Army. The Army, I may say, and we all know, does a good deal of drum beating, but it also does more than its share as compared with other religious bodies, of quiet, good work in the Lord's way—without letting the right hand know what the left is doing. It struck me that this lady was the only one of the two dozen or so women at the meeting that was doing something besides talk, in the way of helping ruined girls. She has had a betrayed girl in her home for four weeks, sacrificing much in doing the work of the Lord. This is something real, something that tells. If each of the twenty-five or thirty ladies at the meeting would do the same, what good would be done. She didn't wait for and agitate for a rescue home, she made her home one. She saw her duty and did it. She found a girl friendless, betrayed and outcast, and like the Good Samaritan, she took her in.

I often hear that women are not practical like men, but they can be if they like, like the lady who has had a girl in trouble at her home for a month. I know what the answer will be, that these other ladies can't open their homes to the girls in trouble—it would be too much of a sacrifice. But to my mind, service to the Lord is not acceptable, if it is only easy and if no sacrifice is called for. That is the way it looks to me, but I am only a hard-working housekeeper, careful and troubled about many things like another.

Directors' Report.

The report of the directors was read by Mr. E. A. Peck for Mr. Moore, as follows:

As proposed and recommended a year ago, the new gates and fences of a permanent character at the entrance of the cemetery have been erected during the past year, and your directors believe they will be found to possess in a very considerable degree a character of elegance and distinction, and to harmonize with the adjacent beautiful burial grounds. As will be remembered, the corner stone was, with befitting ceremony, laid on the 8th day of July last. It had been intended that a new fence would be erected on the west and south limits of the cemetery adjoining Haggart Streets, last year, but this was deferred to the present. In view of the fact that the old fence is generally in a bad condition, it is expected by your directors that the matter of a new fence will be given earnest and early consideration by the incoming Board.

The grounds where the old wooden buildings stood in the cemetery have been cleared, levelled and put in lawn, and the appearance of the grounds at this point has been much improved.

A large amount of cinders were obtained during the past summer and spread on the driveways and thoroughly rolled in. This has been of decided advantage, and may, your directors think, be continued.

Debentures for $2,500 have been paid off and a new debenture for $2,000 obtained by the Company. Your directors recommend the purchase of a debenture for $1,000.

Your directors are assured that a good showing for the year's operations generally on the grounds has been made, and it has been gratifying to them to frequently hear favourable comment upon the beauty of the cemetery from all using it or taking an interest in its good appearance.

Superintendent's Report.

Mr. Wise presented his report as follows:

Gentlemen,—The past year has been a very busy one in your Cemetery. A great amount of new work having been undertaken, an outline of which I give below.

In the first place the grounds wherein the old stable and sheds stood were cleaned up, graded and seeded. This is the first step towards beautifying the lavely Lake Shore Drive, which, when once completed, will be one of the most beautiful sections of a system of boulevard drivs which I trust will b shortly undertaken by our City.

The gateway composed of Standstead granite walls and pillars and ornamental wrought iron fence and gates is a fitting monument to the beautiful grounds within. A great amount of pains was taken to make the foundations for the walls substantial. These are built of concrete four feet six inches deep, running to eleven feet at the lake shore, reinforcing iron being put in at this point to guard against the uncertainty of the lake shore bottom. About 200 lineal feet of lake shore outside the gates on the north side was graded and sodded, and a concrete curb was constructed around all grass lots at this point, the whole now omplete making a most substantial as well as beautiful entrance.

About one hundred and forty loads of cinders have been used on the roadways, and as these cinders, mixed with hardpan clay and sand, and rolled, make good roadways, I would recommend that enough be secured to put all the roadways in good condition.

About two hundred and fifty feet of eight inch tile drain was laid in Section N, emptying into the open drain in the south west part of the Cemetery. This was found necessary owing to a clay bank damming back the water in the spring.

Some fifteen pine trees have been taken out in Section O, so that another block of lots can be graded and laid out, as this land will be required in a short time for burial purposes.

Owing to the condition of the fence on Haggart Street, it will be necessary to replace it with a fence that will be in keeping with the new gateway. When this is done, practically all permanent works will be completed for some years to come.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Toronto, Oct. 13, 1913.—This is to certify that I was almost a cripple from corns. I had given up all hope of ever being relieved of my trouble. I had almost lost the use of my right leg, it was almost paralized from a corn on my little toe, the pain was unbearable, I could not rest night or day for it. I was worn out, and as some would say, was all in. I called on Prof. Mulveney, 384 Water street, got a remedy from him, followed the directions and now I am rejoicing because life now is worth living, the corns are gone and I am a new man. I have used his remedy called B'Well and Rheumaticide and can well recommend them. Take my advice if you are crippled with corns, waste no time but call on Prof. R. L. Mulveney, 387 Water Street.

Competition For The Senatorship

Toronto is Making a Strong Bid for the Vacancy Created by the Death of the Late Senator Cox

OTTAWA, Jan. 20.— It is probable that the vacancy in the Senate, caused by the death of Senator George A. Cox will be filled within a reasonably short time. The gossip about the corridors mentions W. R. Brock, ex-M.P., and Charles Ritchie, K.C.

There is, however, an agitation that the new appointee should not be a Toronto man, inasmuh as that city still has five Senators: Sir George Ross, Sir Lyman Melvin Jones and Senators Jaffray, Kerr and Mason.

Major Beattie, M.P., of London, is being boomed by a section of the Conservative members, while Peterborough will make strong representations that the honour should go there.

Outside of Toronto there are six senatorships in the west and twelve in the east of the province, and it is being urged that the new man should come from the former district, in the event of any one outside the City of Toronto being selected.

A POINT OF ETIQUETTE.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—Police Magistrate Dumble made a very cogent remark during his speech on the occasion of the Women's Delegation to the Police Commissioners on the police woman question.

"In regard," said he, "to men accosting women, that implies bad manners."

Very true! In strict etiquette no man who understands good manners should first accost or acknowledge a lady—unless they are on very intimate terms. And no lady who pretends or professes to understand "good manners," would expect the gentleman to make the first approach on meeting, say on the street even if fairly well acquainted with her. It is for her to acknowledge him first, not for him to first acknowledge her.

This point of etiquette does not appear to be generally known, or at least properly understood, in Peterborough, for it is not often acted on.

And this question becomes all the more emphatic when two persons of the opposite sexes have become estranged, and it has become a case of "we never look or speak as we pass by." In this case especially—unless the couple have been very intimate friends previously—it is for the lady to make the first acknowledgment assuming, of course, that she may be willing or desirous of the breach being healed. It would be bad form again for the man to make first advances on the street.—Yours, etc.,

One Who Respects the Womanly Woman.

Prayer Beads For City Council

Special Wire to The Examiner:

KINGSTON, ONT., Jan. 20. — At the city council meeting last night, the mayor and aldermen each received a set of prayer beads from a local bookseller, who said it occurred to him they could pray with one hand in the city pockets and pound their desks with the other. He also reminded them that years ago he sent each member of the city council a copy of the ten commandments which he regretted to say, all had broken several times since.

THE FARMER OUTSTRIPS HIS CITY COUSIN

Can Sit on the Fence and Watch the Postman Coming Up the Road —Rural Mail for the Back Forty

OUR LOCAL DIVISION

The arm of rural mail delivery is ever stretching out to new territory. Each day its fingers grasps a little more and a little more, until the entire Province almost is lined with rows and rows of boxes, each on its post before the farmhouse gate.

What is the result? The farmer has well outstripped his city cousin. He has his auto, he has his telephone, and his gramaphone. Why should he not have his mail brought up to the front door, the same as they do in the city? He is even better off in this respect than are the village residents, for "the new post office" is often situated at the other end of the town, and all mail must be called for. But now Jennie or Mary can sit on the fence and wait for the postman coming up the road, with a smile on days that are fruitful, and a point of disappointment when he fares to pass her by in neglect.

The system of mail delivery extends over a great many parts of the Dominion. There are as many as 19 divisions, as they are called, in Canada. In the Province of Ontario there are four of these districts. They are denoted by the names London, Toronto, Ottawa and North Bay.

A 20-mile Run.

To get down to our own division of Toronto. This is bounded on the east by Northumberland and Peterborough, on the north by North Bay, on the western part by Bruce, and on the south-westerly portion by Brant County. Toronto division is one of the best equipped, and established with the rural service. It has 8,500 miles of service, and these are divided into 99 different routes. A route in the country is worked very much like a route in the city. It is gone over once every day. It extends in general for a distance of 20 miles, though it may run anywhere from 12 miles to as much as 30 miles. A courier will cover one of these routes at the rate of some four miles per hour, so that a 20-mile route will take him five hours. The rate of speed varies of course, according to the condition of the road and the season of the year.

On Concession Road.

It is the rule when constructing a new rural mail route to follow, where possible, the concession roads throughout the country. There are several reasons for doing this. Houses in the heart of the farm district as a rule face on to the concession road. The concession road is kept up better, and is laid out more uniformly.

In a district contemplating the establishment of mail delivery, it is required that 50 per cent. of the eligible residents sign a petition to open the route, and the place must be contiguous to a well-defined main thoroughfare. If a single farmer wants to be added to the list of those who enjoy the privileges he is required to fill out a form to that effect. All that is asked in the way of expense or taxation is that he pay $3, which sum pays for the box. If special application be made to the postmaster of the distribution office, it is possible to use one box for the accommodation of one, two or three families, but no more than three. Generally each farmer has his own private chute.

Carries Postage Stamps.

As regards postage, the postman carries around with him an abundance of stamps, sufficient to supply all hands. The rules tell him he is supposed to be able to supply a customer with as much as 50 cents' worth of stamps, and to have enough left to accommodate another man to a similar extent. Sometimes letters are mailed from one point to another on the same route without going into the city or town. Such mail is designated "drop" letters, and postage on these is charged at the rate of two cents per ounce or a fraction thereof.

How They Are Addressed.

The address on rural letters must include the name, route number, and the post office of the recipient, in the following manner:

John Jones,
Rural Route No. 675.
— P.O.

Parcel Post Next.

Will the rural mail system aid in disseminating and in augmenting the effect of an enlarged system of parcels post? It has been stated so, and the two combined have been assigned the destiny of eliminating one species of the "middleman." He is the small town grocer, the cross roads general merchandise dealer, and all such like. Arguments on every side have been taken and vouched for. Certainly the rural inhabitant is pretty well connected up with the city. The system of delivering letters and parcels throughout the farm lands is constantly growing better and more expensive, and every day new routes are being opened up. It is whispered that the rural mail delivery system is being fully taken into consideration by those who are working on the new adjunct of Canadian parcels post.

BRING THE CHILDREN

AROUND THE RED PLUSH CHAIR

Alderman Green remarked that the people did not elect the Council for the purpose of providing a skating rink. Apparently this is the spirit that has always existed around the red plush chair.

Public bathing places or even one supervised swimming location should come under the jurisdiction of the Council. But with miles of water front, with every natural facility, nothing has yet been done in this regard.

Mr. Hainsworth, of the Y.M.C.A., practically offered to provide a qualified supervisor for a public bathing place if the city would do the rest. In the light of the Big Brothers' recent experience the Y.M.C.A. should be cautious in any future offers. They might be asked to take over the whole matter of preparing public swimming facilities.

A committee meeting is a place where the City Fathers think out aloud. Business houses that hold conferences of their staffs nowadays notify the members of the subjects to be dealt with. One result is that a certain amount of thought is given to the questions before the meetings.

Several complaints were heard last night of the failure of snow plough contractors to make the rounds. With no demands from the first half of the winter surely the men might make an extra trip during the heavy precipitations of late.

A "biff-bang" administration may be dashing and all that sort of stuff, but impulsiveness grates upon those who look for caution, wisdom and good judgment.

The next time the 57th Band practices on a Council meeting night they should play the Dance of the Marionettes.

Who will deny that the perspective of women is not a brightening warp in the woof of public activities.

Two Addresses At The Next Meeting

Astrononomical Society to Meet on Monday, Jan. 26th

There will be two fifteen minute addresses, interspersed with vocal and violin selections of more than usual merit at the next meeting of the local Astronomical Society in the Collegiate Assembly Hall Monday evening.

Mr. Firth of the Collegiate staff will give an address on "The Ice Age in Canada." This address will be of great interest to us. The topography of our country largely owes its present appearance to that period and then the very interesting fact that the centres of the activity of the glacial period were not found to centre at the pole. All this and much more will be fully explained by Mr. Firth, who is well able to handle this subject.

Mr. Milligan of the Review editorial staff, who is also a keen student of the sciences, will give an address on gravitation, "The Basic Principle of Force."

This part of scientific thought reads almost like a romance. Everything no matter how apparently still it may appear, is in motion. One scientist has said that there is a possibility of there being a system, fully as complete as our solar system, to be found in the smallest atoms of matter.

If this is possible, how infinitely multiplied would be the wonders of creation.

These two gentlemen, varied by such artists as Mrs. R. W. Davidson, Miss L. Logan and others, should make an evening not to be lightly missed. There will be no charge. Everybody welcome.

Mourning In England Over Strathcona

Special Cable to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Jan. 20.—Owing to the serious illness of Lord Strathcona the state ball at Government House, which was to have taken place tomorrow evening, has been postponed until Jan. 29th. This official statement has just been given out.

A Special Meeting of Court Stanley A. O. F. is called for To-night to arrange for the funeral of our late Brother Arthur Telford.

IS NEARING THE END

Lord Strathcona is at Death's Door

LONDON, Jan. 20. (Bulletin).—This evening the physicians report that Lord Strathcona is unconscious and nearing the end.

LONDON, ENG., Jan. 20. (Special Cable.)—London watches over Strathcona's dying bed as the nations watch over the death of kings. The news this morning that all hope must be abandoned, has aroused innumerable expressions of sorrow. London claims a share of him with Canada. His greatness, his romantic career, his overwhelming personality, are told this noon in every underground train, every 'bus, every luncheon room. The stalwart quick moving figure has been prominent and admired in London for years. If the hand of death lays hold this time, his face and form will be much missed from the hub of the empire. It is recalled that his face lost its usual smile after the death of Lady Strathcona this summer.

DOCTOR SAID HE HAD DIABETES

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CLEARED OUT EVERY TRACE OF IT

That's why Mr. David Heon of Nicolet Co., Quebec, is recommending the great Canadian Kidney Remedy to his Neighbors.

St. Wenceslas, Nicolet Co., Que., Jan. 19. — (Special.)—"I started to take Dodd's Kidney Pills because the doctor told me I was threatened with diabetes. After taking ten boxes I was again examined by the doctor, and he told me all trace of diabetes had disappeared."

This is the statement of Mr. David Heon, well known and highly respected here, and he is only one of many in this neighborhood who have found a new lease of life in the great Canadian remedy.

It is cures such as this that have given Dodd's Kidney Pills their reputation. They are now known from the Atlantic to the Pacific as the remedy that never fails to cure kidney disease, no matter where or in what form it is found.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are no cure-all. They simply cure diseased kidneys. The reason they cure backache, dropsy, rheumatism, neuralgia, diabetes, urinary troubles and Bright's Disease is that all of these are either diseases of the kidneys or are caused by disordered kidneys failing to do their work.

TO PREVENT TRAIN NOISES

Delegation from the Canadian Union of Municipalities Wait Upon The Railway Board To-day

LEVEL CROSSINGS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Jan. 20.—A representative delegation of the Canadian Union of Municipalities waited upon Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways, this morning, and presented certain proposed amendments to the Railway Act, dealing especially with railways passing through large towns and cities. There were present the Minister, Chairman H. L. Drayton of the Railway Commission and many local representatives. Further restrictions were desired to prevent indiscriminate shunting and whistling of engines adn trains in the residential districts. "It is simply amazing how often residents are forced to listen to the shrieking of whistles and the ringing of bells even where the tracks are depressed," said one delegate; "it has become a habit with the trainmen and they don't know when they are doing it."

"Would you stop them whistling and shunting?" asked the Minister.

"They could use smaller whistles and smaller bells in the cities," suggested Mr. Lighthall.

The delegation further protested against the municipalities being forced to pay the cost of the protection or elimination of level crossings where the Board of Railway Commissioners found that such crossings should be eliminated or protected. The Railway Companies should pay the costs.

The delegation urged strongly that there should be no discrimination in the matter of granting commutation tickets to various outlying towns. Where density of population and circumstances were similar discrimination should be forbidden. It was further urged that companies should be forced to bury wires and pay the expenses of so doing.

The Minister promised that the proposals should receive his earnest consideration.

Opposition To Workmen's Compensation

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Jan. 20.—The reception room of the parliament buildings was crowded this morning, when several of the ministers of the government, headed by Hon. I. B. Lucas, heard various antagonistic views expressed regarding the Workmen's Compensation Act. "We have taken the matter up with the merchants throughout the province. I have a pile of petitions asking that certain clauses be left out of this Act altogether," said Mr. Trowern, of the Retail Merchants' Association, who spoke first. "It is not proposed to bring the retail trade in," said Hon. Mr. Lucas. Mr. J. W. Ellis appeared for the manufacturers. "The manufacturers have long felt that there should be some systematized method of compensating workmen," he said. Many features of our draft submitted to Sir Wm. Meredith were embodied in the present one, but in such a way that they were practically nullified. Mr. Ellis then read a list of twenty objections to the Act in its present form, as compiled by the Manufacturers' committee from various parts of Ontario.

Oddfellows Hold Delightful "At Home"

A very delightful "At Home" was held last evening under the auspices of the Independent Order of Oddfellows in their hall, George Street. City League Games Are Postponed

The Junior City Hockey League games, scheduled for Wednesday night, have been postponed until next week, owing to the Bowmanville-Peterborough intermediate fixture. At one time it appeared that there might be trouble brewed over the delay, but thanks to the tact of President Maher, the little difficulties have been removed. Smith, Knapman and Darling of the Y. M. C. A. team go with the Junior O. H. A. bunch to Kingston on Friday night and the Mercantile games are to be played on Thursday night. It was felt that with two O. H. A. games on Tuesday and Wednesday nights the local fans would be filled up with hockey.

The City League has a genuine tidbit in the Y.M.C.A.—Boston Exploits game and a big crowd is expected. These boys play first-class hockey and a tight little contest may be expected; and the Wanderer—Alert game should be equally interesting. Both these teams are coming strong, and will give the leaders a battle before the last word has been said.

Just when prospects for the Alerts were looking exceptionally bright along came the gloomy intelligence that parental objection will keep Legendre out of the rest of the games. The former St. Michael's student was a big strength to the team and one of the fastest players in the League. The Alerts will have difficulty in filling his place.

The spirit that the League is trying to foster was exemplified by the President of the Wanderers. Hugh Stewart played on the wing line for the East City seven in their first game, but against the "Y" he was down in the timekeepers' box. "We have got a man that looks better than I," was his explanation of the change. One or two others in the League might take a tip from this action.

Mr. C. G. Graham has promised the Secretary to hunt up the silverware that rests somewhere in Lakefield. "I'll get it if it can be located; if not I will get another one," he said.

Women better care for their neighbor's opinion, whether they care for their neighbor or not.

UNDER THE SICHE GAS

Five of the scheduled games were played at the Curling Rink last night. The sixth went to J. H. Renwick by default, H. Foote, his opponent being under the weather since the Lindsay tournament. The results were as follows:

Two rinks went to Lindsay to-day for the Ontario Tankard games. They were constituted as follows: T. F. Matthews, W. M. Lang, T. Brightman, J. E. A. Fitzgerald, skip; and F. Hughes, G. Boucher, A. Moore, Jas. Comal, skip.

To-night the rinks are open to all members.

On Wednesday afternoon and evening a points competition will be open to all the members. R. M. Waddell is the prize donor.

The attendance at the rink these nights bespeaks great enthusiasm among the Peterborough curlers. There is usually a gallery to follow the game or take a hand in the radiator league.

Deputation At Ottawa

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Jan. 20.—A deputation from Peterborough waited upon Hon. R. L. Borden this morning to press the claims of Mr. Jas. Kendry as an aspirant for the Senate. The deputation was introduced by Mr. J. H. Burnham, and was cordially received by the Premier, who promised to give the matter due consideration. The deputation in company with Mr. Burnham, also saw the Minister of Agriculture in regard to the establishment of a model farm near Peterborough. The prospects are good.

Business Notes

The old reliable jewellery firm of Frank Schneider & Co., after a thorough inventory since the new year, is congratulating itself on the results of their holiday trade and the marked advance in sales. Not only this, but the prompt cash-paying feature of their trade has gave further evidence of its satisfactory character. Mr. Schneider reports that holiday buying began earlier and kept up steadily all through December and on into January.

Readjustment of stocks is the order of the day. Some of the best values of the winter are now being offered by a number of leading houses. Merrill & Meredith have a clean stock of winter overcoats and suits to offer the men at savings worthy of inspection. For instance, they have grouped their $10 to $11 and $12 overcoats, and ticketed them at a uniform price of $7.90 each—a very substantial reduction.

Another merchant who is particularly well satisfied with last year's trade is Mr. D. M. Minicola, grocer and fruit merchant, George Street. His sales have substantially increased, and his credit accounts are giving him no uneasiness. He has recently added an overhead private office, which is proving very convenient to his customers as well as himself.

"We're off to a good start," said Mr. C. B. Routley yesterday. "Our December trade was somewhat of a surprise, partly because it began earlier and lasted longer, and partly because of the steady nature of the shipping—keeping as busy nearly all the time, and did not come in such rushes." Mr. Routley is busy paring down prices, some of his offerings in dinner and tea sets being quite surprising values.

The new hardware business of H. P. Morgan will shortly be opened in the stand next door to the Bank of Nova Scotia. The store is being conveniently fitted out for the new stock to be carried. Mr. Morgan will specialize in some lines.

Stock Markets

A. H. Stratton & Co., brokers, report fluctuations in New York stocks to-day as follows:

To-morrow will probably continue to display cross currents, irregularity and the usual backing and filling natural to and coincident with a waiting market on a trading area. The President's trust message is in the front of dominating interest at present, and it will be closely read and digested, not only here but abroad.

On reactions we believe good buying will be found in the standard issues. The maintenance of a good tone and technique is probably due to the returning confidence and investment demand, together with the selling of stock exchange seats which is having a very benefical effect on sentiment generally. Information channels are partial to Reading. It should not be climbed after. U.P. may be taken on reactions. The buying of St. Paul, S.P., continues good.

THEORY ACCEPTED

PLYMOUTH, ENG., Jan. 20. — Although lighters continued to drag for traces of Submarine A7 there is no trace, and the theory that she was swallowed up in the quicksands is now generally accepted. Commander Hamilton Gordon was found dead today, apparently a suicide, aboard his vessel, H.M.S. Thrasher, which assisted in the unsuccessful search for the missing submarine. It is supposed that he felt in some way responsibility for the death of his comrades.

A PECULIAR MISTAKE IN PRINTING BALLOTS

A peculiar mistake occurred in the ballots tat were printed for the recent elections in the Township of Otonabee. There were two candidates for the position of Deputy Reeve. The two names that should have appeared in this column on the ballot were transposed with the two first names of the gentlemen who were running for the Council. An explanation had to be made when each ballot was handed out in order that the proper vote might be taken. The mistake occurred in the printing of the ballot as the copy sent to the printer was correct.

PETES KEEP UP THEIR PROCESSION TOWARDS THE GROUP CHAMPIONSHIP

Beat Cobourg on Their Own Ice 6 to 4 Last Night and Materially Increased Their Chances for the Title.

A HARD FOUGHT GAME

The Peterborough Intermediates increased their lead in the group race last night when they beat Cobourg on the latter's ice 6 goals to 4, leading at the half by 4 to 1. In accomplishing this feat they beat the best team they have met this year. Cobourg had a world of speed and, although considerably shaded in the first half, came back in the second period and made things decidedly interesting. It was one grand battle with both teams going at top speed. Good goal keeping, pretty individual rushes, neat combination dashes, all the features of good hockey kept the crowd on its toes from start to finish, and there were few dull moments. In spite of the fast pace the game was clean, the few penalties handed out being for minor offences. The ice was fast at first but speedily grew sticky causing frequent over-skating of the rubber, but in spite of the handicap the players never stopped going.

Two hundred and fifty enthusiastic supporters accompanied the Peterborough team on the special train which left here at 7 o'clock, and they made their presence felt in the rink every time the Petes pulled off a good play. Cobourg fans turned out en masse, and as there was a big delegation over from Port Hope, standing room was at a premium.

The Petes played their best hockey of the season—in fact they had to in order to win. They had all kinds of speed and pepper, and showed more team work than in any previous game, effective passing being responsible for most of the goals. Janes performed brilliantly in the nets. He had a lot of work, especially in the second half, and did it well. Bond and Denison checked most effectively, keeping the Burgs shooting from outside, while "Dennies" rushing was in his old-time style. Time after time he came winging down the ice going right away from the Cobourg forwards, and they had a big job trying to stop him. Every one was going strong on the forward line. Giroux checked and rushed nicely. Kelly and Bradshaw shone on the wings, and Park was right on the job in centre, getting five goals by acurate and quick shooting.

For Cobourg Patton in goal—Duckett on the defence and Freeman, the little left-wing man, were the stars. Patton made some sensational stops, and Duckett checked hard and relieved cleverly on rushes. Freeman was the speed merchant of the team, tearing down the ice like a mad man. He had little assistance from the other forwards, however, and found difficulty in getting through by himself.

"Chad" Thoms, of Toronto, handled the game most satisfactorily.

The teams were:

Cobourg.		Peterborough.
Patton	Goal	Janes
Duckett	Right defence	Denison
Payne	Left defence	Bond
Lavis	Rover	Giroux
Crowther	Centre	Park
Cunningham	Right Wing	Bradshaw
Freeman	Left wing	Kelly

The ice was hard at the go-in and the game opened at a furious clip.

The Petes started with a rush but Patton headed off the shot and Duckett relieved with a nice jaunt. He was wrecked on the Peterborough defence but Freeman followed in and scored from the side, giving Cobourg the first goal of the game.

Back came the Petes with a bang, and Patton had his hands full. Denison got right inside on a beautiful rush, but Patton turned away the shot, after which he blocked a dangerous one from Park's stick. Then Crowther came down and Janes jumped into the lime-light with a regat stop of a bullet shot. The Petes came back and pressed hard, Bradshaw finally tying the score on a pretty shot which landed in the top corner of the nets.

With the score even it was a hammer and tongs battle. Cunningham and Freeman broke away together and got right inside, but Janes came out and spoiled the shot and the tide of battle turned the other way. The blue and white team took the lead in three minutes when Park took Patton's measure on a pass from the corner by Kelly.

Lavis tripped Park as the latter was making a rush and drew the first penalty of the game. The Petes made things interesting for Patton for the next few minutes and he turned half a dozen shots aside. Then Denison and Park pulled off the prettiest play of the night. "Dennie" tore down in one of his old-time rushes, drew the Cobourg defence out and then passed over to Park who sailed in unopposed and easily beat Patton for the Petes' third goal.

The blue and white were decidedly the better team at this stage and only Patton's good work averted a bigger score. The Lake Shore bunch were tearing off some pretty rushes but the Petes made them shoot from outside and the long distance heaves were easy for Janes. Park made it 4 to 1 on a pass from Kelly, and the figure remained at that until half time.

The ice had grown very sticky by the time the second half was reached, but the pace showed little sign of letting up. Denison had his head hanged on the ice when he collided with Duckett in an attack on the Cobourg nets, but he stayed in the game. A few minutes after he got right inside after a brilliant rush, and after pulling Patton outside passed to Kelly who lost the rubber in front of the open net. Giroux got the gate for attempting to elbow Freeman. Park made it 5 to 1 when he slammed in a goal on a pass from Bradshaw. It looked easy for the Petes at this period. Park was sentenced for slashing and Duckett followed him to the side for tripping. Cobourg began to come fast and Janes showed his class a dozen times. Finally, however, Freeman poked one through from a scrimmage at the mouth of the nets.

The goal seemed to act like a spur on the Cobourg squad, and both the team and the crowd woke up. Led by Freeman the Lake Shore bunch buzzed around like bees, and they made things decidedly interesting. In two minutes they secured another on a shot from Freeman. The Petes disputed the goal and had the umpire removed, but the score was counted, nevertheless, and it was 5 to 3, with Cobourg working their heads off.

The Petes rallied and a minute after Park worked his way inside the defence and beat Patton, leaving the score 6 to 3.

Back came Cobourg, and in forty seconds Cunningham had scooped one in from a scrimmage.

This was the last score of the game, the Petes holding the lead until the finish. Both teams had chances to score, but Patton and Janes killed off the shots and there was no more work for the goal-umpires.

The summary follows:

1—Cobourg, Freeman—2 mins.
2—Peterborough, Bradshaw—7 mins
3—Peterborough, Park, assisted by Kelly—5 mins.
4—Peterborough, Park, assisted by Denison—6 mins.
5—Peterborough, Park, assisted by Kelly—8 mins.
Half time.
6—Peterborough, Park, assisted by Bradshaw—4 mins.
7—Cobourg, Freeman—15 mins.
8—Cobourg, Freeman—3 mins.
9—Peterborough, Park—1 min.
10—Cobourg, Cunningham—40 secs.

Fast Junior Game At Brock Street Rink To-night Port Hope Team Here

The game to-night at Brock Street Rink between the Port Hope and Peterborough Juniors should be another of those hard-fought, classy junior battles that fans have learned to enjoy so much in the past few years. Peterborough managed to beat Port Hope in the Lake Shore town, on Friday night, but it was a tight squeeze and they will not have any dairy lunch proposition on their hands to-night, as the Hopers are coming up confident of reversing the situation. The young Petes have hit their stride now, and say they are going to follow the example set by the Intermediates, after losing the first game, by nailing the others. Joe Dwyer has decided to turn out and the presence of an experienced goal keeper will steady the team and give them confidence. He may be used in to-night's game and will be in the battle against Kingston on Friday night. A shift in the line-up will be tried to-night. Halpin will go back to the defence while Knapman will be used at rover and Long at right wing. Knapman is fast but a little light for the wing position, and the shift to centre ice should benefit him. The team will line up as follows with the game called at 8.15 o'clock.

Goal—Darling or Dwyer.
Right defence—Halpin.
Left defence—Richardson.
Rover—Knapman.
Centre—Rose.
Right wing—Long.
Left wing—Barrie.

BIG CHANGES MADE IN THE CANADIAN LEAGUE

Berlin Franchise Goes to Toronto and the Guelph Franchise Will Be Transferred to Erie, Pa.

A CLASS B LEAGUE

TORONTO, Jan. 20.—By far the most important gathering of the Canadian League since its inception was that here yesterday afternoon. The Berlin franchise was transferred to Toronto, the Guelph franchise was placed in Erie, Pa., the league was raised to Class B from Class C, and the Hamilton club was sold to George O'Neill of London, who is also the owner of the Erie franchise.

Before the meeting "Knotty" Lee sold his interest in the Hamilton club to George Burns of Toronto, who thus secured control of two-thirds of the stock. Mr. O'Neill then bought the interests of Burns and M. M. Robinson of Hamilton. The purchase price was $8,000. Mr. O'Neill is understood to have been acting for a Hamilton syndicate. A joint stock company will be formed in that city.

Nothing was said of the transfer of the Berlin franchise to Niagara Falls. Ostensibly it will be exercised in this city to combat the Federals should they invade this territory.

The season will open on Wednesday, May 6, and close on Labour Day, thus adding a week to the schedule. The name of Eddie Holly was mentioned in connection with the management of the Toronto team. The tone of the meeting was of the utmost optimism. Much satisfaction was expresser at the settlement of the Hamilton club's difficulties, the owners having been at loggerheads for a year or more.

President Fitzgerald was in the chair, and the following delegates were present: London, S. Stevely; Erie, G. O'Neill; St. Thomas, C. O. Stanley; Hamilton, G. Lee, J. Burns and M. M. Robinson; Brantford, T. J. Nelson and Ray Brown; Toronto, P. Kerwin and E. McCafferty; Peterborough, W. H. Denham and E. Carr; Ottawa, F. Shaughnessy.

Jack White Or Blount May Be Petes' Leaders During Coming Season

The question of who is to be manager of the Peterborough Baseball Club for 1914 will probably be decided to-morrow. With the transformation of the League into a Class B organization. Managers of the calibre of Geo. Ort and Rube Deneau have dropped into the discard and bigger men in the baseball world are being considered. Just now the choice seems to be between Jack White, the former Toronto and Buffalo outfielder, and Curley Blount, manager of the Youngstown team last year. Blount lifted the Youngstown team to the top in one year ,and is very highly recommended by baseball authorities. He is an outfielder, still a young player, fast, a .300 hitter, a fine leader, and with a string of players at his command. White is also highly recommended and his record in the Eastern League defies criticism. The local directors expect to close the matter to-morrow.

The Mercantile Hockey League

Will Play Off Games Scheduled for Last Night on Thursday Next

The Mercantile Hockey League performed a grateful act in postponing their three games scheduled for last night in order to give all their hockey fans an opportunity of supporting the O. H. A. at Cobourg. The games which, under ordinary conditions, would have been played at the Brock Street Rink last night, will be played off on Thursday evening. By this arrangement the schedule for Monday, January 26th, and subsequent nights will not be materially interfered with.

BASEBALL

"Left" Tyler drops a hint that the Boston Braves will have to come across with more money or he will jump to the Feds.

Mique Finn, the Memphis manager, tried to sign Harry Bemis, the old Cleveland catcher, but Bemis wanted too much money.

Dr. W. L. "Buck" Pressly, who managed the Roanoke team in the Virginia league last season, has signed to pilot Norfolk in the same organization.

What's the use of talking about Tommy Leach doing any jumping? Tom is so old that the Feds would have to wheel him into the new league.

Very few ball players have to work so hard to keep down their weight as does "Hack" Engle of the Red Sox. With "Hack" it's a case of training all winter. Right now he is down in Maine wearing out snowshoes and skis.

Pitcher Edgar Willett, of the Detroit Tigers, has put one over on the golfing ball players. Edgar has been playing on the same links as President Wilson at the Mississippi Country Club. Yes, sir, the very same links.

The New England league has dropped Brockton, Fall River and New Bedford and formed a new circuit, with clubs in Worcester, Lawrence, Lowell, Lynn, Fitchburg and Haverhill, Mass., and Portland and Lewiston, Me.

Manager O'Neil, of the Utica New York State league team, believes he has landed three stars in Moore, Harly and Higgins, of the Lincoln, Ill., team. Moore led the Illinois-Missouri league sluggers last season, with a batting average of .440.

Sh! Close the door. An Eastern scribe has exposed the baseball record of Governor Tener, the new president of the National League, and of Bancroft Johnson, the American league boss. Spouteth the scribe: "Where do Tener and Johnson fit in making a holler against the Federal league invasion? Tener jumped the Chicago team to the Brotherhood in the early '90s and Johnson led the raid on the National league ten years later." Mum's the word.

Oshawa Lost At Belleville

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 20. — Oshawa intermediates were defeated by Belleville last night by a score of 6 to 4. The game was one of the fastest witnessed here for some time. Considerable combination and very clever stick-handling were shown by the players of both teams.

LADIES CURLING ON MONDAY MORNING

Two rinks of the Ladies' Curling Club played at the rink yesterday morning, as follows:

Miss Collins	Miss Harstone
Mrs. A. Hall	Mrs. Eastwood
Miss Dennis	Mrs. Hill
Mrs. Goodwill	Mrs. Ritchie
Skip 8	Skip 7
Mrs. (Dr.) Cameron	Miss Hamilton
Miss H. Davidson	Miss Irwin
Miss N. Davidson	Mrs. Sanderson
Mrs. Caulthard	Mrs. Travers
Skip 11	Skip 4

An invitation has been received from the Ladies' Curling Club at Kingston, to a bonspiel on Jan. 29.

HOCKEY.

At a meeting of the Church League last night, Mr. J. J. Thompson, of the Y.M.C.A., was authorized to arrange for the organization of a junior section of the League for boys under sixteen years. There will be a meeting at the Y.M.C.A. to-morrow night at 7.15 o'clock, and all teams interested should be represented.

MERCANTILE HOCKEY LEAGUE

A meeting of the Executive (only) of this League is hereby called for Wednesday evening next, at the office of the 'Examiner' at 7.30 o'clock sharp. Will all please be on time?

BOWMANVILLE WILL PLAY HERE TO-MORROW NIGHT

The next Intermediate game will be staged at Brock St. Rink to-morrow night, when Bowmanville will play here. With the Petes going as they are now, there will be a big crowd out to see them perform against the team fro the Rubber town. The fans dearly love a winner, and they will all be on hand for to-morrow night's game. Bowmanville have been giving them all a chase, holding Oshawa to a 3-2 score the other night, and they will not be a light lunch to-morrow night. The weather man promises fast ice, and there is every reason to expect a good game all the way. The puck will be faced at 8:15 o'clock sharp.

CASEY--AFTER 20 YEARS

(By S. P. McDonald.)

The Bugville team was surely up against a rocky game;
The chances were they'd win defeat
and un-dying fame;
Three men were hurt and two were benched, the score stood 6 to 4,
They had to make three hard-earned runs in just two innings more.

"It can't be done," the captain said,
a pallor on his face;
"I've got two pitchers in the field, a
mutt on second base;
And should another man get spiked or crippled in some way,
The team would sure be down and out, with eight men left to play.

"We're up against it anyhow as far as I can see;
My boys ain't hitting like they should and that's what worries me.
The luck is with the other side, no
pennant will we win;
It's mighty tough, but we must take our medicine and grin."

The eighth round opened—one, two,
three; the enemy went down;
The Bugville boys went out the same,
the captain wore a frown;
The first half of the ninth came
'round, two men had been put out,
When Bugville's catcher broke a thumb and could not go the route.

A deathless silence settled o'er the crowd assembled there,
Defeat would be allotted them; they felt it in the air;
With only eight men in the field
'twould be a gruesome fray,
Small wonder that the captain cursed the day he learned to play.

"Lend me a man to finish with,' he begged the other team;
"Lend you a man?" the foe replied;
"my boy, you're in a dream;
We want to win the pennant, too—
that's what we're doing here;
There's only one thing you can do—
call for a volunteer."

The captain stood and pondered in a listless sort of way;
He never was a quitter, and would not be to-day.
"Is there within the grand stand here," his voice rang loud and clear,
"A man who has the sporting blood to be a volunteer?"

Again that awful silence settled o'er
the multitude;
Was there a man among them with such recklessness imbued?
The captain stood with cap in hand,
while hopeless was his glance;
And then a short and stocky man
cried out, "I'll take a chance!"

Into the field he bounded with a step both firm and light.
"Give me the mask and mitt," he said; "let's finish up the fight!
The game is now beyond recall; I'll last at least a round;
Although I'm ancient you will find me muscular and sound."

His hair was sprinkled here and there with little streaks of grey;
Around his eyes and on his brow a bunch of wrinkles lay.
The captain smiled despairingly, and slowly turned away.
"Why, he's all right!" one rooter yelled. Another, "Let him play!"

"All right, go on," the captain sighed, the stranger turned around, Took off his coat and collar, too, and threw them on the ground.
The humour of the situation seemed to hit them all,
And as he donned the mask and mitt,
the umpire called "Play ball!"

Three balls the pitcher at him hurled,
three balls of lightning speed;
The stranger caught them all with ease and did not seem to heed;
Each ball had been pronounced a strike, the side had been put out,
And as he walked in toward the bench
he heard the rooters shout.

One Bugville boy went out on strikes and one was killed at first;
The captain saw his awkward pose,
and gnashed his teeth and cursed!
The third man smashed a double and the fourth man swatted clear,
Then, in a thunder of applause, up came the volunteer.

His feet were planted in the earth,
he swung a warlike club;
The captain saw his awkward posee
and softly whispered "Dub!"
The pitcher looked at him and grinned, then heaved a mighty ball;
The echo of that fearful swat still lingers with us all!

High, fast, and far the spheroid flew,
it sailed and sailed away;
It ne'er was found, so it's supposed it still floats on to-day.
Three runs came in, the pennant would be Bugville's for a year;
The fans and players gathered round to cheer the volunteer.

"What is your name?" the captain asked. "Tell us your name!"
cried all,
As down his cheeks great tears were seen to slowly run and fall;
For one brief moment he was still,
then murmured soft and low;
"I'm mighty Casey who struck out just twenty years ago!"

BOXING

It is said that Willie Ritchie has tucked away $50,000 since he won the lightweight title from Ad Wolgast.

Ad Wolgast's brother Johnny is to box in one of the preliminaries when the former champion meets Joe Rivers in Milwaukee next week.

Bombardier Wells is not discouraged over his recent defeat by Carpentier and is planning to take another fling at the game.

George Rodel, the Boer heavyweight, and Tom McMahon, are billed for a ten-round bout to be pulled off in Albany at the end of the month.

Now that Bob McAllister has met and defeated Battling Levinsky, the California fight fans are sure that Bob is a coming champion.

Phil Bloom, the New York lightweight, is coming along at a rapid pace. If he continues to improve he may soon be able to give the best of them a good tussle.

A certain hotel clerk in the city has a standard vocabulary that would grace an Oxford man. The following story is related by his friends:

A traveller approaching the cigar stand said: "Give me a Nobleman."

"You shall have one forthwith," replied the clerk.

"I want it right away."

"Supercilious fellow," said the clerk, as the traveller crossed the rotunda under full steam.

LATE MRS. H. B. ALLEN BURIED IN MILLBROOK

Funeral was Largely Attended—Many Floral Tributes

The funeral of the late Mrs. H. B Allen of Millbrook, sister of Mr. Robert Fair, took place on Sunday. A short service at the house was conducted by Rev. Canon Allen and afterwards the remains were removed to St. Thomas' Church, where a full funeral service was held, Canon Allen being assisted by Rev. Mr. Westmacott of Millbrook. The music was rendered by a full surpliced choir. The funeral proceeded to St. Paul's Church Cemetery, where interment took place in the family plot.

The chief mourners were Wm. Fair, father, and Robt. Fair, brother of the deceased, and three nephews, Walker, Allen and George Fair. The pallbearers were John Allen, Robt. McCamus, Chas. Needler, Robt. H. Wood, John C. Kells and Jas. McCamus.

Among those from a distance were noticed: Herbert Fair of the Canada Foundry Co., Toronto, and Dawson Fair, also of Toronto. The funeral was one of the most largely attended ever seen in the village. Many beautiful floral offerings testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held Paper circular saws have been invented which are said to work better in fine woods than steel ones.

NORTH MONAGHAN SANITATION GOOD

Drains in Byersville Should be Opened Up—Care Regarding Cesspools

At the meeting of the Board of Health for North Monaghan, in Dr. Greer's office, Monday afternoon, at two o'clock, all the members of the Board were present.

Mr. W. B. Anderson, Sanitary Inspector, was also present and reported that he had made a house to house canvass of the thickly populated parts of North Monaghan and reported that the sanitary conditions were good.

There was considerable discussion as to the drainage question in the western part of Byersville. It was the opinion of the Board that the property owners whose property the drain runs through, should open up the same so as to allow the water to get away, in the interests of public health.

In suburban districts parties contemplating cesspools should first apply to the Medical Health Officer, Dr. T. N. Greer, or the Board of Health for the township for instructions as to the requirements of the law. By so doing, the cesspools will be properly constructed.

Planet Jupiter Is Invisible

Mercury and Jupiter Will be Within Two Degrees of Each Other —Stars for the Week

To-day the planet Jupiter will be behind the sun and invisible.

On Thursday Mercury and Jupiter will be within 2 degrees of each other.

The planet Mars still shines brightly in the constellation Gemini. Mars has receded from us since the first of the month about 3,000,000 miles. This may seem a great distance, but when we remember that the earth is moving in its orbit around the sun at the rate of nearly 2,000,000 miles a day, and considerably faster than Mars, such a distance is not very great and does not noticeably dim his brightness, as he is now more than 50,000,000 miles away.

Sirius.

Sirius is the brightest star visible from here in the southern sky, about due south at 10 o'clock at night. This star was given great attention in ancient Egypt. The overflowing of the Nile was always preceded by a periodic wind answering to the monsoons, which blew from north to south about the time of the passage of the sun beneath the stars of the Crab, drove the mists to the south over the country where the Nile takes its source, causing abundant rains, and hence the floods. The greatest importance was attached to foretelling this event, so that the people might be ready with their provisions, and their places of security. The moon was of no use for this purpose, but the stars were. The morning rising of this star was a sure precursor of the inundation. It seemed to them a warning star by whose first appearance they were to be ready to move to safer places, and thus acted as a faithful dog, hence the name "Dog," "Monitor," or Egyptian "Anubis" and the "Nile Star."

No Liquor In Canal Zone

Special Wire to The Examiner:

ST. CATHARINES, Jan. 20. — The government has already decreed that no liquor shall be sold in the Canal zone and a number of Dominion policemen have been ordered to come here and patrol the zone so that the "Dry" ordinance may be strictly carried out.

CHARGE DISMISSED

John Doig, the East City junk dealer, came before His Honour Judge Huycke this morning in County Court, charged with stealing the sum of $16 from John Findlay.

The evidence went to show that Findlay and Doig lived in the same house, and a little over a month ago, Findlay got very drunk. While in this condition he gave Mrs. Doig $16 to pay for coal. She gave it to her sister to keep in her purse, and Doig demanded it from her, who gave it to him. He kept it for two months in spite of Mr. Findlay asking where it went. Doig said that he had put up a stable on Findlay's property. He (Doig) was going to move away, and took the $16 for the lumber in it The case was dismissed.

Mr. J. Wearing conducted the prosecution and Mr. G. N. Gordon the defence.

DEPUTATION IN OTTAWA

A deputation comprising Mayor Buller and a number of Aldermen are in Ottawa to-day for the purpose of presenting to the Hon. R. L. Borden, the claims of Peterborough to representation in the Canadian Senate.

"Have you always been in the show business?" I asked the six-foot-eight contortionist.

"Oh, no," he hastened to say, "I began work as a commercial traveller, and was on the road selling goods for fifteen years."

"Then what in the world put it into your head to become a contortionist?" I questioned.

"I was compelled to become one," he told me, his voice vibrant with what, I subsequently learned, was resentment over past impositions, "I was compelled to become one by the little, measly hotel beds I had to sleep in."

TO LADIES WHO LIKE GOOD HOSIERY

OUR NEW SPRING STOCK OF CASHMERE HOSIERY came on Saturday and they are certainly better than our usual 75c line.

It is made on elastic spring needles and is knit true to form without any bothersome seams.

Each pair has our own name embroidered in Cardinal Silk near the top.

They are twice the quality of last year's 50c Stocking.

The best way of showing its strength is to tell you of the test we placed them under.

Under actual measuring it stretched twice as wide as our 35c hose.

Next Wednesday we will give you a choice of any size at

Funeral Of Fire Victims

Inquest Will Be Held in Connection With the Coboconk Tragedy

COBOCONK, Jan. 20—The terrible fatality which befel the family of Mrs. Weatherby in the early hours of Saturday, the 17th, whereby six little children were cremated, has cast a deep gloom the community. The names and ages of those who lost their lives are; Corinne, aged thirteen; Dorothy, eleven; Elsworth, ten; Thelma, seven; Mildred, five, and baby Edwin, two. The fire appears to have originated in the kitchen and the family's chance of escape from the sleeping rooms, which were upstairs, was cut off by the fire reaching the stairway before any of the sleepers awakened.

A slight insurance is reported to have been carried on the dwelling, and this along with the insurance said to be on the lives of the children, will help the stricken widow in her dire misfortune.

The funeral of the victims was held on Sunday from the Oddfellow's hall, where Rev. G. W. Gaudier, Anglican minister, conducted services. The charred, remains were then taken to the cemetery for burial the hearse being preceded by the public school children, the three elder members of the family being school pupils up to ch last night of their lives.

Dr. Johnstone of Fenelon Falls was notified of the tragedy, and after enquiry deemed an inquest advisable. A jury was selected on Saturday night, and after viewing the remains the inquest was adjourned until the evening of the 26th inst.

GEORGE STREET EPWORTH LEAGUE

A debate of unusual interest was held in George Street Church on Monday evening. The subject was, "Resolved that the making of money by land speculation is worse than gambling at cards." The debate was participated in by the young peoples societies of St. Paul's Church and the George Street Church, the former having the affirmative and the latter the negative. Mr. S. Taylor opened the debate for St. Paul's and was followed by Mr. R. Morrow of George Street, who paved the way for Mr. A. Brown, also of St. Paul's, while Mr. T. Shields of George Street, closed the debate. The arguments on both sides were exceedingly well presented.

The judges were Mr. H. B. Cowan, Ald. G. N. Gordon, K.C., and Mr. S. J. Stubbs, and they gave their decision in favour of Saint Paul's.

The very acceptable musical items were rendered by Miss Dorothy Allan, who sang 'The Girl With the Delicate Air,' Mr. Allan accompanying, and Miss Baird, who played a delightful pianoforte solo.

After refreshments were served, the audience, which numbered five hundred, sang the national anthem and dispersed, after spending a delightful evening

Next Monday the meeting will be held by the Christian Citizenship Department, and an evening will be spent with Gladstone, the 'Grand Old Man,' of England.

"Shall I dissolve another pearl in the chalice for your breakfast?" asked Charmion.

"No," replied Cleopatra. "Pearls are too inexpensive and commonplace. Boil me an egg."

ART EXHIBITION

During the first week of February there is to be held in the Central Public School an Art Exhibition.

The Elson Art Company, of Boston, Mass., has loaned for the purpose over 200 pictures. The collection contains the best reproductions of the masterpieces of art of different countries and periods.

The pictures will be on exhibition on Monday, February 2nd, from 7 to 10 p.m., and on each day of the week thereafter from 4 to 6 p.m., and from 7 to 10 p.m.

An admission fee of 10 cents will be charged and the proceeds will be used for the purchase of pictures for the city public schools.

It is to be hoped that the citizens will visit the exhibition in large numbers, and that some may be prompted to donate pictures to the schools. The cause is worthy of support.

CHICORA LOST NINETEEN YEARS AGO TO-DAY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 21.—Nineteen years ago to-day occurred one of the most tragic shipwrecks in the history of the Great Lakes—the loss of the Chicora of the Graham and Morton line. The Chicora left Milwaukee for St. Joseph, Mich., on January 21, 1895, with a cargo of flour. Captain Edward Stines was in command and twenty-nine persons are known to have been aboard the ill-fated craft. Although it was midwinter, the weather was mild and the lake calm. Hardly had the boat cleared port, however, when a terrific storm arose. All that night life-savers watched for the Chicora. The next day small pieces of wreckage were washed ashore. Although boats scoured the lake for days afterward, no trace of the missing vessel was ever found. It has always been the conjecture that sh plunged to the bottom of the lake somewhere off South Haven, Mich.

A Prominent Physician's Advice

"Eat good foods and plenty of them. Dieting, in many cases, is almost criminal. Get back to normal. To do so you must have the proper quantity of nourishment. You need it for brain or physical work. Probably there is nothing the matter with your stomach except acidity. That is merely an abnormal secretion of acid in the stomach. Neutralize that acid and your stomach trouble will end at once. Neglect may mean ulcers if not cancer of the stomach. Do not take patented medicines or pepsin tablets for dyspepsia. Simply take a neutraliser of acid. Decidedly the best neutraliser is ordinary druggist's bisurated magnesia. You can get it at any drug store for a few cents. Take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water after each meal. The relief will be immediate."

GOV. FELKER PAYS TRIBUTE

To the Founder of Christian Science at a Banquet in Boston

Examiner Special:

BOSTON, Jan. 21.—Progress was the keynote of the address of Gov. Samuel D. Felker of New Hampshire at the dinner and guest night of the Daughters of New Hampshire Club at the Hotel Vendome, Boston.

Speaking especially of the famous New Hampshire women, he said that no state had boasted women of higher intelligence, greater womanliness, or more genius. He said that as Daniel Webster was the man of New Hampshire, so Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, was first among the women of the Granite state.

"She has left the impress of her work not only on New England but on the entire world," he said, "and we are proud of her."

Dr. Kindred, choir leader of the Methodist Church, was pleasantly surprised on Sunday last, when at the close of the evening service, he was presented with a handsome mahogany Grandfather Clock by the congregation, accompanied by the following address:

Dr. H. Kindred,
Havelock, Ont.:

Dear Doctor,—At this season of the year when friends are exchanging greetings with one another, and expressing heartfelt wishes for a Happy New Year, your many friends, members and adherents, of the Havelock Methodist Church, wish to assure you that you have our sincere wishes that the year upon which we have entered may prove to you a most enjoyable and successful year.

We have been greatly pleased with the faithful attention you have given to your duties as leader of the choir, not only during the past twelve months, but ever since you assumed the responsibilities of the office, very much of the benefit received by the congregation from the service of song as conducted in our church, we owe to your faithfulness and ability. We may, possibly, have been slow in showing our appreciation of such services, nevertheless we have been greatly encouraged and spiritually helped by the efficient services of the choir, and without a competent leader the members would have failed in rendering such valuable help as has been so cheerfully given. We wish to show in some practical manner that we mean just what we say, and to-night we ask you to accept this clock as a gift from the choir and congregation of our church. We trust that whenever you hear the sweet chimes of the clock you may be reminded of the warm place you occupy in our affections.

Wishing you and yours the joys of the New Year and a glorious immortality when the wheels of life stand still.

Signed in behalf of the choir and congregation.

J. R. REAL,

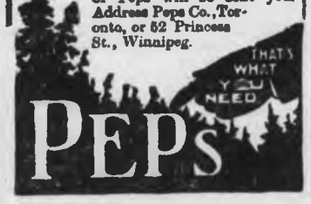
A Woman Should Know
That neglected coughs and colds—especially in children—lead to consumption. Prevention is better than cure; and Peps spell prevention!
Peps are small pastilles containing pine fumes and certain highly beneficial medicinal preparations condensed into solid form. As soon as you put a Pep on your tongue, these healing essences turn into vapor, and are breathed down direct to the lungs, air vessels, and breathing-tubes.
You—or your child—may have a troublesome cough. Perhaps it is especially bad at night! Take a Pep before going to bed—your cough will not trouble you! Your lungs are perhaps a little weak, and going from the warm house into the cold air outside makes you cough? Just before going out, put a Pep into your mouth—there will be no coughing! Your throat feels "stuffed up." Your chest feels tight, and your breathing troublesome? Peps will put matters right for you very quickly.
Peps, while quickly turning to vapor as soon as put into the mouth, will retain their goodness indefinitely, if kept dry. Each little Pep pastille is packed in an air-tight wrapping, which is easily removed, and they are packed in neat tin pocket boxes. They are not sticky, and may be carried loose in the pocket, or glove, or muff.
Peps are a sure cure for coughs, colds, bronchitis, asthma, sore throat, "smoker's throat," laryngitis, catarrh, "clergyman's throat," and all disorders, and ailments of the throat, breathing-tubes, and lungs. Peps contain no opiate, no poison.
All druggists and stores 50c. box, or direct from Peps Co., Toronto, for price. Mail this article and 1c. stamp, and a sample packet of Peps will be sent you. Address Peps Co., Toronto, or 52 Princess St., Winnipeg.



Willie's Confession.

Little Willie had been very naughty. So much so that after having reproved him several times, his mother was at last forced to severely punish him.

When his father arrived home in the evening, he at once perceived that Willie's eyes were suspiciously red.

"What's the matter, sonny?" he cried.

"Oh, nothing," responded Willie uneasily.

"Come, don't be frightened," said his father, in coaxing tones. "Tell me all about it: I want to know."

Willie remained silent for some time, then he suddenly burst out:

"Well, if you must know, I've had a thundering row with your wife."

Auto-Hallucination.

Answering the question "Will you please explain how a person is lifted by four persons placing their index fingers under his shoulders and legs by means of slight lifting force at time of inhaling a long breath by each person and by the person about to be lifted?" Edgar Lucien Larkin in the New York American says:

"I have been asked this question many times. If a person actually has been lifted and those doing the lifting think that the 'law of gravity is partially suspended' then the lifters are under self hallucination or auto suggestion in so far as their impression of lifting is concerned. They actually lift far more than they think, but they will not admit this, as they are partially self hallucinated in the belief that the body of the person will rise. And if they really succeed in lifting the man two inches they think it a foot. Auto hallucination is a remarkable mentological phenomenon and is now being studied by mentalists here and in Europe with minute care and research."

The Delicacy of Baby's Skin
Cold Air, Rough Winds, Strong Soaps Often Bring on Chronic Eczema.
More beautiful than the rose is baby's skin when in health, and so delicate that it is susceptible to anything which irritates. For this reason baby's skin troubles are many, and frequently chronic itching eczema is developd.
Nothing can be better for baby's skin when irritated, than Dr. Chase's Ointment, and when eczema is developed you can apply this preparation with the knowledge that its wonderful record as a healer of the skin is due to the success it has proved in the cure of eczema.
The intense itching of eczema of the face and scalp is very hard for the little one to bear, and is a source of worry and anxiety to the mother. The itching parts are scratched, and nasty and coloured scars are formed. Eczema naturally becomes chronic and spreads over the body. You can positively control eczema and cure it by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. What is better still is to use this ointment for all chafing and irritation of the skin and prevent eczema from getting started.

European Nostalgia For West Africa.

There is a wonderful charm about West Africa, says Major Tremearne in "Some Austral-African Notes and Anecdotes," which few Europeans can throw off. Then he tells of a man who, after living for ten consecutive years in a lonely part of southern Nigeria, made up his mind to have a trip home and sailed away in splendid spirits.

The Gold Coast ports were part of West Africa, and so he managed to make himself fairly at home while there, though the life on board ship was already beginning to bore him, and he wished that he had never left Nigeria. Sierra Leone he did not like at all, as it was not the West African which appealed to him, and he began to long for his home in the bush. After leaving that port and with no sight of land to cheer him he became desperate, and on arrival at Las Palmas he declared: "I shall go no further. I must return at once. I have had quite enough of Europe."

Dirigible Balloons.

The dirigible balloon is by no means a modern invention, as many people seem to think. As a matter of fact, as long ago as 1784 General Meusnier proposed the construction of an elongated balloon which might be propelled through the air. Experiments were made with it by two brothers named Robert, who made several ascents and attained a speed of three miles an hour, though the method of propulsion was only aerial oars worked by hand. Nothing further was attempted until 1852, when Henri Giffard built dirigibles which, by means of a light steam engine, he propelled at nearly seven miles an hour, and since then various experiments have been made which ultimately ended in the wonderful triumph of Zeppelin.—New York Press.

The President and War.

According to the constitution of the United States, article 1, section 8, clause 11, the power to declare war belongs to the congress. The president, as the chief executive, when war is declared becomes commander in chief of the army and navy, but he cannot take the initiative in bringing on the war. The president who should have the temerity to declare the country at war with another people would be instantaneously removed from his high office. The men who made the constitution upon which our government rests knew how fatal to human rights and happiness the monarchical principle had been, and therefore they saw to it that the nation's head should have nothing to do with declaring war with another nation.—New York American.

His Bluff.

Mr. Montgomery was calling on a young woman to whom he wished to appear extremely well.

"Are you familiar with Dante's 'Divine Comedy,' Mr. Montgomery?' asked the young woman.

"No. I've never seen it," replied the man. "The fact is, Miss Tinder, I think this comedy business is being overdone. The sooner the stage returns to the legitimate drama the better it will be."—Lippincott's.

Jimmie's Wisdom.

Myrtle, who is studying physical geography, likes to flaunt her superior knowledge.

"Jimmie," she said to her little brother, "I bet you don't know what germination produces."

"I don't know what it produces," replied Jimmie, "but I know the German nation consumes lots of sauerkraut and wienerwurst."—Youngstown Telegram.

Britain's Color Problem.

The color question in South Africa is creating considerable apprehension in England. South of the Zambesi there are only 1,000,000 native Christians, and the 6,000,000 of black heathen constitute a growing peril. They are intimately mixed with whites—are their domestic servants, even the nurses of their children. America's great color problem is confronting Great Britain within her own colonies in an aggravated form at an aggravating time, when labor troubles on the South African rand have driven the mother country almost to her wits' end.

A prominent Englishman, returning from South Africa, remarked the other day: "The problem of the black and white is causing considerable apprehension among the various leaders in South Africa, who regard the future with some anxiety. South of the Zambesi there are at least six blacks to every white, while in Natal the proportion is 11 to 1. The blacks are increasing more rapidly than the whites, and in Natal will double themselves in 37 years. At present the atmosphere is that of a white oligarchy, of which every member is an aristocrat, and a black proletariat, of which every member is a server."

HEROIC MUSICIANS.

Conductors For Whom the Orchestra Is Merely a Pedestal.

Dr. Max Nordau has an amusing article in the Paris Revue on the evolution of the orchestra conductor. Formerly the conductor was a modest man who took infinite pains with the rehearsals and effaced himself on the great day of the public concert.

Nowadays he is a hero. You only see him. The orchestra is merely a pedestal for him. In the French army of former days there was a personage who could be compared with him—the drum major. He has the same prestige without the aid of the drum major's stature, lace and stick. He must be a finished actor. He must play the part of the lion which shoots the water into the fountain.

There was Gustav Mahler, the most astounding artist in dumb show. All the muscles of his clean shaved face were contracted into the furious mask of a samurai when he let loose the heroic sonorities and relaxed into ecstasy during the pianissimo.

Arthur Nikisch also "reflects" tragedies and idylls, but grace suits him best. In the pastoral symphony (Beethoven) he is the rococo shepherd tickling with the outstretched finger of his left hand the fair neck of a pretty shepherdess.

Not Appreciated.

"I've just been telling my daughter it is wrong to play the piano Sunday. Don't you agree with me?"

"But why Sunday especially?"—Lippincott's.

Explained.

"I heard her praising the conduct of a little boy just a few minutes ago. Whose boy is it?"

"Hers."—Detroit Free Press.

It All Depends on the Liver
So important is the liver and so great is its influence on the other vital organs of the body that it may be said you have little to fear from the ordinary ills of life so long as the liver is in healthful working order. The digestive processes are so dependent on free action of the liver that any derangement of this organ soon brings trouble.
Biliousness and constipation follow, with headache and depressed spirits. Additional work is thrown on the kidneys and soon the whole eliminating system is deranged and the blood carries poisons through the body. Careful eating is a great help towards keeping the liver right, but when it does get wrong there is nothing like Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to restore the liver to healthful action.
With the secretion of bile by the liver, constipation and biliousness are cured, and the digestive and excretary systems are set in order. It is wondrful the benefit obtained by a few doses of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills under these circumstances. A trial will convince you of their superior merit.

Fur Trade Towns.

The historical records of the development of western Canada contain many interesting narrations in connection with the Hudson Bay trading posts.

Each district had its trading post, the site of which depended upon the physical characteristics of the territory, and in the selection of these sites the advice of the aboriginal guides was invariably taken. It was only natural that the posts should have been built in those parts offering the easiest access to the surrounding country and it is a curious thing wherever those old warrior chiefs selected a site it has become or is destined to be the great centre of that particular district.

The trails which in those days naturally led over the easiest grades to the territory surrounding these posts are to-day in many instances the highways and byways which are opening up the large agricultural and industrial centres of the west. The annals of the times show that land in close proximity to the Hudson Bay posts at one time or another changed hands for a mere song.

Sturgeon Is Valuable.

Enquiries are coming from London dealers for caviar from the Canadian sturgeon. This is an expensive delicacy, made from the roe or egg of the large fish when caught before spawning. The raw material for the caviar is worth $1 a pound and 40 or 50 pounds may be secured from one sturgeon. This, together with the value of the flesh from the sturgeon, gives that fish great value and makes conservation advisable. It is caught chiefly in the St. John river, Lake of the Woods, and Lake Winnipeg, and the caviar is shipped to Germany and Russia, as well as England.

Was Confined To His Bed For Four Months With Rheumatism.

Mr. W. H. Riley, Ruddell, Sask., writes:—"It is with the greatest of pleasure that I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all suffering with rheumatism. I was so bad with this terrible disease, I was unable to get up from my bed for four months, and nothing seemed to relieve me until a friend recommended Doan's Pills. I had my doubts about them, but was so desperate I would try anything suggested to me. After taking half a box I was able to get up, and after taking two boxes could get around quite well. After taking six boxes I was completely cured, and able to work for the first time in five months, and have not had a touch of rheumatism since. Anyone who saw me then would not know me now, as I am strong and active since taking your valuable medicine."

Doan's Kidney Pills help the kidneys to flush off the acid and poisonous impurities which have collected, and thus clean out the kidneys, and dispel the rheumatism from the system.

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

Woman's World

Mrs. John Purroy Mitchel, Wife of Gotham's Mayor Elect.

© 1913, by American Press Association.

MRS. JOHN PURROY MITCHEL.

The election of John Purroy Mitchel brings his wife into great prominence as official chatelaine of the city of New York. Mrs. Mitchel, who before her marriage to Mr. Mitchel was a Boston girl, is the picture of a strong, healthy outdoor woman, and she holds that every one could be healthy if he or she would take regular exercise. She is particularly interested in swimming.

The wife of the new mayor elect is also a strong champion of woman's suffrage and believes that in ten years hence women will have the ballot in New York state. Although a suffragist, Mrs. Mitchel took no active part in her husband's campaign. She is more interested in the work of the woman's auxiliary of the board of health, which is aiding in the fight to stamp out tuberculosis, than in the political game.

In a recent interview Mrs. Mitchel was asked whether she would insist upon her husband putting a ban on the slit skirt and the filmy sartorial effect. Here her devotion to personal liberty came out.

"Indeed, I would not!" she replied. "This is a free country, and I believe that every one should be allowed to dress as she pleases. Of course if any style should be too extravagant it would bring its own punishment. Women should dress so as to make themselves most attractive, and extravagant dress will not do that."

Mrs. Mitchel alluded to the fact that she liked housekeeping and would not be content without her own home. So the natural question was:

"If you like housekeeping, do you like cooking?"

"Shall I tell a lie or shall I tell the truth?" she replied with a charming little laugh. "I'll say that I like to cook in camp, and camping is great. I would like to spend two months in the woods that way every year. All outdoor life is very attractive to me."

Incidental to her remarks about housekeeping, Mrs. Mitchel spoke of the criticism often heard of the higher education of women. Mrs. Mitchel believes that the more highly developed a woman is intellectually the more helpful she can be as a wife. "I am not a college woman myself, but I am sorry that I am not."

Handy Articles For Hall Rack.

Here are two adjuncts for the hatrack or hall stand, which may be cordially recommended as easily made and sure to be very useful. One is a long handled shoehorn, to be used when putting on rubber overshoes; the other, a shoe duster, which has a use all its own after a walk along dirty roads.

The shoehorn is carved or whittled from some soft, clear wood. Make a handle long enough to enable one to use it in putting on or in taking off overshoes while standing erect. The duster is made from strips of old flannel and woolen cloth cut into finger wide strips three inches long, wound round and round the handle of a discarded feather duster to form a thick soft tassel with which to flick one's shoes on entering the house.

When you have given both these articles a fair trial you will never like to be without them.

"Dew Gown" In Washington.

The new "dew gown" has arrived in the attractive evening wardrobe of Miss Valerie Padelford, granddaughter of General Ordway. The dew effect is given by a clever arrangement of separate netting and veils draped about the gown.

One particularly fetching gown is of baby blue silk made with a slight Balkan effect, while the dew touch is given by a white silk veil studded with crystals which reaches below the knees. Still another gown has a bodice of brilliant cerise, while the skirt and train are made of blue, with a mass of blue silk net effectively setting off the brilliancy of her brunette beauty.

Miss Padelford is a debutante of last season.

BAD COLD IN THE CHEST.
"I am happy to tell you that I used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and was promptly cured of a very bad cold in the chest," writes Miss Josephine Gauthier, Dover South, Ont. You can depend on Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine to relieve and cure all inflammations and irritations of the throat and bronchial tubes.

BOOK 383 YEARS OLD.

Among the many relics shown at the republic County Fair, one of the most interesting perhaps, was a German book of Luther's sermons printed in 1530 and the property of Mrs. C. P. Carstensen, of Belleville.

Mathias Still, an old resident of Atchison, is the possessor of four very valuable antique books, the oldest one having been printed 352 years ago in Cologne, Germany, within forty years of the time when the first book was printed from movable type. The oldest book in the possession of Mr. Still is a New Testament and was printed in 1561 by Johann Quentel. Another book, a Bible, was printed in 1607 by Arnolum Quentel. Another book, a Bible, was printed in 1607 by Arnolum Quentel, a descendent of the foregoing. A third one is the Gospel of John the Apostle, printed in 1587. The fourth is a history of the Roman Empire, printed in 1571 by Zacharius Maentzer, and was translated into the German language from the Latin of Titus Livius.

The books are in a fine state of preservation. They are very heavy and cumbersome, the largest one being twenty-eight inches long, sixteen inches wide, eight inches thick and weighing about twenty-five pounds. The other books are about the same size and weight. They are printed on a coarse grade of paper, apparently made from wood fibre, and are bound in crude but serviceable sheepskin leather. Hand carved, moving type was used in the printing of these books. They are illustrated with wood cuts, which show the great skill of the wood carvers of that early day.

Radway's Ready Relief
Chas. H. Billings, of 240 W. 17th St., writes: "For years I have been suffering from asthma and bronchitis. A week ago I purchased a bottle of Radway's Ready Relief and have taken a teaspoonful in water before retiring each night. The relief I have experienced is marvelous. I most heartily indorse R. R. R."
CURES ASTHMA
The specifics for this disease are the Ready Relief, the Resolvent and Radway's Pills. The Relief must be rubbed on the chest and throat until a burning sensation is produced, and the Pills must be taken frequently, to keep the bowels thoroughly open. The Resolvent must be given at short intervals, in small doses, and a dessertspoonful on retiring to-rest. Give a teaspoonful of the Resolvent whenever a paroxysm occurs. RADWAY & CO.

True Tales of Adventure

BISHOP RECOUNTS PERILS IN FROZEN NORTH

BISHOP PETER TRIMBLE ROWE.

(Copyright, 1913, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

THEY know him well, the good bishop, from the southern coast to Bering Sea and north across the Yukon to the Eskimo villages.

Ask anywhere from Skagway to Nome, in mining camp or Indian village, at settler's cabin or remote roadhouse, if they know the name of Peter Trimble Rowe, missionary bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and they will smile at so absurd a question.

Perhaps, if you have put your query to one of the older settlers, he will tell you to look across the snowy wastes or up the mountains to the trail over which you have just come, where the way has been beaten between straight black spruces, and will dismiss your question with the explanation:—

"He made that trail before the gold finds. He tramped across here all alone before any other white man ever came this way."

They would make an extraordinary assembly, those men to whom during his eighteen years as a missionary in Alaska Bishop Rowe has pointed out the better way: hostile Indians, savage and vindictive, bent upon the extermination of the invading white man, wild miners, squandering in gambling den and dance hall the gold they had wrung from the land by the hardest of hard labor; gamblers seeking their victims in the towns with their lieutenants scattered through all the camps; peaceful natives, childlike in their simplicity; settlers from every country and of all creeds. These were his children. To these he has ministered with tolerance and understanding and with a sturdy disregard for his own safety and comfort that has won him the admiration of rough men who themselves do not seem to know the meaning of fear.

Of all the churchmen who were in New York for the triennial General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church there are none whose labors in the cause of religion have been discharged in circumstances of greater danger or hardship than those of Bishop Rowe. Being a bishop in Alaska, with territory one-fifth as large as the entire United States to cover, is a decidedly adventurous business. And yet more than once Bishop Rowe has been offered an easier post to fill, in a more settled country, but he has always elected to remain the Missionary Bishop of Alaska. Through wild ways Alaska has come to comparative peace and order, and much of the better condition of things which prevails there to-day is traceable to the labors of the Bishop and his helpers. In every district of Alaska, save the Aleutian Islands, there is now a missionary station, and as an indication of the highly civilized conditions of the present day Bishop Rowe will tell you that when he makes his round to the mission stations nowadays there are almost always trails ready made on which to travel with his dogs and sleds, and it is a rarity rather than otherwise to be forced to make a night camp in the snow because there is no cabin in which one may take shelter.

Bishop Rowe has a kind, plain, every-day sort of manner, a democratic simplicity of address. It is characteristic of him that when the interviewer called at the house in which he is staying while in New York the Bishop himself opened the door.

"The servant did not come at once," he explained, "and I heard the ring, so I came."

One might travel far to see a more sturdy man than the Alaskan Bishop. His black eyes sparkle with youthful spirit. There is very little gray in his black hair and his skin is deep bronze in color as a result of his many winters of exposure. He is a strong man now and he has been used to travel over the snow greater distances in a day than even the Indians.

"A white man can, you know," says the Bishop, with a little pardonable pride of race. "Give us the same training and we can beat them at their own game."

In his initial labors, before he used dogs to carry his provisions, the Bishop and his fellow explorer of the wilds dragged all their outfit and provisions upon sleds. These were attached to rope harness worn over the shoulders.

"It was pretty hard," acknowledged the Bishop. "Yes, it was hard work; we pulled 450 pounds on those sleds. I came in time to feel that I could pull with any horse."

"During the first two years that I worked in Alaska things were entirely different from the present," said the Bishop; "that was before the Klondike was discovered. Then we had no roads, no trails, nor any convenient stopping places for the night. We had to make our own trails. Some of the trails now existing are those that I made when I first went into that country. Sometimes I went alone upon my trips until my friends and even the Indians remonstrated. They said:—

"'Suppose you go lame, something happen, then nothing save you.'

"I had to admit it was true. Nothing could have saved me, off in those wastes. So after a while I gave my promise that I would never go alone again.

"When I take a companion it is usually an Indian or an Eskimo. We take provisions, of course, some means of making shelter, and snowshoes for different conditions of snow. We use snowshoes as long as, ourselves when the snow is soft, and when it is harder, so that there is no dang · of our crashing through the crust, smaller shoes are used. One of the tricks which it was necessary to learn was how to put the snowshoes on and off without touching them with the hands. If the hands are used to adjust them the fingers would freeze. The amount of space that can be covered on the snowshoes varies tremendously. My rate varied from two to fifty miles a day. I have made fifty miles when I was travelling with the dogs. Of course, with the sled to haul it was a different matter.

"One of the hardest things about taking the trail in the winter is the necessity of keeping an eye open for fuel. Often after you are tired enough to drop you must keep on for hours until you find a spot where there is fuel. It is necessary to carry fuel along the Arctic coast, and blubber and oil are taken. On other trails we are sure to find fuel if we are patient in the search.

"It was often hundreds of miles between the human habitations when we first started to take the trail. In my first trip I started from the southern coast and went north 500 miles. The coast Indians gave us trouble. They had seen white men before, but they didn't want us to go into the interior, because they wanted all the country for themselves. No white man had gone into the interior before. But we got away from them and travelled for hundreds of miles until we came to a settlement of Stick Indians. They also were hostile. They wanted our food and would have killed us for it as they did some white men who came later.

"The only way to stave off death at their hands was to pretend that I was a shaman, or medicine man. My fellow traveller, who was at that time a white man, assumed the rôle of chief worshipper and made his devotions so publicly and so obsequiously that the Sticks were impressed. They watched us all the time, so that we could not get away; but they did not kill us. I held services and taught them hymns and prayers, and this also impressed them. Still we were always under surveillance. We would never have gotten away if we had had to depend on pulling our sleds. Fortunately, however, we struck the Sticks in the summer time. As soon as the spring broke we had gone into camp and built a boat. We cut the trees and made an excellent boat, which was not at all an easy task, as it was necessary to use the most primitive methods of building from the felled trees. The ice was not broken when we finished our boat, and so we put that also on our sleds and dragged it over the snow.

"When we came to open water we paddled, and when the ice closed in we dragged our boat out again and sledded. It was bitter work, and when night came we were always too tired to do anything but crawl into our sleeping bags.

"But it was the boat that saved us at last in connection with the supposition that we were supernatural. One day when we had decided we must go from the camp we slipped our boat into the water on a tributary of the Yukon and got into it. My companion made ready to paddle off and I stood with my knife in one hand and my gun in the other. The Sticks saw us, and they had right [illegible] they had gotten from the Hudson Bay Company—the very long [illegible] which the company used to have made on purpose so that the pile of [illegible] which must be heaped as high as the gunwales in order to be considered an equivalent. [illegible] be as large as possible.

"For a moment it was a question of whether we should be forced to give up our lives or not. [illegible] the Sticks were not decided on killing us. Besides I was covering them with my rifle. I cut the rope that tied our boat, called a goodby in Chinook, and we glided away from them, leaving them half hostile, half friendly and altogether puzzled. Afterward the Indians killed numbers of white men who took that trail. The Canadian government hanged a few of them as a lesson, and then they stopped.

"Our food during these trips was beans, bacon and sour dough; then we shot moose, bear, caribou, geese and rabbits. We often worked for thirty hours without stopping, then slept as little as possible. We always wanted to get over the ground as fast as we could go. When it came summer time and we could use our boat it was easy going, but then we had to be anxious about the canyons and the rapids. We had no maps or guides and had to judge from the condition of the water when there was danger ahead. Then we would get out and go along the bank and see what we discovered to what sort of [illegible] we were coming. Those had been on the Yukon are well known now to paddle who go that way, but between the present day the canyons and rapids were proved death traps to many m[illegible]

"During this first trip I passed the place where afterward gold was discovered, but there wasn't a sign to show me what it was. We kept going north on the Yukon until we came to the natives in the interior. Ever since then we have done a great deal of work among the natives in the interior and the north of Alaska and along the Yukon River. The natives have become Christianized everywhere and we have given them schools and hospitals as well as the mission stations, which in a measure comprise schools and hospitals as well as places for religious exercises. Everywhere one travels to-day one is struck with the gentleness and devotion to the church of these natives who were once so wild and hostile.

"After we had travelled north five hundred miles we travelled fifteen hundred miles toward Bering Sea. When winter came again my companion returned to the coast, but I kept on alone. By this time I had gotten some dogs to haul my provisions. But it was pretty lonely travelling for hundreds of miles without seeing even an Indian."

"What was the biggest fight you ever had in the course of your missionary work?" asked the interviewer.

The Bishop in spite of his gentle and kindly manner has seen some fighting in his Alaskan travels, and he had to think for a moment before he said, with a reminiscent flash in his black eyes:—

"Well, I think the most thrilling experience we ever had was not with human beings, but with wolves. I believe, too, that it is not usual for travellers to be attacked by wolves in Alaska, although I cannot understand why.

"On this evening we had heard the cries of the wolves for some time. Nothing sends quite the same shiver through the average human being. We made a halt as soon as possible, and immediately built a circle of fire for our protection from the animals which we knew were hot on our trail. Inside this circle we placed provisions, dogs and ourselves, leaving an exit, of course, through which we could escape to make a last stand if they rushed us. Our fire was hardly going well before they were upon us. They came close to the fire, their tongues lolling out—about thirty of them—a sickening enough sight to two men out there in that wilderness. If they had had the courage they could easily have rushed through the fire and gotten us, but, of course, we relied on the wolf nature to prevent them from taking this bold action. We had to shoot quickly, however, and we had to think of our ammunition. It was necessary that every shot should kill a wolf. To make the wolves come out into the light where we could get a good sight of them we threw brands from the fire at them, then when they were in just the right position as targets we picked them off. As each one fell his comrades tore him to pieces, and as they devoured the dead members of the pack their ferocious appetite was sated. So at last the remnant of the pack turned and went back through the woods. I never shall forget that scene—the great reaches of snow stretching in every direction, illuminated with the Arctic light, and those slinking figures moving off between the straight black spruce trees.

"We Built a Circle of Fire."

"It is changed to some extent in Alaska nowadays. There are better trails, and we almost always find some trail, but we still leave the beaten path now and then and go across country. We have missions away beyond the Arctic circle, where it is 55, 60 and 76 degrees below zero. I have been out on the trail along the Dahl River when it was 70 degrees below. I don't know whether I would have lived through it if I had not come to a small Indian encampment where I found shelter. Nowadays we almost always strike a cabin where we can stop for the night, although it is still necessary for us to siwash it sometimes. We used to siwash it every night. Snow makes a pretty soft bed, and when you have made your shelter of boughs, put on all the clothes you've got and built a fire so that it comes toward you, you are fairly comfortable."

"Did you see much of the life of the camps after the gold finds?" asked the interviewer.

"I was the first minister in most of the new camps," said the Bishop, "and wherever a camp was opened on our side, meaning the side of the United States of America, I started a mission, and in some places I started hospitals. When I visited a camp I was received with the greatest courtesy. The men of the camp came to meet me and we talked over what could be done for the benefit of all concerned—that is, what the Church could do for them in the circumstances. At first there was little dissipation and the men were of a fine, hardy class. Like all the real pioneers to a new country, they were strong, brave and able. But as soon as the camps became rich the scenes were fearful.

"The men gambled and drank. They did worse things. About the only crime we hadn't was murder. There was very little shooting. But the gambling and the dance halls were wild. When the men went wrong I tried to talk to them, and they took it very well. There were many of them splendid fellows. Often I would step into a camp fire group and begin to talk to men, and find them well educated, fine young chaps, college men, many of them. Almost always they were likable men. Of course, I am speaking of the men who came as prospectors, not those who came to prey upon them. They all received me well everywhere, for they knew that whatever I did for reform was done openly and aboveboard. To-day, in large part, I believe, because of the sentiment aroused by our missions, there are no saloons in Alaska and no public gambling places. Of course, the government is directly responsible for this, and I don't want to take any credit from it, but I believe we also have had a good deal to do with it.

"One of the very bad crowds during the early days of the gold finds was the 'Soapy' Smith crowd at Skagway. There were seventy-five members of the crowd, all gamblers and all sure-thing men; they robbed men right and left, and 'Soapy' Smith sent out lieutenants all along the line to all the camps. At that time I was starting the hospital at Skagway and whenever any one was shot over at Smith's place they used to send for me. The men who had been wounded trusted me, told me who their friends at home were, and if they died I often had messages to send to relatives and friends. When they got well again they were my friends for life. It didn't much matter what their religion was. Men of all creeds gave me their confidence when they were wounded. At last a vigilance committee got after Smith. They decided to take him one day when he had gone down to the boat landing to meet a fresh boatload of victims. He saw the crowd coming and pulled his gun, but some one among his enemies got him with the first shot. But even as he fell he kept his head and fired a shot and killed the marshal."

A glint of appreciation sparkled in the Bishop's black eyes. "He was a nervy fellow, that Smith," he commented, "and he was a clever fellow, too."

"But I thought you said there wasn't much shooting up there?" questioned the interviewer.

"Oh, we didn't call that much," said the Bishop, with a twinkle.

"I used to see some of those sure-thing lieutenants of Smith's in the jail at Sitka," he added. "They got quite a number of them in jail at last. When I went to the jail to hold services and distribute reading matter I used to see these men. I could never get them to promise that after they came out they would take up a legitimate calling and lead different lives, but they showed their liking for me in one way. Whenever I held a service or gave a talk to the men if any half crazy Indian or other obstreperous prisoner made a disturbance they immediately batted him over the head. They insisted upon the most perfect conduct on these occasions. They remembered that I had helped to bury 'Soapy' Smith and others of their comrades and they were grateful. One thing they said to me was, 'Well, if Christianity is what you tell us it is, Bishop, then we've never understood it before.'

"Nowadays," added the Bishop proudly, "we have plenty of good clubrooms for the boys, so that they can always find some legitimate amusement and companionship. They weren't bad boys, but in a country like that, with the darkness and loneliness, it doesn't somehow take long to go bad if there isn't anything else to do. These clubrooms which we have started are something like the Young Men's Christian Associations. We have [illegible] twenty-eight missions, six hospitals and three industrial schools. And I want to say that if it were not for the women we wouldn't be able to have such missionary work in Alaska."

AT 37 HE IS "YOUNGEST GRANDFATHER"

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN MELVIN PIERCE YOUNG DAVIS, who, by special dispensation, received the lectures in the law school of the University of Georgia without having had previous training in any accredited school, is the father of his first son, after having been a grandfather for two years. He is believed to be, at thirty-seven, the youngest grandfather in the United States of two years' claim to title.

Davis has had several daughters. The eldest one has been married for three years, and is the mother of a boy two years old. The latest addition to the Davis family, who has been named Rowe Culllove, after the Mayor of Athens, Ga., and the Davis family physician, is two years younger than his nephew.

"Young" Davis, as he is generally known, was one of twelve children, his father having been married three times. His father, who is eighty-six years old and living at Athens, is a veteran of the war between the States. Desiring to perpetuate the name of the chief whom he had followed during that war, he called his son after him, with some embellishments of his own. Davis' initials are in fact as numerous as the letters of his last name.

Davis was as a boy a worker in the cotton mills. He went to Athens when a mere child. At the age of seventeen he was married to Miss Anne Smith. The family began to grow with unusual rapidity. The union soon produced a son and that he could not support his flock of girls on his wages. He learned the barber's trade, which he followed Saturday evenings and at night.

One of the daughters married very young, while still other girls were being added to the family from time to time. The cost of living increased, and he soon found shaving was as inadequate as working in a cotton mill when it came to rearing and educating so many young girls. The grandson then came to the home—making Davis probably the youngest grandfather in the United States at the age of thirty-five—to be followed two years later by another little babe of his own—a son—younger than the grandchild.

The legal profession seemed to offer a field for the gratification of the ambition of Davis as well as affording a better living for his family. He began the study of law two years ago—after the little grandson came to the home. He read law in the offices of his young friends who had entered that profession. He attended all the courts regularly—from those of the Mayor and the Justices of the Peace to the Superior and federal tribunals. Through the kindly offices of friends he was finally enabled to take the lectures in the university [illegible]

Several weeks ago, with a number of other applicants, Davis stood for examination before the board of examiners under the direction of the Supreme Court Judges, and he has been notified that he was passed.

MOTHER LANDS A HARD ONE.

The conversation drifted to the beautiful way in which mother occasionally lands a good hard knock, and one of the crowd recalled an incident that occurred in the home of a friend.

One day the five-year-old daughter of the house was looking through a picture book when she suddenly glanced up to her mother.

"Mamma," said she, with a very serious expression, "don't men ever go to heaven?"

"Why, of course, my dear," answered the mother in a surprised voice. "What makes you ask?"

"Because," responded the little girl, turning to the book again, "I have never seen any pictures of angels with whiskers."

"That's easily accounted for, darling," was the smiling rejoinder of mother. "While men do go to heaven, they only get there by a very close shave."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

NOT ANY MORE

Mac was sarcastic. He found Norton separated from June Witterly, joined unto his disreputable pipe, and flung full length on the grass behind the summer house after dinner.

"How did it happen, Norton? I've been trying to get a word with you for two weeks. It's time for you to go. How about our pact to keep single, for each to save the other if he saw him in danger of matrimony? You need rescuing."

Jerry sucked his black pipe, and drew his dark-browed forehead into a scowl. "Guess you're right, old man. Cut out the talk. I'll go. I can see my finish as plain as you. Probably she wouldn't have me, but in spite of you I'd ask her to marry me—if she was as poor as I. Decency won't let me even seem to want her confounded money! And we were right—we both need the next ten years to work up in the law unhampered by—family cares."

Macpherson rubbed his reddish hair and considered his friend lovingly. He thought what a fool he had been to let Jerry Norton accept Mrs. Grayson's house party invitation. He should have foreseen what June Witterly would do to his heart. Mac had been brought up with June and was immune to her fascinations.

"I have just told Mrs. Grayson I'd brought you a letter from Carroll asking your immediate return to work on that Lawson case, and that you'd have to leave here on the 9.30 train in the morning. I told her you were cut up about going. Now you've got to back me up in the lie, and pack up your duds. Pater and the little car are to be ready for you at 8. I'm not going until to-morrow."

He glanced at Norton and hoped he was not acting when it was too late. He knew June Witterly very well.

Jerry rose, knocked the ashes from his pipe and turned houseward, smoothing his black hair, his blue eyes savage.

"Well, your way is as good as another. I'll go. It's one way out of an impossible situation. Now get away—I'll see Mrs. Grayson—"

"—es! and you'll see Miss June Witterly! One evening of her in this rose-wreathed garden and the moon that will be up early, and knowing you are going, and you will be lost! I will not let you out of my sight! She's as crazy as you—a word from you—"

He stopped, cursing himself for a fool, for sudden joy gleamed in Norton's face, a pitiful, doubting joy.

"Do you think so—?" he began, eagerly, then scowled again. "She cares nothing for me," he said stiffly. "Mind your confounded business. Did you—ever see such hair as she has! It's—"

"Pure molten gold, anything you say!" said Mac, with an inward groan. Here was old Norton fairly drivelling! "I always knew a head of hair would be your downfall! And, unluckily, I know it's all her own. She doesn't take it off at night."

He also knew the girl was genuine, heart and mind and soul; neither did Mac see how she could help loving Jerry Norton, but he stzode by his side vowing to clear him of his sentimental complication that would hinder his brilliant beginning in his profession.

Joining the others on the great lawn at the edge of the tiny lake, with the big white moon just sailing up, the two young men sought their hostess. The dozen other young people on the lawn sat or strolled about.

Most of them were politely regretful that Norton was obliged to leave June alone seemed not to hear. She sat with Tom Overholt, who was doing his brilliant best to charm her, a thing he had come here to attempt. His heart leaped at knowing Norton was off. Now he would have his chance! Mac, the watchdog, stood beside his friend and saw June Witterly, tall and slim, white-gowned in the white moonlight, her hair a fair glory about her small head, standing on the shore of the little lake. Overholt was as near her as he dared to get. Mac put his hand on Norton's arm and drew him into the house. He stayed with him until he was undressed and went to his own room, vowing to see him on his train in the morning.

But he knew the mischief that had been done, though he thought it reparable.

Poor Mac's plans went awry. He overslept. Norton slept not at all. He was wondering that she had said no word of farewell. She might have given him a chance for another look at her. He could have shaken Mac off—it was Overholt that hindered him.

He rose in the grey of the morning, dressed carefully, and quietly got his bags ready for Peters. Then he dropped outdoors from his open window on the first floor, and quietly, not to wake anyone, went into the rosy light of dawn.

Jerry Norton somehow felt grey and old and alone. He faced himself, but the thought of a lonely ten-year fight for mere eminence in a profession made him tired and disillusioned in advance. It would have been different if he had anything but love to offer her—or if she also were poor. He hated her money.

Then he broke off a glorious pink rose, bright and fresh as the dawn. Her window opened from a little balcony and he stood beneath it—the sash was up, even the screen stood open on its hinges, but he knew she slept.

With a sudden impulse, he threw the rose into the window. She would not bid him good-bye, but she would have this farewell from him. His heart beating like a boy's, he fled about the corner.

An hour later he was eating his breakfast with Mrs. Grayson, who had insisted on seeing the last of him. No one else was up. She knew something was wrong, but tactfully ignored the matter, since he chose not to confide in her.

Finally Peters took his bag to the car, and they were spinning down the curved drive. Norton's face stiffly turned away lest he should glance at June Witterly's open window. Macpherson hearing the motor car, rose, his red head tousled, thrust out his tongue as he gazed, and made a wry face to himself. "Just—in—time," he murmured.

Again Mac was wrong. A mile up the road Norton suddenly made Peters stop. He thrust money into the man's reluctant hand.

"Look here, Peters! Take this stuff on to the station. This country's too good to leave without a last walk. I'll finish on foot—get the 10.10 train instead. Say nothing to Mrs. Grayson."

A moment later, leaping two fences and crossing a little strip of pasture, Jerry Norton was in the woods where he and June Witterly had wandered and read the last two weeks. They had discovered this grassy place, and she had loved it.

One languid afternoon, it seemed ages ago, their eyes had met in a sort of shock. He had set his teeth not to tell her how he wanted her. For a moment she had flushed crimson, and had then become quiet and cool and reserved. Had she cared? Could Mac, confound him, have been right?

Norton disconsolately enough, found and followed the crooked little wood path they had loved together. He stopped, face to face with a golden-haired, slender girl, her eyes wide and angry, a pink rose in one hand—and tears on her cheek. She gave a little cry, her hand, pink rose and all, held to her breast.

"I—thought you were—gone!" she said, then recovered herself almost haughtily. "Didn't you go after all, Mr. Norton? You—startled me! Isn't it a beautiful morning—I came out for an early walk—and—"

He had not spoken, but stood scowling at her with a look that made her light words falter on her lips. He took a step toward her and seized both her hands a little roughly.

"Don't," he said. "You hurt! June—can't you see that I couldn't go?"

Suddenly dawn rose in her face, a happiness that went shiningly from her eyes to him, so that he put his arm about her shoulder and drew her very closely.

"Could you love me? Could you?" He shook her a very little, and her eyes filled with joy for this vehemence. "Could you" he repeated.

"Not—any more—that I do already—than I do—now," she said.

A Rural Art Critic

As a certain young artist of New York sat upon his stool one day in the Adirondacks, doing a bit of "mountain stuff," there approached from the rear a native, evidently with ideas of his own touching art.

"Did you ever try photography?" asked the newcomer.

"No," was the curt response of the young artist, who continued his work.

"It's a good deal quicker," suggested the native.

"I suppose it is," surlily assented the painter with another dab of his brush.

"And," the native added, with a dash of malice, "a good deal more like the place!"

BERNARDO'S MONSTER.

Gigantic and Unique, Once the Glory of the Medici Garden.

In the Demidoff garden at Pratolino, some eight or ten miles from Florence, there still crouches the monster in stone and stucco called the "Appennino," once the glory of the famous Medici garden. Some sixty or seventy years ago the statue was more talked of, but nowadays it appears that few folk know or care for such things. It is a good specimen of its style, and a reminder of its existence is just as well. Its height, if erect, would be about 100 feet, or say one-fourth the height of St. Paul's cathedral. At the back one can enter into rustic grottoes built into its interior, and from underneath the hair of the head a cascade may be made to flow forth at will over the shoulders and body of the colossus, creating a sparkling effect in the sunshine.

Buontalenti, the protege of Cosimo di Medici, who schemed this gigantic thing in 1559, employed the best talent available for the setting of it up, sculptors, masons, etc., and we are told that its abnormal size led to some of the artists losing all sense of proportion and being rendered unfit for ordinary work, one of them losing his reason as a consequence of helping to build the monster.

The audacity of the conception is worthy of the great genius, who, trained under the eye of Michelangelo, hesitated at nothing, knowing that the Medici money was at his back and he had only to ask when a daring idea of his needed funds.

This famous boy Bernardo (Buontalenti) seems in his day to have outshone the Admirable Crichton, being painter, sculptor, architect, engineer and mechanician and much besides.—London Sphere.

Morphine a Pain Producer.

"Morphine," says a woman who was a morphine fiend and then saved herself, "does not give pleasure. It creates pain. This is its ultimate and positive effect. The pleasure it is supposed to produce is a mere temporary form of anaesthesia. The exhilarating effect is the first thrill of pain vibrating so rapidly one does not recognize it as such. Let that be written in letters as tall as the mountains. Morphine is a pain producer. Morphine is a nerve destroyer. It weakens the will. It disrupts the foundations of the mind."—American Magazine.

Muskrats Too Plentiful.

Muskrats are so very common at the summer resorts of Stag Island, a few miles below Sarnia, that the owners of the island have written to the Government to see if they cannot get authority to have some of them cleaned out. The island is traversed by several shallow canals, and these are filled with muskrat houses. The animals are in thousands, and are eating up everything in the neighborhood of the canal banks.

Appropriate Trade Names.

With reference to appropriate trade names, I remember that in my youth the road I lived in in one of the suburbs of Birmingham, Eng., was served by two milk vendors whose respective names were Freshwater and Philpott; one of these at any rate would not appear to have been a deliberately selected trade "style."

SHE WAS NOT AFRAID.
There Was No Reason Why She Should Dread the Indians.

Among the frontiersmen who closely followed the footsteps of Lewis and Clark across the Rockies was Colonel Joseph L. Meek. He settled in Oregon, and, like all the earliest pioneers, he was obliged to choose his helpmate, so the Portland Oregonian says, from among the dusky maidens of the forest.

During the early settlement of the territory the Cayuse Indians were quite menacing in their demonstrations of hostility to the little band of pioneers, so much so indeed that a meeting of the settlers assembled to take counsel about the safety of the community resolved to send two of their number across the mountains to implore aid from the government at Washington.

Colonel Meek and Squire Eberts were appointed, and they set out across the mountains and the deserts and in due time reached their destination. While there the colonel was invited to a levee given by some one of the political notables. He was introduced to a lady who naturally enough made inquiries about Oregon, the hostile Indians, and so forth.

"But your wife," began the lady in a lull between thrilling narratives, "or haven't you a wife?"

"Yes," replied the colonel, "I have a wife."

"Why," said the lady, "I should think she would be so afraid of the Indians."

"My wife afraid of Indians!" exclaimed the colonel. "Why, madam, she is herself a squaw!"

HAD INDIGESTION.
Almost Despaired of Ever Getting Well.

When your food has not been properly digested, your body has not received the benefit it should. The exertions of the gastric juice have been confined entirely to removing the unmasticated, undigested portions of food, which they cannot properly digest as speedily as possible from the body, therefore only giving the blood a small percentage of nourishment with which to feed the tissues. No wonder then that Indigestion and Dyspepsia attack the stomach. No medicine can surpass Burdock Blood Bitters as a cure for this particular disease. It regulates the bowels, promotes perfect digestion, makes pure blood, tones the stomach, and thus restores perfect health to the debilitated system.

Mrs. Mary MacKay, Hunter's Mountain, N.S., writes: "I was troubled with Indigestion for more than ten years. I tried several Doctor's medicines claiming the power to cure, but all without success. Having heard of the many cures effected by Burdock Blood Bitters, I decided to give it a trial. After taking two bottles I was completely cured. My appetite which was very poor, is now good, and I can eat most everything without any disagreeable feelings. I can strongly recommend B.B.B. to anyone suffering from Indigestion."

FREE OF ALL THREE DISEASES
"Fruit-a-tives" Brought Him Perfect Health

AVON, ONT., May 14th, 1913.

"I am younger since I have been taking "Fruit-a-tives". I was troubled very badly with Piles, Constipation and Stomach Disorder, but I found "Fruit-a-tives" was the panacea for the whole three.

Now I am free of all these diseases and enjoying perfect health, and able to work whenever I like. Five years ago, I started taking "Fruit-a-tives". I took two every night and they worked wonders for me.

No other medicine I could get was so good and I took lots of different remedies before I found out how good "Fruit-a-tives" were.

I keep "Fruit-a-tives" on hand all the time, and am never without them. I even take them with me when I go motoring, so I can have them handy. "Fruit-a-tives" are worthy of every good word I can say about them. The fact that they cured me of Piles, was something to be everlastingly thankful for"

Mother, daddy and the children can always keep feeling fine by taking this delicious fruit laxative as occasion demands. Nothing else cleanses the stomach, liver and bowels so thoroughly without griping.

You take a little at night and in the morning all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and fermenting food delayed in the bowels gently moves out of the system. WEAR VIOLETS IN MEMORY OF QUEEN VICTORIA THE GOOD

On Thursday, Jan. 22, will be observed the thirteenth anniversary of the death of Queen Victoria. In many of the larger cities throughout the Dominion the various historical and patriotic societies are requesting their members to wear on that day purple flowers, preferably violets, in memory of the dearly-loved Queen Victoria the Good. The suggestion has found favour with people everywhere, and not only will members of societies wear a tiny knot of violets,b ut citizens generally who cherish in their hearts remembrance of Britain's great sovereign, will for that day keep green her memory by this slight observance. It is hoped that Peterboroughites will take their place with the citizens of other cities and wear a bouquet of purple violets on Thursday.

Ruby Mines of Mogok.

The civilized world knows little of the famous ruby mines of Mogok, in a valley of Burma, whence come nearly all the large rubies, for the road lies through a forest which is seldom trod by whites. A few Englishmen who live there have laid out a polo ground and between this and the town are the mines. The diggings are slowly eating up the village, and the main street is already half destroyed. The work goes on all day and all night, the ruby bearing earth being brought up in iron trolleys. A few strangers who have called at the mines have been told by the officials that they can keep any ruby they may find, but no one has ever been able to find one yet. The gems are embedded in the gold colored clay, which stretches along the whole of the valley, and it is only after the earth has been washed that the rubies are seen on the tables.—Argonaut.

FOR STOMACH TROUBLE ?

John W. Skillin of Sidney, Ohio, has Found a Remedy.

Experts declare that the reason stomach disorders are so common in this country is due to hasty and careless habits of eating. Stomach troubles and run-down conditions usually go together.

John W. Skillen of Sidney, Ohio, says: 'I had a bad stomach trouble for years and became so weak that I could hardly walk or do any work. My appetite was poor, and it seemed impossible to get any relief. Since taking 'Vinol' I find a remarkable improvement in my health, my digestion is much stronger, and I have gained in weight. I would not be without Vinol."

Vinol makes weak stomachs strong because it strengthens and tones up the weakened, tired and overtaxed nerves of the digestive organs. Vinol is easily assimilated by the weakest stomachs, and is delicious to the taste.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

A Poor Place to Sleep.

Traveling in Africa is doubtless to be met with more danger than in any other part of the world. Wild beasts, wild men, poisonous plants, storms, fevers and other sickness combine to make a formidable array. A recent traveler in Gwallab, a district in north east Africa, encountered a new danger. Vegetation is very luxuriant, and when he pitched camp he noticed that a number of dead birds lay on the ground. Before he had time to comment on this fact four of the dogs which had been smelling around, keeled over and died within five minutes. It was supposed that they had eaten some poisonous plant, but this idea was dispelled when three of the natives, who had slept on the ground, were found dead next morning. Then it was discovered that there was a stratum of deadly gas covering the ground to the depth of three or four inches. The traveler with his troupe lost no time in getting out of that vicinity.

"PLUMS" OF THE BAR.

What Advocates Can Earn in the Land of Cakes.

The promotion of Lord Dunedin from the highest judicial office in Scotland to be a Lord of Appeal in the House of Lords, and the appointment of Mr. Alexander Ure to the Lord Presidency of the Court of Session at Edinburgh, recalls how difficult it is for young men to make their way as advocates in Scotland. Like thousands of others, these distinguished lawyers, when they embarked on a legal career, realized that it was anything but easy to "become known" in a professional sense.

Lord Haldane once said that in the first few years after he became a barrister his average salary was fifteen shillings a week. But many of the young advocates in Scotland earn considerably less. They walk the long hall, where the Scottish Parliament sat years ago, in arduous idleness while several undertake reporting of the legal debates, an occupation which is regarded as a stepping-stone to an appointment as sheriff-substitute, with a salary of anything from $3,000 to $5,000 a year. Among the lawyer-reporters is the brother-in-law of the heir to a Scottish dukedom.

There are numerous instances of Scottish lawyers getting to the top of the tree through social influence, but merit finds the path to a lucrative appointment steep and rugged. The Faculty of Advocates, of which all the pleaders are members, is one of the most exclusive trade unions in the world. The great majority of the advocates are politicians, for, though many years ago the church was the open door to the Bench, the political arena is to-day the easiest and surest way to high judicial office.

Most of the King's Counsel are sheriffs, each drawing an income of about $3,000 or $3,500 from his office, and, besides, they are allowed to practice at the Bar, whereas sheriff-substitutes are debarred from pleading. The present Government have made a large number of legal appointments in Scotland since they came into power in December, 1905.

The writer has calculated that the aggregate annual salaries attaching to these positions amount to about $300,000, which, capitalized at 3 per cent., represents $10,000,000. The busiest junior at the Scottish Bar is the Hon. William Watson, a son of the late Lord Watson, Lord of Appeal, and the foremost figures among the senior pleaders are the Right Hon. Charles Scott Dickson, K.C., M.P., Dean of Faculty and Lord Advocate in the last Unionist Administration, and Mr. Avon Clyde, K.C., M.P.—London Tit-Bits.

Laundry Helps.

Pencil marks should be rubbed off of new garments before washing, as water sets them.

Egg stains should be soaked in cold water before going to the laundry. If this is done the stains will come out easily. Hot water sets them.

A little butter stirred in with the starch will keep the iron from sticking; also a little butter on a piece of paper will be found more efficacious than beeswax in keeping the iron smooth.

If a lump of soda dissolved in a little hot water is added to the blue water on wash day it prevents the blue from settling in the clothes and makes them perfectly white. This is also very useful when the water is hard.

Borax in the Laundry.

The uses of refined borax are manifold. It is infinitely better than soda for washing purposes. It may be used in the proportion of a large handful to ten gallons of boiling water, and will effect a great saving in soap. If you are about to wash delicate laces or cambric use an extra quantity of powder. The effect of borax is to soften the hardest water, and, being a neutral salt, it does not in the slightest degree injure the texture of linen or any other delicate material washed with it. —New York Globe.

Under the inspiring leadership of Sir George Eliot the besieged more than held their own in one of the most memorable sieges in all history.—Pearson's Weekly.

Grandma Never Let Her Hair Get Grey

Kept Her Locks Dark, Thick, Glossy, With Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all grey hair disapears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Grey, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.

Three Killed When Boiler In The Howick Pavilion Exploded

Terrible Accident at the Winter Fair in Ottawa This Morning---Many Are Injured.

ROOF BLOWN OFF

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 21.—Three men are blown to pieces and a score injured, twenty-five horses and at least a dozen cattle and much smaller stock are dead, and Howick Hall, the pride of Eastern Canada Central Fair has the roof practically blown off as a result of a terrific explosion of boilers which occurred at 8 o'clock this morning.. The dead are very badly mangled. The cause of the explosion is as yet unknown. The Ottawa Live Stock Fair was being held in the building, and it was crowded with cattle. The explosion was so terrific that portions of the boilers were hurled clear up through the steel roof. Since its erection about six years ago Howick Hall has been wrecked on three occasions, each time with loss of life. As a result of the acident the fair has become demoralized. The exhibition presents a dreadful spectacle with the dead live stock strewn on the snow without.

The three men killed in Howick Pavilion explosion are Napoleon St. Deny, of Hull, aged forty, employed as a hog killer at the Fat Stock Show, and Jos. Cosgrove, a driver for Mr. Lauren, of Buckingham, and in charge of the doctor's horse exhibit at the fair. The third is unidentified, and is supposed to be from Kenmore, Carleton County. The injured identified are Stewart Ross, F. A. James, A. G. McCallum, and J. Pouts, all of Ottawa, it is believed none fatally. The explosion ocurred in the wooden annex to the pavilion, which is brick and steal. Examination by experts of the exploded boiler leds to a belief that it was empty and practially red hot when the explosion was caused by an in-rush of cold water. The engineers deny this, claiming the boiler was half full of water and carried only twenty pounds of steam. Part the building where the boiler stood was completely demolished, and the interior is a mass of. wreckage,. which caught fire but was quickly extinguished. Fortunately the disaster occurred before the morning crowds began to pour in or there might have ben a fearful tragedy. About twenty-five horses, valued at sixty-five thousand dollers, were killed, and many others injured, the heaviest loser being George Pepper. of Toronto. who lost eight horses valued at thirty thousand dollars.

A Chance For The Unemployed

A local clergyman made a suggestion to the Examiner to-day that a snow storm such as last night's should be the means of giving temporary employment to those out of work. He pointed out that most citizens would be glad to have their walks cleaned of snow, and the unemployed might find an early morning expedition with shovel and broom a profitable one.

MAYOR BULLER AND ALDERMEN MET PREMIER

Presented Request That Mr. Jas. Kendry Be Selected as Senator From Peterborough

VISITED THE HOUSE

Mayor Buller and Aldermen Duncan, Johnston and Duffus have returned from Ottawa where they held a conference with Premier Borden, urging the representation of Peterborough in the Senate in connection with the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Cox. The civic delegation presented to the leader of the Government the resolution passed at the public meeting on Saturday night, which recommended Mr Jas. Kendry for the honour.

The delegation was presented to Premier Borden by Mr J. H. Burnham. Mayor Buller stated to-day that the Committee was cordially received by the Premier in his offices. The Mayor stated the object of the visit, and presented Mr. Kendry's name for the position. The Premier replied that the matter would receive his earliest consideration.

The civic deputation spent two busy days. On Monday they attended the funeral of Hon. Geo. A. Cox, which, the Mayor stated, was very impressive. The wreath from Peterborough as a token of remembrance, was one which any citizen would have been proud of. On Monday night the four City Fathers left for Ottawa and at the conclusion of their mission spent a short time in the gallery listening to the debate.

A FEW SNOW FLAKES

That was a tidy little winter scene that greeted drowsy eyes this morning.

It might be repeated that a few streets have simply been licked by the plows. The contractors should be out early and often. Alderman Duncan should dig up a prod.

Even the light counters and meter readers joined the Street Railway shovel detachment this morning. That is what you call "esprit de corps."

The sweeper and plough worked all night with the result that the line was in good shape this morning.

Although the scheduled service missed fire once or twice the street cars worked well last night.

Quite a few of the unemployed made a few shillings with their shovels this morning. The demand for labour would have been heavier if the heads of households had not done the work on their own property.

It may be contrary to the first principles of political economy, but loosen up and let those in need do the work.

Think of the disappointment to the snow-plough men. After being lured into expecting a cinch to be overwhelmed in this way.

The street car tracks provided an easy path home for those who missed the last car.

Equal rights may explain the fact that many women cleared the snow from verandahs and walks this morning. There may be other reasons too.

As the hockey writer would say—"The weather man did not get going until the second half."

LLOYD GEORGE SAYS HE WILL NOT RESIGN

That is His Reply to the Gossip Which Says That Either He or Churchill Must Shortly Retire

THE NAVAL SITUATION

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 21.—(Special Cable)—"I most certainly will not resign," said Lloyd George yesterday in answer to the gossip which says that either Churchill or Lloyd George must retire from the Asquith Cabinet shortly. Lloyd George and Churchill are to-day appearing together at public meetings as if there are no antagonism between them. The Daily Chronicle is authority for the statement that there will be a demand in the coming estimates for naval expenditures of fifty million pounds, with possibly four and a half millions to cover Canada's deficiency. Regarding Canada's case the Times says today: "The Cabinet is committed to make good Canada's deficieny. It is clearly impossible for any member of the Cabinet to force the case before the country against the solid opinion of the Admiralty." On the other hand the Daily News, which represents the reduction party, says to-day: "We have reason to believe that the naval estimates have been severely pruned and that the Government will apply a check on the spend-thrift policy."

SIR JAMES IS A LITTLE BETTER THIS AFTERNOON

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Jan. 21.—Sir James Whitney's condition is somewhat improved to-day. He spent a restless night, but is quieter this afternoon.

ARE NEGLECTING MORAL ATMOSPHERE OF PETERBOROUGH

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Sir, — According to the most thoughtful writers of to-day, the fundamentals in the making of any town or city are Health, Education, Moral Atmosphere, and Business, and in the order named.

The Peterborough civic offiials are to be commended for the encouragement and aid they have given, in recent years, to the advancement of the Health and Education of the community, but they have seemingly not yet fully realized the importance of the third fundamental.

The progress and prosperity of any city depends largely upon its moral tone, and much can be done by those in authority to prevent moral degeneration and to develop a wholesome atmosphere.

Children can be kept off the streets at night and a sane and pure family life thereby encouraged; questionable places of amusement can be suppressed; the right sort of amusements can be built up.

The lack of proper places of amusement—supervised play-grounds, open-air skating rinks, proper bathing places, etc.—this is a fruitful cause of moral degeneration.

The larger cities of the United States and Canada are spending millions of dollars for the physical and thereby for the moral welfare of their citizens.

The physical and moral welfare of the citizens is quite as important as the business interests of the place. There need, however, be no neglect of either, if each is given the attention it deserves.

Our churches might do more than they are doing for the strangers who are flocking to our city. The pastors cannot reach all of these people.

Why cannot each congregation support a deaconess or woman visitor who could do much for the young women who come to the city and let the pastors and other workers look after the young men?

Peterborough is ten years behind the more progressive cities in this phase of cure life. It is righteousness, not material prosperity that exalteth a nation or city.

BEDROOM IN TORONTO GENERAL HOSPITAL OCCUPIED BY SIR JAMES WHITNEY—The Premier arrived in Toronto on the morning of the 19th of January as a big surprise to the public. He came the 500 miles from New York in his private car and was transferred to the General Hospital, and is occupying the above bedroom. Sir James shows no ill effects of the journey at the time of writing, and the hope is that he will recover under homelike conditions.

GETS FIVE YEARS IN KINGSTON

Robert MacKay Pleads Guilty to Theft of $50,000 From the Cowan Chocolate Company

SPENT IN GAMBLING

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Jan. 21—After withdrawing his plea of not guilty and pleading guilty to a charge of stealing $50,000 from the Cowan Chocolate Co. of which he was formerly Secretary Treasurer, Robert MacKay was sentenced to-day to five years in the Kingston penitentiary by Judge Winchester, in the County Judges Criminal Court. No evidence in the case was taken and the prisoner took his sentence without a trace of emotion. He had, practically, control of the business," said Crown Attorney Greer. "It was another case of the horses, and I have been informed that all the money was spent on gambling and good living, and now he is almost destitute."

JOINT MEETING OF BIBLE CLASSES

Every man of the Bible classes of the city and others interested in the welfare of the city, are urged to be present. Bright and interesting speakers have been secured to address the meeting, after which there will be a discussion.

TRAINS RAN LATE TO-DAY

Last Night's Snow Storm Interfered Considerably With the Traffic on Both Lines

DRIFTED BADLY

Beginning early last night the railway companies began to experience considerable difficulty on account of the heavy snow fall and drifts that blocked the tracks. Both the C.P.R. and G.T.R. trains fell so far behind schedule time, that the travellers on both lines had a hard time to get the train they intended.

The 9 o'clock G.T.R. train for Port Hope last night was over an hour and a half late, and since that nearly all the trains on that line have been running about two hours behind time. The snow ploughs have been opening up the lines, but connections are so bad to make that at the junctions the trains lose all the time they have gained on the stretch cleared by the ploughs. The train from Lindsay this morning, due at 8.05, had a very stiff run between Lindsay and Omemee, taking over twice the usual time to make the latter station.

The first train that left the City for Lakefield took an hour and a half to cover the ten-mile stretch. The trip was made only by repeatedly backing up and attacking the snow drifts at full speed.

In spite of the prevailing conditions, no trains had to be cancelled, and no accidents occurred. The noon train was two hours late, and the 11.34 for Port Hope arrived at 1.20.

On the C.P.R. the traffic was almost as completely demoralized. The 5.24 this morning did not arrive till nearly 7 o'clock. The 6.18 was an hour and a half late, and practically all the other trains this morning were just as far behind schedule. The local for Toronto was only 20 minutes late.

Early this morning the snow ploughs that were scouring the tracks of the whole system passed through Peterborough from Havelock, allevisting the blockade as much as possible.

The roads in this vicinity are badly filled in, and one man who drove from Lindsay this morning, said that twice he had to shovel his outfit out

LORD STRATHCONA MAY BE BURIED IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY

TRIBUTE TO STRATHCONA IN THE HOUSE

Premier Borden, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Other Leaders Make Feeling References

CABLE OF CONDOLENCE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Jan. 21.—A cable of condolence on behalf of the people and the Government has been sent to the relatives of Lord Strathcona in London by Premier Borden. The Cabinet will this afternoon make arrangements to have the Dominion properly represented at the funeral. No word has yet been received regarding the arrangements being made in England. The suggestion is made here, however, that it would be most fitting that Sir Charles Tupper, Canada's first Commissioner, should be the official Canadian representative at the funeral. Sir Charles is now living in England. In addition to tributes in the Commons by Premier Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, this afternoon, there will be similar tributes in the Senate by Senator Loughheed, the Government leader, who is related by marriage, to the late High Commissioner and Sir Geo. Ross, the Liberal leader, and probably by Sir Mackenzie Bowell, who formerly was associated with Lord Strathcona, in the House. While it has not definitely been decided at the time of rising, Parliament will probably adjourn out of respect to the memory of the great Canadian, who has departed. There is to-day in the House but a small group, indeed, of the men who sat in the Commons with the late Donald Smith. On the Liberal side there are Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Reuben L. Truax, the recently-elected member for South Bruce. Mr. Truax then represented East Bruce. On the Conservative side there are Mr. Speaker Sproule, David Henderson of Halton, William Smith of South Ontario, Hon. J. D. Rid, Hon. J. D. Hazen, Hon. Geo. Foster, and Hon. Col. Sam Hughes, W. A. Bennett, W. D. Northup and W. T. McLean.

His Remains May Be Given a Place Among the Builders of the British Empire.

HARCOURT'S TRIBUTE

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Jan. 21. — Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed for Lord Strathcona. Because of his high position as High Commissioner for Canada and his intimacy with the King and Queen, his remains may be given a place among the builders of the Empire in Westminster Abbey, although he had requested interment beside the remains of his wife who died last November. There was a deluge of cables and telegrams of sympathy with relatives to-day.

The death of Lady Strathcona in November last was a great blow, but even then the venerable High Commissioner's force of will asserted itself. He insisted on attending the funeral, and a week later presided over the Hudsons Bay meeting. This was his last appearance in public. His Lordship had booked a number of engagements for the next few months. Less than ten days ago he wrote correspondents that although he was suffering from a cold he hoped to be about again in a few days. Colonial Secretary Harcourt, referring to Lord Strathcona recently, said: "He wears the laurels, or rather the maple leaves, of an unselfish and industrious life, which have made his crown of ripe and honoured age."

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 21.—It has been decided by the relatives of the late Lord Strathcona, that he should be buried beside his wife in the quiet church yard at Highgate. It is understood His Majesty was ready to proffer a place in Westminster Abbey.

QUEBEC, P.Q., Jan. 21.—It is estimated here that Lord Strathcona's estate will amount to eighty millions and that this Province will receive seven millions in succession duties.

The late Lord Strathcona showed gradually increasing feebleness since the death of Lady Strathcona on Nov. 11. About a week after that event, he presided at a special meeting of the Hudson Bay Co., although his speech had to be read for him. He was unable to attend the Mansion House meeting on behalf of the Dominions exhibition at Crystal Palace, held just before Christmas. His Lordship, notwithstanding, had booked several other engagements for some time ahead

Despite his age, Lord Strathcona was an exceptionally "hale and hearty" man, and he made a special journey from London to Montreal to spend less than three days in his home city on the occasion of the visit there early in September of Viscount Haldane. His strength and vigour was undoubtedly the result of his outdoor life in Labrador and the Northwest Territories in his early years, as a servant of the Hudsons Bay Company. He was born in Scotland in 1820, but it has been said that Canada owes its development more to his work than that of any other one man. Sir Charles Tupper once said that but for Lord Strathcona the C.P.R. would not have been constructed.

Donald Alexander Smith, first Baron Strathcona and Mount Royal, G.C.M.G., G.V.V.O., F.R.S., LL.D., P.C., D.L., was elected to the North-west Legislature in 1870 and to the House of Commons (for Selkirk) in 1871-2, 1874 and 1878; for West Montreal, 1877-96; sat in the Manitoba Legislature, 1871-84; has been Canadian High Commissioner in London since 1896. He maintained a palatial home in Montreal and was a liberal contributor to national and philanthropic projects.

STRATHCONA DEAD.

In the death of Lord Strathcona a great Canadian, whose life has covered the space of three generations, has passed away. His life represents romance and reality. The reality consists in the application of a great intellect and energy and strong native sense to the conquering of one of the highest positions open to a subject in Canada. The romance consists in a man of humble origin rising from obscurity to the position of a peer of the realm, a personal friend of his sovereign, and the representative of the greatest Dominion in the Empire.

No living Cnadian, nor any Canadian in our history, has ever been so long or practically associated with the growth and developent of Canada. Before it was known as the Dominion—for nearly half a century before Confederation — he was 47 years of age when Confederation was effected—he had been doing his share in building up the country, laying the foundation of the achievements that in after years, linked his name with the greatest enterprises and the most fruitful and distinguished services ever given by a Canadian. He has amassed immense wealth and has used it very liberally in donations to all worthy causes; and no doubt his last will and testament, will show that worthy public causes and charities will profit munificently from such pothumous benefaction.

FLAG-SHOOTERS STILL TRIUMPH.

Mr. Borden's "emergency," on which he moulds his Canadian naval policy, has, to his view, as many lives as a cat; is as immortal as eating. Though it has faded aawy like a morning mist, he can recall it from the vasty deep and make it do service in support of his policy of delay. He excuses—lays the blame of—the absenec in the Speech from the Throne, of any reference to action in the matter of naval defence, upon the poor Senate. He considers it useless to exploit his give-away policy of naval defence, considers it a dead duck in advance, in view of the hostile attitude of the Senate. He is prepared to let the empire drift upon the rocks, while he waits for Providence to reform the Senate. If Mr. Borden waits till death removes the Liberal majority from the Senate, he may have to wait a long time, and meanwhile the empire may go to the dogs for lack of Canada's contribution of thirty-five million dollars. Mr. Borden does worng to blame the Senate; the Senate in the very action he complains of, took its cue from Mr. Borden. He promised that the would submit a naval policy, and if it did not meet the approval of Parliament — which includes the Senate—he would appeal to the people. The Senate did not kill the Borden contribution bill; it simply withheld its sanction, pending the carrying out of of Mr. Borden's promise to submit the matter to the people. People who regard Mr. Borden as a statesman, have difficulty in understanding his policy of masterly inactivity in the matter of naval defence. If they would only think a moment the explanation would come to them. Mr. Borden and his party—parliament as a whole unanimously and without reference to party lines, voted for the principle of a Canadian built and maiutained navy. The Quebec Nationalists refused to stand for any such policy, and a pact was entered into (far worse than the reciprocity "pact") to the effect that the Nationalists would support Mr. Borden and the Conservative party if he abandoned a manly Canadian and imper ial naval policy in favour of the pitiful policy of pay. Mr. Borden still wants the support of the Nationalists, and he therefore prostitutes his duty to Canada and the empire, by adhering to a naval policy that will please the Natoinalists. Mr. Borden got into power, was escorted into power, by his army of supporters, which waved on one wing the flag, heaven high, and on the other wing shot holes through the flag. Mr. Borden is still loyal to this incongruous combination, and especially the flag-shooters.

WHO IS THE HOMICIDE?

Mr. A. C. Pratt of South Norfolk is so gruesomely anxious to achieve political capital that he uses the illness of his leader, at the moment when Sir James Whitney is lying between life and death, almost within sound of the practical politician's voice, to effect his purpose. Mr. Pratt, speaking on Monday night at a meeting of the North Toronto Conservative Association, said:

"I am just as much convinced as that I am standing here tonight that Sir James' illness began on the day that Mr. Proudfoot stood up in the House and made his absolutely false charges."

Mr. Pratt doth protest too much; he overstates his case. Sir James Whitney was "too bonnie a fechter," too strong a man, to be stricken with fatal illness by "foundationless charges"—only true charges would possibly have that effect. Mr. Proudfoot was not to blame if there had been misconduct to warrant the making of serious charges. If the charges were "foundationless" why did the Premier and the whole Government use all its power and all its unfairness to prevent investigation of the "foundationless charges," to prevent the truth coming out, and so proving, as was not otherwise done, the "foundatioless" character of the charges. If any charge of homicide is to lie against anybody it is not against Mr. Proudfoot, but against those "higher up" who made the charges possible and a matter of duty. If responsibility rests upon anybody for the Premier's illness in connection with Mr. Pratt's contention, it is upon the man who made the Proudfoot charges not only possible but warrantable. It was brought ou in evidence and Sir James Whitney admitted it in the House, that Hon. Mr. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, the Minister in charge of the Central Prison, accepted from Mr. Taylor, who had a Prison Jabour contract, and was making a claim upon the Government, the sum of $500—for the corruption fund of the Conservative party. So Hon. Mr. Hanna or Mr. George Taylor is responsible for the alleged shock to the Premier's system. The stifling of the investigation prevented the responsibiliy, as between the two, from being definitely fixed. Evidence was not permitted to be given as to whether Mr. Taylor volunteered the $500 "subscription," or Hon. Mr. Hanna solicited it. If Mr. Taylor offered it, with a claim for damages, against the Government, pending, he doubtless reasoned that an adjustment of his claim, satisfactory to himself, would be facilitated. As to Hon. Mr. Hanna's position in the matter, what the Globe suggests is in point:

"It would seem more probable that the first advance came from Mr. Hanna and that the subscription was "asked" and not tendered. If it were asked Mr. Taylor would hardly be to blame for supposing that by his prompt response he had at least earned a right to justice, if not liberal treatment at the hands of the minister (Mr. Hanna), and his action in complaining to Sir James Whitney against what he regarded as shabby treatment, becomes the more understandable.

"Were," continues the Globe, "Mr. Taylor to be placed on the witness stand and compelled to tell his side of the story without fear or favour we should soon have an end of the cloud of suspicion that envelopes the case. The answers to four questions would let in all the daylight we need. he questions are: (1) Did Mr. Taylor voluntarily tender a subscription of the $500 to Mr. Hanna with whose department he had a contract at the time? (2) Or did Mr. Hanna make the overture and ask for a subscription? (3) If Mr. Hanna asked for the money was his request for $500 or for more than that amount? (4) Did Mr. Taylor on any other occasion refuse to give Mr. Hanna money for political purposes? Until these questions are answered explicitly in open court there cannot be an end of the Hanna-Taylor case"

We should then know who, in view of Mr. Pratt's suggestion, the real homicide is.

HE ISN'T SUPERNATURAL!

"No suggestion that Adam Beck is a supernatural being is involved in the iteration of the truth that one Adam Beck is worth more to Ontario and the Hydro-Electric movement than a shipload of Thos. Urquharts, the F. S. Spences, the W. K. McNaughts, the J. E. Atkinsons, the Sir John Willisons, the Frank Cachranes, the P. W. Ellises and the H. C. Hockens."—Toronto Telegram.

All this may be so. We have no wish to discuss the relative and comparative worth of men.

We are glad, however, to have the point concluded that Mr. Beck is not, in the Telegram's opinion, a supernatural being. The impression had gone abroad that that journal regarded Mr. Beck as one who does not need to eat food like other men, nor to sleep at night, and that he does not touch the ground with his feet when he walks, owing to his invisible wings which transport him wherever he cares to go.

We have no desire to discuss the comparative worth of different men, but see no advantage in causing friction between Mr. Beck and all his humble fellow-beings on earth. These various persons whom the Beck organ has named may, singly or by the shipload, fetch and carry for the cause and in small ways make themselves useful. Why not let them pur-ter around? Why roar at them and drive them away

If public ownership is to flourish the cause needs not only a leader, but it needs followers. To promote strife in the ranks on every hand is no service to either a general or the cause he leads.—Toronto Star.

CORPORATIONS, CAMPAIGN FUNDS

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 21.—Public interest still centres in the dramatic case of Arthur A. McLean, Treasurer of the Democratic State Committee, who pleaded guilty to the charge of accepting (by endorsing a check) a political contribution from a corporation, the Dale Engineering Company. The amount of the check was $400.00.

McLean, who is sixty years of age and a well known citizen of the State, was allowed a suspended sentence. The case was handled for the State by Charles S. Whitman, the famous District Attorney. The Judge, in summing up declared: "I think that the excellent work of the District Attorney in this investigation and the wide publicity which has been given to it will in future secure compliance with this very salutary law."

The New York law referred to and violated in this case enacts that no corporation or joint stock association shall directly or indirectly pay or use any money or property for or in the aid of any political party, committee or organization and any person who solicits or knowingly receives any money or property in violation of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary or county jail for not more than one year and a fine of not more than one thousand dollars.

At the last session of the Ontario Legislature two Bills were introduced by the Opposition,—one by J. G. Anderson of South Bruce requiring the publication of contributions for political purposes and the other by Thomas Marshall of Monck to prohibit contributions by corporations. The Prime Minister asked that these Bills be withdrawn, but stated that if they were re-introduced at the next session they would be given favourable consideration by the Government which, he said, was in agreement with their principle.

The present Provincial Liberal party has the following plank in its platform:

"We will prohibit under adequate penalties all corporations over which the Province has jurisdiction, from making campaign contributions, require the publicataion of all campaign contributions to candidates and political organizations, and provide for the appointment of a public prosecutor, as in England, whose duty it shall be to intervent in contested elections to see that all who are guilty of electoral fraud or corruption are duly prosecuted."

The matter will doubtless be presented to the House by the Opposition once again at the coming session.

My Easy Way For You

TO OWN YOUR HOME

If you have or ever intend to have a wife and family you must have a home by renting or buying. Doubtless you have read my ad. in the Examiner, where I offer to do for you as I have done for others, viz., to guide you to a home of your own, on as easy terms as you now have, paying rent.

If your rent you pay for ever, and have nothing to show. If you buy you have a valuable property to use, rent or sell. You are a man amongst men, with a stake in the country, honoured and respected, not a floater, here to-day and away to-morrow. My desire to sell and retire causes me to offer prices and terms that will never be repeated; so close to work and in the way of the City's growth. Come in and see plans; get full particulars, then you can lay out your plans for early Spring action.

AN IDAEL HOME

DON'T YOU WANT ONE? WE HAVE IT AND CAN HELP YOU GET IT

The ambition of most men is to have a comfortable home of his own design. Usually the ideal home is pictured as standing well back from the street in a large lot laid out in lawns and gardens, with shade and fruit trees, hedges and flower beds arranged about the lot to suit the man's particular taste. A Lot 60 ft. x 180 ft. gives enough space for a lawn 30 ft. x 60 ft. in front of the house, a house 18 ft. x 24 ft. with summer kitchen, 10 ft. x 10 ft., a tennis or croquet lawn, or berry patch, or asparagus and rhubarb bed beside the house, an 8 ft. or 10 ft. driveway and still leave a large lot 60 ft. x 120 ft. at the back for vegetables and fruit trees and stable for the horse and cow. When to this ideal lot is added the advantage of easy access to the river for boating and the convenience of being only a short walk from the factory district, and reasonable building restrictions, this ambition seems capable of realization. Where such a lot can be bought on a deposit of $10 and the balance as the purchaser desires, this ideal home is within the reach of everyone.

WE HAVE THEM BUT

These lots have been picked up very fast, and we have only a few left for those quick enough to grasp the opportunity afforded to own an ideal home that is bound to increase in value to a remarkable extent at a small present cost. You can build and finish your kitchen in the spring and plant out your garden, and as you are able, complete your house. Get in line and out of the rut, and become a land owner, instead of paying someone else a premium for the privilege of living in his house. Remember, there are only a few lots left, and applications therefor will be filled in the order in which they are received.

PETERBORO' JUNIORS DOUBLED THE SCORE PORT HOPE BEATEN BY 8 GOALS TO FOUR

Erratic Shooting and Good Goal-keeping by Rowden Kept Homesters From Running Up a Big Score.

4 TO 2 AT THE HALF

The Peterborough juniors beat Port Hope last night by 8 goals to 4, leading at the half by 4 to 2, after a game in which they had opportunities enough to make the score about 18 or so to 4. They were in on top of the Port Hope nets nearly all the way, playing nice combination, but something went wrong with the attack at the crucial moment. The first shot very badly when close in and when they did get their shots on the pets, Rowden, the little goalkeeper, who played a grand game, weeded them out coolly. Outside of the first fifteen minutes, the game consisted of an almost continuous assault on the Port Hope pets, but goals came slowly in spite of the abundance of opportunities. Seldom has a team so badly beaten on the play, got away with such a light score registered against them. The Petes were all up on the attack and the result was, when the Ontarios did break away, they had clean sailing and gave Dwyer little chance to stop their shots. The visitors put up a determined battle during the first quarter of an hour, but after that it was merely a question of how many goals the Petes would be able to score. Hills, the little centre man, and Rowden the goalkeeper, were the pick of the visitors. The Petes played unselfishly, and showed good combination. It would be unfair to specialize the players.

Clarence Gorrie, of Toronto, a new referee to local fans, was in charge of the game and got by with few complaints.

The teams were:

Almost immediately after the face-off, Barrie was fenced for slashing, and Forsythe followed him for tripping Richardson. Peterborough had several good chances in the first few minutes, but Rowden was in the way. Halpin broke a skate and went off for repairs, the Ontarios dropping Bennett. While the pair were off, Rose scored the first goal of the game on a pass from the corner by Barrie.

Halpin drew a penalty for bodying Sandercock into the boards and Richardson was sentenced for cross-checking. Both teams were bunching badly and it was hard to get away. The Petes had several good chances, Rose shooting wild when right inside. Rowden took care of everything that came dead on, and it was finally Port Hope that scored, Bennett showing one through on a rebound of a shot from Sandercock.

Richardson got a crack in the nose and retired with Bennett. The pair were back in a short time. Sandercock and Darch drew penalties and the Petes had a two man advantage, which they failed to use. When the sides were even again, Lowe and Hills pulled off a nice passing rush, and the latter scored, putting Port Hope in the lead.

Bennett was chased for tripping. The Petes began to wake up and playing nice combination they were all over the visitors for the balance of the half. They threw away half a dozen chances by erratic shooting, but finally Barrie evened things up by scooping one past Rowden.

Halpin and Rose came down together with a nice passing run and the former found an opening, putting the Petes in the lead. A moment later Knapman brought the puck from behind the Port Hope nets and slid Goal No. 4 past Rowden.

There was no further scoring before half time.

The second half was an almost continuous bombardment of the Port Hope nets, with Rowden tearing off some grand stops. The Petes were in on top of him all through the half, but their shooting was off, and when they did heave them straight, Rowden or the defence men managed to get in the way. The puck buzzed around the neighbourhood for over five minutes before the Petes finally scored, Halpin scooping one through from well out.

The fusilade continued, but in spite of the frequent opportunities there was nothing doing in the scoring line for some time. The Port Hope team found the Petes defence drawn out and bored in for two goals, Bennett getting the first and Lowe banging in the second.

Peterborough came back and Rose made it 6 to 4 on a pass from Halpin. Barrie tore off a rink length rush, but was chopped by Darch, who drew a four minute penalty. From the resulting face-off, Barrie secured and beat Rowden with a side shot.

Richardson wound up the scoring with a beautiful individual rush, going in on top of Rowden for the shot.

The summary follows:

1 Peterborough, Rose, assisted by Barrie, 4 mins.
2 Port Hope, Bennett, assisted by Sandercock, 10 mins.
3 Port Hope, Hills, assisted by Lowe, 5 mins.
4 Peterborough, Barrie, 6 mins.
5 Peterborough, Halpin, assisted by Rose, 1 min.
6 Knapman, 1 min.
Half Time—
7 Peterborough, Halpin, 6 mins.
8 Port Hope, Bennett, 7 mins.
9 Port Hope, Lowe, assisted by Hills, 2 mins.
11 Peterborough, Rose, assisted by Halpin, 2 mins.
11 Peterborough, Barrie, 1.30 mins.
12 Peterborough, Richardson.

INTERMEDIATE GAME AT BROCK ST. RINK TO-NIGHT

There is a fine sheet of ice ready for the intermediate game at Brock Street rink to-night between Bowmanville and Peterborough, and no doubt a big crowd of fans will be out to watch the Petes perform. This is the last home game for a week, so the fans cannot afford to miss the go. Although Bowmanville are trailing the other teams in the group, they have made every game a battle, and they will provide opposition enough to-night to make the game well worth seeing. The game is called for 8.15 o'clock, and should be a good exhibition. The Petes are playing grand hockey right now and will show the fans something to-night.

CHURCH HOCKEY LEAGUE GAMES THIS WEEK.

Great interest is being manifested in the Church Hockey League games which will commence this week. The challenge cup, which is now being held by St. Andrew's, is on exhibition in E. V. Warne's jewellery store window.

The first game will be played at the Brock Street rink on Thursday, Jan. 22, from 7 to 8 o'clock, between All Saints' and Knox.

On Friday night, Jan. 23, St. Paul's will play Murray Street from 7 to 8.

The Y.M.C.A. clash with George Street on Friday night, Jan. 23, from ten to eleven. No admission.

Dates for the following games will be published later.

BOXING

Tommy Murphy says he will retire from the ring if he is defeated in his bout with Willie Ritchie.

Danny Morgan predicts that the fight managers "who want the earth" will eventually kill the game in New York.

Rochester has a new bantamweight boxer known as the "Alfalfa Kid." He is willing to mix with any boy at 110 to 115 pounds.

Bob McAllister, the California boxer, has taken down $3,982.42 all told in the three bouts he has boxed since arriving in New York.

Joe Rivers is trying to arrange a bout with Willie Ritchie. Joe has declined to box Leach Cross again. He has already defeated him three times.

Evidently Battling Levinsky considers the Flynns his dish. Having disposed of "Porky" Bat is now preparing to tackle Jim, the Pueblo fireman.

Joe Borrell, the Philadelphia middleweight, has decided to try his luck across the pond. He is preparing to sail for England early next month.

May 20 has been named as the date for the Jack Dillon-George Chip fight in Indianapolis. That means a long wait before one will be able to determine which of these two scrappers is the real one.

Five years ago Georges Carpentier, who is said to be worth $100,000, was working for $4 a week. Three years ago Jack Johnson was worth $100,000, and if things don't break right for him pretty soon he will most likely be tackling Georges' old job at four per.

HARLEM TOMMY IS A VETERAN

New York, Jan. 19.—When Tommy Murphy faces Champion Willie Ritchie in Coffroth's arean in San Francisco this week it will be the first opportunity that the Harlem lad has had to battle for the title during his career of nearly fifteen years as a fighter. Murphy has been fighting continuously since 1900 and has participated in something like 175 battles. He has seen the rise and fall of three champions in the lightweight division — Gans, Nelson and Wolgast—and now hopes to see the crown fall from the head of the present title holder.

It is scarcely surprising that the little veteran of the ring is impatient for the gong to call him into action for the one battle that he has been longing for during these many years. For along time Murphy has been labeled an old man of the game, a has been for the gate. But every time the critics have had him tagged for the discard he has come back with a line of speed that has aroused them to retract their statements. During the year just closed he took part in no fewer than three gruelling battles that would have put many a younger man in the junk heap for keeps. All three of these bouts took place in San Francisco, where he is now billed to meet Ritchie.

Frankie Burns and Ad Wolgast were Murphy's chief victims during 1913. After 17 rounds of fast and furious fighting, the Harlem boy put Burns down for the count. He next took on Ad Wolgast and fought him 20 rounds to a draw. The pair met again a short time later and Murphy was declared the winner at the end of 20 rounds.

"Good living and regular habits" is the explaantion offered by Tommy for his long and successful career in the ring. While working as a boy in a glass factory for $3.50 a week he was given a chance as a "prelim" fighter at the old Polo Boxing Club in this city. The purses ranged all the way from $1 to $3, according to the importance of the bout. On one occasion young Murphy knocked out three boys in one night and fully expected to pull down $9 for his work. His disappointment when the promoter handed him $3, a dollar a knockout, may be imagined.

Though his early fights profited him little in the way of money Murphy kept hard at the game. He was determined to succeed, and he carried out his determination in a manly fashion. To-day the little fellow who was once glad of an opportunity to knock 'em out at a dollar a throw is now drawing down $500 a month in rent money from a string of dwelling houses he owns in Brooklyn.

Murphy was born in Harlem on April 13, 1885. At the age of 13 he had the number of every boy in the neighbourhood when it came to scrapping. At 15 he blossomed out as a simon-pure. He first got his name in the record books in 1903, when he knocked out Terry Young in five rounds, "Kid" Dooley in one round, Frank Leonard in two rounds, Joe Sheppard in two rounds, and boxed a six-round no-decision bout with "Kid" Beebe.

The next year the Harlem fighter met Frankie Neil, who then held the bantam-weight title. But Tommy was not considered as a principal in a championship affair in those days and the battle went as a six-round no-decision contest. In 1905 Murphy knocked out George Dixon in two rounds and was himself put down for the count by Terry McGovern. By knocking out Tommy Mowatt and Benny Yanger the next year Tommy showed that he was there ... the role of a "come-back."

From 1906 to the present time Murphy has met nearly every boxer of note in the lightweight division. He fought Battling Nelson and Ad Wolgast, but at a time when neither held the championship. He has won and lost in bouts with Owen Moran and has fought a draw and lost to Packey McFarland.

Murphy will have the advantage of ring experience in his coming bout with Ritchie, but despite this fact the majority of critics seem inclined to believe he will have little chance to defeat the champion. They are of the opinion that "youth will prevail," and that Murphy with his 29 years will be easy picking for 22-year-old Ritchie. And yet, Tommy has fooled the wise ones before now, and he might—but perhaps it will be just as well to wait until January 25 to finish the dope on the old boy.

England Won The Third Test Match

Beat South Africa by 91 Runs—A Few Striking Features of the Game

A FOOTBALL CHALLENGE

England beat South Africa at Johannesburg in the third Test Match of the present tour by 91 runs.

England's victory has made them certain of the rubber, which has thus been won for the first time by an English team in South Africa, and so one great object of the tour is already accomplished. The first two matches were runaway victories, both being won in a single innings.

No one can pretend that South Africa is for the moment the equal or nearly the equal of the great side that England has sent out. The M. C. C. team have suffered from injuries and illness, first D. C. Robinson and then Hearne and Booth having been disabled, but even so the side has proved strong enough.

The two most striking features of the Test Matches on the English side have been the bowling of Barnes and the batting of Hobbs. Barnes has shown that South African conditions were no bar to his success. This tour has confirmed (if confirmation were needed) his position as one of the greatest of bowlers of all time, and incidentally one of the most beautiful to watch.

The fight the South Africans made in the third match must at least be encouraging. Mr. Taylor, their captain, has proved himself one of the best batsmen of the day, and the promise he showed in England in 1912 has been amply fulfilled.

A Challenge.

A football eleven, made up entirely of brothers, is a novelty of the British sporting world. The brothers, who live in Scunthorpe, Lincolnshire, are all footballers of experience except one. They range in age from 18 to 43 years, and have just issued a challenge to any other team of brothers in England for matches.

The brothers are the sons of Charles Charlesworth, of Scunthorpe.

LADIES' CURLING.

The first games in the out-turn competition, the prizes for which are being presented by Mrs. Goodwill, were played this morning:

1st Miss Denne	Miss Collins
2nd Miss Gladman	Mrs. Walker
Vice, Mrs. Hall	Miss M. Denne
Skip, Mrs. Eastwood	Mrs. Goodwill
Score 13	Score 7

1st Miss Irwin	Mrs. Waddell
2nd, Miss Harstone	Miss Morrow
Vice, Mrs. Hill	Mrs. Sanderson
Skip, Mrs. Ritchie	Miss Davidson
Score 12	Score 7

The game to be played Thursday afternoon is Mrs. Coulthard's rink vs. Mrs. Goodwill's.

SLEW AT WIFE'S REQUEST.

Now Aged Man Must Go to Solitary Prison Confinement.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21. — Tottering under the weight of his eighty years, William Eberwein stood in the Criminal Court here yesterday and told a simple but dramatic story of how his wife, fifteen years younger, had pleaded with him to kill her and how he committed the deed.

After the old man had completed the story, Judge Walling of Erie, Pa., temporarily presiding in the court, fixed the crime at murder in the second degree and imposed the minimum penalty which, in this case, was practically a life sentence. It was solitary confinement in the penitentiary for not less than seven years or more than fourteen.

UTOPIA BIBLE CLASS HAS GOOD DEBATERS

Decided That High Cost of Living Is Not Inimical to Healthy Growth of Canada

The Utopia Bible Class of St. Andrew's Church held an interesting debate in the Lecture Hall of the Church, last night, on the subject, "Resolved that the high cost of living is not retarding the healthy growth of Canada." The affirmative was taken by N. C. Mills, A. D. Jardine, C. P. Fee and J. I. Allen, while the negative side was composed of C. P. Joy, W. S. Campbell, T. Sills and F. D. Weir. The judges, G. A. Gillespie, Ald. G. W. Green, and Ald. Langford, awarded the decision to the affirmative speakers.

The programme opened with prayer, by Rev. J. Rollins, Chaplain of the class. Nevin's "Venetian Love Song" was played as a piano solo by Mr. H. C. Treneer. Mr. G. W. Gilman, President of the Class, introduced Ald. J. C. Anderson as the chairman of the evening in the absence of Mayor Butler, who was in Ottawa, and referred to the objects of the Utopia Bible Class. The members are endeavouring to build a greater and finer manhood through class athletics, class discussion, both secular and religious, social intercourse and popular lectures on secular and religious subjects.

Mr. Gilman announced a lecture to be given on Friday, Jan. 30th, by Dr. H. T. Barnes, Fellow of the Royal Society and Director of the Physics Building, McGill University. His subject will be "The Methods of Detecting Icebergs." The address will be under the auspices of the Technical Society.

The debaters brought out many telling points and Mr. Gillespie, in announcing the decision, stated that the Judge's task had not been an easy one. The leaders were given fifteen minutes each, and five minutes for closing. The supporting speakers had seven minutes each. The debate was interspersed with a vocal solo, "My Ain Folk," by Mr. Anderson, a banjo solo by Mr. J. W. Parkins, and a vocal solo by Mr. J. M. Greene.

The Class extends a challenge to any Men's Bible Class in the City to debate the above question, at St. Andrew's Lecture Room, Tuesday evening, Feb. 17th. The first written acceptance reaching the hands of the Class President, G. W. Gilman, 359 Stewart Street, will be chosen.

FOUR FIRMS SUFFER.

Fire on Terauley Street Toronto Causes $40,000 Loss.

TORONTO, Jan. 21.—Fire, originating from a cause as yet unknown, caused between $40,000 and $50,000 damage to the four-storey brick building and its contents at 88 Terauley street, next the Toronto Electric Light shop, last evening.

The blaze started in the J. W. Hewetson Manufacturing Co.'s flat on the third floor, and is believed to have been started by the explosion of some chemicals used in the finishing of leather goods, of which the Hewetson concern are manufacturers. J. H. Hewetson, owner and manager of the company, was the first to hear the explosion, and, rushing from his office, was caught outside his door by the rush of flame, and severely burned about the face, hands and arms. He was conveyed to the General Hospital and his injuries attended. The losses in the fire are fully covered by insurance.

BILL IS CRITICIZED

Manufacturers Have Objections to Compensation Act

DELEGATES SEE MINISTERS

TORONTO, Jan. 21.—Sir William Meredith's draft Workmen's Compensation bill was the subject of vigorous warfare at the Legislature yesterday when manufacturers and labor men from all over Ontario gathered to present criticism of the proposed measure.

The labor organizations to a man rallied to the defence of the draft bill as it stood; the manufacturers almost without exception introduced amendments great or small. Towards evening, however, the atmosphere mellowed somewhat and both interests were content to leave the ultimate disposition of the bill in the hands of the Ministers. The manufacturers criticized the bill chiefly on the ground of inadequacy and unfairness.

The first claim was that the scale of benefits was far in excess of any other in the world. It was three or four times that of any other province.

Compensation would follow also in cases where death or disablement followed wilful misconduct; through wilful or intentional acts of their fellows; in uncontrollable accidents like cyclones.

The grouping system was attacked. Manufacturers and builders were grouped, whereas telephone companies, railway and navigation concerns were allowed to be individually liable. Objections were also taken to the extent of the board's powers, the cost of administration, the difficulty of collecting premiums, inclusion of clerks, and the failure of the bill to make workmen contribute.

Nine omissions were pointed out, among them the lack of adjustment of pay roll, adjustment between contractors and sub-contractors, no premium adjustment between successive owners of business; no provision for capitalization reserves, nor for action by the board against a negligent employer, nor obligation of physician to report, nor for liens, nor for associations to make representations in doubtful cases.

WILL WAIT FOR OTHERS.

Germany Will "Stand Pat" on Present Commercial Pacts.

BERLIN, Jan. 21.—The Minister of the Interior, Clemens Delbrueck, announced in the Reichstag yesterday that the Government had decided to "stand pat" on the present commercial treaties, all of which are subject to revision in 1917. The Government, he said, would neither submit a new tariff law as a basis for new treaties nor denounce the existing treaties. The initiative in the matter of new treaties must come from the foreign Governments; otherwise they will be automatically extended.

Apparently it is the intention of the Government to abandon the revision of the treaties in the fear of a portentous struggle between the advocates of a tariff in which no loopholes are to be found, and the reformers storming against high duties on foodstuffs.

English Couple Deported.

ST. CATHARINES, Jan. 21.—Gordon Maidment, an Englishman, who refused to work but allowed his young wife to do so, was yesterday started with his wife on a trip to the old country on a deportation order. Maidment, who was convicted of non-support, deserted his wife after taking her pay envelope from the Grimsby canning factory. He is the first Englishman to have been deported from St. Catharines.

LORD STRATHCONA IS CALLED BY DEATH

End Comes Peacefully to Canada's High Commissioner---His Career is the Story in Brief of Canada's Developement.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—(Canadian Associated Press Cable.)—Lord Strathcona passed away peacefully in his sleep at 2.15 this (Wednesday) morning. It was realized from an early hour Saturday morning that the venerable statesman was passing.

His lordship on several occasions within the last few years had been confined to his house for an odd day or two, but at such times, despite his heavy burden of years, his friends alway had confidence in his power to resist the illness. Unhappily such confidence could not be entertained on this last occasion. An attack of catarrh, which would be a comparatively trifling matter for a man in the prime of life, was too severe a strain for one who had passed the four score and ten mark well over three years ago. The malady completely prostrated Lord Strathcona, eventually inducing heart weakness. The aged patient sank into a state of coma, and the end came perfectly peacefully.

Hon. Mrs. Howard, his daughter, who succeeds to the title, and the other members of the family were at Grosvenor Square at the time. The King and Queen and other members of the royal family made repeated inquiries, expressions of sympathetic interest also being received by hundreds from all sections of London's diplomatic, philanthropic, and social life.

Until two months ago Lord Strathcona attended his office in Victoria street daily, arriving at ten o'clock or even earlier, and remaining often till after nightfall.

Donald Smith (Lord Strathcona), whose life forms one of the most fascinating stories in the history of Canada, was born in 1820 at Forres in Morayshire, Scotland, which Shakespeare has hallowed in "Macbeth," entering the employ of the Hudson Bay Company in 1838.

When Donald Smith entered the employ of the Hudson Bay Company at the age of eighteen, he was assigned to a post in far-off Labrador, a thousand miles from Montreal. For thirteen years he was a faithful, painstaking, energetic, astute steward. His balances were on the right side of the ledger, and ultimately he attracted attention. Reward came when he was made Chief Trader, and after more years spent in the Hudson Bay territory he became Chief Factor. In 1868 he rose to the important position of Chief Executive, with headquarters at Montreal. Since 1889 he has been Governor of the Hudson Bay Company.

About this time two events that had an important bearing upon Donald Smith's future took place. In 1867 Sir John A. Macdonald had brought up in Parliament the question of acquiring the territory of the Hudson Bay Company, known as Prince Rupert's Land. In 1869 the formal deed of surrender was executed. The halfbreed settlers around Fort Garry did not like the change, and led by Louis Riel, an agitation was fanned into the uprising known as the Red River Rebellion. Donald Smith's offer to act as mediator was accepted by the Dominion Government, and Smith was sent west as Special Commissioner "to inquire into and report upon the causes and extent" of the disaffection. Smith was virtually made a prisoner.

On Jan. 19, 1870, a meeting of the settlers was arranged, which lasted five hours. There were many other meetings, a convention was named, and ultimately the mission succeeded and Riel fled to the United States.

For his services during the rebellion Smith received the thanks of the Governor-General in Council. When the Province of Manitoba was organized he was elected to the Legislature for the riding of Winnipeg and St. John, and was also called to the Northwest Territorial Council. He also sat for Selkirk in the House of Commons.

The crowning achievement in Donald Smith's life was the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway. After many vicissitudes which form a complete history in themselves, the line was built and Donald Smith drove the last spike in 1885, having done more than any other man to build the road.

For this conspicuous achievement Donald Smith was Knighted by Queen Victoria.

From the time of the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway to 1896, Sir Donald Smith did not take a prominent part in Parliamentary matters, devoting himself almost entirely to his own affairs.

At the age of seventy-six, when most men were facing the twilight of life, new responsibilities came to him. Advancing years did not seem to exhaust his strength nor time impair his faculties. Sir Charles Tupper resigned the post of High Commissioner for Canada in London to become for a brief while Prime Minister, and Sir Donald Smith was induced to succeed him.

He assumed office when the tide of Imperial sentiment was rising, and no man has been a more potent factor in bringing about a closer relation between the Motherland and the colonies. On April 24, 1896, he was sworn in as a Privy Councillor. In the early days of his High Commissionership he was created a Knight Grand Cross of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, to which he was admitted in 1886, and was summoned to Windsor for a private investiture by her late Majesty. When the Diamond Jubilee honors were published in 1897 he was raised to the Peerage.

A few weeks later he was gazetted as "Baron Strathcona and Mount Royal of Glencoe, Argyllshire, and Montreal, in the Province of Quebec, Canada."

Passing mention can only be made of some of his activities as High Commissioner. He was a commissioner to the Pacific Cable Conference in 1896; attended the sittings of the Commercial Congress in London in 1892, and again in 1896; was a delegate to the Anglo-American Commission in Washington in 1898; became Vice-President of the Imperial Federation League, and later was appointed to the Council of the British Empire League. In 1898 a new honor was conferred upon him when he was made Grand Commander of the Victorian Order. In 1908 he became a Fellow of the Royal Society, and was named a Knight of Grace of the Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem in England.

In the world of finance nad industry Lord Strathcona was a no less important figure than in imperial affairs. He was one of the largest shareholders in the Bank of Montreal, become Vice-President of that institution in 1882, President in 1887, and Honorary President in 1905. Some of his directorates include the Paton Manufacturing Co., the New Brunswick Railway, the Dominion Coal Co., the Northern Life Assurance Co., the London & Canadian Loan & Agency Co., the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway, the International Commercial Association, the Royal Trust Co., the London & Lancashire Fire Assurance Co. and the Canadian Bankers' Association.

Lord Strathcona's philanthropies were as extensive as they were unostentatious. With his cousin, Lord Mount-Stephen, he gave $1,000,000 to build and equip the Royal Victoria Hospital of Montreal in 1887, which was supplemented in 1896 with $800,000 as an endowment for maintenance. To McGill University, of which he was chancellor, he gave at different times upwards of $1,000,000, and was directly instrumental in bringing Principal Peterson to that institution. His more recent benefactions included $450,000 to promote physical training and drill in Canadian public schools; $1,000,000 to the King Edward Hospital Fund; $52,500 to Queen Alexandra's unemployment fund; $125,000 for Marischall College, Aberdeen; $50,000 to Aberdeen University; $5,000 to the Archbishop's Western Canada fund; $150,000 to the funds of the Y. M. C. A. for buildings in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, and Nova Scotia; $15,000 for Dalhousie University, and $25,000 for the new Knox College and $15,000 to Toronto Y. M. C. A.

Mr. Fitzgerald Is Honoured

Brother of Local Surveyor Promoted

The following from the Anaconda Standard, refers to a brother of Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald, the local surveyor, and will be read with interest by Mr. Fitzgerald's many friends here:

D. J. Fitzgerald, one of the best known men in financial circles in Butte and Anaconda for many years, was elected yesterday cashier of the Silver Bow National bank to succeed the late Henry P. Bennett.

Mr. Fitzgerald, in 1888, was one of Marcus Daly's close friends and associates and was cashier of the Anaconda office of the firm. He had come to Butte from Lincoln, Neb., where he had been in the First National bank, which was practically owned and controlled by his uncle, who was one of the big Union Pacific contractors.

For several years Mr. Fitzgerald continued as cashier at the Anaconda office and later was cashier for the Montana Ore Purchasing company. He severed his connection with that company to go to London, where he opened a brokerage office and engaged in the sale of copper metal. Returning from Europe, he looked after his own interests until he was asked to take the position as secretary of the National Life Insurance Company. He held this up to his election yesterday to the position of cashier of the Silver Bow National bank.

Since the death of Mr. Bennett, Mr. Fitzgerald has been acting as cashier and manager of the bank. On account of his wide acquaintance and experience in this field, he was regarded as a most valuable acquisition to the banking force.

The directors elected at the annual meeting were John MacGinnis, D. J. Fitzgerald, A. J. Bennett of Virginia City, Zephin Job, A. S. Christie, Henry Pissot and A. J. Wilcomb of Twin Bridges.

The directors elected the following officers: President, John MacGinnis; vice-president, A. J. Bennett; cashier, D. J. Fitzgerald; assistant cashiers, Zephin Job and H. D. Blair.

The directors took formal application in favour of the bank becoming a members of the regional reserve bank that is to be organized under the new federal law. Notice had previously been sent to the effect that it was the intention of the bank to take out such membership.

BRANTFORD LIKES HYDRO.

Hydro-Electric was turned on in Brantford Saturday night for civic lighting, and the results produced a glow of pride among those who fought hard and consistently for that measure. With the ornamental standards in the business section illuminated, it was thought by civic authorities that there was no better lighted city in Canada than Brantford. Congratulations were expressed all around. Current for house lighting will not be available until February.

The Celebrated Maish Comforter Is Now

Cheaper By Many Dollars

And Many Housekeepers Will Be Quick To Grasp The Opportunity of Securing One

THERE can be no question about the superiority of the "Maish" Comfort. With it's fluffy cotton filling, the full size of the comfort and as light as down, the "Maish" imparts a degree of warmth without weight, that is unmatched by any other comfort made.

The size is 70 by 72 inches, and there are two styles which are both wonderfully cheap, as the following descriptions and prices will show :—

The first is our regular $12.90 comfort, that is covered both sides with silk, and silk sewn throughout. The Top side is handsomely finished in a bordered design of pretty rose and sweet pea patterns, while plain mauve, pink, blue or canary coloured silk is used for the underside. This comfort combines a rich appearance, with the splendid service and warmth of the "Maish" filling. Reduced to $9.90

The second is the same as the first, with the exception that only one side is silk covered, the under side being of silkoline. There is the same excellent needlework, the same "Maish" filling, and the same comfort and service ; while the price in this instance is reduced to $6.79.

CONFERENCE OF MANUFACTURERS

Air Their Views Regarding the Workmen's Compensation Act

TORONTO, Jan. 21.—The reception room of the Parliament Buildings was crowded yesterday when several of the Ministers of the Government, headed by Hon. I. B. Lucas, heard various views expressed regarding the Workmen's Compensation Act. A deputation of Peterborough manufacturers was present.

"We have taken the matter up with merchants throughout the Province. I have a pile of petitions, asking that certain clauses be left out of this Act altogether," said E. M. Trowern, of the Retail Merchants' Association, who spoke first.

"It is not proposed to bring the retail trade in," said Hon. Mr. Lucas.

"Well, but we can be brought in!"

"The retailers are not included in the Act as it stands now," remarked a spectator.

"But the board can bring us in! We don't want to go to a board. We want to come before you, gentlemen. If our Government is not capable of dealing with us without establishing a board it is time we changed our form of government."

Omissions.

(a) No provision for adjustment of actual pay-roll.
(b) No provision for adjustment of premiums as between contractors and sub-contractors.
(c) No provision for adjusting claims as between employers in schedule 2.
(d) No provision for adjustment of premiums as between successive owners of business.
(e) No provision for capitalization reserved and premium rates in those industries where necessary.
(f) No provision for action by board against negligent employer.
(g) No provision for obligation of physician to report.
(h) No provision for lien on buildings.
(i) No provision for representations of Associations in doubtful cases.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association proposed the collective or grouping system, but only on certain conditions. These conditions are disregarded under the proposed bill.

Telephone companies, navigation companies, and others are not compelled to insure in the State system.

Want Details Changed.

R. D. Fairbairn, representing the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, addressed the meeting.

"Broadly speaking, we are in favour of this Act," declared Mr. Fairbairn. "But it is in the details unfair to manufacturers."

"There is not a manufacturer in the country," said Mr. Henderson, of Windsor, Vice-President of the C.M.A., "who is not in favour of proper compensation of workmen. But we object to the provisions of this Act as drafted. The total disability is unreasonable."

Mr. Lucas asked for a consideration of an average case instead of a case of extreme circumstances on which some of Mr. Henderson's conclusions were based.

Mr. Henderson concluded with the statement that he was by no means antagonistic to labour. This was the position taken by almost all the speakers. The concensus of opinion among the manufacturers present was to the effect that with adequate changes in the Act no objection could be found.

Co-operator Discusses Coal And Other Things

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I read with interest the article in the Examiner regarding the coal situation in Peterborough, and I wish to state a few facts in connection therewith:

It is said there is no effect without a cause, and in my humble opinion, I believe the cause of the present drop in prices is due to the action of the Peterborough Co-operative Society supplying coal during the winter at summer prices, and we have made it pay at this figure. I do not think the statements of the different coal dealers of the City as to the reason of the drop in prices, are business like, when we can make a profit, selling the coal as we do, without all the conveniences, and, at the same time making money. A number of the workers in the City combined together and formed the Co-operative Society, because they felt they were being taken advantage of in some cases. I cite the following example:

Last March when the Canadian General Electric Company gave a raise to a great number of their employees, rents, food stuffs and other commodities took quite a jump, and after paying the piper the employee found that he was worse off than before. It looks to me as if the employers would be doing their men a greater service by not raising the wages, if we are to be treated in the manner referred to above.

Thanking you for the space in your paper, I am,

Yours truly,
Co-Operator.

BEARDSLEY SURRENDERS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

SUMMERDALE, N.Y., Jan. 21. — Edward A. Beardsley, who bluffed the sheriff and kept from fifty to one hundred sheriffs' deputies at a distance from his home for nearly a week, following his shooting of Relief Officer Putnam, this morning, at daylight, surrendered to the authorities. Nine children with him have been given over to relatives. They are quickly recovering from the effects of short rations. Beardsley is quite tractable in the hands of the police.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien will officiate, and it is expected that many of the diocesan priests will attend. In order that they may make an early return to their parishes the anniversary mass was changed from Friday to Thursday.

COUNTRY ROADS ARE REPORTED HEAVY

There was a void on the market this morning where the wood and hay are usually ranged for sale. Some of the farmers who came in with bare "bobs" stated that the roads were heavy in many places, and drifts were numerous. However, there have been no highways reported impassible, although a strong wind would make sleighing difficult.

Talking Pictures Wonder Of Age

Return of Them to the Grand Arouses Much Interest—Opera, Vaudeville and Musical Comedy—Great Variety of Entertainment for Patrons of the Grand Opera House.

(From the London Free Press.)

Edison's talking pictures, the epoch-making invention of Thos. Edison, the wizard of electricity, made their second appearance at the Grand last night, and as on the former occasion, amazed and delighted good-sized audiences. A programme, varied to suit the tastes of the myriad of watchers, was presented, and one can safely say that there was not a dissatisfied patron of the Grand.

The evening's entertainment was devised to show the virtues of the "talkies," and it must be said that it was successful. The first reel was a still picture, or in common parlance, the ordinary "movie." It was entitled 'Sweeney and His Millions,' It was by no means a bad picture; in other words, it was just as good of the kind as one could wish to see, and exceremely amusing.

The Talking Pictures.

Then came the introduction to the talking pictures. A lecturer explained their virtues and the various sounds, such as breaking china, horns, the tones of the piano and the violin, together with singing and speaking voices, were reproduced, simply for the purpose of demonstrating how perfectly the synchronization was. The contrast was the first picture, the still picture, was extremely vivid. There was absolutely no room for criticism of the tones in any particular instance. It was simply marvellous and the audience was spellbound.

Then came the programme itself. It was a rare combination of music, drama and comedy, portrayed by artists in every particular. The first was the quarrel scene between Cassius and Brutus, from "Julius Caesar." This is an extremely difficult bit of acting, but the enunciation was clear, the voices distinct and the acting excellent. It was a charming bit of work all the way through.

From a picture standpoint, as well as from human interest, perhaps the most enjoyable of all the reels was "Her Redemption."

The lightning effects were as delightful as a pastel from an old master and the theme itself had an appeal to the audience that on could not shake off for hours. One should see it to fully appreciate how pretty a picture this was.

The Music.

And the music. The Singing Society, with a number of German folk songs, sung by a quartette, with exquisite voices, was a fine number. "In a Spanish Garden," a piece of grand opera, delightfully rendered, and also featuring the Carmenciteas sisters in a Spanish dance, was clever in every particular. "Dutch Courage," an enjoyable comedy, portraying Mr. Hemjeck, claiming his own after copious draughts of brandy, was amusing. "Caught in the Act" was another good comedy. "Mrs. Murphy's Horseshoe" was an extremely funny offering, well acted and delightful.

Two other musical offerings, one opera and the other an old-fashioned minstrel show, completed the programme. The former, "Fra Diavolo," was a brilliant picture, full of colouring and life and with the voices perfectly in harmony with the articulation. The minstrel show was a bright bit. Particularly striking was the tenor solo, "Darling, I Am Growing Older," showed a remarkable voice, with perfect synchronization. The other numbers in this scene were pleasing.

Altogther it was a decidedly delightful evening's entertainment. The programme was carried out without a hitch. No person should miss seeing these pictures. They are worth more from an educational standpoint than anything that has been seen here in months.

AGAINST FREE FOOD

Hon. W. T. White Says Time Will Correct Depression

SENATE GETS THE BLAME

OTTAWA, Jan. 21—Declaring that free food would distress the farmer and cripple big industries, and that the present hard times would be over by spring, Hon. T. W. White defended his department from the vigorous attack of Messrs. Maclean and Oliver yesterday in the Commons. The budget, he said, would contain the Government's plans, but he pointedly expressed his belief that public opinion did not favor downward revision of the tariff at the present time.

In view of the death of Lord Strathcona, the House will hold only a brief formal session to-day, when the Government and Opposition leaders will pay tribute to the work of the great Canadian and will then adjourn for the day.

A. K. Maclean, resuming debate upon the address, referred to the forthcoming estimates as likely to be large in amount, and many of them, he said, were expenditures for local party needs instead of for really national undertakings. In the face of a falling revenue we were increasing our expenditures. During the past year, Mr. Maclean said, the Government had borrowed fifty-three million dollars, of which thirty-five million represented a permanent addition to the national debt Yet Mr. White in his budget speech a few months ago had promised to pay all current expenses and nearly all capital expenditures out of current revenue.

Continuing, Mr. Maclean said that the Government was treating the question of naval defence with silent contempt. Their policy was one of cowardice and inactivity. The Prime Minister had said in effect that he would do nothing toward the naval defence of Canada or towards strengthening the naval foreign forces of the Empire until enough Liberal Senators had passed away to give the Conservatives a majority in the upper chamber.

The Senate, he declared, had not prevented the Government from reducing the tariff, from nationalizing telegraphs and telephones, or from carrying out many other pro-election pledges.

Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, dealt with charges brought against his administration. The people had been led to believe that he was a spendthrift heir or the prodigal son. As a matter of fact the national debt which stood at $321,000,000 on Oct. 11, 1911, when the Borden Government came to power, declined to $303,000,000 on Dec. 31 1913. The Government had borrowed not $53,000,000 but $43,000,000 during the Parliamentary recess of which $10,000,000 went to pay off maturing loans. During the past year the revenue had decreased as a result of the financial depression, while extraordinary demands had been made upon the national treasury The payment of the Canadian Northern subsidy and the loan to the Grand Trunk Pacific were special items involving large amounts, while no less than $22,000,000 had been expended in buying up the three per cent. Grand Trunk Pacific bonds guaranteed by the Dominion Government.

Contrasting the operations of the Government during the present financial stringency with those conducted by Mr. Fielding during the panic of 1907, Mr. White reminded the House during the thirteen months between December, 1907, and January, 1909 Mr. Fielding had borrowed in London over $100,000,000. A considerable portion of this, Mr. White explained represented refunding operations, but the national debt during that period increased $43,000,000.

"What is the truth about our condition?" asked Mr. White, and then proceeded to answer his question.

"We have passed through a very trying period of depression unparalleled in its severity and duration. For two years trade has been restricted and the country has suffered from scarcity of money and curtailment of credits. Now that money is easier throughout the world, I believe that Canada will go ahead more prosperously than ever if the spring opens well with the prospect of a fine crop."

At the evening session the Finance Minister dealt with the high cost of living and the proposed remedy of free food. He did not believe that the tariff had anything to do with the steady increase in prices since 1896 Free food would mean distress to the farmer and would also cripple or ruin great industries like the manufacture of cheese, the packing industry, the canning industry, etc.

Hon. Frank Oliver said the Government was following an ostrich-like policy by pretending not to know distress existed. We were told that another trouble was the under production of food products. The Government, however, did nothing to stimulate the production or attract people to the land. Immigration had increased, but the number of homesteads had decreased. Agriculture was at a standstill because the profits of the farmer were absorbed by extortionate freight charges. The inland navigation merger had so raised transportation rates on the Great Lakes as to make $3,000,000 this season from the farmers of Western Canada throug additional freight charges. Mr. Oliver said that the refusal of the Government to bring about free wheat as requested by the Governments of the prairie provinces meant a loss of millions of dollars to the farmers of the west. It meant a difference of six cents per bushel.

The sleigh ride which was to have taken place on Friday evening, under the auspices of Mr. Hainsworth's Bible Class, has been postponed. It will be conducted later in the season.

A SUGGESTION TO WOMEN'S COUNCIL

Peterborough, Jan. 21, 1914.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—I would suggest to the ladies of the Womens Council that in the event of their not securing a police woman they might turn their attention to a lower step of the ladder, i.e., prevention. Although a police woman can do a power of good, still to me it seems like locking the stable after the horse is gone. If the ladies are anxious for the betterment of the race, why dont they start at the root of the evil? Why is it that girls prefer poorly paid work in a factory to house work? The ladies might answer that question satisfactorily. That economic conditions are at the root of the evil there isn't the slightest doubt. Few girls prefer a life of degradation to a life of respectability. Let us open our eyes to the fact that children should be taught about their origin, and no longer be put off with lies and fairly tales. The time for that is past. Boys and girls are now of a more inquiring turn of mind, and what father and mother won't explain to them, they find out for themselves, and often in a manner that would make parents hair turn grey if they knew. Let us realize that there is nothing vile about Gods mode of production.

Now, I would say to the men of Peterborough: In trying to better your own conditions, don't forget the girls. In helping them you help yourselves, and maybe place your daughter in a position to be desired by all, a position of independence and a safeguard against the wiley tongue of the betrayer. I am, Interested.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Toronto, Oct. 13, 1913.—This is to certify that I was almost a cripple from corns. I had given up all hope of ever being relieved of my trouble. I had almost lost the use of my right leg, it was almost paralized from a corn on my little toe, the pain was unbearable, I could not rest night or day for it. I was worn out, and as some would say, was all in. I called on Prof. Mulveney, 384 Water street, got a remedy from him, followed the directions and now I am rejoicing because life now is worth living, the corns are gone and I am a new man. I have used his remedy called B'Well and Rheumaticide and can well recommend them. Take my advice if you are crippled with corns, waste no time but call on Prof. R. L. Mulveney, 367 Water Street.

TO DISCUSS RATES.

North Atlantic Shipping Conference Begins To-day.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—Matters of great importance will come up at the meeting to-day of the North Atlantic Shipping Conference, which will discuss rates among other things. Owing to the differences which have arisen between the North German Lloyd and the Hamburg-American lines, no representative of the latter company will take part in the conference.

The action of the Hamburg-American Line has caused considerable comment among the officials and directors of the other companies, but what effect it will have on the continuance of the North Atlantic pool and the fixing of rates cannot be known in advance of the meeting.

USEFUL FARM HINTS

1. Place the windbreak at right angles to the direction of injurious prevailing winds.

2. Devote from one-eighth to one-fifth of the farm to timber. Its protective value more than pays for the ground it occupies, to say nothing of the timber yield.

3. Plant only species suited to windbreak use, to the region and to the locality.

4. Plant rapid growers for quick results; but underplant with slower growing species, which are usually longer lived and more valuable.

5. Supplement a deciduous windbreak with evergreen, to afford protection in winter.

6. Separate trees by the spacing proper to the species used. The trees should be close enough to produce a dense windbreak and to yield good poles, but should not be so crowded as to produce spindling growth.

7. Make the windbreak thick from the bottom up, especially on the side toward the wind. This may be done by using species which branch near the ground, by planting outside rows of low-growing trees, by encouraging natural reproduction, and by underplanting.

8. Cultivate the plantation thoroughly while it is young.

9. Do not allow excessive grazing where reproduction is desired.

10. Do not thin your wood lot too heavily or take out the best trees for minor uses. Remember that a timber tract should be improved by use, and that each clearing should leave it in better condition than before.—U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.

FERTILIZATION OF APPLE ORCHARD

One of the most appreciated speakers at a recent convention of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association was Prof. John P. Stewart, of the Pennsylvania State College. Prof. Stewart who speaks on orchard fertilization, has recently published the results of this experimental work, which he summarises as follow:

"The experiments of this Station have shown that the fertility needs of an orchard may be the most important check on its production. Variations in fertilization alone have resulted in average differences ranging from 50 to 400 bushels an acre annually for the past four or five years, depending on the experiment. These results were accompanied by similar differences in the growth and general vigor of the trees.

MORE FERTILITY THAN WHEAT

"The total plant-food draft of a mature and active orchard is greater than that of a 35-bushel crop of wheat in every important constituent except phosphorus. It is practically inevitable, therefore, that sooner or later the output will be reduced or off seasons will be developed in any productive orchard because of a lack of sufficient plant food.

"The mineral requirements of wood are comparatively low. This largely accounts for the fact that young trees usually do not make a profitable response to fertilizer applications, although they frequently respond well to manure or to other methods of conserving moisture.

"The time required for results to appear has been surprisingly short in all cases where fertilization has proved to be really needed. In such cases, both the value of fertilization and the kinds needed were clearly evident by the middle of the second season, and since.

"Neither acid phosphate nor 'floats' when applied alone have resulted in no material changes have occurred any important benefit. We are, therefore, 'completing' the fertilization of their plats by the addition of nitrogen and potash, in order to test further their relative values as carriers of phosphorus for trees. Basic slag was introduced into this comparison in 1912.

"Lime also has failed in most cases, though it may have some value in aiding growth. In addition, it may have some indirect value in facilitating the growth of leguminous intercrops, and also in correcting a possible toxic action possessed by the basic radicals of a number of salts, some of which are present in commercial nutrients.

"At present the high-grade sulphate in our experiments is showing no superiority over the muriate as a carrier of potash, but the reverse is usually true. The lower cost and easier handling of the latter, therefore, give it the preference. It is possible that the low-grade sulphate, or the 24 per cent. 'double-manure salt,' as it is often called commercially, may be superior on account of its magnesia content, but this has not yet been fully demonstrated.

"The influence of proper fertilization is not transient. The gains from it have been greater in the sixth and last year of some of our experiments than at any time before. In one case, these gains have exceeded 1,100 bushels an acre. Where the crops of the full years are not too high, the yields usually have been greatly steadied by proper fertilization.

"In all our experiments, the action of manure has proved to be practically identical with that of a commercial fertilizer rich in nitrogen and phosphorus. Their successes and failures have coincided with but two exceptions, and in those cases moisture rather than plant food was apparently the controlling factor. The commercial nitrates and blood have acted more quickly than the manure, and the potash in the latter has apparently been less effective than that in the commercial forms.

"Manure and potash are the only fertilizing materials that have shown a consistent benefit on the average size of the fruit. This is doubtless associated with their favorable relations toward available moisture, which is the chief determiner of fruit size. Above a rather indefinite point, however, the size of the crop on the tree becomes the dominant influence on fruit size. Proper thinning and moisture conservation, therefore, are the most important means of improving the average size of fruit.

EFFECT ON COLOR

"The red colors in apples can not be increased materially by any kind of fertilizer applications, though potash and possibly phosphates may be of some slight assistance. These colors are directly dependent upon sunlight and maturity, with the latter occurring preferably on the tree. Late picking, open pruning, light soils, sod culture, and mildly injurious sprays, therefore, tend to increase the red in fruits, while opposite conditions decrease them.

"The retarding influence of nitrogenous fertilizers or manure on color makes it advisable to use them less freely on some of the red varieties, especially those in which the color comes on rather tardily, such as the York Imperial. On the lighter soils, or in localities with the longer growing seasons, this precaution is less important.

"The fertilizing elements found effective in certain experiments were not so in others. In one of our experiments, no form of fertilization has yet shown a profitable response, and in two others such responses have come only from manure and mulches. It is evident, therefore, that the actual fertilization of a given orchard is still largely a local problem.

GENERAL RULES

"Present evidence indicates that the nitrates, or other specially soluble plant foods, are best applied somewhat after the fruit has set. In addition to greater effectiveness, this delay enables the rate of application to be varied somewhat in accord with the amount of fruit set, making the applications heavier when the crop is heavy and vice versa. In the long run, this plan should steady the yields and get maximum benefits from the fertilization applied.

"The general fertilizer that we are now recommending is a combination carrying about 30 pounds of actual nitrogen, 50 pounds of actual phosphoric Acid (P_2O_5), and 25 to 50 pounds of actual potash (K_2O.) These are the amounts per acre for bearing trees. Only where potash is known to be needed should the larger amount be used.

"This general fertiliser can be modified and directly adapted to the actual needs of any orchard, by following a local testing plan."

Dining with the Demi-Tasse.

The untimely death of Sydney Porter (O. Henry) recently has served to recall many quotations from his numerous stories. The following is from his story, "Hostages to Momus":

Two men are talking of the joys of New York, as they sit, half-starved, in the town of Mountain Valley, Georgia. One is telling his less-experienced friend what he considers to be the "most edifying and casual thing in the way of a dinner."

"After all, there's nothing less displeasing to me than a beefsteak smothered in mushrooms in sound of the Broadway cars, with a hand-organ playing down below, and the boys hollering extras about the latest suicide. For the wine, give me a reasonable Ponty Canyon; and that's all, excepting the demi-tasse."

"Well," replies his companion, "I reckon in New York you get to be a connoiseer, and when you go round with the demi-tasse you naturally buy 'em stylish grub."

MEDALS FOR HEROES

Three Canadians Figure in List of Carnegie Rewards

TWO OF THEM ARE DEAD

PITTSBURG, Jan. 22. — At the tenth annual meeting of the Carnegie Hero Commission yesterday, held here, thirty awards of medals were made, among them being three from Canada, as follows:

Frank Rance, deceased, 611 Delaware avenue, Toronto, Ont., silver medal to widow and pension of $50 a month, with $5 a month additional for her daughter until she reaches the age of sixteen. Rance, aged 39, a chauffeur, sustained fatal injuries attempting to save Mary C. and Regina G. Cryan, aged 37 and three, respectively, from burning in New York City on Dec. 10, 1913.

Stewart L. McClelland, deceased, Wilson's Corner, Quebec, bronze medal to sister. McClelland, aged 26, died attemping to save Leo Dore, 18, a messenger boy, from drowning at South Porcupine, Ont., May 29, 1911.

William Korr, 429 Cordova street, Vancouver, B.C., saved John Magee from drowning at Skagway, Alaska, Nov. 26, 1909.

The youngest heroes were two twelve-year-old boys of Oshkosh, Wis., whose cases, as well as all others rewarded, are as follows:

E. Donald Ryan and Paul J. Zenter, each twelve years old, of Oshkosh, Wis., in connection with the drowning of Harland A. C. Lehnigh, also aged twelve, while skating on Lake Winnebago, Dec. 1, 1911.

In eleven cases silver medals were awarded; in nineteen cases bronze medals. Seventeen of the heroes lost their lives, and to the dependents of thirteen of these pensions aggregating $7,680 were granted, and to the dependents of the other four who sacrificed themselves, sums totalling $3,000, to be applied, subject to the approval of the commission, to the liquidation of indebtedness or to meet other expenses.

MEMORY HONOURED

Commons Adjourns as Tribute to Late Lord Strathcona

LEADERS EXPRESS SORROW

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—The House of Commons was in session yesterday afternoon only long enough to hear the formal announcement of Lord Strathcona's death and to listen to the eloquent panegyrics upon the great Canadian, delivered by the Prime Minister and Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Mr. Borden spoke in part as follows:

"It is fitting, I am sure all the members of both sides in this House will agree, that we should pay a tribute to the memory of the great Canadian who passed away yesterday. I speak of Lord Strathcona as a Canadian, because, although born across the sea, his life work was almost altogether carried on in this country. I do not know of any man who was inspired by a higher conception of duty than was Lord Strathcona.

"I consider that it would be a fitting tribute that this House should stand adjourned until to-morrow, and I shall move, seconded by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, that the House do so, standing adjourned.

"But before doing so I should like to read to the House a message which has been received by His Royal Highness, the Governor-General, from the Secretary of State for the Colonies (Rt. Hon. Lewis Harcourt). It states: 'I desire on the part of His Majesty's Government to convey through Your Royal Highness to the Government and the people of Canada, an expression of deep sympathy in the loss the Dominion has sustained by the death of Lord Strathcona, High Commissioner for Canada in London for the past 17 years, a sympathy shared by his many friends in the United Kingdom and throughout the Empire. His name has been for many years a household word among us, embodying to all the thought of Canada and her marvelous progress as well as of his own notable career, distinguished by large public usefulness and magnificent liberality, and his memory is assured of an honored and abiding place in the annals of the Dominion to which he devoted his faithful services to the end.'

"In conclusion I am sure that I may, on behalf of Canada, and all members of the House and the people of this country, convey to his daughter and to all the members of his family, the assurance of our deepest sympathy."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in seconding the motion to adjourn, said in part:

"Since Sir John Macdonald's time I do not know that there has been any Canadian, who, on departing this life, has left behind him such a trail of sorrow as Lord Strathcona. He is mourned by His Majesty, whose personal friend he was, by the authorities of commerce and of finance in the commercial and financial metropolis of the world, by the poor of London, by the people of Scotland, the land of his birth, with whom he never completely severed his connection, and in Canada, by all classes of the community. This universal sorrow is a tribute only bestowed upon men of strong personality and to this class he undoubtedly belonged."

"He came to Canada when he was only 18 years of age, more than 75 years ago. At that time all his possessions were the sound, practical education of a Scottish lad, and more than the full share of the characteristics of his race, keen business courage, caution and firmness never loud and assertive, never failing to stand as strong as adamant against all reverses, and never spoiled even by the most phenomenal success. He came as a simple junior clerk to the Hudson Bay Company, and from that station he rose step by step until he became, after the death of Sir George Simpson, in 1860, at first in fact, and afterwards both in fact and name, the governor of that historic company, a position which he held to the last day of his life."

Stirring Tribute To Strathcona.

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—The Duke of Connaught has sent the following cable to Lady Strathcona, Lord Strathcona's daughter:

"Please accept expressions of very deep sympathy from the Duchess of Connaught and myself. Lord Strathcona's lofty ideals and splendid patriotism, as well as his distinguished services as High Commissioner, have long been a source of pride and stimulus in his native country. Among Lord Strathcona's many good qualities, his truly magnificent generosity was probably the most outstanding, and his memory will ever be kept green in the Dominion as the generous man of Canada."

OLD FOLKS DIE TOGETHER.

Aged Toronto Couple Found Asphyxiated In Room.

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—Forcing an entrance to a room at 10 Manning avenue, at the request of the landlord, John Stephens, Constable Jones and acting Detective Holmes last evening found an aged couple, Mr. and Mrs. John Richards, dead from the effects of illuminating gas.

The officers found Richards sitting by the side of a table with an unfinished cup of tea at his elbow and his wife lying on the bed with her arms crossed. Both were fully dressed. The room was filled with gas which was escaping from a leaky tube.

The couple, both of whom were nearly seventy years of age, have occupied a room on the second floor of the house since November, and their habits were so quiet that the other families in the house learned very little of their past. Mr. Richards and his wife left their room during the morning for a short walk and were last seen yesterday when they returned from their usual stroll.

WORLD'S OLDEST MASON.

Archibald Couper of Dunnville Was Member 76 Years.

DUNNVILLE, Jan. 22.—Archibald Couper, known as the oldest brother in Masonry in the world, is dead here in his 93rd year.

Mr. Couper was initiated in Royal Arch Lodge No. 153 in Pollockshaws, Renfrewshire, Scotland, in 1838, having thus been a member of the order for 76 years. At the time of his death he was an honorary member of that lodge.

In a letter to Mr. Couper from Mr. John A. Sinclair, of Glasgow, dated July 12, 1911, the statement was made that investigation showed that there was no doubt that Mr. Couper was the oldest Mason in the world.

Since coming to Canada Mr. Couper has been a member of Amity Lodge No. 32.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE.

Funeral of Lord Strathcona Will Be Held on Monday.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The late Lord Strathcona's funeral will be at Highgate on Monday. The suggestion of interment in St. Paul's Cathedral has been unofficially brought to the notice of the family. It is understood that their wishes are that in deference to the known desires of Lord Strathcona to be buried with his wife in Highgate Cemetery the suggestion of interment elsewhere may not be pressed.

Austen Chamberlain, speaking at Southampton, referred to the loss which every son of Empire will feel in the death of Lord Strathcona. He was a splendid illustration of the opportunities which the British Empire offers her sons.

To Improve Shipping.

DETROIT, Jan. 22.—The board of directors of the Lake Carriers' Association held an executive meeting here yesterday afternoon preparatory to the opening to-day of the annual convention of the organization. It is expected that discussion of far-reaching plans involving large expenditures for improvement of both Canadian and United States shipping facilities will be an important feature of the meeting.

Rescued From Drowning.

BRANTFORD, Jan. 22.—Only the heroism of Kenneth Uttrich, 13 years old, residing on Waterloo street, saved Alpha Johnston, 17, from drowning in the Grand river while they were skating. The ice was weak and broke under Johnston's weight. Uttrich lay on the ice, and, extending his hockey stick to Johnston, started to pull him out. He had succeeded in getting him to the top of the ice ice when it again broke. Kenneth then lay flat on the ice, and, by working carefully, finally landed his companion safely.

NORWOOD MAN'S BROTHER CURED OF CANCER

By Means of Radium Which Was Embedded in His Cheek—Pain Was Ameliorated

$20,000 WORTH USED

Mr. James Edwards, who was recently cured of cancer, in a Toronto hospital, by the use of radium, is a brother of Mr. George Edwards, of Peterborough County. The latter resides about one mile from Norwood.

His brother, a wealthy farmer from Caledonia, Haldimand County, lies in the Toronto General Hospital practically cured of a malignant cancer which threatened disfigurement, caused by the frequent embedment of $20,000 worth of radium in his cheek, placed there by Dr. W. H. B. Atkins.

Like most medical specialists, Dr. Aikins is not eager to talk about the case or his research work, but he stated that radium had been in use in this city for some considerable time, and that many cases of skin cancer had been effectively benefited by the application of radium by Toronto practitioners. He pointed out that it is not a question of quantity, but depends rather on the continuous application and upon the length of time the radium is embedded in the cancerous growth.

It is understood that when admitted Mr. Edwards had a cancer three inches in diameter on the side of his face. This has been reduced to one and a half inches since October 25.

Dr. Aikins has experimented with radium as a cure for cancer for about five years, and it is stated by medical associates, that he will have some remarkable facts to disclose to his medical confreres at the proper time.

Rubber tubes containing the precious substance were embedded in the impaired tissues, where they remained as long as possible, and it is understood that the first signs of a possible cure were demonstrated by the rapid amelioration of pain.

A Gentle Reminder

"Mamma," said Gladys Cumrox, "you haven't any savoir faire."

"My child, I must remind you that it is not polite to ask for anything that is not served at the table."

SIR JAMES IMPROVED.

Despite Restlessness and Delirium Yesterday He Was Much Better.

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—Sir James Whitney's condition yesterday showed a continuation of the restlessness that has been with him since he returned to Toronto.

The bulletin issue at 10 o'clock last night at the General Hospital read as follows:

"Sir James Whitney was restless during the afternoon, but he is asleep now. His general condition is fair.

(Signed) "Alexander McPhedran,
"R. R. Pyne."

Following an examination by Dr McPhedran and Dr. C. K. Clarke, at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, Dr McPhedran stated that although the Prime Minister had put in a very restless night, he believed he was much better than he has been since he was brought home from New York.

Practically all the time the patient is delirious, not altogether unconscious, but given to more or less wandering. Dr. McPhedran does not think Sir James appreciates the fact that he is back in Toronto.

Malone, N. Y.,—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has certainly done me a lot of good. I first heard of it when I was a girl and I always said that if I ever had female trouble I would take it.

One day my husband got the neighbors in to see what the matter was but they could not help me. My first thought was for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I sent my husband out for it and took it until I was entirely cured. I am a woman of perfect health and my health and happiness came from Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine. You may rest assured that I do all I can to recommend your wonderful medicine to my friends."—Mrs. Fred Stone, Route No. 3, Malone, N. Y.

Train and Track.

Electric tube railways are being urged for Glasgow.

The returns for the railways of the United Kingdom for 1912 showed a falling off in business. The total number of passengers carried, excluding season ticket holders, was 1,294,337,000, as compared with 1,328,317,000 in 1911.

Japan at present operates 1,189 miles of international railway, largely in Manchuria. The first American railway—of forty-five miles—was built in Japan in 1882 under the supervision of a Pennsylvania railroad engineer and two young Japanese graduates from the Troy Polytechnic school.

Automobile Runs.

Bridge jumping autos should be discouraged in a serious and sedate business community. Besides, the feat rarely achieves striking success.—Baltimore American.

So many autos are turning turtle and trying to climb trees of late that the suspicion begins to spread that they are adulterating gasoline with alcohol.—Toronto Star.

If you have murder in your heart and crave the death of your enemy, run him down with your automobile and escape punishment. That is the up to date method.—Buffalo Courier.

His Chance.

He—The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world. Don't forget that.

She—Then you come in and rule the world awhile. I'm tired.—Woman's Journal.

IN FASHION'S MART.

The tailored suit is indispensable to the well ordered wardrobe.

Small hats of black velvet are trimmed with lustrous moire ribbon.

Draped turbans have returned, and they are more ornamental than ever.

Children's frocks have extremely short bodices sashed with wide ribbon.

Beautiful shoulder scarfs are made of brocaded velvet, bordered with fur.

If it has a vest and is cut away in front the mannish suit will pass muster.

The combination of white cloth and silk combined with dark fur is still good.

Medici collars of sheerest lace or tulle are bordered with narrow bands of fur.

Sashes, scarfs, belts and bags are more than ever in the limelight of fashion.

A charming combination is the Dresden silk frock with changeable taffeta jacket.
